Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1801 -Kevin stood up, smiled and stretched out his right hand to shake Hayden's hand, "Mr. Queen."

After shaking hands with him, Hayden asked him to sit down.

After Kevin sat down again, Hayden sat down beside her mother.

Mrs. Queen turned her head to look at her imposing daughter, then looked at Kevin on the opposite side, and sighed in her heart, her daughter was more manly than Kevin.

"Why come back now?" Mrs. Queen asked her daughter gently, "Aren't you still in the company at this time?"

"I just finished talking about a project, and I have some time, so I came back to see my parents."

In the presence of outsiders, she didn't dare to relax at all, for fear that Kevin would find out that she was actually a beauty.

"Mr. York, When did you come?" Hayden asked Kevin.

Kevin replied with a smile: "I just arrived today. I need to take care of some business matters. I came here on a business trip for a while. Last time I had dinner with auntie at the same table and had a good chat. I will pay a visit."

"Kevin, whenever you come to Jensburg in the future, come and sit, Auntie likes to chat with you very much." Mrs. Queen liked Kevin very much.

Kevin spoke clearly. He would be very sensitive of Mrs. Queen's age when conversing with her. He would only discuss interesting events from the past when conversing with the elderly. Although he was not from that era, but his grandma frequently spoke of it. If there were several, the conversation could continue and he would appear to have made a close friend.

He could discuss common subjects with Mrs. Queen when conversing, whether it be discussing the children's life events, making soup, or cooking.

Mrs. Queen could not continue talking to her daughter when she wanted to have a heart-to-heart conversation since she was accustomed to her daughter's taciturnity. She met Kevin, a young man, unexpectedly, and they struck up a wonderful conversation.

The two of them only met twice, and Mrs. Queen regarded Kevin as a familiar nephew.

Mrs. Queen would have preferred to ask Kevin to live in Queen's old mansion so that the couple could also enjoy the delight of being surrounded by the younger generation. However, she was aware that York's family had land in Jensburg and that Kevin had no shortage of places to dwell.

"That's natural. As long as I am on a business trip to Jensburg, I will come to see Uncle and Auntie ."

Donald said: "Stay for dinner later, I have ordered the kitchen to cook more dishes. Kevin, did you drive here by yourself? Your Uncle still wants to drink with you during dinner."

The future father-in-law wanted to drink with him, so he naturally accompanied him.

Everyone drank alcohol when getting married. He needed to increase his ability to drink and get ready for the future.

Kevin's alcohol capacity was actually very good, and he would not get drunk under normal circumstances.

"I'm staying at our family's hotel, which is across the street from Queen's hotel. If Uncle could drive me back to the hotel after dinner, I'd be happy to have a few drinks with him."

Before Hayden could speak, Donald said to his daughter: "Ah Hayden, you also stay at home and eat before leaving. You will send Kevin back to the hotel later. Dad hasn't talked to anyone for a long time. I've had a drink, and I'm addicted to alcohol, so it's rare for me to hit it off with Kevin, and Kevin is a guest from afar, so I definitely want to have a drink or two with the guest."

What could Hayden say?

Her parents agreed for her.
