

Gu Lingfei: Married at First Sight Novel Chapter 1539

Chapter 1539

“From tomorrow onward, I’ll send you flowers daily and officially start courting my fiancée I’ll let everyone in Wiltspoon know that you, Camryn, are under my protection.”

Camryn was speechless.

“Let me repeat myself. If you avoid me again, I’ll either move to your flower shop or your house and refuse to leave Don’t even think about shaking me off unless you don’t want your shop or house anymore”

Camryn had no words.

Seeing Camryn being angered to the point she could not talk, Callum was in a good mood

She had made him miserable for more than half a month.

He wanted to take his revenge

“It’s late Go back to your room and rest I’ll come over and have breakfast with you tomorrow morning Wait for me to send you to the flower shop If you don’t

Callum’s slender finger tapped on her rosy lips again. He really wanted to taste them as he wished “You’ll face the consequences.

Camryn gritted her teeth. “You’re being a scoundrel, Callum

“Yes, I’m a scoundrel. You totally ignored me when I was being a gentleman and avoided me like I was poisonous. Therefore, I decided to be a scoundrel Only a scoundrel can handle you

Camryn was speechless.

“Rest early. I’ll head home first. Good night.”

Callum, who thought he had Camryn in his grasp, left the Newmans’ villa in a good mood while humming.

Meanwhile at the Buchams’ residence, Josh the groom was utterly drunk. Although many groomsmen drank in his stead, many guests toasted to him too. He inevitably became drunk.

He could not even walk steadily. It was Julian who helped him back to his suite.

Jasmine followed behind them.

She drank quite a lot too. Her face was red, which added to her beauty.

After helping Josh lie down, Julian told Jasmine, "I'll leave Josh to your care, Jasmine."

"Thank you for getting him back, Julian."

Jasmine quickly thanked him.

Many friends and relatives still wanted to play pranks on the newlyweds, but they dismissed the thought when they saw the groom could not even stand properly.

"Josh is drunk. You guys should stop making noise and let the newlyweds rest."

Julian waved his hand as he spoke. He asked everyone to drop the thought of pranking and go back to rest.

The groom was drunk. Julian was protective of his sister-in-law as a brother and stopped everyone from playing pranks on the newlyweds. Everyone had no choice but to return with disappointment.

After everyone left, Jasmine quickly closed the door to the room and locked it.

Next, she searched the room. After confirming that no one was hiding in the room, she went to the bed and sat down. She pushed Josh and said, "Stop pretending. They all left. I looked around too. There's no one in all the hiding spots in this room."

Josh opened his eyes. His gaze was clear without a hint of intoxication.

He sat up and said worriedly, "I have to look around again. I got excited playing pranks when others got married last time. They said they would do the same when I get married, so we must be extra careful."

He had to pay for his actions sooner or later.

He used to prank other people, which made them want to prank him back.

Luckily, he pretended to be drunk and dodged the bullet.

Josh searched the room again and even opened the windows to look out and see whether there were Spiderman wannabes outside. Upon confirming that there was nobody, he closed the windows.

He looked relieved. "The idea of pretending to be drunk isn't bad."

Jasmine smiled and said, "You even have to be wary of others playing pranks on you at your wedding. Who told you to be so wild and kept pranking other people back then?"

"A marriage is a happy event. Everyone just had some fun. We won't go overboard. We only pranked the groom and never the bride."

Since the grooms were like brothers, they could just play pranks. However, the bride was off-limits so that no one frightened the bride who had just joined the family.

Josh had pranked too many people on their wedding days in the past. That was why he was worried everyone would get their revenge during his wedding.

Therefore, Josh pretended to be drunk.

"Dear."

With nobody pranking them, they could enjoy their wedding night thoroughly.

Josh walked over. He sat at the edge of the bed and embraced Jasmine. His gaze was fiery

"Dear, every minute of the wedding night is precious. Let's not waste our time."

As Josh spoke, he swooped in for a kiss but was pushed away by Jasmine.

"I haven't removed my makeup or changed my clothes. I still have to shower. You should too."

Jasmine stood up and walked to the dressing table. She removed the pieces of jewelry she wore one by one.

"Bejeweled" was the perfect word to describe her that day.

The number of jewelry Josh sent her was enough to start a jewelry store. Her family had prepared lots of jewelry for her too. When she showed herself, her neck and hands were adorned with jewelry. The splendor of it was blinding.

At that moment, Jasmine felt like she was a mobile jewelry store.

“Dear, you look really beautiful today.”

Josh approached her and complimented his newly wedded wife.

“When was I not?”

Josh chuckled. “You’re right. My wife is always gorgeous.”

While helping Jasmine to take off the jewelry on her, he smiled and asked, “Dear, you must be tired, right?”

“I’m tired, but it’s a happy exhaustion. I wouldn’t even know I could dress up that grandly if I didn’t get married once.”

“I’m so lucky to have married a wealthy wife. I can work five years less and just rest. I’ll ignore Zachary when he asks me to work extra hours in the future. I have a rich wife taking care of me anyway.”

Jasmine burst out laughing.

“Stop teasing me, Josh. You were the one who gave me all my riches.”

Josh took the chance and hugged her from behind.

“Dear, I’ve given you all I have. I’ll also hand over the money I earn at York Corporation to you in the future. You must love me for the rest of your life.”

“If you love me forever, I’ll do the same.”

A marriage had to be maintained by both parties’ efforts.

Jasmine would not invest her efforts one-sidedly.

If Josh loved and respected her, she would return the same feelings.

Jasmine turned and encircled his neck with both arms. Then, she gave him her lips.

After a deep kiss, Jasmine said softly, “Josh, go get a shower first.”

“Are you still calling me Josh?”

“Hubby.”

Josh immediately looked relieved and said, “Dear, you have to call me hubby more. Hearing you call me like that makes my bones go soft.”

Jasmine pecked his cheek again: "Okay, okay. I'll call you hubby and make your bones go limp every day.

"Didn't you say each second of the wedding night is precious? We can't waste time. Aren't you going to bathe?"

Josh lifted Jasmine.

"Dear, let's bathe together. If we do that, we won't have to wait for each other."

Jasmine felt embarrassed.

However, it was their blissful day, and that night was their first night as husband and wife. There was no need to be embarrassed.

Therefore, Jasmine hugged Josh's neck tightly and said readily, "Okay. Let's take a bath together to save time."

Josh carried his wife into the bathroom happily.

It was a night filled with much affection. Josh, who had successfully gotten his beautiful wife, started his wedding night blissfully.
