Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1767 -Sonny was still a boy; if he were a girl, the elders likely would not have surrounded him and teased him; instead, they took turns hugging him.

For the York family who had not had a daughter in several generations, they would really go crazy for a daughter.

Zachary and Serenity, who were ignored by their elders in the corner, were also happy and relaxed, and they could still love each other.

Not long after, the others came back one after another.

Then, there were more and more people sitting in the corner and They exchanged glances.

Serenity laughed so hard her stomach hurt when she saw the York brothers' expressions.

At this time, the butler came in, walked to Grandma May, and reminded her and everyone with a smile: "Grandma, the second young master brought Ms. Newman back."

Grandma may: "Camryn is here, let's all go to Callum's room."

Grandma May lived in the central main house of the York family, and since Callum's room was not far from hers, she urged that everyone meet there.

Camryn, who was sitting in the car, looked very calm on the surface, but in fact, she was very nervous.

Even though Callum had told Camryn many times that his parents wouldn't dislike her, and that all the older people in his family were very open-minded and would respect the younger generation's choice, all she had to do to accept his love was open her heart and wait to be pampered by her future in-laws.

Camryn was still nervous and scared, afraid that everyone would see her in person and find that she, a blind person, was not as good as they imagined, and would not be able to accept it, and would not agree with her being with Callum.

She predicted that many people would have irrational thoughts and concerns when they met their parents for the first time.

"Callum."

Camryn touched Callum's hand and grabbed it tightly, and whispered, "I'm still a little nervous and scared. What if your parents don't like me?"

She finally took this step, accepted Callum's feelings.

She believed that Callum was also sincere to her.

If Callum's parents didn't like her and despised her, she would definitely not have the courage to fight against Callum.

"Camryn, you're all back home. You probably won't listen to what I say. Why don't you follow me out of the car and go into the house to feel how much the elders love you?" Callum held her back, "Are you worried? It will never happen, come on, I will help you get out of the car."

Yes, Camryn had gone back to his house, even though she had to get out of the car and face it even though she was scared.

Camryn adjusted her mood, and said, "Okay."

Callum thoughtfully helped Camryn get out of the car. Camryn insisted on buying a gift for everyone, but Callum told the butler, "There are still a lot of gifts, let someone move them for us."

There were many people in his family, and Camryn didn't want to leave any one behind, so she bought them all as meeting gifts.

So he stuffed the back seat and trunk of his car to the brim.

Callum even teased Camryn that he should drive a truck and drive her home, because she bought too many gifts for meeting.

He said that he didn't need to buy it, but she insisted on buying it.

It meant that the first meeting couldn't be empty-handed.

He also said that when he met her aunt Azalea for the first time, he also went there with big bags.
