

The Mans Decree Chapter 3206

“So, you’re the one who said you guys are the hand that feeds Behemoth Palace?” the young man asked coldly.

Unable to stand the young man’s arrogant behavior, Kai replied disdainfully, “That’s right. If we don’t pay spirit coins to use the Teleportation Array, then Behemoth Palace would lose its source of income! You should treat the hand that feeds you with respect and gratitude! We might even tip you if we like the service!”

The young man’s eyes instantly filled with rage when he heard that.

“You insolent b*stard! How dare you talk to Mr. Jonah like that? Do you wish to die that badly?” one of Behemoth Palace’s disciples shouted and got ready to attack Kai.

However, the young man stopped him and said with a sneer, “In that case, allow me to show my gratitude to the hand that feeds us.”

He then turned toward the cultivators and said, “The Teleportation Array’s ability to transport people is limited, and there are simply too many of you here. As such, Behemoth Palace has decided to increase the price by one million spirit coins!”

Naturally, the young man’s words caused a huge commotion.

“That’s too much! We’ve been waiting here for three days! How could you guys just increase the price like that?”

“Behemoth Palace has gone too far!”

“We’ll fight you if you dare increase the price!”

Not all the cultivators were wealthy enough to afford using a Teleportation Array in the first place. In fact, many had no choice but to walk all the way to Demon Mountain.

As such, most of them could not afford to pay for the Teleportation Array due to the sudden increase in price.

The young man was completely unbothered by their protests, though. “If you think this is too expensive, feel free to walk away. However, no one will activate the Teleportation Array without Behemoth Palace’s permission.”

The young man then turned toward Kai and asked, “Well? How’s that for treating you guys better?”

No one dared protest anymore after that. After all, they would have been waiting for nothing if the Teleportation Array wasn’t activated.

The cultivators could only let out helpless sighs as they forked out more spirit coins.

Since Behemoth Palace was the only one that could activate the Teleportation Array, they didn’t really have much of a choice in that matter. “You guys have crossed the line!” Feenix shouted furiously at the young man.

“You don’t have to use the Teleportation Array if you don’t agree with the price. However, I wouldn’t mind letting you use it for free if you spend one night with me,” said the young man with a lecherous grin as he reached out to touch Feenix’s face.

Infuriated, Feenix slapped the young man across the face and quickly backed away. Unfortunately for her, the young man was so powerful that her slap didn’t even hurt him..

Instead of getting angry at Feenix, the young man simply caressed his cheek where she had slapped him and said, “You smell nice. I love having your scent on my face!”

The members of Behemoth Palace trained in Body Cultivation, so they all had ridiculously tough bodies. Feenix’s slap didn’t even tickle him in the slightest.

Feenix’s face burned bright red when she saw his response, but she was too weak to do anything about it.

Kai’s eyes were filled with murderous intent as he glared coldly at the young man, but the latter didn’t seem to care. Right as Kai balled his fists and was about to attack, a huge commotion broke out behind him.

“Out of the way, all of you!”

Dozens of giants about three meters tall shoved the cultivators aside to clear a path in the middle. An elderly man about two meters tall then walked over with a normal-looking, middle-aged man.

“I sent you over in advance to maintain order, Jonah! Look at how chaotic things are right now! What are you doing?” the elderly man shouted at the young man in displeasure.

The Mans Decree Chapter 3207

“That’s exactly what I did, Dad! Some of these people were causing trouble, so I had to maintain order by hiking up the price. See? That got them all to behave themselves!” Jonah Quattlebaum replied.

The elderly man, Gideon Quattlebaum, then turned toward the middle-aged man and said apologetically. “Sorry about this, Mr. Seizon. My son is utterly hopeless! He can’t do anything right!”

“You’re being a little too harsh on your son, Mr. Gideon. The fact that Mr. Jonah reached Tribulator proves that he is extremely talented,” the middle-aged man replied. Jonah was delighted when he heard the compliment.

“Stop complimenting him, Mr. Seizon. Otherwise, he’ll let it get to his head! I will head over with my men after three days. Please be prepared,” Gideon said with a smile.

“Of course. May we have a great partnership!” the middle-aged man replied while shaking Gideon’s hand.

He then entered the Teleportation Array, and the men from Behemoth Palace started activating it. It became obvious that they were waiting for this middle-aged man to arrive before activating the Teleportation Array.

“Let’s go!” Gideon called out to Jonah when he saw the middle-aged man enter the Teleportation Array.

Jonah shot Kai and the others an icy-cold glare as he told the two disciples, “Don’t let them in unless they pay up!”

He then gleefully left with his father after saying that.

Noticing that the Teleportation Array had been activated, the cultivators who had paid extra quickly ran inside. Those who failed to scrounge up the money could only pace up and down in frustration.

"I'll go top up the money, Mr. Chance!" Cloud said and ran off to make the payment.

Paying a few million was not a problem for him at all. Kai and the others were only allowed to enter the Teleportation Array after making the payment.

Right as they entered the Teleportation Array. Kai felt a pair of eyes staring at him.. Upon turning around, however, he saw that the gaze was gone.

"What's wrong, Mr. Chance?" Cloud asked.

"It's nothing. I just felt as though someone was staring at us, that's all!" Kai replied with a frown.

Feenix immediately glanced about when she heard that but didn't find anything unusual. "Someone is staring at us? I didn't feel anything, though!"

Soon, the Teleportation Array was completely. filled with cultivators, and its entrance slowly started to close

"Get ready, everyone! The Teleportation Array will be activated now. Do not release your spiritual sense during its activation. We will not be responsible for what happens if you do!" said one of the disciples.

Seconds later, everyone felt the Teleportation Array start to rotate beneath their feet. Rays of light came out of the Teleportation Array and enveloped those within it. As the Teleportation Array rotated faster and faster, those inside saw a white light flash before them.

At that very moment, everyone's consciousness seemed to be completely frozen, making them appear like corpses.

Kai wanted to find out how the massive Teleportation Array was created, so he released his spiritual sense after the white light flashed.

Although Kai's magecraft wasn't great enough to create a Teleportation Array of this scale, he could create a small one for himself if he knew how it was made.

That would make it a lot easier for him to go anywhere he wanted. However, Kai felt as though he had fallen into a huge vortex the moment his spiritual sense left his body.

It was as though a powerful force was sucking his soul out of his body. Kai began to panic as he desperately tried to calm his consciousness field down.

“Help! Save me, Mr. Chance!” Faiyar screamed for help within his consciousness field.

The Mans Decree Chapter 3208

Kai felt as though a hurricane was tearing through his consciousness field. Meanwhile, a white light continued to come out of the top of Kai’s head. The next thing he knew, he was floating inside a dream world that was completely white in color.

Upon glancing about, however, Kai saw that Feenix, Cloud, and all the other cultivators around him were completely motionless.

Kai jumped in shock when he turned to the side and saw himself standing there with his eyes shut, his body as still as a statue.

“What’s going on here? Am I a spirit right now?”

Kai’s expression slid into a frown when he realized that the huge suction force had sucked his soul out of his body. Feeling a little scared, Kai tried desperately to return to his body, but to no avail.

“F*ck! Curiosity really kills the cat!”

Had I known this would happen, I would never have released my spiritual sense earlier! Now, my soul has been sucked out of my body! Things could get really problematic if I can’t return!

Right as Kai was stumped, an image slowly appeared in front of him. An elderly man with a white beard could be seen drawing something on the ground with a burnt tree branch.

Upon closer inspection, Kai realized that the elderly man was drawing the Teleportation Array they were currently in. There was a hint of panic on the elderly man’s face as he drew the Teleportation Array really quickly

Shadowy figures would approach the elderly man from time to time, but he sent them all flying by striking them with his cane. Huh? What's with this image I'm seeing? Is that elderly man the one who created this Teleportation Array?

In just a few seconds, the elderly man had finished drawing the Teleportation Array. He breathed a sigh of relief when he saw a ray of light flash past the Teleportation Array.

After tossing the branch aside, the elderly man turned around and stared right at Kai all of a sudden, giving the latter quite the shock.

What the... Can he see me? He's staring at me as though he can see me!

The next thing Kai knew, a group of shadowy figures surrounded the elderly man in an instant.

The elderly man seemed to stop resisting. though his eyes were still staring at Kai through the shadowy figures.

Kai felt dizzy as a strong suction force pulled him into an endless black vortex.

It wasn't until a ray of golden light abruptly broke through the darkness that Kai regained consciousness and realized Golden Tome was floating in front of him.

Golden Tome exuded a pure golden light as it slowly turned to reveal its first page. Kai heard beautiful prayers in his head, followed by terrifying screams of agony. The endless darkness around him slowly disappeared moments later.

Right as Kai wanted to take a look at what was written in Golden Tome, however, he felt someone pushing at his body. That woke him up almost instantly.

As he opened his eyes, he saw Feenix shaking his shoulders as she called out to him, "What are you doing, Master? Did you fall asleep or something? I've been calling your name countless times now!"

Kai had a blank look on his face as he sat upright and glanced about, only to realize they were in the middle of a dense jungle.

Most of the cultivators had already left, but dozens continued to stand there, completely motionless. None of the other cultivators paid them any heed, though.

Cloud let out a sigh of relief when he saw Kai open his eyes. "I'm glad you're finally awake, Kai! We thought your soul had been sent elsewhere like all these other cultivators!"

"What's going on here?" Kai asked in confusion.

Was everything I experienced just a dream?

The Mans Decree Chapter 3209

"Ever since we teleported here, you'd remained unconscious, Mr. Chance. During the teleportation process, everyone's consciousness would be sealed off. The person would be no different from being dead. But when it had been completed, he would regain consciousness. Yet, that didn't happen for you. You gave us both a scare," Cloud explained to Kai.

"What about these people here, then?" Kai asked, pointing at the dozen or so motionless cultivators around them.

"They're all dead. Every time the Teleportation Array is activated, there are always those who are presumptuous and unleash their spiritual sense for a feel of the Teleportation Array's might. These people were recalcitrant. After they unleashed their spiritual sense, it was stripped by the Teleportation Array. Although they're not dead, they're no different from being dead, a cultivator in his forties said while walking past them.

At that moment, Kai perceived that his situation back then was exactly the same.

He had likewise unleashed a wisp of spiritual sense out of curiosity, leading to the Teleportation Array sucking his entire soul out of his body. Fortunately, the Golden Tome in his consciousness field saved him at the critical juncture.

Fear lingered within him then. Nonetheless, as he cast his mind back on all he had experienced, he realized that he remembered every step taken by the elderly man in setting up the Teleportation Array.

In other words, if my capabilities sufficed presently, I can also set up the powerful Teleportation Array according to the elderly man's steps!

Following that thought, excitement brewed within him.

"Let's leave quickly, Mr. Chance. The nearest city is likely thousands of miles away. When it gets dark, there'll probably be demon beasts roaming around here," Cloud urged the preoccupied man.

"Okay." Kai nodded in agreement.

Then, he scanned his eyes over the forest around them and wondered in puzzlement, "Since we used the Teleportation Array, shouldn't we have been teleported to another Teleportation Array? Why did we get teleported here? There doesn't seem to be any Teleportation Array here."

He was very much perplexed. In his understanding, teleportation involved conveyance between two Teleportation Arrays. Therefore, it made no sense that they were teleported to the wilderness.

"The kind of Teleportation Array you're speaking of is a fixed two-way conveyance, Master. That's not the case for the Teleportation Array we took. It'll only teleport someone to a general area. The location is different each time, but the difference is minimal. Speaking of which, the Teleportation Array is akin to tearing time and space apart for people to travel through the gaps to arrive at their desired destinations. But when it malfunctions sometimes, people might be teleported to some other place. Due to the disruption in time and space, there could be an offset in the teleported location," Feenix interjected.

After listening to her explanation, Kai finally grasped the concept of it. Thus, they briskly walked out of the forest.

Cloud found an open space and took out his airship. Their plan was to take the airship to the nearest city to rest for a while before making subsequent arrangements. But no sooner had he done so than a number of cultivators crowded over.

"How much does it cost for a ride on your airship, buddy?" someone asked.

"Sorry, but this airship of mine is for private use. I'm not accepting passengers."

Cloud waved a dismissive hand.

“You must be exceedingly rich to have such a big airship, buddy. Why don’t you do us a favor and allow us to hitch a ride with you?” someone else ventured, stepping forward to curry favor with him.

Just as Cloud was about to respond, the man known as Mr. Seizon, who had been traveling with Behemoth Palace, climbed onto the airship without a word.

A frown marred Cloud’s face. He was a moment away from blowing his top when a cultivator beside him held him back.

The Mans Decree Chapter 3210

“That’s Enrique Seizon, the second son of the Seizon family, buddy. You’re lucky. The Seizon family is the biggest family in Yellow Blue City ahead. If you want to go there to rest, don’t offend him,” the cultivator murmured to Cloud.

“The Seizon family?” Cloud was taken aback for a moment. On the heels of that, delight showed on his face because his father once said their hometown was in the central region. Who knows, this Enrique man might be a relative of mine!

At that thought, he made to rush forward to ascertain whether there were familial ties between them, only to be stopped by Kai.

“Let these people aboard first,” Kai ordered. Cloud could not quite fathom the man’s intention. Still, he did as instructed and said to the cultivators around them, “Since we’re going the same way, go ahead and board the airship.”

The instant his words rang out, many cultivators thanked him, one after another. Soon, the airship roared to life and flew toward the city ahead.

Enrique Seizon sat at the very front. Not one person dared to sit near him, all squeezing into the back instead, perhaps afraid of offending him.

“Why won’t you let me approach him and ask him about it, Mr. Chance? He might possibly be my relative,” Cloud questioned in bemusement.

“You’d best keep mum about being part of the Seizon family first and only make further plans when we’ve arrived in Yellow Blue City and made inquiries about the Seizon family,” Kai replied.

Cloud had never stayed with the Seizon family since young. As such, the Seizon family knew nothing about him. In fact, they had little fondness for him. Hence, Kai was worried that something might go wrong if Cloud were to suddenly claim familial ties when they had limited knowledge about the Seizon family.

“If you want to make inquiries about Yellow Blue City, just ask me. I’ve stayed there for more than ten years.”

The cultivator who first stopped Cloud from flying into a rage leaned close to them. Kai studied him, noting the gleam in his eyes despite his average height, pointed chin, and sunken cheeks.

At a single glance, he could tell that the man was a greedy and lascivious person. Without asking any questions, Kai took out a million spirit coins and tossed them at the cultivator.

Catching the money, the cultivator promptly grinned from ear to ear. He hurriedly started, “Ask me whatever you’d like to know. Nothing is off limits, and I’ll tell you everything I know.”

“Here’s my question. Is the Seizon family the biggest family in Yellow Blue City? And is the city governed by a mayor? Kai asked.

“Of course, the Seizon family is the biggest family. There’s a mayor in Yellow Blue City, but he’s nothing more than a puppet. Everyone knows that the Seizon family has the final say in the city. Do you know how Yellow Blue City derived its name?”

The cultivator tossed that question out mysteriously.

In response, Kai shook his head.

“Look there. What color are Mr. Enrique’s clothes?” the cultivator drawled, pointing at Enrique in the front. Kai cast his gaze in that direction before answering, “He’s wearing a light blue robe.”

“Exactly. There’s another big shot in the Seizon family, the eldest son of the family and its current patriarch. His lineage wears yellow. That’s why the city was named Yellow Blue City later on,” the cultivator explained.

“You’re saying that the Seizon family is managed by the two brothers?”

“I heard that the Seizon family comprised of three brothers, but the youngest left the Seizon family because of a woman many years ago, and there has been no news of him ever since. Right now, the two brothers are the only ones managing the Seizon family,” the cultivator divulged.

As soon as Cloud heard that, excitement showed on his face. He’s talking about none other than my father, no?

While he was thrilled and wanted to reveal his identity, Kai shot him a cold glare, upon which he swallowed the words that were already on the tip of his tongue.

Unbeknownst to him, a bearded cultivator nearby was staring at them intently.
