

Chapter 794 Regret

It seemed like Hendrix was caught off guard by Gretchen's statement. He cautiously asked, "Are you trying to make up to me or Tyson?"

Gretchen replied, "Consider it my way of making up to Tyson's mother."

Hendrix became irrationally angry and roared, "What's the point of all this now? She's already six feet under!"

His words caused Gretchen to feel even more remorseful. She asked in a quivering voice, "Hendrix, I've already gone above and beyond. Can't you forgive me? I regret what I did to you, but have you ever considered my perspective? Your dad passed away early. So you and your little brother were supposed to hold the family together. But all you cared about was that woman. If you had just dedicated half of your time and energy to our businesses, I wouldn't have done what I did."

"Was that a reason for you to hatch a plan to break up my significant other and me and leave her to single-handedly raise the child in a foreign land?"

As he gazed at his mother's graying hair, Hendrix found himself torn between anger and empathy. He despised her for ruining his relationship and keeping his son's existence from him. At the same time, he recognized the difficulties she had faced.

His feelings were a mixture of resentment and understanding. He could not bring himself to hate or forgive her completely.

Before Gretchen could speak, he said, "Mom, let's not talk about this anymore. Get some rest. I'll divorce Isla. As for Shaw Group, I'll carefully evaluate who will take over in the future."

With that, he turned around and left.

The butler witnessed the exchange and saw the guilt etched on Gretchen's face. He tried to console her. "Madame, don't worry. Mr. Shaw will come back to you when he's calmed down."

Gretchen let out a helpless sigh. "It's not his fault. I'm all to blame. I've turned this family into a mess."

She would never do what she did if given a second chance.

Meanwhile, as they made their way home, Celia and Tyson were quiet. Observing Tyson's sour mood, Celia asked, "Tyson, are you thinking about Hendrix?"

When Tyson heard Hendrix's name, his brow furrowed unconsciously, and he replied, "I don't want to talk about him."

Celia sighed softly. "I know you despise him, and I'm not defending him. But I want to let you know that he was the one who gave me the evidence of your mother's car accident. I can see that he truly cares for her. I don't think he's to blame for what happened back then."

Despite Celia's words, Tyson still harbored resentment towards Hendrix. "But he did let my mother down."

Not wishing to upset him further, Celia shifted the topic and asked, "Let's not talk about that. What's the story behind your fake death? Why didn't you give me a heads-up? I was so worried about you."

Although she knew that Tyson must have had a solid plan, her heart skipped a beat when she heard the news of his supposed death.

Tyson also knew that he had caused Celia undue worry. He embraced her and comforted her, "It's my fault, but I didn't keep it from you on purpose. It was an emergency plan. Initially, I didn't plan to fake my death, but I didn't anticipate Moses would try to kill me. So, I played along to lower his guard and expose his intentions."

Tyson's explanation matched Celia's guess. "It doesn't matter anymore. As long as you are back, safe and sound. But you must promise me that you will inform me of your plans next time. I don't want to see you risking your life again!"

Luckily, Tyson was alert and noticed that Moses had bribed the police to kill him. Otherwise, the consequences would be unimaginable.

Tyson assured her, "Don't worry. I won't make you worry anymore as this is almost over. Thank you for all you have done these days."

Celia nodded.

Suddenly, there was a knock on the door. Celia quickly rose from Tyson's embrace and said, "I'll answer the door."

She trotted to the door and was surprised when she opened the door. Brea and Wayne were standing outside, looking worried. They tilted their heads and looked over Celia's shoulder and smiled in relief when they saw Tyson safe inside.

Celia quickly invited the two of them in. Wayne immediately walked over to Tyson and punched his shoulder, saying cheekily, "Although it was risky, at least it worked. Simple but effective. Now that Moses is no longer a threat, what next? Have you considered staying in Captern and developing your business here?"

Tyson looked at Celia and replied with uncertainty, "It's still early to talk about developing a business here, but we'll stay for the time being. We still need to find the one who murdered Cece's mother. I won't be leaving until the matter is resolved."

Suddenly, Brea remembered something and asked Celia, "Cece, is your mother's surname, Carter? Could the Carter family in Captern be involved? I've heard from someone that a lady from the Carter family lost her life in a fire accident. But they never held a funeral for her. I always felt it was strange."

Celia was a little intrigued and asked Brea, "Do you know the lady's name?"

Brea shook her head and answered apologetically, "The Carter family blocked every information regarding her and don't allow anyone to talk about her. I only heard about her in private."

Celia couldn't help feeling disappointed. Tyson held her hand and comforted her, "I'm still investigating. I believe there will be results soon."

Celia nodded with a smile and said, "I trust you."

Celia was tired after a long and busy day. She took a shower and told Tyson that she was going to bed early. She didn't expect to sleep until the next day.

Fortunately, there was still some time before she was late for work. She quickly washed up and Tyson drove her to the company.

Since the public scandal had been resolved, the crisis in the Semsby Group was finally over. All the employees in the company were in high spirits.

Celia had just settled down in her office when Alec came.

Celia thought he came for work, so she quickly explained, "I'm sorry, Mr. Wagner. We are copped up with many things recently. Also, the materials for the wedding dress have just been purchased. We still need some time to finish the final product."

However, Alec hurriedly assured her, "You've misunderstood. I'm not here for the wedding dress. I came to tell you something important."

Since he watched the Shaw Group's press conference on TV yesterday, there had been something bothering him.

He knew why Moses could easily frame Tyson. Tyson had yet to be recognized as a member of the Shaw family, which explained why Moses dared to do something so crazy.

He was anxious because Jenifer's murderer was still out there. He was afraid the murderer would think that Celia was alone and easy to eliminate.

Although he could use Celia to lure the murderer out, he didn't want to risk his daughter's safety.

Celia was surprised by Alec's reply and asked, "Do you need something else? Please let me know, and we can work something out."
