

Read Novel Married At First Sight Chapter 1771

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1771 -Liberty thought that going up and down the stairs would take the elevator, and it would be fine if the bodyguards didn't follow her.

Duncan couldn't walk on the ground, and she just pushed him out to relax, lest he lie on the bed every day with a very bad temper.

Duncan, who had been in the hospital for another month, saw that he was still unable to stand up, and his temper became more and more irritable. He always felt that he would never recover, and even wanted to drive Liberty away, so that Liberty would not need to take care of him.

He even said that he was willing to give Liberty $600,000 a month, as long as Liberty didn't appear in front of him.

He also felt sorry for Liberty's tiredness. Liberty had only taken care of him for more than a month, and he had lost a lot of weight. He still didn't know when he would get better.

For the past two days, he was sitting in a wheelchair, and Liberty pushed him downstairs to relax in the open space in front of the inpatient department. Only then did Duncan restrain his temper a little.

Liberty pushed Duncan towards the elevator entrance.

When they arrived at the elevator door, the elevator door just opened. Mrs. Lewis and Mr. Lewis came out of the elevator. Seeing Liberty pushing their son, Mrs. Lewis stepped forward quickly.

"Liberty, is Duncan going to have an examination?"

Mrs. Lewis was carrying two insulated lunch boxes, and Mr. Lewis was also holding a large bag and a small bag. The insulated lunch box contained tonic soup, and one was for Duncan, another one was for Liberty to drink.

Liberty lost a lot of weight, and Mrs. Lewis also saw it. She was distressed and guilty. After one month, she paid Liberty $300,000, but Liberty did not accept her salary. Liberty said She was repaying Duncan's debt of favor.

But the two of them had to act together, making Duncan think that Liberty really took care of him for money. No matter how he chased Liberty away, Liberty said that she needed to make money, and she was a fool if she had money, which made Duncan helpless.

He wanted to force Liberty out, but he couldn't walk, so he could only stare at Liberty, and Liberty was not afraid of his stare, which made Duncan hate himself even more for being unable to walk.

"Auntie, don't worry, it's not for an examination, it's because Mr. Lewis is in a bad mood. I want to push him downstairs to relax." Liberty added, "Auntie, do you want to go together?"

Mrs. Lewis: "Okay."

Mrs. Lewis handed an insulated lunch box to her husband, and said, "Take these things back to the ward. Liberty and I will go downstairs with Duncan to relax."

Mr. Lewis took the insulated lunch box and said to Liberty gently: "Liberty, thank you for your hard work."

Duncan took his father's words, "High income is naturally accompanied by hard work. Dad, do you think it's easy to make money? If she thinks it's hard work, she doesn't have to make this money. I'll give her $20,000 a day, as long as she's fine if she doesn't appear in front of me. She doesn't even want to make that money, she's a hard-working person."

"Duncan." Mr. Lewis called his son, "Can you stop talking? Things have happened for such a long time, you should face the reality."

Duncan thumped his leg, "Yes, I should face the reality, I have already faced the reality, now I am a useless person, these two legs are grown on my body, they can't play their role, they are used as decoration on my body, it is better to saw it off."

"Duncan."

"Mr. Lewis."

Mrs. Lewis and Liberty hurriedly stopped Duncan from beating his leg again.

Mrs. Lewis said to her husband: "Husband, can you say a few words less? Duncan, don't argue with your father. You are not a waste person, you will get better. The doctor said that your legs are painful and you are conscious, that's a good thing."

If there was no pain and no consciousness, then he would really become a useless person.

Mrs. Lewis: "Liberty, push him away, we'll walk downstairs instead of using the elevator."

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read Novel Married At First Sight Chapter 1772

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1772 -Mrs. Lewis was afraid that her husband and son would quarrel, so she hurriedly pushed her son to the right, where there were wheelchair patients dedicated lane.

Liberty and Mrs. Lewis pushed Duncan downstairs together.

As soon as they got down to the first floor, they saw medical staff pushing patients into the elevator.

Liberty saw a familiar face. It was George, the husband of her former eldest sister Chelsea.

George also saw Liberty and stopped instinctively.

“Liberty.” George called her.

Liberty wanted to walk over as if she didn’t know each other, but the other party called her, so she had to stop, Mrs. Lewis looked at George, and asked Liberty: “Who is he?”

Liberty: “He’s my ex-husband Hank’s brother-in-law.”

Mrs. Lewis said oh, she took the initiative to push Duncan forward, and said to Liberty: “We will wait for you outside.”

Mrs. Lewis didn’t want to get involved in these matters because George appeared to have something to say to Liberty.

After Mrs. Lewis pushed Duncan away, Liberty asked: “Mr. Repton, Why are you here?! Someone in the family is sick and hospitalized?”

George said sadly: “It’s your sister.”

Liberty: “What’s wrong with Miss Brown?”

In Liberty’s opinion, Chelsea was always on the go, worried that the world wouldn’t be in chaos, and she hardly ever even caught a cold or a fever, let alone needed to go to the hospital.

George said: “She is not sick, but hurt. Jessica, the dangerous woman, stabbed her. She didn’t hit anything important, though, so her life is not in danger. Leave the emergency room and go straight to the hospital.

Still there is Hank. He was the most hurt person in the emergency room. He had been stabbed several times, and his parents were waiting outside the room while I took care of Chelsea.”

Hearing this, Liberty was shocked, and she asked: “Mr. Repton, what’s going on? Why did Jessica stab them?”

Jessica stabbed Mrs. Brown, Chelsea, and Liberty were not surprised, but she stabbed Hank and stabbed them several times and she was surprised.

Didn’t she love Hank very much?

When did the young couple turn against each other, to the point of killing each other?

No matter what Hank said, he was Sonny’s biological father. Liberty didn’t want Sonny to lose his father at such a young age, so he asked a few more questions about Hank’s situation.

George said: “I don’t know about Hank’s situation. When I received the call, they were all sent to the hospital. I rushed all the way here. When I arrived, Chelsea was just pushed out. Fortunately, Chelsea’s life was not in danger.

I heard from my father that Hank was stabbed several times and was in shock when he was sent to the hospital. It is clear that after Jessica stabbed them, she called the police, and now she has been taken away by the police.

She was already guilty, and now she is guilty, if she is not sentenced to death, I will sue this poisonous woman.

She couldn’t take Chelsea with her if she didn’t want to live. If she wanted to die, she could die by herself. She could jump off a building, jump into a river, or hang herself. Why use a knife? If something happens to Chelsea, my two children will not have a mother, and that Jessica is such a poisonous woman!”

George scolded Jessica thousands of times.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read Novel Married At First Sight Chapter 1773

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1773 -Liberty listened to George scolding Jessica, thinking to herself, if the Brown family hadn’t been too bullying, Jessica would be a weak woman, How could she stab someone with a knife?

Dogs would jump over walls when they were in a hurry, and rabbits would bite people when they were in a hurry.

Really pushed people to a dead end, angrily resisted, wouldn't it cause a murder?

Liberty was not surprised that Jessica would stab Chelsea. As for Chelsea's discordant temperament, she always took care of her family's affairs, so it would be strange if she didn't get hated by her sister-in-law.

Before Liberty and Hank divorced, she hated Chelsea. Fortunately, Chelsea would not be living at her younger brother's house like she was now, and she still had a breather time, so as not to go crazy and kill people.

Chelsea hated that Jessica almost snatched Lucas away when she teamed up with outsiders, so she targeted Jessica everywhere. As long as she lived in her mother's house, she would alienate the relationship between the younger brother and her husband, and provoke conflicts between her parents and Jessica, which often made Brown's family restless.

People who make mud have three-point temperament.

Jessica couldn't bear Chelsea's actions, which put Chelsea in the hospital.

Liberty thought that married daughters often go back to their natal family, and their natal family would definitely welcome them, but she always meddle in the affairs of her natal siblings, and gossip about her sister-in-law in front of her parents, that was disgusting.

Sooner or later, Chelsea would end up like this.

What surprises Liberty is how Jessica stabbed Hank, or stabbed him to death.

Hank treated Jessica very well, whether it was before or after marriage; even if his parents and sister always scolded Jessica in front of him, said bad things about her, and asked him to divorce Jessica, he always stood by her side.

He also tried his best to mediate the conflict between the two sides, but his parents and sister were stubborn people, so his mediation had no effect.

Not long ago, Jessica had another miscarriage and lost her first child. It was inevitable that she felt sad. Could it be because of this incident that Jessica hated Hank and wanted to stab Hank to death?

Liberty could only guess.

George: "Liberty, Hank has always been Sonny's real father. If you have time, you should go and have a look. In case Hank can't make it... always ask Sonny to come and see his father for the last time, he will give his father a ride."

At the end of George's words, his expression was gloomy, he did not expect such a big event to happen to in-laws, nor did he expect that his brother-in-law would end up like this.

Thinking of the old days, George's face was also burning hot. Although he didn't bully Liberty openly and calculated the benefits of him, his wife always went back to her mother's house to take advantage of it. His parents-in-law helped him take care of the children, and his brother-in-law subsidized his parents-in-law's living expenses. For them, he enjoys the benefits brought by in-laws, and had never persuaded his wife at all.

It could be said that his brother-in-law's end today also had his share of credit.

When Liberty was Chelsea's sister-in-law before, She would say hello, how could there ever be such a scene as to draw a knife?

Really wrong!

Hank shouldn't have cheated or divorced!

"Liberty, Chelsea and I did not do well in the past, and now I solemnly apologize to you, really, I'm sorry!"

George felt that they should all apologize to Liberty.

After Liberty was silent, she said: "The past is over, I don't want to mention it again. I will go to the emergency room to check the situation later.

Mr. Repton, go and take care of Miss Zhou."

George nodded and left.

Liberty waited for George to leave before she walked out of the inpatient department.

Mrs. Lewis pushed Duncan and walked slowly in the open space at the entrance of the inpatient department. There were many people in the hospital, and people in a hurry could be seen everywhere.

From the beginning, Duncan was afraid to go downstairs to meet strangers, and he was afraid that all he would receive were sympathetic looks.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read Novel Married At First Sight Chapter 1774

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1774 -When Liberty pushed Duncan downstairs for the first time to relax, Duncan found out that there were people coming and going in and out of the hospital; no one would pay attention to whether he could walk or not, and no one would cast a sympathetic look.

In the hospital, it was a place where they were used to seeing death.

What is a wheelchair compared to death?

“Liberty, we are here.” Mrs. Lewis saw Liberty coming out, stopped and waved to her.

Duncan’s face was sullen, as if someone owed him tens of billions and didn’t pay it back.

When Liberty was talking to George just now, Duncan heard Liberty address George, and guessed that it was from Liberty’s ex-husband’s family.

He was very upset.

The Brown family was really lingering; Liberty could always meet people from the Brown family, or the Brown family would let them eat and pester Liberty.

She had been divorced for more than half a year, what did Brown family want?

Did the Brown family think Liberty was wanted by no one except Hank? The Brown family was too good at putting money on Hank’s face.

Before Liberty lost weight, Duncan never disliked Liberty. He just thought that Liberty should lose weight and not gain any more weight. Being too fat was not good, and the red light would light up on the body.

So when Liberty joined the Lewis & Co. to work, Duncan asked Liberty to run a few laps in the company every day to help Liberty lose weight. It was not because he disliked Liberty.

Duncan would never dislike Liberty who had lost weight. He didn’t know when he fell in love with Liberty. He only knew that no matter whether she was fat or thin, he had never disliked Liberty.

Liberty came over.

“What did your ex-husband’s brother-in-law stop you for?” Mrs. Lewis asked.

Duncan sullenly, pursed his lips, and would not take the initiative to ask Liberty.

“Something happened to the Brown family.” Liberty replied, “Jessica stabbed Hank and his sister. Hank was seriously injured and is still in the emergency room. Chelsea was not seriously injured and has been hospitalized.”

Hearing this, Duncan frowned.

Mrs. Lewis also knew about the Brown family’s affairs, mainly related to Mrs. Brown and Hank, so she inquired about the past of Liberty and the Brown family.

She was a little shocked and surprised, “Didn’t Hank treat Jessica very well? How could Jessica stab him to death? If she stabbed Chelsea to death, I wouldn’t be surprised. Chelsea, who is this woman? When her sister-in-law wants to stab her to death.”

Liberty said: “I don’t know what caused the husband and wife to turn against each other. It is possible that Hank was violent at home during the quarrel. He has a previous record of domestic violence.”

Hank had domestically abused her.

She resisted at the time, and chased Hank for several blocks with a kitchen knife, scaring Hank so much that he didn’t dare to do anything to her again.

Liberty: “Mr. Repton also rushed to the hospital just after receiving a call. He still doesn’t know the reason for the murder.”

Mrs. Lewis looked at her son and said to Liberty: “Liberty, you and Hank are divorced, but he still Sonny’s father, do you want to go and check on the situation?”

Liberty wanted to check on her ex-husband’s life and death, but she also wanted to come out to say hello to Mrs. Lewis and Duncan.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read Novel Married At First Sight Chapter 1775

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1775 -Liberty said: “Auntie, I want to go and see, if he can’t be rescued, Sonny is his son, he has to give him a ride. Auntie, please accompany Mr. Lewis first.”

Mrs. Lewis: “I’ll just accompany Duncan. You can go quickly. If you need help, tell us.”

Liberty nodded and left quickly.

After she left, Mrs. Lewis pushed Duncan and said slowly, “Look at Hank’s current ending; this is the price of cheating. Duncan, if you marry a wife and have children in the future, you must be loyal to your marriage and be loyal to your family.”

If you think you can't be loyal to your marriage and family, Mom hopes that you will be single for the rest of your life and not harm other people's daughters.

Mom doesn't have a daughter, but Mom is also a woman; who wants to see her own son with another woman? If you don't love her anymore, you can file for divorce. After divorce, you will be single again. Whoever you like and pursue is their freedom."

Duncan said coldly: "Mom, I'll just call. You don't have to worry that your son will end up like Hank."

"What stupid things are you talking about? You can get better. When you recover, you have to pursue Liberty and marry her. When you become a stepdad, mom doesn't object anymore, because, as you said at the beginning, this is your choice to marry her, you want to live, and as long as you feel happy, mom won't interfere. Sonny is a very cute child, and mom likes him too. He will be Mom's grandson; Mom can accept it now."

Duncan's voice became colder, "Mom, don't you think I'm selfish? When I was doing well, you objected to me being with Liberty and mother-child relationship.

I'm disabled now, and I can't even stand up on my own. You just say that if you want me to like Liberty, I should pursue Liberty and marry Liberty. You want Liberty to be my free nanny. I won't marry her. If she doesn't leave for a day and still takes care of me, Mom, you will pay her wages, and she doesn't owe me anything!"

He wouldn't treat Liberty as a free nanny.

Mrs. Lewis was speechless by her son's accusation. After a while, she admitted: "I'm selfish. I just want you to get better. You can say whatever you want. As long as you get better, you want to marry a woman and go home and I doesn't care anymore.

I regret it so much now, why did I stop you from looking for Liberty, if it wasn't for me, you wouldn't...it's all my fault!"

Duncan had heard enough of his mother's self-blame, he interrupted his mother to continue to blame herself, and said: "That day, I didn't want to go to Liberty, I wanted to go back to the company, I have an important meeting that day. Mom, you questioned me like that, and I let you misunderstand that I wanted to go to Liberty."

He was pursuing Liberty, but he would not leave the company's affairs alone.

He usually handled the most important things, and other things were arranged, so he had a lot of time to pursue and accompany Liberty.

Companionship was the longest confession of love, and he planed to spend the rest of his life with Liberty.

But, unfortunately, he was disabled now, not to mention that Liberty still had no affection for him, even if he had affection, he would refuse, not wanting to drag Liberty down.

Liberty deserved a better man.

“It’s my fault no matter what.” Mrs. Lewis blamed herself, “So I want you to get well soon.”

Liberty couldn’t hear what the mother and son of the Lewis family said. When she went to the emergency room, Seeing Mrs. Brown and Mr. Brown still guarding the door of the emergency room, the couple stood together, Mr. Brown held his wife’s hand tightly, and Mrs. Brown also held her husband hand tightly as well.

The couple silently comforted each other.

Mrs. Brown was still crying, and the tears on her face hadn’t dried.

“Uncle, aunt.” Liberty walked in front of them and called out softly.

When Mr. Brown and Mrs. Brown saw that it was Liberty, Mrs. Brown immediately grabbed Liberty’s hand and wanted to say something, but she couldn’t say a word, she could only cry.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-