Chapter 471 Fledgling Blood Ancien

In another location, the Vampyre Ruler Vladivostok had a frustrated expression as his communications with Elena, the one being who had access to the Crixus that shone brightly in the hands of the Celestials- was cut off.

He had sent numerous messages towards her and the forces in the Underworld that he controlled, only to get no replies as time passed!

His troubles seemed to only be compounding, as he knew his position in the Alliance would waver if he could not even maintain a handle on such a powerful spy that they placed into the ranks of Celestials.

He turned towards one of his subordinates as he asked irritably.

"The force towards the Verittas Fortress has set off?"

"Yes, Master. The Royal Vampyre Rokku and his forces should arrive within a few hours."

The Vampyre Ruler Vladivostok nodded as his red eyes shimmered. He knew this first battle against the Celestials was pivotal, and would even set the tone for the remaining battles that came after.

He had sent numerous Vampyres down to reinforce the defenses of the Mages there, their other forces moving to tighten their defenses in other important areas as they prepared.

He put the thoughts of Crixus aside for now as he focused on the current matters at hand, the vibrant power of this being at the Star Forging Realm moving forward.

In the Verittas Fortress, three days had passed as Noah's clone enjoyed the treatment of the Mages while he trained to max the proficiencies of his skill trees.

While only three days had passed in the outside world, he had spent more than 3 months in the Time Space! This was a truly ridiculous number to even imagine, but it made possible for the rapid advancements of raising proficiencies of skills and then combining them.

Two skill trees had already met the requirements and were taken into the Domain Expansion Realm as he worked double to combine solo skills he wasn't using into the Domain Rank and then sacrificed them into the skill trees. The other two Skill Trees were not far behind as they only waited for the required sacrificial skills at the moment!

The ones he worked to upgrade first were the [Kin of Ancients] and [Kin of Terror], their advanced skill trees actually taking on similar names as he chose the path where both of them were termed "Fledgling".

He advanced these ones first as they would be the ones he would most likely use the most in the coming days, the Arch Lich Ra'Zan and Fate's Guardian being left behind for now. After these, the next one of great importance that had taken even longer to raise up was the [Agent of Chaos] skill tree that directly opposed the Law of Fate!

But for now, the first one was the [Kin of Ancients] skill tree that had the abilities of the Blood Lord at their base. This skill tree was expanded to a pathway that was called [Fledgling Ancient]!

DOMAIN [Blood Lord] (45/45):: Abilities- Dawn of the Blood Lord(5/5), Blood World(5/5), Drain Life(5/5), and Nightmarish Descent(5/5). >> [Kin of the Ancients] (60/60) :: Ancient Blood Scion(5/5), Ancient Blood Clone(5/5), Summon the Ancients(5/5), Blood Rage(5/5) >>[Fledgling Blood Ancient] (75/75) :: A fledgling of a race of powerful creatures that occupy the Letalis Expanse, the skills of this particular fledgling leaning more towards the control of blood. Abilities Include Blood Summoner(5/5), Blood Clone Support (5/5), Drain Master Support (5/5), and Domination (5/5)

[Blood Summoner] (5/5) :: When the abilities Dawn of the Blood Lord and Ancient Blood Scion are simultaneously active, the user can summon 30 Blood Ancients to aid them.

[Blood Clone Support] (5/5) :: The Ancient Blood Clone is further strengthened, now being able to exhibit 100% of the main body's strength.

[Drain Life Support] (5/5) :: The Drain Life ability is enhanced, its effects not limited only to attacks dealt as an aura of blood will passively erupt to leech the life force of the targeted enemies around you. The Life Steal effect is increased from 5% to 10%.

[Domination] (5/5) :: The eyes of the Fledgling Blood Ancient release a dominating light that enralls any with weak souls. The bodies of the dominated can then be controlled to either replenish the Blood Ancient with [Blood Bag], or deal damage to surrounding enemies by [Blood Bomb].

A set of shining new skills were displayed in front of him, his eyes going over them a few times as he largely understood them all without needing to go over them.

The Drain Life Support and Blood Clone Support were straightforward, with the latter being even more useful by granting his Ancient Blood Clone the power to exhibit the entire strength of the main body. This now meant that there were two of him that could effectively release his entire power at full capacity!

Although one would have to wonder, did the previous percentage cap of 60% even limit the clone's power in any significant way when one thought about the mana available to it?

Noah then moved on to the other two, the Blood Summoner being a fairly unique one as it allowed him to summon 30 new combatants as long as he had two specific skills active. If these Blood Ancients were anywhere close to the power of the Ancients that he could call upon with the [Summon the Ancients] ability, he would not have to worry at all about their fire power.

The last one was the most unique one, the ability called [Domination] that made him actually look forward to trying it out on the battlefield! Shockingly, this ability allowed him to bring to his command those with weak souls, and those dominated souls only had a single fate- the blood and body be used to replenish him or as explosions to damage those around them!

It seemed like a very flashy and destructive skill that he could not wait to put to use when imagining the Legions of Celestials nearing this location.

With this skill upgrade, he sadly did not come across any other Guider type jobs similar to the [Unruly Guider] ability that stemmed from [Fate's Guardian], and this stood the same as he glanced at the upgraded skill tree of the Kin of Terror, which had added 4 new abilities under the next advancement-[Fledgling Aether Terror]!

Chapter 472 Advancing Legion

On the 7th celestial star, Grandmaster Ramiel had just left a hidden underground prison where a certain individual lay with his body pierced with numerous golden spikes. He had gone down to this underground area to once again one sidedly monologue towards his teacher about the recent events, as well as the initiation of a war that he would be at the forefront of.

When he left the golden cage that continued to seep the strength of the powerful figure, Grandmaster Ramiel once more missed the hidden smile that had appeared on the bleeding and disfigured being's face.

This had been the last time that this Grandmaster was going down to ramble to his teacher, the last time that he would converse with one of the founders of Celestials.

Unbeknownst to grandmaster Ramiel, this was also the last time that he would see his master, because in the journey that this Grandmaster was about to undertake, he would not get the chance to return to this Celestial Star!

But this knowledge was not one that was privy to him at this moment as he left the Celestial Star with a strong demeanor. He looked at the celestials around him as they all boarded numerous prime warships, the single 7th Celestial Star forming one of the small squadrons that were going to combine with the large Legion that someone from the celestial realm would be leading towards the Dark Expanse.

RUMBLE!

Grandmaster Ramiel gazed at the numerous prime warships that littered the void of space, the procession of beings from the Celestial Realm passing near the 7th Celestial Star as his job was to only combine in their ranks and follow along in this venture.

All the Celestials were under the lead of Grandmaster Onillus, a being in the World Realm and someone that had more than three million fate lines thrumming strongly in his body!

If Grandmaster Ramiel could be considered just at the entrance of the World Realm, then Grandmaster Onillus was nearing its peak as the time that he spent in the Celestial Realm granted him versatile skills and abilities, as well as improving his techniques in the law of fate.

This was why the Founder had chosen this Grandmaster to be the one that led the forces in the first battle of this war. It was because this being was looked at with extreme confidence as it was someone that participated in the war more than a thousand years ago and knew the ins and outs of being a commander!

The many prime worships that would make any surrounding planets tremble continued on moving as Grand Master Ramiel entered the largest one at the forefront. This was the main vessel that contained many of the leading grandmasters. One could sense numerous powerhouses at the World Realm, with the majority being at the domain expansion realm and even more at this soul forging realm. But the largest percentages were of course those of the void rank.

A stark difference in the legion that was being led towards the Verittas Fortress in this war compared to the previous war was that the head count for the celestials was actually rather small when one compared to the numbers of individuals that came from numerous Prime Worlds that were also currently moving within the Celestial Legion!

The Celestial Legion had not yet reached the Verittas Fortress because they were passing through Specific regions in the Light Expanse collecting more and more powerful figures from chosen Prime Worlds that were selected to provide soldiers for this first conflict.

As they moved across the Light Expanse, in just a few days the number of celestials actually became the minority in this advancing force as hundreds of thousands of powerhouses at the void realm from numerous prime worlds came under their banner.

Those capable steered their own vessels towards the dark expanse with even more being taken into the prime warships of the Celestials. The forces from the World of Cultivation were even more vibrant as they were actually given special treatment from the Celestials. The reason was because the World of Cultivation was the place where the being with Noble Fate who would soon enter the ranks of experts, Crixus, came from!

Those especially proud were the cultivators from the Profound Astral Sect, especially the Elder that was Crixus's father who enjoyed a position as the leading figure that was overseeing the forces of the World of Cultivation. The power of the Profound Astral Sect had gradually expanded in the cultivation world because of the shining name of Crixus, and now they found themselves serving at the forefront as they actually saw this chance as an honor.

Their gazes were those of responsibility and slight fear, as all that they knew was that they were going to defend their home. They were going to defend their Light Expanse from the hands of the savages that had already made two prime worlds disappear. They had acted and somehow taken the lives and the entire world that was formerly known as the Magus world and even more recently they had entered the wondrous celestial realm and caused conflict while also erasing another powerful prime world that was known as the Underworld.

Many of the forces from the numerous prime worlds were acting under this assumption, as this was the only news and propaganda that the Celestials had spread, a propaganda that began the moment the Founder declared war after the Battle of Geniuses!

A majority of them knew that they were going in this war to defend their homes, but those even more knowledgeable and those that could see behind the scenes knew that they were only pieces being played on a chessboard. But could they refuse? Could they say no?

They had lesser power and they had no strength, so they could only go along as a grand procession passed through the Light Expanse as it looked like a large blade that pointed itself towards the Dark Expanse!

Chapter 473 Fledgling Aether Terror!

Back in the dwelling that Noah's Ancient Blood Clone was staying at in the Verittas Fortress, he was looking at the advancement of the skill tree that stemmed from [Lesser Cthulhu]. It was the skill tree that made many of the things he had at this moment possible, being the one that opened the doorway for him to become an Infernal Lord!

After Kin of Terror, the next name that came with 4 new abilities was termed [Fledgling Aether Terror]! The other skill tree that he could have chosen from was something called [Devouring Aether Beast], but he stuck to the names that continued to lead towards the terrifying being that he only knew from his memories. The abilities of [Fledgling Aether Terror] did not disappoint.

DOMAIN [Amorphous Space Beast] (15/15) :: Abilities- Spatial Cage(5/5), Destabilize(5/5), Shattered Star(5/5), and Miniature Space(5/5). >> [Lesser Cthulhu] (45/45) :: Additional Abilities- Morph(5/5), Child of Space(5/5), Portals of Terror(5/5), and Sever(5/5). >> [Kin of Terror] (60/60) :: Additional Abilities- Aether Reinforcement (5/5), Multiplicative Ray Support (5/5), Triple on Cast Support (5/5), Lunacy Inducement (5/5) >> [Fledgling Aether Terror] (75/75) :: Additional Abilities- Aether Emission (5/5), Aether Chain Support (5/5), Fatal Ailment Support (5/5), Size Distortion (5/5)

Aether Emission (5/5) :: The body of the Fledgling Aether Terror passively emits the baleful energies of Aether. This ability also allows the boosts of [Aether Reinforcement] to apply to any skills used by the Fledgling Aether Terror.

Aether Chain Support (5/5) :: The Aether Rays emitted by the Fledgling Aether Terror can chain between selected enemies. Supported ray-based abilities can chain +10 times

Fatal Ailment Support (5/5) :: The essence of Aether is destructive by nature, causing chaos in the body of those affected. All abilities preceding and following the Fledgling Aether Terror skill tree deal an additional 70% damage over time as Aether continues to cause chaos in their bodies.

Size Distortion (5/5) :: Striving for unmatched strength, the body of the Fledgling Aether Terror can be expanded up to 250 meters.

As soon as Noah finished placing all the required Infernal Skill Points into the newly opened Fledgling Aether Terror skill tree, he felt his already strong body rumble with power as the energy of Aether leaked freely from him!

WAA!

The baleful energy caused the air to scream as those within the grand castle he was situated in also felt an oppressive aura of energy coming from the location where an Infernal Lord was residing, their faces actually filling up with happiness as they sensed this fearsome power, as it actually brought them comfort when they thought about the coming enemies.

Noah reeled in the Aether to only stay within a meter around him as it seemed to just continue expanding, his gaze going towards the additional skills after this skill tree was brought up to the Domain Rank.

The [Aether Emission] was what explained what just occurred with his body, so he moved on directly to the skills that had 'Support' attached to them as he was coming to particularly love these types of skills more and more.

Those with the addition of 'Support' always enhanced his current abilities to even greater heights, not simply adding more and more skills for him to try and keep track of and maybe not even use as time passed.

The two support abilities this time were [Aether Chain Support] and [Fatal Ailment Support]! The former made it so that when he released the numerous rays of Aether through [Sever] that was already enhanced by [Multiplicative Ray Support], these Aether rays would actually chain between the bodies of up to 10 enemies!

This caused for a shocking lethality as the rays of Aether were already destructive enough, but were now made even more insane. The [Fatal Ailment Support] was another unique support skill that was equivalent to poisoning any being he hit with abilities from this skill tree as they would suffer damage over time. This damage over time would continue until their death or if they somehow had the means to purify the baleful energy of Aether from their bodies. Again, it simply made his abilities all the more terrifying!

This was the reason why he particularly loved skill trees, and would continue to pursue them to their peak until he saw just how crazy all of these abilities could become.

The last skill was a simple one, [Size Distortion] allowing him to expand his size to actually become 5 times the normal mountainous size of Behemoths. It granted him the ability to expand up to 250 meters! It was ridiculous to even imagine his size larger than the Behemoths he was fighting, so he was excited to try this ability in the coming battle when he faced hundreds of thousands of enemies.

As his thoughts were coming to a close, he received a message from the Spiritual World System.

[Master, the Hydromancer's Mantle Supreme Treasure has finished being forged.]

The sweet words of even more spectacular things occurring rang in his ears as his figure disappeared into the miniaturized Spiritual World and went directly towards the Blacksmith's Forge.

Inside the expansive Forge that was now much bigger than when he first entered it, there were numerous shining armors and weapons that were beautifully placed on the walls of the Forge.

The Items forged from the materials of Infernals and Behemoths that were not yet distributed to his subordinates were all grandly displayed in the Forge, the workshop turning into a brilliant showcase of powerful armors as Noah went towards the one that shone with a luminescent blue brilliance.

The [Hydromancer's Mantle] looked like a blue battle robe that fully covered the wearer from head to toe, even having a fearsome looking helm with a design only veteran commanders would be adorned in. Blue runic sigils swam around the Mantle mystically as it gave off a feeling of power and strength!

Noah's eyes shone as he neared the [Hydromancer's Mantle] to take a look at exactly what abilities and boosts it provided. Would it be as crazy as the Trident of the Sea, or something even more wondrous?

Chapter 474 Hydromancer's Mantle

Noah's Ancient Blood Clone thoughtfully stared at the description of the newly forged Supreme Treasure, [Hydromancer's Mantle], that was floating serenely in the Blacksmith's Forge.

[Hydromancer's Mantle] :: A supreme treasure geared towards extreme defense, absorbing any attacks thrown at it as the wearer experiences extreme comfort. Abilities include Sea Domain, Hydromancer's Banner, Hydromancer's Pride, Seaborn

[Sea Domain] (Active) :: With the user at the center, the surrounding 1 mile can instantly be turned into a domain of the sea. Within this Domain, the wearer of Hydromancer's Mantle absorbs 50% of all damage and reflects 20% more, while the enemies are granted the Slow and Restrictive skill effect. The Defense of the user is tripled in the Sea Domain.

[Hydromancer's Banner] (Active) :: A banner of the one loved by water descends on the battlefield, granting the Aura of Water and Seafarer abilities to all those standing with the Hydromancer that allows them to move unhindered in the Sea Domain while enhancing their abilities.

[Seaborn] (Passive) :: The wearer of the Hydromancer's Mantle is loved by water, granting them 100% comprehension speed when trying to understand the Law of Water.

Noah's eyes stared carefully at the blue shining mantle as numerous ideas about the abilities shown passed through his mind.

[When forging, I tried to steer the resulting abilities towards things that you did not already have, the results being somewhat satisfactory.]

The voice of the Spiritual World System rang out as Noah smiled.

"This is more than enough."

Yes, this was more than enough! The abilities were stupendous, especially [Seaborn] that insanely doubled his comprehension in the Law of Water! He was currently working to refine Soul Jades from the Water Crystal materials he had obtained while traversing the southern area of the Celestial Realm in order to use them on the neglected [Lawful Nourishment] item that he received from the Karmic Sect Leader in order to increase the rate at which he comprehended the laws.

The future plan was to find the equivalent materials to enable him to collect numerous crystals of all the laws he was working on to further enhance his speed, so he never expected an item to actually just casually double his rate of progress in one law.

If the Hydromancer's Mantle gave just this, he would have been happy. But it did even more as grand abilities like Sea Domain, Hydromancer's Pride, and Hydromancer's Banner appeared to further protect him and reinforce his power.

Noah's clone wasted no time as his hands reached towards the Supreme Treasure, adorning it for the first time to see its spectacular descriptions in action!

As legions moved closer and closer towards each other, Noah's main body was moving alone in the celestial realm.

Grand Master Vredral had looked at this disciple with shining and proud eyes when he stepped into a realm that was even above his own and was even courteous enough to ask his teacher still for the permission to explore the Celestial Realm by himself. The Grandmaster had shaken his head proudly as he waved his hands telling Noah that he could do whatever he wished!

He was an expert at the World Realm now and that title came with a status. A status that would first award him the title of a Grandmaster even though his fate lines had yet to reach and exceed 100,000. Before he left the Golden Bastion, Noah had received the Golden Robe that was adorned by the many Grandmasters of this Celestial Realm.

In the span of a few months after Noah first stepped onto the seventh Celestial Star as a disciple, in this short period of time he had actually risen from that lowly rank and had gotten the name of a Celestial, and now held the proud name of a Grandmaster.

Of course, this meant nothing to him as he left the Golden Bastion adorned in the golden robe and went further south of the Celestial Realm to begin exploring and hunt down behemoths in full. Even as people neared war, he still had to strengthen himself and his forces, where now a majority of the Harbingers of Sin were in the Soul Forging Realm with not a single one in the Domain Expansion Realm.

The current plan was to of course explore the uniqueness of this Celestial Realm while obtaining the cores and skills of Behemoths that he could absorb himself and also pass down to his subordinates.

He had already been on this venture for the past three days, having actually come across more than 20 Fate Behemoths.

These celestial beasts that were proficient in the law of fate would have been particularly difficult for Elite Explorations Teams to take care of, as they were more than likely more proficient in the law of fate than the Celestials that were following the inheritance of the disciple of fate.

But for Noah, these beasts that were in the Domain Expansion Realm fell under his abilities very easily!

The ones he came across were the same mountainous beasts that towered over 50 or 60 meters, with their traits being very similar to the animals from his homeworld that he had always come across before with their major difference being in color, and of course power.

Among the ones he had seen was a golden Phoenix that he took down through using attacks that were layered with the power of chaos, making sure that he had [Unique Origin] active and other covert skills so that even if someone was watching, they would not be able to understand the true extent of his power. This was simply him being more careful, and he most likely did not have anything to worry about.

He met a variety of fate behemoths the past few days, each of them holding golden feathers or golden furs with their skills being resplendent as they utilized the law of fate.

As for the loot, these Behemoths did not just drop cores, but they also dropped fancy-looking skills related to the law of fate that were not contained under the [Fate's Guardian] skill tree. Many of these skills utilized mana to either form offensive abilities or defensive abilities in the forms of shields or weapons. An example of some of the skill books that he obtained were [Blades of Fate], [Fate Armor], [Golden Berserker], and a few more abilities that were unique to the type of celestial beasts themselves.

There were various abilities, but in his eyes none of them even came close to the abilities under the Fate's Guardian skill tree that continued to expand more and more, each of the abilities within them boosting the entire skill tree to unimaginable levels. The percentage of boosts from these skills already at the Domain Rank actually did not even match the compounded boosts he was receiving from just a single skill in the still Soul Rank Skill Tree.

If he were to pay attention to all of these skills that dropped as loot from the fate behemoths and even the many other beings they had taken down, he would have thousands of skills in his stat panel without even knowing which one to use or utilize. So, many of these skills would be used as sacrificial skills for [Skill Combination] and to bring up his powerful skill trees to even greater heights, with the rest being given to his subordinates for them to gain equivalent level skills for when he granted them cores of the Domain Expansion Realm as well.

RUMBLE!

Yet another fate behemoth fell as the brilliant light of loot erupted from it, cores and skill books erupting out as they quickly turned into lights and faded away, entering Noah's Expansive Space in the span of a millisecond.

All of the beasts that he had taken down could be considered Elite Behemoths and there were still all in the domain expansion realm. For him to meet the beasts above that, those that were titled Supreme Behemoths, he had to venture deep into the Celestial Realm to even come across these powerful celestial beasts that were at the World Rank or even more terrifyingly above that.

But this would all come later, as his focus now remained on hunting more Behemoths!

Chapter 475 A Sense of Pressure!

Noah's main body continued moving as the cores and the skill books that he placed in the Expansive Space were then quickly accessed by his clone and transferred into Spiritual World for his subordinates to use right away.

The ones prioritized were the Harbingers of Sin, as well as beings like Elena. The domain expansion rank cores and skill books would be even more useful to them as they didn't have the ability to very rapidly max proficiencies of their skill trees and upgrade them as quickly as Noah could. So even with the rapid power leveling that he continued to do with them, their skill trees almost always lacked behind their ranks because of how fast they rose.

He would keep a sufficient amount of Domain Expansion Realm skill books to use as sacrificial skills for his skill trees and give the rest to his people for them to be able to use powerful skills at the level that they enter. He planned to strengthen his subordinates well and have a few of them enter the Domain Expansion Realm and actually participate in the coming conflict of the Celestial Legions and the Legions of Mages, Wizards, Vampyres, and Infernals waiting for them at the Verittas Fortress.

He had also prepared numerous sets of armors from Flame Behemoths and from Infernals for them to equip, along with some completed Chaos Sets made from the many chaos behemoth materials that he had been collecting while hunting with Athena and the Righteous Fire Exploration Team before the tournament.

Only three of the Chaos Sets were able to be completed, and the three strongest combatants that entered into the Domain Expansion Realm before the war began would be given for them to wear.

His main body continued forward in this Celestial Realm as he hunted more behemoths and kept an eye out for any treasures. His gaze was bright as he waited for his clone that could now move with 100% of his strength to clash with the coming Celestials!

The first thing that was eye-catching was the scintillating colors that now surrounded his body, the passive emission of the purple Aether from the Fledgling Aether Terror abilities and the sparkling blue water elements constantly given off by the Hydromancer's Mantle giving off an eerily beautiful contrast when also putting into account his devilishly handsome looks.

The Hydromancer's Mantle had a particularly unique style as one could almost feel as if waves of clear blue water were constantly moving at the edges of the blue mantle.

His body shone with an aura of a boss monster that he would only find in late game content of the games he used to play in the past, this type of boss monster being able to drop the most valuable loot!

Noah found himself smiling as his thoughts briefly went back to times of extreme ignorance and bliss, times when he could just play games and read novels while he went on with his life.

Those were the times when his mind was free with no responsibilities whatsoever on his shoulders, his life simply going along with the flow as he enjoyed the things around him.

A slight look of reminiscence appeared on his face as he quickly shook himself out of it and breathed out, adopting a serious expression as he thought about the current him.

He was still going along with the flow of things, even moving himself to steer their flow and the flow of fate to the direction he wanted. And now, the things he would have considered to only be in his wildest dreams and as just fantasy were actually right in front of his eyes!

So he shook himself out as he stopped reminiscing and made himself focus on the task at hand, his heart set on continuing forward.

As expected, while wearing the Hydromancer's Mantle, the progression of the Law of Water had nearly doubled, with the water particles rushing towards him much faster than the fire particles.

Even though the Seaborn effect was only for the Law of Water, the faster progression also propelled the opposing fire elements to run slightly faster!

The clone nodded its head as he continued on for another few hours before the tests came to a stop, his figure disappearing as his main body had placed yet another bountiful loot in the Expansive Space.

He waved his hands to take it out as his figure reappeared next to powerful auras of numerous beings training in the Time Space of the Spiritual World.

The Harbingers of Sin and the powerful Spiritual World Beasts were all here training to break past the Soul Rank and step into the Domain Rank as this was the prerequisite that Noah had set for anyone that wanted to participate in the war at the Verittas Fortress!

He was unconsciously becoming more and more protective as he saw that anyone in the Soul Forging Realm only had a chance of surviving in the coming war, and he didn't want any deaths that could be easily prevented.

A particularly arrogant Emperor Penguin raised its beak towards its master as it swallowed a Domain Rank Core, its flippers sticking out with no shame as Noah waved his hands for another similarly ranked core to fly towards him.

He pulled out more and more Domain Rank Cores that his main body continued to place in the expansive space as he hunted down Behemoths, all of them going towards his subordinates as he could sense the auras of many of them about to spill over into the next realm soon.

The Spiritual World Beasts entering into the Domain Rank was an even better situation as it signified that one of the requirements for the next upgrade of the Spiritual World was complete, the only thing remaining being the obtainment of a Large World Core.

This was something Noah would worry about for later as he focused on the current events, continuing the preparations for the war as besides giving his subordinates numerous Cores and Skill Books, he put the task of designating the Item Sets to the Spiritual World System whenever one of them stepped into the next rank.

Among the subordinates currently training, a few others were not in the Time Space as they were busy stabilizing the newly connected Underworld and moving around the Spiritual World thereafter, with others still looking over the many new worlds that were now connected.

He was not the only one busily moving, the forces he was connected to all feeling a sense of pressure as they collectively moved towards a brighter future!

Chapter 476 Ahh! My Progenitor!

Elena was floating in the skies of the Spiritual World as her face was that of immense wonder and infatuation.

A few days ago, her Progenitor- nay, her Master, had brought her into this wondrous land once more after saving them from the clutches of the Celestial Founder.

Her Master had actually duplicated his body as he ingeniously still kept his identity as a Celestial while also working against them simultaneously to save her and many others from certain death!

It was something beautiful and resplendent, something that only her Progenitor would be able to do!

She had great worries about her little brother in the Underworld the moment the Celestial Founder called for its destruction, and her Master had somehow been able to do something as ridiculous as teleport the entire Prime World away while dominating its core at the same time.

It was at this moment that Elena realized that she really did not know her Progenitor as much as she thought she did!

What type of being could subjugate entities that were the centers of entire worlds? Who could then even teleport such an enormous entity to an entirely different quadrant in the Light Expanse?

What energy was required?! What grandeur! What magnificence!

'Ahh! My Progenitor!'

She found her hands clutching her chest as her thoughts went in this direction while she floated in the skies of the Spiritual World.

She had already stabilized the newly added Underworld as she gained the knowledge that her Progenitor already had numerous worlds like this connected, each of them with their own set of beings that were all being taken care of by him.

She flew along the paradisaical worlds as her gaze traveled to the Central Continent of the Spiritual World and flew towards a certain location there.

Not to just mention the four floating Continents that were beautifully seen all around her, she actually found the Central Continent to be more wondrous as within it, she found the unbelievable land known as the Time Space, as well as the location where her Progenitor created fearsome armors and weapons that nobody else had ever seen.

But even more than this was the collection of portals that one could find at a particular area of the Spiritual World.

Her eyes gazed upon different colored portals that were ordered in a circular manner on a large snowy clearing.

There were names floating above these portals that would make one tremble when they realized exactly what their meaning was. She could see the titles above the portals as such- [Demon World Portal], [Ancient Blood World Portal], [Beast World Portal], [Underworld Portal]...

Her shining eyes saw many of such portals spectacularly laid out, figures of beings of different colors and races occasionally seeing coming in and out of these portals as they actually transferred from these many worlds and into the Spiritual World.

Almost all of the beings coming in and out of these portals had one singular thing on their faces- wonder and amazement as they came and went with their own assigned jobs.

Many of them did not even have jobs perse, as what they were doing was simply coming into the Spiritual World to be granted paradisiacal Medicinal Herbs and Fruits that were spread out all across the Spiritual World.

This was another thing that caused Elena's heart to beat even faster. In the Spiritual World, she found that across all the continents, the majority of their lands were covered by farming fields that had shimmering fruits and herbs filled with essence growing within!

Aside from the Spiritual World beasts that enjoyed these medicinal herbs and fruits the most, the beings entering and leaving the Spiritual World were coming and going mostly for these resources as they took them back to their own worlds.

She had seen her Master's figure travel through the fantastical floating landmasses of the Spiritual World as he went to each of these fields and waved his hands above them. Every time he did this, a green light would descend down and wrap around the medicinal herbs or trees, causing them to have rapid growth and achieve maturity in a matter of minutes compared to the days or months that were required.

He had such a wide array of abilities that Elena wondered, could she be able to find something that her Master could not do?

Even something as simple as cooking- the one time that she tasted it she nearly blacked out from pleasure! She even found herself wondering why he would even excel in something like cooking, but it just added to the charm that he had! But the wonder of him being a farmer on the side overtook her mind momentarily as her thoughts wandered even more.

Her Progenitor was so magnificent that he actually took the time to be a farmer and plant all of these wondrous things for them, things that were actually filled with so much essence that one could consider them prized treasure gardens of powerful sects.

Yet all of them could freely be seen spread out in the Spiritual World as the followers of her Master enjoyed them to the fullest while also using them to bolster the strength of the many worlds her Master was connected to.

The more she learned about her Master, the more reverence and infatuation Elena had as she found her fangs unintentionally coming out while she licked her lips.

She closed her eyes in the skies above the portals where many beings went in and out, ignoring their gazes as she recalled the sensation of her Progenitor sucking blood from her weeks ago. That amazing feeling she was able to feel then...she had not gotten the privilege to feel it again ever since!

She reminisced as she wondered.

'My Progenitor, just when will you feed on me again? My blood is quite good you know? Ahhh...'

The matter of feeding was paramount, especially to the Vampyre Progenitor. She felt like he had been suppressing his urges for far too long, and the day that he chose to get lost in them would be the day to remember.

Her eyes were closed as her body wiggled curvaceously in the air, her mind filled with her Progenitor as her thoughts soon went towards those closest to him.

Her face instantly turned hard as she thought about the women around her Master. The closest ones she could see was the one called Barbatos- all she saw in her eyes was a small woman with somewhat decent looks, but she would never question the tastes of her Master. This Barbatos was simply too lazy in her eyes, only training and accompanying her Master when he had the time, but the way she referred to him was not the way one should address someone such as him!

The other was a fair little queen known as Adelaide who always came to her Master with a shy expression that just asked to be spoiled. Her royal countenance was always reserved around others, but one could see a much rosier appearance whenever she was around the Progenitor. This one seemed to at least fit Elena's requirements, but there were still many things to be worked on.

All of these women surrounding her Master seemed gorgeous and perfect to others, but to her- they weren't enough!

Does nobody not know the majesty of her Progenitor? Do they really think his desires would be satisfied by the presence of merely two women?!

Her Progenitor was someone grand that was already taking over numerous worlds, with a future that many of them could barely even imagine!

Soon enough, even these women would start to find themselves inadequate in the presence of her Master, and that was when she would go in to allow her Master to do whatever he wished with her. If it was high quality blood- she had it! Anything else- she had it!

She would accompany him to her death as she carefully chose the beings deserving to be around him and experience his grandeur with her.

This was the future she awaited for with her Master, her cloudy eyes clearing up as she thought of this, her figure disappearing from the area of the portals as she went on to join the others that continued to be spoiled with treasures from her Master.

She did not even have the patience to reply to the figure leading the Vampyres in the Dark Expanse, the Vampyre Ruler Vladivostok, as she focused on her own strength. His message was releasing commands that were filled with bloodline power to ask her to reply or return, but this Vladivostok did not know that someone way above him had already given separate commands to her. If a subject received the command of the King and then received another set of commands from another subject of the King, who would she listen to?

'Hmph!'

The powerful figure overseeing the Clans of Vampyres in the Dark Expanse at the Star Forging Realm was just like another subordinate of her Master. So what if he was a whole rank above the World Realm? What if he had lived for thousands of years?

As her Master was now playing the Dark Expanse, she knew that the entire faction of Vampyres that made up the Dark Expanse would soon fall into his hands. After all, who could deny their Progenitor? Who would be able to look at the being with the purest bloodline of Vampyres alive and say no to him?

She was one of the few permitted to feel this reverence, so she knew she had to work hard. She also had to increase her strength if she wanted to be around him!

In the skies above the portals that she just left, the beings moving below finally breathed out again as they went on with their tasks once more, whispering words only a few of them could hear.

"Who was that demoness wriggling her body in the skies?!"

"You...shut up and move faster. You don't want to offend any of the experts under the Spiritual World Master, do you? It doesn't matter how weird they are!"

"Stop gawking and hurry you fools!"

Hushed words passed between them as their bodies brimming with strength from Noah's all around buff caused by the Golden Guider coursed through them, their gazes bright as they moved across the Spiritual World while also seeing a bright future ahead of them!

Many of the beings from the numerous connected worlds that were granted permission to enter the Spiritual World only knew of Noah from those that stood at the upper echelons of their worlds, with very few of them actually coming in contact with him.

But they all knew of his grandeur and power as they worked diligently, grateful to be placed under such a person's wings!

As these numerous beings continued to have their lives changes affected, their fates steered towards directions entirely different than what was ordained, the one responsible would continue to benefit immensely as time passed.

The Founder was able to increase his power and Fate Lines by indirectly influencing and changing the lives of many worlds in the Light Expanse, and his power had risen to the peak of many in the Novus Galaxy in the past thousand years. What of someone like Noah who was directly and actively steering the fates of numerous planets and their inhabitants then? How long would it take him to scramble to the top as he continued to expand his scope of influence?!

Chapter 477 Dark Guider!

Another day passed in the outside world as Noah's Ancient Blood Clone was able to bring yet another skill tree to the next rank, this time being particularly exciting as yet another Guider Type job appeared in front of his eyes!

When the prerequisite sacrificial skills were given with the skill tree hitting maximum proficiency, the options of either [Chaos Guider] or [Chaos Relegator]. He naturally chose the one that had the name of Guider, seeing how the previous selection of [Unruly Guider] under the skill tree aligned with the Law of Fate granted him ridiculous abilities. He placed all the required skill points as he viewed the new additions at their peak.

DOMAIN Agent of Chaos :: The title of an Agent of anything is a rare one. This skill tree gives its user the ability to confidently call themselves an Agent of Chaos. Abilities include Essence Disruptor(5/5), Chaotic Mandate(5/5), Chaos Orbs(5/5), and Void of Impending Doom(5/5). >> [Chaos Guider] (75/75) :: A path of a being that revels in unpredictability and the comfort of chaos. Additional Abilities Include Dark Guider (5/5), Chaos Bearer (5/5), Aura of Chaos (5/5), Desecrate (5/5)

[Dark Guider] (5/5) :: All the beings that are following the rule of the Chaos Guider are blessed with his source of strength as a portion of the user's aura of chaos surrounds them. To those classified as Subordinates of the Chaos Guider: +120% Physical, Soul, and Elemental Damage, +120% Cast and Attack Speed, +120% All Element Resistance, +120% Defense.

[Chaos Bearer] (5/5) :: Any chaos that the Chaos Guider causes is amplified, granting them +50% increased comprehension in the Law of Chaos.

[Aura of Chaos] (5/5) :: The distinct aura of chaos wraps around the body of the Chaos Guider and allows for all cast abilities and skills to be layered with the chaos element. +100% Chaos Damage to all utilized abilities.

[Desecrate] (5/5) :: A wide area ability that creates a Desecrated Space where Chaos Elements are abundant as far as the eyes of the Chaos Guider can see. Within this Desecrated Space, the Fear, Slow Mana Regulation, Debilitated, and Blind debuff effects are applied to all enemies.

Abilities that satisfied his heart were shown in front of his eyes, once more granting him a wide array of extra abilities that he could utilize on the coming battlefield. His enemies were beings proficient in the law of fate this time around, and the opposing abilities of the law of chaos would be one of the best counters.

When he saw the [Aura of Chaos] and [Desecrate] abilities, a smile appeared on his lips as these abilities essentially allowed all of his attacks to be layered with the power of Chaos, as well as release a wide debuff domain that further lowered his enemy's defenses and even granted them horrible debilitating effects.

Then there was the [Chaos Bearer] ability that actually enhanced his rate of progression in the Law of Chaos! This was similar to the ability that the Hydromancer's Mantle provided, but cut by half. It was an unexpected surprise as the gathering of Chaos Particles always lagged behind the Fate Lines.

This was because he initially began with the law of fate, and he also had the [Fate Stealer] ability which allowed him to actually get 12% of the Fate Essence of the beings that he killed. In the upcoming battle, it was actually this single ability that excited him the most!

With the thousands of Celestials coming towards him, especially the big bosses like Grandmaster Onillus that had more than 3 million Fate Lines...he was actually going to increase his progression in the Law of Fate at a pace that would break any remaining common sense in the Novus Galaxy.

In his eyes, he foresaw himself easily passing the 1 million mark, and even going above it just with this single coming battle! That was how domineering this [Fate Stealer] ability was!

His progress in the Law of Chaos was bound to be left in the dust, but it would still increase even faster because of the newly gained [Chaos Bearer] ability.

The last ability that did not just give him joy, but granted even more happiness to his subordinates was the [Dark Guider] ability.

They were already boosted by the [Golden Guider] from the skill tree stemming from the Law of Fate, and now there was another Guider Type ability that essentially doubled the boosts they already had!

At the same time, they now had the auras of both Fate and Chaos coursing through their bodies. This was an aura of two Supreme Laws that were freely coursing through the bodies of billions of beings...at this point in time, even Noah himself would not fully know the effects of this until much later.

RUMBLE!

The instant the ability was activated, Noah felt the surging of Fate Lines and Chaos Particles once more as he greatly influenced billions of beings, some in more ways than he expected as huge changes occurred throughout the planets he was connected to once more!

In the quadrant of Light Expanse where numerous of the connected Worlds were hidden behind layers of a Veil, essence dispersed freely as the singular addition of another Guider Ability caused another

Supreme Law to descend onto these worlds, their targets being the numerous inhabitants of these worlds that fell under the category of Noah's "Subordinates".

When the prior [Golden Guider] from the Law of Fate was activated, the multitude of beings had experienced a period of rapid advancement in their strength as with the backing of a Supreme Law, they were able to do things they never considered before. With the widespread project of creating dungeons not just in Noah's homeworld but in the many connected worlds, the phenomenon of beings diving in dungeons to enhance their strength only propagated further.

With the boost of [Golden Guider], those diving in dungeons saw firsthand how they could defeat monsters that were a rank above their own as they took advantage of the boon and became rapidly stronger. Yet at this moment, as if the first boon was not enough, [Dark Guider] arrived and brought with it another Supreme Law!

Dark auroras of pure chaos energy descended onto the numerous worlds and wrapped around their inhabitants, another point of widespread change occurring as it was not just the addition of another law to their bodies. It was the inclusion and utter synchronization of two opposing Supreme Laws in the bodies of billions of beings that could be considered relatively weak.

It was something that should have never have the chance of happening, but it did! And it brought with it too many changes and opportunities...

Noah was about to look into everything that was changing when he felt the presence of the Mages in the castle he was supposed to be in come closer, stopping his strengthening session as his body teleported away from the Spiritual World and into the room.

"Lord, our scouts have begun to see the Legions of the Celestials. Commanding Mage Turner has tasked us to ask to grace the other Commanders with your presence!"

The words of a strong mage rang in his ears as he waved his hands, the many fearsome and colorful skill effects of numerous elements that surrounded his body gradually fading and turning invisible as he opened the door and followed the inviting Mages.

He would let the worlds and beings he was connected to experience the changes as he enjoyed the boons from it himself as time passed, setting his gaze towards this coming battle for now.

His aura spread out from the location he was in as he sensed even more forces within the expansive Verittas Fortress, the auras of many new Vampyres from the Dark Expanse being apparent, as well as numerous more powerhouses he had yet to come across.

The unique attire of the Mages and Wizards along with the shimmering wands they carried beneath their robes gave Noah a mystical fantasy feel of this Dark Expanse, especially the wide and dark halls of the dreary castle he was walking in.

It reminded him of the imaginative stories he used to read in the past about the grand abodes of wizards with pointed hats that lived in the darkness of the world. The castles of these actual Mages and Wizards of the Dark Expanse had their own unique style, their halls lined up with small floating shining lights that added on to the air of magic and mystery.

There was a bustle of activities everywhere they went as Noah saw floating animals that he recalled to be Familiars of Wizards move along with them, his observation also seeing the unique way these beings used magic as he could see floating utensils cooking by themselves when he passed a dining hall, or things like ink brushes and pens moving on their own to write manuscripts in huge rooms where discussions were taking place. It truly was a place where the beings around it utilized magic fully in their daily lives, even to the smallest details!

Noah wanted to explore more of this culture and their techniques if the time came in the past, curious at the wand-shaped weapons that boosted the abilities they cast by a large degree as he wondered of the wide array of techniques that the Wizards and Mages of the Dark Expanse used.

He already had so much on his plate in terms of skills and abilities that he felt the addition of even more was just him continuing to go overboard, where he might not even get a chance to utilize them all. But he would wait for the time to come when he could truly observe the culture and techniques of the beings within Dark Expanse, his figure currently going towards one of the command centers as it looked like the clash with the Celestials would soon begin, their Legion being close!

Chapter 478 Simultaneous Breakthroughs

In the Time Space of the Spiritual World, a particularly arrogant Emperor Penguin raised its beak high as it felt the course of a new Supreme energy travel through his body.

The aura of chaos that normally destabilized the essence of those it entered felt like a docile stream as it passed through his vessels and core, his breakthrough into the Domain Expansion Realm that was at the cusp of occurring actually happened right away with the addition of this new energy.

RAA! RAA! RAA!

He let out fearsome battle cries, but he wasn't the only one as many of the other Harbingers and beings that were receiving Domain Rank Cores from his Master the past few days were all experiencing breakthroughs into this realm simultaneously!

RUMBLE!

Essence rapidly converged around the numerous beings stepping into the Domain Rank as they all felt the newest boost from the addition of the new Guider Type Ability- Dark Guider.

Apart from the golden energy of fate coursing through them, a dark scintillating energy of chaos was now vibrantly coursing through them as well, their bodies feeling the boost in power once more.

They could be considered bonafide beings at the Domain Rank, but their power was unlike any others at this realm as they were receiving huge buffs from two Guider Type Abilities!

The Emperor Penguin rose to the skies as he felt this fearsome power, his fanaticism towards his master only growing as he sought to prove his strength in battle.

[Come to the Forge.]

His thoughts were cut short as he received a command from the Spiritual World itself, his arrogance being cut short as this was the only entity besides his Master that could push him around.

A silver light flashed as the figure of the Emperor Penguin appeared outside of the Blacksmith's Forge, entering it thereafter as he was met with a floating item set that shone with the luster of chaos!

[As the first beast of this Spiritual World, you represent all of your brothers and sisters whenever you move. Master gave me the right to choose who will be wearing the created Chaos Set Items, and I'm going to be biased and give you one of them! You must live up to your name as the Emperor Penguin.]

The voice of the Spiritual World that seemed more commanding when communicating with the arrogant penguin rang out, the beak of the penguin nodding up and down as it received the item set that nobody else had gotten their hands on yet.

[Baleful Chaos Bringer Set] :: An item set made from the materials of Chaos Behemoths. Contains a scimitar, breastplate, briefs, boots, arm guards, and helm. Varying levels of boosts are given when the set items are worn simultaneously. 2 Set Items- Reduces the cooldown and mana cost for all Chaos Abilities by half, as well as doubling their effects. 4 Set Items- Grants the wearer a Chaos Barrier that reflects 30% of all incoming damage back to the caster. 6 Set Items- A passive Chaos Storm is initiated by the resonance of all 6 Set Pieces. This Chaos Storm swirls around the wearer as it tears down the defenses of their enemies while boosting their own attacks. +250% Fate Element Resistance, +250% All Element Penetration, +250% All Element Resistance, +100% Chaos Damage applied to all abilities.

The set bonus of the spectacular [Baleful Chaos Bringer Set] became apparent in the eyes of the Emperor Penguin as he glanced at the smaller descriptions of the items themselves and all of their boosts. His eyes shone with brilliance as he adorned the Item Set, his fluffy body being covered by the dark chaos armor as it was soon fully hidden, only a fearsome shape of an armored penguin wielding a Scimitar that shone with a deadly edge becoming visible.

RUMBLE!

A Chaos Storm erupted from him as he enjoyed the feeling of strength the Item Set provided, but this didn't last long as he felt an immense pressure descend down on him a second later as the Chaos Storm continued to spread out in the Blacksmith's Forge.

[Don't get conceited and damage the things in the Forge. Remember that all of this strength is made possible by the Master. Just try to be more useful now to him now.]

The cold voice and pressure of the Spiritual World descended on the Emperor Penguin as his beak pointed down in a docile manner, stopping the advancement of the ability given the 6 Item Set boost while also being reminded once more that beside his Master, the entity that was the Spiritual World was the only other one that could take him off his pedestal no matter his strength!

This was because he was a beast born from this unique World, his Origin being tied closely to it.

"I shall go acclimate to my new Realm and Items while waiting for Master to call us..."

The Emperor Penguin spoke out with a tone of someone bullied but it still held a tinge of arrogance as he flashed away from the Blacksmith's Forge, going on to test his new strength and abilities in the Time Space of the Spiritual World.

Besides him, numerous beings in the Spiritual World broke into the Domain Expansion Realm thereafter as they were also adorned with their own Set Items!

The remaining two [Baleful Chaos Bringer Set] went to Elena and Barbatos, their realms breaking through the fastest while also holding their own unique strengths.

Aside from the limited Chaos Sets, the Spiritual World System was working to rapidly produce Set Items from the Fate Behemoths that Noah's main body continued to take down in the Celestial Realm.

Even though standing against Celestials with the opposing Chaos Sets was ideal, having armors made from Fate Behemoths also provided a level protection from the element itself, thus other beings would be adorned with newly created Fate Item Sets that were being created right at this moment. They had to be lucky enough to first enter the Domain Expansion Realm, and for the war to not break out too soon before the creation of the Fate Set Items were finished!

But just on Noah's side, numerous beings were stepping into the Domain Rank as they were fitted with fearsome Items. All of them were waiting...waiting to participate in the first battle of many in a war that would later be known in history as...the Last War!

Chapter 479 Primed!

Commanding Mage Turner was glancing at the numerous powerhouses around the war room as his eyes carried a trace of seriousness.

In the war room, a majority of the beings were releasing unique auras of the World Realm, these figures being some of the revered powerhouses that were fairly well known in the Dark Expanse.

Besides the World Rank Mage Turner, there were three other beings that stood in this same realm as him who would be leading their own forces against the Legions of Celestials in the coming battle. One was the fearsome Royal Vampyre known as Rokku, one of the generals under the Vampyre Ruler Vladivostok. The other was the Dark Wizard Shanora, a powerful being from the faction that preferred the mantle of Wizards instead of Mages.

Of course, the last being to join them was the 9th Infernal Lord whom they only knew by that title still!

Four World Rank Experts- Turner, Rokku, Shanora, and an Infernal Lord.

These were the beings standing against the coming Legions of Celestials, there being a tacit understanding between the two sides that they would not be releasing the peak powerhouses at the Star Forging Realm in this first clash. Those were the types of forces used near the end of the war as they represented the peak power of both sides, and this war...was just beginning.

"We expect their vessels to pierce into the Dark Expanse in a day or two, and we have our own ships and forces distributed in a defensive wall around the Verittas Fortress to stop their advances."

Commanding Mage Turner spoke out in a serious tone as the powerful figures looked at each other around the room. The Dark Wizard Shanora who was dressed in what Noah would describe a cliché witch costume was glancing in the direction of his clone with shimmering eyes that held great interest, the essence of darkness swirling around her being agitated as time passed.

"We can talk about strategies and defenses all day long if we want Turner, but why don't we get to know each other's...strengths some more? It's not as if we get to be in the presence of an Infernal Lord everyday."

Her gaze shone with luster as she stared at Noah, his own gaze remaining impassive as he didn't spare the wizard any look, turning towards the Commanding Mage Turner and speaking.

"Where do you want my legion?"

The Commanding Mage nodded as he pointed towards the table in front of them that had a projection of the wide Verittas Fortress and displayed some of the forces around it, his hands causing the appearance of a miniature legion of red figures that signified Noah's Infernal Legion to be right at the center- at the forefront of the battle!

"We will have to rely on your power to withstand the attacks of the Celestials head on...while we release our spells and magic from the sides to stop their advance and pick them off little by little until all of their strength is depleted."

Noah's eyes shone as he heard these words, the meaning of this strategy plainly being that they wanted him to be a tank that withstood the damage of a huge boss while they dished out damage to slowly bring it down!

"We excel in offensive tactics and destructive spells, but our defenses cannot compare to the power of Infernal Lords we have observed before. Is this strategy viable?"

The Royal Vampyre Rokku spoke out carefully as he sensed the bubbling strength stemming from Noah's body, the Dark Mage Shanora still having her gaze locked on him as Noah replied.

"It shouldn't be a problem!"

RUMBLE!

His words reverberated with power as relieved expressions appeared around the room, Commanding Mage Turner continuing.

"Alright, let's talk logistics..."

The meeting continued for another few hours as the powerful beings familiarized themselves with each other's forces and talked about possible plans in case things went wrong.

The Dark Mage Shanora who continued to glance towards Noah's vibrant aura of Chaos was the most peculiar, not exactly explaining why her gaze was locked on him for so long. At the end of the meeting as Noah was stepping out, he heard a telepathic message released from her enter his mind.

"I must apologize for the abrupt introduction and interest, but we don't usually have beings with such a thick aura of Chaos swirling around them such as you. If we are able to survive this little war that is coming up, I would love to discuss something with you. It somewhat pertains to the Dark Expanse, and someone with your advancements in Chaos would be most fitting for it!"

Words that seemed to have a tinge of fanaticism rang in his mind as he didn't even turn towards her, simply nodding as he left the room. The figures of the Dark Expanse really held Infernal Lords in much too different regards!

He would leave all other thoughts behind as he continued to look forward to the Legions of Celestials first, his heart expectant on all the treasures and loot they were planning on delivering to him.

As the legions of Celestials advanced forward and neared the Dark Expanse, the forces at the Verittas Fortress fortified their defenses as they prepared for the eventual clash.

It was a bustling scene of numerous forces that numbered in the hundreds of thousands preparing to participate in the war, the highest ranking powerhouses conducting the movements of their forces like a well-oiled machine as they worked together to ensure a chance of victory.

Noah was creating even more powerful forces in the Spiritual World as more and more of his subordinates entered the Domain Expansion Realm, his main body continuing to work efficiently in the Celestial Realm as he took down more and more Fate Behemoths at the Domain Rank, getting a taste of the ability of [Fate Stealer] early as he saw his Fate Lines continuing to jump higher every time a Fate Behemoths fell.

As he went further and further south of the Celestial Realm, he was gradually nearing the locations that would be considered largely unexplored, the wide areas where very few Celestials traversed and were filled with mysteries!

Chapter 480 Ready to Serve!

In the unexplored regions that Noah was currently nearing, the Behemoths would continue getting stronger and stronger, where after passing the area where the Domain Rank Fate Behemoths appeared, the danger level rose by a factor of 10!

The reason for this was that the unexplored regions of the Celestial Realm were extremely unpredictable, where one could come across a Behemoth at the World Rank, or they might just as well come across one at the Star Forging Realm!

There were no laws that said in this location you would find Behemoths at this realm or another, and it was completely wild and unexplored mystical lands holding their own secrets.

This was also the reason why even after 1000 years, the Celestials had only ever been confident to say they explored a bit over 10% of it, only their powerful peak figures like the Celestial Founder and the few at the Star Forging Realm being the ones to go even deeper into the Celestial Realm!

Celestials at the World Rank like Noah still had to be careful how deep they went, as the moment they came across even a single beast a realm higher than theirs, it was game over.

At this moment as his clone prepared to clash with Celestials, Noah's main body was standing in a vibrant golden shining forest filled with huge ancient trees as he glanced at the direction ahead of him.

If he continued any further, he would be entering the unexplored regions where even the Celestials had not fully documented.

Powerful figures like the Founder and other Celestials might have passed through these regions and found nothing of note, but as of now, no information existed for them!

His face was serious as his body began shimmering with essence, [Unique Origin] and other abilities being used as he chose to go in covertly, the possible levels of enemies varying by a large amount in these locations.

The beauty of the Celestial Realm he was seeing right now had already become the norm, the tall trees where one could visibly see golden essence flowing through its leaves like sand only making him appreciate the scene of serenity. It was a scene that only those confident and powerful could consider serene, as the deafening silence would make others trembled while they traversed through.

SHAA!

His figure silently disappeared among the thick foliage around him as he ventured further into the Celestial Realm, keen to know exactly what secrets it held!

In an advancing Prime Warship that was followed by many just like it, Grandmaster Onillus had a bright face as he felt the aura of the Dark Expanse, the Legion under his command successfully passing through the junction between it and the Light Expanse as he continued forward!

The boons from the Celestial Realm were many and filled with wonder, but they did not come close to the number of Fate Lines one could gather when they changed the course of history for trillions of lives.

He would be one of the forces at the forefront of this change in this coming war, and would gain much from the eventual results that would change the landscape of the entire Novus Galaxy!

His mood was jovial as he asked a Grandmaster below him.

"Have the vessels containing the citizens of those Prime Worlds lead as we near this so-called fortified fortress of the Alliance. We shall proceed with caution, I want no mistakes!"

"Yes, Grandmaster!"

RUMBLE!

Word software affirmation rang out as some ships veered forward while others went back, a shuffling of forces occurring as Onillus counted the beings under him.

He had 5 other World Realm Grandmasters under his banner spread out into their own vessels, with another World Realm Expert that actually stemmed from one of the more powerful Prime Worlds in the Light Expanse taking the lead of those forces.

One of the few beings not under Celestials and having power at the World Realm, an existence known as Master Brightstar, a being that was the first born of a Prime World on the cusp of becoming a Realm! His birth absorbed so much essence of his world that even now it still remained at the Prime World level, but it created for an astounding genius that had lived for many years, where he now gained a powerful level even without joining the ranks of Celestials.

This meant that for the Legion of Celestials heading for the Verittas Fortress, there were a total of 7 World Realm experts at the lead!

Grandmaster Onillus's face was bright as they neared the supposed fortress, his eyes not hiding the hunger for war as his heart felt like it was screaming.

'Throw the best you have at me! Let me inscribe my name as the first general to gain victory in this war...let the name Onillus ring out across the Novus Galaxy!'

His eyes shone with dangerous luster as his hungry gaze remained forward, the powerful Celestials around him showing similar lights as they looked forward to a grand battle.

Around the Verittas Fortress, four distinct forces could be seen surrounding the enormous planet as an aura of oppressive power leaked out.

One force was led by the Royal Vampyre Rokku, another by the Dark Wizard Shanora, the third by the Commanding Mage Turner.

Last but not least and standing at the very center of these forces like the sharpest point of a blade was an impassive Infernal Lord that floated above a 10,000 army of Infernals that were letting out fearsome battle cries that were setting the tone of the coming fight.

OOOOH!

"Ready to serve!"

OOOOH!

"Ready to destroy!"

OOOOH!

Even the faces of nearby wizards, vampyres, and mages were trembling as a fearsome tune gradually took the soon to be battle field.

Commanding Mage Turner was watching the boisterous forces with eyes of hope as he waited to see the fearsome power of an Infernal Lord, his eyes noticing the appearance of beings that were not there originally when the Infernal Lord first came, but their bodies were releasing bursts of strength that caused his belief for this battle to be raised even higher!

Around the Infernal Lord, numerous armored figures began to appear, varying in all shapes and sizes.

Commanding Mage Turner blinked his eyes at certain times to make sure that his eyes were not playing tricks on him, as he could clearly make out the shape of a penguin that was covered in a spectacular set of dark armor releasing an abundant aura of chaos.

There was also the figure of an armored Kraken with deep red eyes that seemed to hold great excitement and vengeance as they stared out in the void of space, as well as the small humanoid figure of an armored woman also clad in an armor wrapped in chaos, her hands beginning to move as the aura of numerous undead began to spread out from the already numerous Infernals!

The surrounding beings watched with agape expressions as around the Infernal Lord, numerous figures began to appear en masse, the army of 10,000 continuing to expand as vibrant War drums rang out.

"Ready to serve!!!"

OOOOH!!!
