

Read Married at First Sight Chapter 2498

Married at First Sight Chapter 2498-Because letting the enemy go meant harming oneself.

Audrey said, "There's no shortage of supplements in our house."

Matriarch Farrell said warmly, "I know your family is not short of supplements. This is my wish. We haven't seen each other for decades. Now that I have found you, I will move around more in the future."

Some time ago, I wanted to come over and verify it, but I never had time. This time, while attending the wedding of Zachary and Serenity, I spent a lot of time confirming that you are my niece."

When Matriarch Farrell spoke, she looked at Audrey lovingly.

Audrey's expression was still indifferent. She was not enthusiastic about Matriarch Farrell, whom she had not seen for decades, and she was not even excited about the reunion of relatives.

"Serenity, it's good to marry into the York family."

Seeing that Audrey was silent, Matriarch Farrell had to find a topic by herself.

"She can rest in peace even though she is in the York family. Serenity and Liberty are doing very well now, and we as elders can rest assured."

When attending Zachary's wedding, Matriarch Farrell wanted to find the shadow of the eldest sister in Serenity, but she found that Serenity did not look like the eldest sister, but Liberty looked a bit like her eldest sister.

At that time, she was still lucky and hoped that Serenity was not the descendant of the eldest sister. After she inquired and verified, Matriarch Farrell was disappointed.

Her luck was in vain.

Audrey was her eldest niece.

Serenity and Liberty were the descendants of the eldest sister.

Serenity married the York family, the richest family in Wiltspoon, and Audrey was the head wife of the Stone family. In Wiltspoon, the York family and the Stone family each accounted for half of the family. If these two families joined forces, the Farrell family would not be able to resist it.

After much thought, Matriarch Farrell finally visited the Stone family and admitted her niece openly and honestly.

As for the blood feud, decades have passed. Who had evidence to prove that she killed her sisters?

Without evidence, even if the niece was capable and powerful, there was nothing she could do against her.

She had held the position of head of the Farrell family for decades, and it was impossible to hand it over again. If her sister's descendants wanted to compete with her daughter, Kathryn, for power, let's see who has the ability. The winner is king. If Kathryn loses, she also acknowledges it to her sister's descendants.

Audrey said calmly, "I am afraid that you can't worry about your niece, so you should worry about your real and fake daughters first."

Matriarch Farrell said sadly: "Audrey, you used to talk to me, but it was not like this. You always called me sweetly, and you would tell me anything you wanted to say. What's so delicious about it? You would also keep it for me, but now you have a gun and a stick. We, aunt and niece, haven't seen each other for decades. We finally found each other and reunited. You're not excited at all, but you still have a cold attitude. Are you resenting me?"

It's my fault. I didn't take good care of you two sisters, which caused you to suffer so much outside. Your sister left early. When I think of her, I feel very sad. Yes, when you were a child, you were cute, and you were our treasure."

As she spoke, her eyes turned red.

Audrey's eyes were as bright as lightning; she stared at Matriarch Farrell coldly and said sarcastically, "Mrs. Farrell, you're not a visiting relative. Since you're not a visiting relative, I don't dare shamelessly post it as a kinship."

When Matriarch Farrell came in, Audrey was not excited. She didn't come to recognize her as a relative. It was naturally impossible for Audrey to treat Matriarch Farrell as if she were a relative.

Matriarch Farrell might be the murderer in her family. Facing her enemy, Audrey couldn't be nice and angry.