Chapter 50: Postponing plans

When Arabella felt very happy and breathed a sigh of relief as soon as she managed to leave Leonard and also Ayumi. Very different from what Leonard was currently feeling. He really felt very annoyed and angry that Arabella still went even though he forbade her.

'Unlucky! I couldn't scold her nor forbid Arabella to go. Where is Arabella actually going?' muttered Leonard who was currently busy thinking about where the woman who was currently walking from the shop had left him and made him not know what Arabella was on as she disappeared from sight.

Not wanting to lose track, Leonard chose to speak to Ayumi because he wanted to go threaten Arabella for a while as usual.

"Honey, I'm going out for a while to say something to my cousin because I'm really worried about him. I'll order a taxi for Arabella so she's more comfortable when she goes to meet her friends," said Leonard, who is currently looking for the right reason to talk to women wearing colorful knee-length dresses. the blue.

Meanwhile, the current Ayumi had just received the leg chain she wanted to try, reflexively turning to stare at Leonard.

"Why do you think that Arabella is a lost toddler and doesn't know anything about taking taxis. Especially in today's digital era, everything is easier and school children know how to do it."

"I feel you are too much in worrying about your cousin, Leo. However, if you still want to help Arabella, just go now. I will wait for you here," said Ayumi, who was still shaking her head at the excessive attitude of the man who became her little friend.

In truth, Leonard felt slapped by Ayumi's words, but his curiosity was far greater than the ridicule from the woman who looked completely astonished at his attitude.

"I already consider her like my own sister, dear. Moreover, I do not have a younger sister because I am an only child and feel lonely living at home alone with only my parents. That's why I feel happy when Arabella is entrusted to our family."

While looking for an excuse to Ayumi, Leonard's mind was currently worried about Arabella who might have disappeared and made him only curse in his heart to vent the bubbling annoyance.

'Unlucky! maybe that cheap woman had disappeared. Hopefully he's still on the street and hasn't taken a taxi yet.'

As soon as Ayumi waved her hand to shoo her away, Leonard, who was now out of sight of the woman of Japanese descent, hurriedly stepped out of the jewelry store to chase the man who had disappeared from sight.

Leonard looked around to find the whereabouts of the woman he hated so much, but wondered where his siren wife had gone. Feeling very angry that he didn't find the woman he was looking for, he punched the air around him and cursed.

"Shit! Where is she? She's gone so fast," muttered Leonard still not giving up on finding the woman he thought went with a man.

It wasn't until a few moments later that he caught the silhouette of Arabella who had just stepped around a car and entered through the front door.

"Fuck! I was right. That cheap woman went with a man in a black car," Leonard cursed, who is currently memorizing the car's license plate number to find out who owns it.

Wasting no time, Leonard contacted someone to find out who was the owner of the luxury car that had just taken his siren wife away.

"You cheap woman! She said she was going with a friend. Even though she was alone with a man behind me. How dare she lie by saying she had important business. Just watch out when she gets home."

Leonard had just closed his mouth, the sound of his cellphone ringing and making him immediately pick up the call from his mother by sliding the green button up.

"Hello, Mother."

"Leonard, why is there someone from Stevan who packed all of Arabella's clothes? What happened? I called your brother earlier but he didn't pick up. I only said this because I was very happy, finally Arabella left the house and you can quietly marry Ayumi without a hitch ," said Nayla Sari from across the phone.

Meanwhile, Leonard was very surprised because he did not understand the wishes of his half-brother. For some reason he felt very upset because his stepbrother always did what he wanted.

"What the hell is he doing? He hasn't said anything to me at all, including Arabella. Was it Stevan calling that cheap woman? I guess I'll have to go to my brother's office to ask Arabella what he's up to. boutique because this is much more important."

Leonard immediately hung up the phone without waiting for his mother to speak to respond to his words.

He hurriedly goes to meet Ayumi and intends to take the woman he will marry back to the apartment first. Then just go to the company of the stepbrother.
