MaFS Chapter 3649

Married At First Sight Chapter 3649 – Ben silently complained to himself: Zachary had asked him for advice and picked it up quickly.

After breakfast, Jane and Serenity took the kids to play in the living room, while Ben had to go back to work. He was reluctant to leave Avah with Jane and asked her to walk him out.

Back at work, Jane turned to Serenity and joked, “Ben’s a grown man, but he’s still so clingy.”

Serenity replied, “You’re just bragging. You two have been together for years, but your relationship is still like it was in the beginning. Ben waited over ten years to win you over—it’s natural for him to be so attached.”

Jane blushed.

Just then, the old miracle doctor walked in with Fabian in his arms, and Laurel brought her two sons to join the fun.

Laurel greeted Jane, saying, “These two little ones wouldn’t stop asking for their brother as soon as they woke up. They were so loud. Jane, since you’re not working for a few days, I’ll leave them with you. Let them run wild with Titus and Sonny—they’re destroying the house.”

Laurel sighed about having two boys. She wished she had a daughter like Jane. Unlike her rowdy boys, Jane’s children were calmer, though her twin sons had a close relationship, even though they fought over everything daily.

Laurel knew that Lilian, since the miracle doctor arrived, had passed baby duties to him and fled. She’d rather perform surgeries all day than handle her energetic twins.

Jane laughed, “Why don’t you let your husband take care of one, and you handle the other? It might be quieter if they’re apart.”

Laurel sighed, “They cry and fuss when separated. One cries for his brother, and the other cries for his younger brother. But when they’re together, they fight. It’s a never-ending cycle.”

Laurel then turned to Serenity and said, “Serenity, you’re lucky to have just one child at a time. You can wait until your first child is older, maybe in kindergarten, before having another. By then, the eldest will be more responsible and love their sibling. It’s easier that way. With twins, it’s chaos.”

“If I had a daughter like Jane, I’d be happier. Avah’s so easygoing, even though she argues with her brother sometimes, she’s quiet and doesn’t cry much. Daughters are better. I have to have a daughter. Tonight, I’m researching how to get one. Doctor, do you have any tips?”

Laurel asked the miracle doctor.

The old doctor responded, “I’m not married yet, so don’t ask me about having kids.”

He was too old to talk about such things with younger people. Even if he knew, he wouldn’t say. It’s best to let nature take its course. Besides, her twin boys weren’t that hard to handle.

Laurel said, “I’ll ask Lilian when she’s back. Jane, I’m heading to the office. I’ll leave the boys with you. Their grandparents will come to help later.”

With that, Laurel hurried off. Her boys were already playing with Sonny and Titus, not caring that their mom had left.

The old miracle doctor turned to Titus and asked, “Titus, have you finished copying the medicine book your master assigned? Even though your master isn’t home, your studies are still my responsibility. You can play, but don’t neglect your studies.”

Titus, who had been enjoying himself, was speechless.
