

The Mans Decree Chapter 1335

Chapter 1335 Escape

Kai's words caused Zion to turn pale with anger. "Stop pretending, Kai. Even if I didn't manage to claim your life in a single strike, I don't believe you can withstand another."

As Zion spoke, he raised his weapon, ready to deliver a devastating blow. Suddenly, Kai gazed behind his opponent in surprise. "When did you return, Mr. Sanders?"

Read more

Zion froze and spun around instinctively. Kai seized the opportunity and swiftly produced the Necro Ring and threw it in the air. A black hole appeared immediately.

"Wait for me, Zion, and your Warriors Alliance. I will be back sooner or later."

With that, Kai disappeared into the black hole.

Zion was livid upon finding out he had been tricked. "Fck you shameless piece of sht! How dare he trick me?"

"Give chase and hunt him down!" Zion roared. "The teleportation device won't bring him very far. Report any word on Kai back to me immediately."

Members of the Warriors Alliance hurriedly dispersed to commence their search.

Zion then turned his gaze upon Ryker, who had been as still as a statue and did not move despite receiving his orders. It appeared he was not going to search for Kai.

"Don't forget that the Deragons are members of the Warriors Alliance, Mr. Ryker. Your son, Edgar, was wounded by Kai, was he not? Don't you want to kill Kai?"

"Kai is a small fish, President Zeigler. There is no need for me to make a move, as he won't be able to escape with you on his tail. Excuse me. I have matters to attend to at home."

Without another word, Ryker turned and left.

Zion was angry at Ryker's attitude. He had a vague sense that Ryker seemed to be in cahoots with Kai.

Kai traversed through the Necro Ring and immediately left Jadeborough. He planned to head for Crimson Palace to discover the secrets of its cave and undergo solitary cultivation to increase his strength while he was at it.

As his level increased, Kai realized that the spiritual energy he required also increased. His progress in increasing his power began to grow challenging.

It was fortunate that Josephine was not in mortal danger, as it allowed him time to cultivate.

Kai headed south upon leaving Jadeborough while the Warriors Alliance combed the area and found neither hide nor hair of him.

Zion was aware that he was going to suffer for it if he allowed Kai to escape.

The high-ranking officials of the Warriors Alliance, especially Tanner, would not forgive him.

“All of you are useless!” Zion bellowed with all his might, his face purple with rage.

After he caught his breath from venting, Zion knew that he still had to locate Kai and kill him, notwithstanding his anger, or he would be unable to keep his life.

Zion glanced at the token he produced from his pocket and slipped it back before leading the Warriors Alliance out of Jadeborough to the impoverished area on the outskirts of the city.

It was the place that laborers called home. They lived in squat buildings in a poor environment with nauseating scents at every corner.

There were many small-time merchants along the street who greeted Zion upon seeing his exquisite robes.

With a scowl still on his face, Zion did not even look at them. He marched briskly until he arrived at an alley leading to a dead end.

It was a house so shabby that it failed to function as a shelter.

A disheveled and dirty old man lay within, smoking tobacco with his eyes closed as if at rest.

Everything in the room was on a table, where several books and a few copper coins lay.

The Mans Decree Chapter 1336

Chapter 1336 Mister Flaxseed

The elderly man opened his eyes when Zion opened the door and walked in. Upon seeing Zion from a distance, he asked with an ingratiating smile, “Welcome, Sir. Would you like me to read your fortune? Come, have a seat!”

He stood up, wiped the chair with his sleeve, and invited Zion to take a seat.

Read more

Judging from how well-dressed Zion was, the elderly man regarded Zion as a potential big client.

“I’m not here for fortune-telling!” Zion shook his head.

The elderly man was momentarily stunned. He asked in confusion, “Sir, I’m a fortune-teller. If you’re not going to let me read your fortune, then why are you here?”

“I need your help to draw me some runic talismans,” Zion said directly.

“Runic talismans?” The elderly man froze for a bit and his expression changed. “But I’m a fortunate teller. What do I know about runic talismans? I can’t draw them. I can’t...” He waved his hands and returned to his seat.

Instead of trying to convince him, Zion whipped out a token and placed it on the table with a thud.

The elderly man’s expression darkened the moment he saw the token on the table.

“I know who you are, Mr. Flaxseed. Otherwise, I wouldn’t have been able to track you down. Stop feigning ignorance and draw me a pair of tracking talismans right now. I’ll leave you alone after this!” Zion said coldly.

After glancing at Zion and the token on the table, the elderly man responded with a helpless sigh.

He flipped the blanket over and took the cinnabar rosary and a few pieces of yellow paper out of the bed. After taking a deep breath, he started drawing on the yellow papers.

In just seconds, the elderly man, who was already sweating buckets, had completed two tracking talismans.

Zion picked up the tracking talismans and put them into his pocket.

“To use these talismans, you need—”

“I know how to use them!” Zion interrupted him. “Stay right here and don’t go anywhere. I might still need your help!”

Zion then turned around and walked out of the dilapidated house. The elderly man went deep into thought after Zion left.

He removed the dirty outerwear, revealing another pair of tight clothes. He then peeled the edges of his hyper-realistic mask, exposing his actual pockmarked face.

Despite having flaxseed-like pockmarks all over his face, he did not seem like an elderly man.

Flaxseed left after he finished packing.

Meanwhile, Zion brought a few men from the Warriors Alliance to the Department of Justice. The Department of Justice was in a mess as a battle had taken place here.

Standing at the entrance, Zion took out a tracking talisman, held it in his hand, and muttered a charm. The runic paper then started burning on its own.

As the burning continued, clouds of smoke emerged. All of a sudden, the image of Kai appeared before his eyes. Zion could even see his surroundings!

“I didn’t expect you to run so fast, Kai. Let’s see where you’re heading...”

After finding out where Kai was going, Zion and his men departed.

While trying to hunt Kai down, Zion posted an announcement on the forum on behalf of the Warriors Alliance: The president of the Warriors Alliance, Zion Zeigler, is now hunting for Kai Chance. All sects and families must not provide Kai any assistance, or the Warriors Alliance will mark you as our enemy.

Everyone was shocked when they came across the announcement. There had been random updates about Kai on the forum from time to time, but the Warriors Alliance had never posted something like this before!

Even when Kai had killed its director, Warren Gordon, the alliance had never openly expressed its intention to hunt Kai down.

The fact that the Warriors Alliance dared to announce this publicly showed that they were no longer afraid of Kai or the power that had his back.

The Mans Decree Chapter 1337

Chapter 1337 Attack

“But Mr. Sanders still has Kai’s back, right? Where did the Warriors Alliance find the courage to make such a public announcement?”

“God knows. Maybe Mr. Sanders has given up on Kai. I guess Kai is doomed.”

“Now that the Warriors Alliance has made this announcement, I’d love to see if any sects or families dare to take Kai in. Can’t wait to see how the drama unfolds!”

Kai instantly became the talk of the town, yet he himself was not aware of it. After escaping from Jadeborough, he traveled south all the way and went straight to Crimson Palace.

At that point, Kai still had no idea that another person was also heading in Crimson Palace’s direction, and this person might even arrive earlier than him.

As Kai was traveling, he could not help but think of Josephine, as he missed her very much.

In a world where a person’s capability was more important than anything else, Kai was still unhappy with his growth even though the other warriors were astonished by his progress.

For the first time in his life, Kai finally realized how unpredictable the martial arts world was.

Be it the Warriors Alliance or sects in the martial arts world, the warriors or organizations seemed to be controlled by an invisible force.

Kai walked to a tree and took a break. He looked up at the vast sky and retreated into his imagination. Will I be able to reach heaven if I become an immortal?

While countless thoughts were racing through his mind, Kai felt an intimidating aura approaching him.

His expression turned grim instantly as he began to feel the pressure. These men have at least achieved the Martial Arts Marquis status.

“These guys must be from the Warriors Alliance. How did they find me so quickly?” Kai could not understand how they managed to track him down although he had fled quite some time ago.

Before he could process his thoughts, he got up and left in haste.

Zion and his men rushed over shortly after Kai left.

He stood where Kai had rested earlier, stared at the tree Kai had leaned on, and snorted. “He should count himself lucky since he managed to get away. Well, let’s continue with the hunt, then.”

After letting out another snort, Zion continued to hunt Kai down with his men.

As Kai was running, he could not help but wonder how people from the Warriors Alliance managed to find him. How on earth did they locate me? I've been on the run for quite some time now, so they shouldn't have detected my aura.

Right then, Kai sensed the strong aura from a distance. "Again?"

He knitted his brows and picked up his pace.

Kai wished he could use Necro Ring to escape, but he could not do so because he was not allowed to use it frequently.

Zion and his men continued with the chase. He dared not put his guard down because he knew one of them would die for sure.

Kai still had no idea why the people from the Warriors Alliance refused to give up. "D*mn it! What's wrong with these crazy people? Why are they still coming at me?"

Kai had no choice but to hide his aura and activate his spiritual sense to detect the danger around him.

Seeing that no one was getting in his way, Kai held his aura back and changed his path. Let's see if they can still keep up with me!

Upon noticing Kai had changed his route, Zion knitted his brows and tried to detect the former's whereabouts.

His frown deepened when the realization dawned on him. He cursed, "D*mn it! He has hidden his aura!"

He then fished out another tracking talisman from his pocket.

The Mans Decree Chapter 1338

Chapter 1338 Swearing Until You Die

When the tracking talisman burst into flames in Zion's hands, Kai's tracks were revealed again.

Upon seeing that Kai had changed his direction, Zion sneered. "Is he really playing this f*cking trick with me? There's no way you'll run from me today..."

With that said, Zion brought his men to chase after Kai again.

After running a distance, Kai sat down to recover his stamina, thinking that the people from the Warriors Alliance would not be able to reach him this time.

However, not long after he sat down, the familiar auras tingled his senses again. That irked Kai.

“F*ck, won’t they ever stop?”

Just as Kai rose to his feet, four figures surrounded him.

Zion looked at Kai coldly and said, “You’re quick on your feet. Still, you’ll never escape me.”

“Escape, my *ss! I just don’t want to keep playing this game with you anymore. Do you really think that I’m scared of you all? You’re but a pretentious bunch of people who are in league with Demonic Cultivators. How can you be the president of Warriors Alliance? Even your parents in heaven will be fretting over your horrible decisions!”

They had been chasing Kai the entire time, and he was livid about it. Thus, he vented all of his anger on Zion.

In contrast, Zion froze when he heard Kai’s curses.

He had never encountered something like this before.

After all, Kai was already a Martial Arts Marquis. Zion never thought that someone as powerful as him would be cursing away like a shrew.

At the sight of Zion’s dumbfounded look, Kai said, “Hurry up and f*cking make your move. I’m not scared of you, so all of you come at me in one go!”

Zion’s expression turned icier and icier as homicidal intent seeped from him. Even the people he had brought from Warriors Alliance had chills running down their spines when they sensed the murderous intent.

“Boy, if I don’t tear you to pieces today, I’m going to renounce my presidency!” Zion roared as a terrifying aura burst from his body.

Golden light emanated from Kai as glittering scales enveloped his entire body.

Before Zion could react to it, Kai darted toward him.

Zion narrowed his eyes and pushed his palm forward. Instantly, a ball of white light appeared in front of him.

That white light coalesced into a shield meant to protect Zion.

The moment Kai's punch hit Zion's shield, the shield shattered. Since that had weakened the force of Kai's attack, Zion used the opportunity to reach out and grab Kai's fist.

Kai's heart lurched. Although the shield had taken the brunt of his punch, the remaining power would still be enough to crack rocks.

Yet, Zion had been able to grab Kai's fist with his bare hand and stop the latter from coming any closer to him. No ordinary Martial Arts Marquis would be able to do something like that.

Zion was certainly much stronger than David, and he had brought several subordinates along with him. Kai knew that it was close to impossible for him to emerge as the victor in this battle. Hence, he had to find a chance to escape instead.

"Hmph! You're an arrogant fool. Trying to show off? You're a little too young for that!"

With that said, Zion smacked his other palm into Kai's chest.

Thump!

Kai flew backward. Only after he smashed through many trees did he finally skid to a stop.

That strike had caused many of the scales on Kai's chest to fall off, revealing the toned muscles beneath.

Kai ignored it and gritted his teeth before rushing toward Zion again.

When Zion noticed Kai's desperate behavior, not only did he not move to avoid the attack, but he even sneered at Kai.

"Let me see how powerful your body is..."

At that, Zion's aura became even more intense. In the next instance, he turned into a beam of light and streaked toward Kai.