

The Mans Decree Chapter 3165

After leading Cloud and the others back to the small town, Kai and his companions rushed back to Stellaris Sect on board one of their airships.

This time, Stellaris Sect had suffered a significant blow. In terms of airships alone, they had lost more than half their fleet. It would take a long time for them to recover.

Upon his arrival at Stellaris Sect, Kai didn't intend to make a stop. However, he ended up staying a day after giving in to Renault's repeated requests. Despite the sect's huge loss, they were still a lot wealthier than an ordinary sect.

Renault entertained Kai lavishly for one day. When Kai was about to leave, Cloud mustered the courage and asked, "Mr. Chance, can... can I leave with you?"

He knew that staying by Kai's side would be a fantastic training and learning experience. However, he had been reluctant to make the request all this while because Kai might think him too weak and see him as a burden.

That was why he only brought the topic up at the very last minute.

"Hmm..."

Kai began to hesitate, not because he didn't want Cloud to join him, but because it was dangerous to do so. Now that he had made enemies of the Demon Seal Alliance, he would constantly be hunted by them.

If anything were to happen to Cloud, Kai wouldn't know how to face Renault. Cloud was, after all, Renault's only son.

"Cloud, it's not that I don't want you by my side, but Stellaris Sect has been dealt a heavy blow. Your priority should be assisting your father in rebuilding it. Besides, joining me is dangerous. You're well aware that I'm currently being hunted by the Demon Seal Alliance. In the event of danger, I'm worried that I might not be able to protect you. As your father's only son, what will become of your father if something happens to you?" Kai said candidly.

"Mr. Chance, you don't have to worry about me. I couldn't be any happier if you're willing to let Cloud join you. In fact, I'll even present you with an airship to facilitate your travels. Being by your side has changed him so much that it still feels like a dream to me. If it wasn't for you, he would probably still be a good-for-nothing playboy."

Renault quickly stepped forward and voiced his support for the idea.

"Mr. Chance, now that my dad has agreed to it, I'm sure you've no more concerns," Cloud said with a hopeful look in his eyes. The enthusiasm he showed finally elicited a nod from Kai.

On top of that, Renault's airship wasn't one that anyone could just obtain with money. Due to its customizations, one would need a long time to build it.

The fact that he was willing to gift Kai one was evidence of how much he valued him. At that moment, Cloud let out a jubilant roar upon obtaining Kai's consent.

"This is wonderful! I'll stay by your side from now on, Mr. Chance!"

While Cloud was celebrating, Renault took out a bronze coin from his pocket. It had the word "Seizon" carved on top of it.

"Cloud, this item will validate your identity as a member of the Seizon family. Take it and visit our hometown if you have the opportunity."

Renault put the coin in Cloud's hand.

"Dad, didn't you say that there's no one left. there?" Cloud asked with a confused look.

"I have lied to you all this while. The Seizon. family has always been there. In fact, they are considered a prestigious family in the central region. After marrying your mother, I ran away from home and established Stellaris Sect here. Many years have passed since then, and I have no idea what has become of them and how your grandfather is doing. If you happen to travel to the central region, take this coin and visit the Seizon family. If you need any help, they will definitely lend a hand once they see the coin," Renault said.

It was evident that Renault missed home but felt too embarrassed to return after running away for such a long time.

Cloud nodded, holding the coin in his hand before boarding the airship together with Kai. Their ship subsequently soared into the sky and flew toward Imperial Beast City.

The airship had made traveling a lot easier for them. All they needed to do was quietly wait until they arrived at their destination. Meanwhile, Imperial Beast City was on full alert.

A huge amount of guards were standing vigilantly at their stations. On top of a hill nearby, hordes of soldiers had appeared alongside an equally massive amount of demon beasts.

Separated by a distance of a few thousand meters, both sides were raring to get at each other's throats. At that moment, the frowning Yuven was sitting on the throne in the palace with his generals gathered in front of him.

However, there was a lack of powerful warriors, as the strongest among them was no more than a Seventh Level Body Fusion Realm cultivator.

Ever since Xandros and Tigerus seized Imperial Beast City through their plot, the powerful warriors who were loyal to Yuven ended up being slaughtered in secret. Tigerus was worried that he could not put them down in the event of a rebellion.

As he had secured his position with the help of Norwal City, he knew that he could never rely on them forever to establish his reign. He had killed anyone in the city who posed a threat to him.

The purge had wiped out the most powerful warriors in the city, leaving only the Body Fusion Realm cultivators standing before Yuven.

Initially, Imperial Beast City had five powerful warriors protecting the king. Only when the city was in danger would Yuven trigger a secret mechanism for them to appear.

All five of them were Tribulator cultivators who, under normal circumstances, were constantly in training and would not get involved in the city's affairs. However, Tigerus' betrayal had been so sudden that Yuven didn't manage to summon them in time.

After Yuven took back the city and killed Tigerus, the first thing he did was to check on the five, but he soon discovered that they had died miserable deaths. Without a doubt, Tigerus had caught them off guard and slaughtered them all.

The turn of events had drastically reduced the strength of Imperial Beast City. Other than Yuven alone, there was no other Tribulator cultivator within it.

Fortunately, the city had plenty of guards. Together with the demon beasts in the city's vicinity, they had formed an army of more than ten thousand, enough to protect the city for the time being.

Nevertheless, when Lucian learned of Yuven's return and how he had taken back the city, he immediately sent his army to attack it again.

Given that Lucian had come prepared and had brought along many powerful warriors, his army obviously had the upper hand.

In spite of that, the moat protecting Imperial Beast City prevented him from launching a direct attack, resulting in the current stalemate.

"Your Majesty, King Lucian is just too much for attempting to invade us. At most, we will fight him to the death!" one of the generals suggested, breaking the silence in the room.

"I disagree. King Lucian is obviously more powerful than us. I think we should make peace. Since he hasn't attacked us right away, I have a feeling that he is open to the idea. We can send out an emissary to discuss terms. Worse comes to worst, we'll offer them resources in return for their retreat," another general proposed, fearful of Lucian's strength.

The mere mention of making peace triggered a frown from Yuven and a murderous glint in his eyes. Glaring at the general who suggested it, Yuven swung his palm at him.

Boom...

The general, who was sent flying by the impact, exploded in midair. The gruesome scene caused everyone in the room to catch their breath in fear.

"I've gathered you to discuss how to defeat the enemy, not to have you beg for peace. This is the consequence of attempting to lower the army's morale," Yuven said in an icy tone.
