

Read Married At First Sight Chapter 2758

Married At First Sight Chapter 2758-On the day Liberty left Wiltspoon, he didn't even send her to the airport because of the quarrel.

He didn't even answer her calls or reply to her messages, which made her fly to Jensburg with worry.

Even in Jensburg, Liberty was still thinking about Duncan. She asked Zachary and Serenity to take Sonny to visit him to enlighten him, comfort him, and help him regain his confidence.

Thinking of what happened that day, Duncan's old face could turn into a sad face.

"I'm not angry." Liberty poured him a cup of tea and said, "Don't have such thoughts in the future. If I disliked you and felt that you would drag me down, I would have stayed far away from you. How could I get closer to you and treat you more and more? To become more trustworthy?"

When Duncan confessed his love, Liberty firmly rejected his feelings.

There was no drama between the two of them, but rather a steady flow. Relying on their daily interactions, his support for her, and her encouragement for him, the two hearts had gradually grown closer. He then rarely said that he loved her, and she didn't take him at his word.

But in their hearts, each other had become the most important person to each other.

In the eyes of outsiders, the two people were also a couple.

After the food was served, Liberty didn't eat much and spent most of his time picking up food for Duncan.

Duncan was so happy to have a beautiful woman by his side and taking good care of him that he almost burst his belly after eating this meal.

Duncan took a few hours' flight to come here. Liberty asked him to rest in the hotel first and then take him for a walk around the hotel in the evening.

Jim went to book three rooms for Duncan and the others. Duncan wanted to be close to the room where Liberty lived. Jim readily exchanged rooms with him. Anyway, Duncan only stayed in Jensburg for one night, and Duncan would return to Wiltspoon tomorrow afternoon.

As the New Year was approaching, Lewis & Co. was also very busy. Duncan, the boss, had to sit in the company.

Liberty asked the Lewis family bodyguard to take a rest. Then she pushed Duncan away.

She lived on the 18th floor.

After taking the elevator up to the 18th floor and arriving at Duncan's room, Liberty used the room card to open the door for him and then pushed him in.

"Kevin asked me to stay in the presidential suite, but I refused. I'm not staying for a day or two, but for a long time. It's not easy to occupy the presidential suite. I think a room like this is quite good."

"You don't mind it, do you?"

With Duncan's wealth, he stayed in five-star or above hotels and presidential suites when he traveled.

Liberty was worried that Duncan would find the room too small.

Her requirements were not high.

In terms of wealth, she had not yet reached that level.

After the company was established, she would live in the company. After making money in Jensburg, she would buy a house so that she would not have to live in the Fortress Hotel for a long time.

mainly because Kevin refused to accept her money.

She lived at the Fortress Hotel for free.

Even if her sister, Serenity, was the eldest mistress of the York family, Liberty would still feel embarrassed.

She was anxious to run the company's affairs and also wanted to move out of the hotel as soon as possible so that she no longer had to take advantage of her brother-in-law's family.

Married At First Sight Chapter 2759-Duncan turned to look at Liberty and said, "Who do you think I am? I even slept on a bench in the park before. That was when I was rebellious in my youth."

Liberty knew that he was very rebellious when he was in his teens and 20s and followed some like-minded people to join the world. Later, after his grandma passed away from a serious illness, he changed his ways, returned to normal, worked hard to start a business, and established Lewis & Co.

More than ten years have passed since those days, and he rarely mentioned it in front of her because it reminded him of his grandma.

She heard that his grandma's favorite grandson was him. He was the youngest of the brothers. The emperor loved the eldest son, and the people loved the youngest son.

Sonny was initially afraid of the scar on his face. He thought about having surgery to repair it, but in the end, he didn't do it. He said that keeping the scar was a warning to himself because his rebellion led to his grandma's serious illness and death.

He felt sorry for Grandma.

"I don't choose a place to live. Besides, a room like this is very good."

Duncan admitted that he usually stayed in the presidential suite when he was on business trips.

He was single and had so much property. If he didn't enjoy it, what would he do to earn so much money?

Liberty asked, "Do you want to rest now?"

"I'll just sit on that couch."

Duncan pointed to the sofa next to the window.

Liberty pushed him and walked over. When she stopped, she tried to help him, but he refused and said, "I can stand up on my own. I can still walk two steps."

After doing rehabilitation every day and walking a few steps, his legs no longer hurt. But if he wanted to walk a little further, his legs would not be able to bear it, and he would suffer such heartbreaking pain that he could not stand steadily and fell to the ground.

His legs were bruised from the fall.

Wearing trousers every day, no one noticed him, so everyone would not feel sorry for him again.

He didn't need anyone's sympathy!

Liberty gave up helping him and let him stand up on his own.

He took a step forward, turned around, and slowly sat down on the sofa.

After he sat down, Liberty pushed the wheelchair aside and parked it against the wall.

Liberty said, "Would you like some fruit? The hotel will deliver a piece of fruit every day. They are all seasonal fruits, quite fresh."

Duncan said, "I'm so full that I can't eat fruit now."

Liberty walked towards him and said, “You are almost forty years old, and you still don’t know how much you can eat? You deserve it if you overeat.”

She sat down next to him and looked at his belly. “Is it hard? Otherwise, practice walking in the room so that you can digest it faster.”

Duncan looked at her with a smile.

Although he was extremely full and slightly stuffed, he was not on the verge of gasping for air.

Liberty: “Why are you always looking at me like this?”

Duncan: “Liberty, I like to listen to your nagging. It is a kind of happiness to be nagged by you.”

Normally, she would only nag Serenity.

What she cared about most was Serenity and Sonny. Sonny was still young, so she didn’t need to nag her too much. She just loved nagging in front of Serenity, like an old mother.

To Serenity, she was both a sister and a mother.

The eldest sister was like a mother, which was fully reflected in her sisters.

Liberty: “Do you think I’m nagging you?”

