

Married by Accident (English) Chapter 45 - Come quickly, my prince

Chapter 45: Come quickly, my prince

Arabella was silent when she heard the baritone voice of the man who had just insulted her. Still seeing the silhouette of a man with broad shoulders who was wrapped in a white shirt and looked very neat walking towards the car, of course she only pursed her lips when she was annoyed.

"An arrogant man who is really really annoying. Doesn't he like seeing me happy for a moment? Just looking at the beautiful scenery in front of me, he has already ruined my slightly better mood at first."

"Even though just by looking at the beautiful flowers blooming in front of me, the pain I had felt because of Leonard's actions had gradually disappeared, but now it came back when I saw his very annoying face."

Arabella's body twitched in surprise when she heard the sound of a car horn that was clearly directed at her. She who had not seen Leonard talking to Ayumi, had already gotten into the car and sat next to the man she hated the most.

Not wanting to make the figure of the man behind the wheel, finally Arabella was forced to get up from the chair and walk closer to the car. She smiled at Ayumi, who waved as if calling her.

As she walked towards the car and once there, Arabella opened the door and got in the car. As she just sat in the back seat, she saw Leonard staring unblinkingly at Ayumi.

For some reason she felt the atmosphere was so uncomfortable because only silence was felt in the car because it seemed that Ayumi had not uttered a word when she asked again.

Leonard, who had asked Ayumi, felt very suspicious and at the same time curious about the man just mentioned. He felt very strange why Ayumi did not immediately answer his question, so he asked a second time.

"Why have you been silent all this time, Ayumi? Didn't I ask you about who the man you were talking about earlier was," asked Leonard with a face full of curiosity and not blinking as he stared intensely at the beautiful face of the woman on his left.

Ayumi who was currently swallowing her saliva roughly, found it impossible to escape from the question that had just confirmed that Leonard was suspicious of her.

Not wanting to feel suspicious about the man she will take advantage of, Ayumi is now acting as cute as possible when she looks at the man who doesn't blink at her face.

"I was just talking, Leo. Not talking about other men because I used to often go with my friends to accompany me when fitting wedding dresses."

"They said that their partner when asked for an opinion always said as I said earlier. So, I think that all men are like what my friends complain about."

Even though Ayumi felt very relieved after successfully concocting a lie, she was actually really worried if Leonard didn't believe her words.

'Hopefully he will believe and no longer discuss unimportant things that will thwart my plans to take advantage of Leo,' Ayumi muttered in her heart while still acting with the sweetest smile possible in front of the man behind the wheel.

For some reason Leonard was dissatisfied with the answer Ayumi had just expressed, but he couldn't possibly express a tone of protest at the woman he loved so much because he didn't want any misunderstanding between them.

"Really? I thought you were talking about a man who was close to your ex-boyfriend because earlier you thought if you were close to a man who until now has not been forgotten because he has a cold attitude and doesn't talk much as a man."

Ayumi's reflex hastily shook her head, a sign of disapproval of Leonard's words which made her feel very relieved that the man actually believed the lie she had just devised at this time.

Ayumi wanted to dilute the tense atmosphere in the car by patting Leonard's strong arm and chuckling in amusement.

"Oh my! How can I get close to a man when no one dares to approach me because they don't believe in themselves just by looking."

"I don't know what men think when they see me for the first time so they don't dare to approach me. Especially if they find out that I am the daughter of my father who is of course very famous."

"My father has a company that is well-known all over the world. You are the only man who is very close to me because indeed we have been very close since childhood and have always played together."

Feeling very proud to be the only man who is close to Ayumi, Leonard is now laughing and grabs the palm of the woman with a beautiful face and white skin, then kisses it gently.

"Wow... I'm so lucky to be the only guy you're close with, Ayumi. So, I don't have to compete with the guys who became your ex-boyfriends.

"So, you've never had a relationship with a man?" Leonard asked now wanting to hear an answer from Ayumi who confirmed that he was the only man in the heart of the Japanese woman.

If Leonard looks very happy and excited because he thinks that Ayumi has never been close to men, it is different from what Arabella currently thinks.

While sitting in the back seat, Arabella felt very bored hearing the conversation from the couple in the front seat.

She felt like she was ignored and ignored, so she really wanted to leave them so she could talk more freely with affection and intimacy.

Even though she was the serial wife of Leonard, she didn't feel jealous at all seeing her husband being so gentle with other women.

'I'm like a fool for being a useless woman because I only see Leonard and Ayumi's affection in front of me.'

'I think I want to walk alone and eat at roadside stalls instead of following those who will choose wedding dresses and jewelry,' murmured Arabella who currently chose to watch the passing vehicles on the right where she sat.

Arabella remembered her favorite film which is currently viral on social media. The main male character who admires and loves the female character with all his heart and is willing to do anything for his partner.

'Aaarrh ... if I were in the position of the female lead I was watching, it wouldn't be like this.'

'Right now, I look pathetic because the man who married me doesn't love me and doesn't care about me as a woman who should be protected and cherished,' murmured Arabella who now chose to close her eyes as she imagined the prince in her mind.

Hoping her prince will come soon and free her from the shackles of a madman like Leonard.

'My prince, come quickly,' Arabella muttered, currently consoling her heart so as not to be overwhelmed with frustration at imagining her very bad destiny because she married a man who did not love her at all.

To be continued...

