

Madam Winters 187

Chapter 187

Digion Technology was an online media company.

Rumors of its bankruptcy had spread two years ago. After it was purchased, it unexpectedly rose to the top of the Internet industry all of a sudden.

However, most information about the company could not be found online.

Adina glanced at the available information on Digion Technology before she nonchalantly asked, "What time is the appointment?"

"At 2.00 pm in Peninsula Coffee."

After Adina finished her work in the morning, she drove to Peninsula Coffee.

She arrived ten minutes earlier and ordered a cup of coffee. Then, she started to read some information online,

She looked up the company again but still could not find anything. Even the family name of the investor was also hidden.

She could tell that this company had a strong backing.

She just did not know why this company would have its eyes on her newly established studio.

Adina waited for about five minutes before she heard some footsteps outside the private room.

She smoothed out her collar, stood up, and wore a faint professional smile. The private room door was pushed open, and just as she was about to greet the person, her smile froze. "Why are you here?"

"Why can't I be here?" George walked into the room indifferently and sat on the couch. Wearing a professional suit, he was dressed in black from his head to his toes, and his imposing manner was overpowering.

Adina quickly calmed down following her initial surprise. "Are you the boss of Digion Technology?" She chuckled. George nodded. "Yes."

When Adina saw the way he looked, she thought of Duke's face for some reason.

That adult and this child were two individuals, but their imposing manners were the same.

She sat on the couch opposite him and casually said, "We've met a few times, but I've never asked you what your name is."

George curled his lips into a sneer.

This woman was such a great actress!

She had already approached Harold, yet she said she did not know what his name was!

Besides, he had previously told her that he was Dew's son!

He refused to believe that this woman never looked into him!

Adina easily caught George's sneer. She leaned back on the couch and suddenly smiled. How could she forget that this boy was Dew's son? The grudge between her and Dew was irreconcilable! This kid was influenced by Dew, so it would be strange if he was friendly to her. Adina smiled. "Tell me. Why do you want to see me?"

Liam had entered the room with George. He passed her a document and respectfully said, "Ms. Daugherty, please take a look at this contract."

Adina glanced at the contract as she flipped through it. Then, she looked up. "There are currently a lot of mature models for this mobile program development project on the market. May I know why Digion Technology has chosen my newly established studio?"

George stared at her. "Because LaStar Technology Corporation is a collaborator of Winters Corporation. We would also like to seek a connection."

Adina smiled more brightly. It seemed that this child had investigated her. Perhaps he had also checked out all of her family members.

She did not feel quite comfortable with that.

She looked down with a clear gaze and read the contract again. The more she read it, the colder her expression became.
