

Marry Ex's Uncle After Divorcement

#Chapter 001

Chapter 001

Chapter 001 Abort the Children

"Both babies are healthy!"

In the obstetrics department of a hospital, Theresa Cameron held her medical records and was relieved after hearing the doctor's words.

She had sultered a lot in her seven-month pregnancy.

But the health of her babies made her feel that everything was worth it.

At seven in the afternoon, she heard the door being unlocked and opened.

She hurriedly stood up, "Babe!"

Jimmy Watson appeared at the door.

He didn't look up when he heard Theresa's voice.

Perhaps he was exhausted after working for the whole day He didn't speak, and just lowered his head and changed his shoes.

"I had an exam today and the babies are both healthy."

Jimmy had a meeting today and he didn't go to the hospital with Theresa.

She went there by herself.

The hospital was not far from their house.

And it was not a big deal.

Theresa said happily: "I was just thinking about the babies' names. You have any ideas?"

They had been married for three years.

And the whole family had been looking forward to the babies.

Jimmy's mother, in particular, would call every once in a while to ask if Theresa was pregnant. They were all happy to Theresa's pregnancy.

Though pregnancy meant hardship for a mother, Theresa thought it worth it when the idea that two lovely babies were coming to the world occurred to her.

Jimmy had already changed into slippers, but he showed no smile on his face. He then said, "Abort the children."

"Wh...what?"

Theresa was stunned by Jimmy's words.

She was immersed in anticipation for their bright future seconds ago! I must have misheard! Why would he abort our babies? Theresa married Jimmy when she was twenty-one years old. Jimmy dated her for two years before they got married.

And he had been nice to her.

She was a conservative person and she couldn't quite accept sex before marriage. She wanted to give her virginity to Jimmy after they officially became husband and wife, and Jimmy respected her choice. However, after they were married, she found that Jimmy was infertile.

But she thought that his infertility didn't matter because she believed that the love between a couple was the most important, and that she loved Jimmy for his personality, not for his sexual ability.

But Jimmy's family didn't know about his infertility and had been urging them to have babies.

Their peers had children one after another, but they remained fruitless.

And Jimmy's mother had been nagging about how she wanted a grandchild.

Therefore, Jimmy came up with the idea of artificial insemination and persuaded Theresa to conceive.

Theresa had suffered a lot for the twins in the past months.

But now... He actually wanted to abort the children? Theresa asked, "Why...why?"

Jimmy answered, "I asked a friend in the hospital today and he told me that I might be cured. I want to give it a shot. They are not my children and are not related to me. I don't want them."

Theresa looked at him in disbelief.

She couldn't believe that he was talking about killing the babies as if induced abortion was some kind of trifle.

She argued, "You wanted them yourself. You said that it doesn't matter that they are not related to you. You said that because I bear them, they are our children. And, they are seven months old! It won't be long before they will be born..."

She had suffered a lot in the past seven months.

She had accepted their existence and began expecting her future with the twins.

How could he abort them as he wants? Jimmy said irritably,

We will have to raise them when they are born.

You think it easy for me to raise two kids? If I spend all my money on them, how would I have the money to raise my own child?"

"They are good enough for us! Besides, they are children, human beings, not trash you could dump as you wish. And it was you who decided to have them in the first place."

"Abort or not?" Said Jimmy impatiently, "No!"

Said Theresa, "I am not as heartless as you. You know how hard it was to me to bear them!"

She had already had maternal love for the twins. She would not agree to abort them.

More than that, when she knew how pretty the kids were,

I was filled with maternal love them.

It would be too cruel to let her abort the children.

Jimmy answered, "Fine. If you want to give birth to them, just do it. I won't help you! And, you will raise them all by yourself. Divorce!"

"What did you say?"

She didn't expect that he would even mention divorce.

20 She had always thought that Jimmy was nice to her, so, she could accept his imperfection as a man.

But she didn't expect that now he actually... Jimmy said, 'I'm not joking with you.

They are not my children.

Why should I raise them?"

After saying, he opened the door of the bedroom and locked himself in the room.

Theresa stood alone in the living room.

She suddenly felt that the room was much colder.

After a while, Rosales, Theresa's mother in law, called, "Theresa."

"Rosales."

Answered Theresa.

She didn't realize that she had been crying until she heard Rosales's voice.

She didn't know how long she had been crying She wiped her tears and didn't want Rosales to know that she had been crying.

Rosales asked on the phone, "Jim just said that you are aborting the babies. Why?"

"Ask him.I don't know."

"He also asked me to persuade you into agreeing with him, or he want to divorce.I thought he liked the babies. Did you two have a quarrel?"

"I did nothing."

Said Theresa, "It is he who doesn't want the babies."

"How could it be?"

Rosales was confused, and after pondering, she asked tentatively, "Are the babies not biologically related to him?"

Rosales couldn't think of another reason why her son didn't want the children all of a sudden.

Theresa didn't know how to explain to Rosales.

The fact was that Jimmy wasn't truly the babies' biological father.

But she agreed with the idea of artificial insemination.

She never thought that Jimmy would suddenly change his mind when the fetus was seven-month-old Theresa remained silent while she was thinking about how to explain, but Rosales regarded her silence as admission.

She began scolding Theresa, "Theresa, I didn't know that you are so cheap. We Watson is nice to you. How could you!"

After cursing Theresa, Rosales directly hung up the phone.

When Theresa woke up, she found herself in the hospital.

Noises were coming from outside.

It was Rosales shouting in an accusatory tone, "

You have a good daughter! Divorce! You Cameron really has a nice-bred girl! My son was being so nice to her and she is still insatiable! She found the other man! Shameless thing!"

Theresa opened her eyes and saw Johnson Cameron sitting beside her.

Father's appearance brought her into tears.

She cried, "Dad."

She didn't know how to pour out her grievance.

Johnson looked at her and showed no smile.

He just asked, "Who is the man?"

Chapter 2

Chapter 002 Look as Alike as Three Peas

Father's words were like a blow in Theresa's head. Even father thinks I am being unfaithful. She answered, "They are Jimmy's children." "Heh." Sarah Cameron, who was standing next to Johnson, sneered, "Theresa, do you think we are stupid? The Wastons are so eager to have an offspring. If Jimmy is truly the children's biological father, they would not force you to abort them. Just admit what you did! Dad made you our example. But I didn't know that you are such a person!"

Sarah never liked Theresa. She would definitely not stand on Theresa's side when Theresa was facing such a scandal Johnson ordered, "Abort the children. Go back and say sorry to your mother-in-law. You might win yourself their forgiveness." "I did nothing wrong!" Argued Theresa. "You really are..." Johnson looked at her, his eyes bloodshot with anger, "How would I have such a shameless daughter!" He didn't know what to say and directly left the ward.

After Johnson and Sarah left, Jimmy came in. He stood by the door and looked at Theresa. He again persuaded, "Abort the children." Theresa looked up at him. Just a few days ago, she was thinking how lucky she was that she met such a good husband. However, at this moment, she only felt a shiver run down her spine. She looked at him and said numbly, "You deliberately ruined my reputation to make me kill my babies?"

Jimmy answered, "I just want you to know that I won't see them as my children. And others won't either."

"You are so cruel!" Theresa looked at him and said, "How can you do such a thing to innocent children?" "Innocent? They are not human beings yet. You women are softhearted!"

"Then we shall divorce." Concluded Theresa. Jimmy sneered, "So, you plan to bear the kids, huh? Fine then, divorce! Good! But the house will not be yours."

"Why? We bought the house together. We each own half its property right."

"Why should I let two bastards live in my house?"

"Jimmy Waston!"

Hearing the word "bastard", Theresa felt sick and dizzy. She never thought that she would run into such a jerk. And this jerk should have lived with her for three years!

Four years later. It was an early morning and Theresa was sitting by the dining table. She read messages on a WhatsApp's chat group, [Jimmy got married yesterday. He married Rose! Geez, I really envy him! [Isn't he divorced? A divorced man can also marry a beautiful, rich lady!]

[Let me tell you! That was because his ex cuckolded him and got pregnant with others' children. That's how they divorced.]

The messages reminded Theresa of what happened four years ago and brought her gooseflesh. After so many years, she could still feel sick when Jimmy's disgusting mug occurred to her.

God was really unfair. Jimmy should be climbing up the rung in his company and even have married his boss's daughter. And she...

"Of course my mom is good-looking! If she is not, how could she give birth to good-looking us?" Ben Cameron's voice came from the sofa, which brought Theresa back to earth. Theresa cast a glance at Ben and found him was again doing live stream with iPad.

"I wanna show you but mom won't agree. She would get mad!"

"Where do we live? I can't tell you! My mom warned me about bad people. They will come to my home and catch us."

"Thank you, big sister, for your tip. Love you!"

Saying, Ben even made a finger heart. Looking at the little man, Theresa couldn't help smiling. Though she had suffered a lot these years for the two boys, she still felt everything was worth it when she could witness Leonard and Ben Cameron grow up. Cristina Lagarde opened the door from the outside and walked in. She glanced at

Theresa who was still at home and asked, "Why are you still here?"

Theresa stood up and said, "I said that I'll go when you're here."

"Alright, hurry up. Don't be late!" Said Cristina, "Leave the boys to me. Just go. If you are late, they might be displeased! It took me some labor to network you for the job."

Then, like a mother urging kids to school, Cristina pushed Theresa to the door. Theresa was changing shoes at the entrance. Seeing that mother was leaving, Leonard hurried ran over, "Mommy."

Leonard was more reserved than Ben. When they were doing live stream, he would usually sit by Ben and rarely speak. Even though, many fans liked him because they thought Leonard looked cool. Seeing that Theresa was leaving, he also wanted to go out. Theresa looked at Leonard and stroked his head. She comforted him, "Stay home with sister Christina. Mommy will return soon!"

"Sister Christina? Theresa, you want to be my senior!"

"It was you said that Ms. Lagarde made you sound a bit too old for your actual age." Theresa giggled as she saw Cristina's reaction. It was Saturday and Cristina didn't have to work. She came to help Theresa look after the boys. Theresa thought that she was blessed with this friend. If it wasn't for Cristina, she didn't know how to get over her plight after labor. No one except Cristina cared about her.

They would bicker from time to time, but Theresa had actually regarded Cristina as her best friend. After coming out from her home, Theresa stood by the road side. What happened in the past four year flashed through her mind and she let out a tolerant sigh. She then halted a taxi. Then, she went straight to the Calsis's Residence. She entered through gate number two, and Brenda came to meet her. Brenda looked at Theresa and asked, "Are you the friend of Cristina?"

Theresa nodded.

"Yes. Greetings, Mrs. Lagarde." Brenda was Cristina's aunt. She had been working as a servant for the Calsis. It was she who introduced Theresa to the Calsis. Brenda looked at Theresa and told her the Calsis's situation, "Our Master Calsis had a car accident two years ago. His legs weren't in good condition and he wants an acupuncturist to see whether acupuncture would be of some help. Christina told me about you so I called you over, "Thank you, Mrs. Lagarde."

"You're welcome. Let's get in." Brenda took Theresa upstairs. Calsis's Residence was much bigger than Theresa had imagined. She followed Brenda upstairs and met Mr. Calsis's assistant Jonathan Gay. After checking Theresa's credentials as an acupuncturist, he let her in.

"Master Calsis." Jonathan introduced, "The appointed acupuncturist is here." Theresa stood by Jonathan and she looked up at inside the room. She found Master Calsis sitting on a wheelchair by the window. A blanket wrapped his laps. When she heard Jonathan addressed this man Master Calsis, she thought that the man must be old. But Master Calsis turned out to be a young man, which surprised Theresa.

The man made her think of her babies at home as he look so familiar to Leonard and Ben. They were as alike as three peas!

Chapter 3

Chapter 003 Jerk in Calsis's Residence

Charlie Calsis saw the acupuncturist standing at the door blankly and he broke the silence, "What's your name?" His voice was attractive but also reverential and dignified. Theresa lowered her head. She thought that she was being impolite when she stared blankly at him. She answered, "I am Theresa Cameron. It is my name card."

"Dr. Cameron, you may begin." Said Charlie in a low and calm voice. He took her name card but he didn't read it. Theresa cast him a glance and put her kit on the ground. She wasn't an acupuncturist at first. When she was pregnant with Leonard and Ben, she quit her job and planned to take care of the children at home whole-heartedly. After the boys were born, she apprenticed herself with Leo, who was the grandfather of a friend of Cristina.

Later, Leo found Theresa talented in acupuncture and passed on all his knowledge on acupuncture to her. Leo could be considered as an authority on acupuncture. Many people trusted in his skills. But he was getting older and didn't have that much of energy to treat as many people. It wasn't the first time that Theresa had done acupuncture, but she was extremely nervous today, especially when Charlie's assistant Jonathan was still staring at her as if she was to hurt Charlie. Fortunately, the treatment rounded off. Theresa finally breathed a sigh of relief. While putting away her things, she said, "It's best to keep the length of one acupuncture around half an hour. I will come again in the evening. When I inserted the needle in, I found Mr. Calsis's muscle is very taut. It is probably because the muscle has not yet completely recovered from its injuries caused by the car accident. Keep the acupuncture for a week, and it should get better."

"Get better?" Said Jonathan who was standing aside. He looked at Theresa in disbelief and doubted whether she was talking nonsense.

"You mean that it is possible that Mr. Calsis's legs will recover?" Theresa asked in confusion, "Didn't you ask me to come here to help Mr. Calsis restore his health?"

Jonathan heard her words and showed joy on his face. He cast Master Calsis a glance surprisingly and continued to speak to Theresa, "If Mr. Calsis truly recovers, we will thank you." Jonathan was taking a helpless attempt to cure Master Calsis. But he didn't expect that luck actually came to them. He just hoped that this Dr. Cameron wasn't boasting for better pay.

Theresa came out of Charlie's room and Brenda was waiting for her at the door. Brenda led Theresa downstairs and asked, "Have you had breakfast? You can have some before leaving." "I'm good." Said Theresa, "Cristina is waiting for me. I gotta go. I'll come back later."

"It's troublesome to run around like this, isn't it?" "It's okay. It's Saturday today. And the traffic is fine." Theresa was not at ease when she thought of her boys. Brenda said, "Alright."

It was the first time she had come to the Calsis's Residence and she was not familiar with this place. The taxi driver dropped her at the backdoor and now Brenda was leading her towards the front gate. Just as they walked into the yard, they saw a couple walking in from outside. It was Theresa's ex-husband Jimmy and Jimmy's newly-wedded wife, Rose. Rose held Jimmy's arm, and Jimmy helped her carry her handbag. As they were newlyweds, they looked extremely affectionate to each other. Theresa had been completely disappointed at this man. Seeing this, she just felt it ironic. She only regretted that she didn't get the ownership of the house when she divorced him. She had just given birth to two children at that time. She was in poor health and had no energy to fight over properties with him. Jimmy had kept the materials to prove her artificial insemination. After their quarrel, he hid all the materials, so that no one would believe Theresa's words. Everyone thought that her story of artificial insemination was to smother her wantonness.

After the divorce, he ruined her reputation by saying that they divorced because she cheated on him. And their friends actually believed him! Many even blacklisted her. Jimmy got married yesterday and he and his wife Rose were visiting Rose's grandfather. He didn't expect to run into Theresa at this place. After seeing Theresa, his face darkened. What is this woman doing here? Is she taking her revenge after she knew I am marrying Rose? His new wife had a great family background. If Theresa dared to ruin his marriage, he would also make her pay! Brenda saw the couple coming in and welcomed, "Welcome, Mrs. and Mr. Waston."

Rose replied, "Greeting, Brenda." Rose seemed to be a typical young lady from a wealthy family. Her gaze fell on Theresa, and she found Theresa staring at Jimmy.

Jimmy was handsome and many women in his company had a crush on him for his ability and appearance. But Rose wasn't mad at Theresa when she found Theresa staring at Jimmy. Many women covet her husband, but Jimmy would love her only. As for Brenda, Jimmy wouldn't possibly fall in love with a servant. Rose was confident in herself. She looked at Theresa and asked Brenda, "Is this the new maid Uncle Charlie hired?"

Brenda introduced Theresa to them, "This is Dr. Cameron. She came to apply for Master Calsis's acupuncturist." "I see!" Rose didn't know too much about the people coming to the residence as Uncle Charlie became physically challenged and many would have to come to the residence to see him. She couldn't recognize every one of them. "Acupuncturist?" Jimmy looked at Theresa in surprise. When did she become an acupuncturist? Rose heard Jimmy's voice in surprise and looked towards her husband. She asked, "Honey, what's wrong?" Jimmy showed some displeasure in his eyes and said to Brenda, "Are you sure she is reliable? Don't bring anyone into the house. She wouldn't afford to hurt Uncle Charlie." I got married yesterday and she comes to apply for a job here? Theresa had been asking Jimmy to transfer the house to her, and she caused quite a lot trouble for him. Jimmy wouldn't believe that Theresa came merely to be an acupuncturist. He was sure that Theresa came to cause more trouble for him. As he guessed so, he showed less politeness to Theresa. Rose had thought Jimmy to be a gentle and refined person. He was polite to servants at home. But she was surprised to see him being so harsh to Theresa. She tried to calm Jimmy down. "Honey, she needs to earn herself a living. Don't say that." "Rose, you're being too kind. There are many frauds. Do you think she looks a bit like an acupuncturist?" He had known Theresa for a long time and Theresa had never been anything close to an acupuncturist You don't want to fool me, Theresa Cameron!

Theresa looked at Jimmy and felt that he acted as if she owned him a huge amount of money. He had been against her since the moment he appeared. If she didn't know what happened in these years, she would believe that she really owned him something. She made an ironic laugh. Jimmy looked at her and asked, "What're you laughing at? You think I'm wrong?"

"No, Mr. Watson is right. Mrs. Waston, you're still young. You should know that there are many lairs who are not only swindlers and abductors, but also cheaters who would not only hurt your pretty purse but also your feelings. You'd better be careful."

Chapter 4

Chapter 004 He Made Her Bankrupt in Reputation

Rose looked like an innocent girl who knew nothing about Jimmy's kind. Theresa even felt something on Rose familiar to the Theresa four years ago who was completely fooled by Jimmy. Hearing Heresa's words, Jimmy darkened his face.. Is this bitch threatening me? GOOD!

Rose didn't understand the implication in Theresa's words. She just said to Jimmy, "Let's go in. Grandma is waiting!"

She didn't want to waste time on an irrelevant person.

Jimmy followed Rose inside the house.

Brenda heard their conversation and cast a glance at Theresa. She said, "Well, you go back then." "Okay."

At six in the afternoon, after Theresa had dinner with Cristina and her boys, she went back to Calsis's residence. She had reckoned that Jimmy and his wife should have left. However, as she entered the yard, she saw Jimmy.

Seeing her coming again, Jimmy thought that Theresa was out of her mind. He walked over directly, grabbed her arm, and dragged her behind the rockery, "Bitch, are you crazy?" Theresa was hurt by Jimmy. She looked at the man and almost believed that she was kidnapped by a .. bandit. She struggled and cried, "Are you fucking crazy?". As a woman, she wasn't at physical advantage. Moreover, she was more sensitive to pain. Jimmy's movements made her extremely painful. It was the first time that Jimmy had heard Theresa swear. He was stunned for seconds. He then glared at Theresa and and said in contempt, "Theresa, you have depraved yourself. You can even speak dirty words."

His words made Theresa feel ridiculous.

She looked at the man and said, "I spoke. So what? It was you who turned into who I am now. Should you be proud of yourself? By the way, congratulations, Mr. Waston. You're now the son-in-law of the Chairman of the Nandlall's Group. If you didn't dump me, you wouldn't get your butt in this position. Am I right?" She suffered pregnancy and labor, and bore the bucks longer than the time she bore her boys in her belly. And she had to be a courteous lady after all the unfairness? When Jimmy heard her mention the pass, he defended himself, "It was you who refused to abort the children. I persuaded you and gave you the chance. It had nothing to do with me! Don't drag me in!" "So, this could justify how you and your family keep saying that I cheated on you? And how you defamed me like that?" Jimmy answered, "I didn't say you cheated on me!" "Yeah, you didn't say it. You merely acquiesced in it and made no clarification!" Theresa looked at him and wanted to cut him into pieces. It was true that he didn't say that she cheated on him, but he just allowed the rumors that she was a wanton to be spread by his families. His negative silence made her bankrupt in reputation and she was looked down upon by everyone. Jimmy said, "Get out of here now! I warn you, if you dare to cause me to divorce Rose, I won't make things easy for you." "What? Afraid?" Theresa mocked, "Then give me my house. You own me that! That's nothing to you! But My babies and I need to live in it."

Theresa was living in a rented house with her boys. The rent would cost her a lot. If she managed to get the house, she could make life easier. She really hated the man who would even rob the house from her Jimmy said, "No!"

Though he didn't need the house, he would be confirming Theresa's words and become the jerk if he gave the house to Theresa. Also, he would be unable to explain to Rose! Theresa warned, "Fine. Then you will divorce with your newly-wed sweetheart! I'm not living well. Neither will you!" She pushed him away and was about to go inside. She needed to do acupuncture for Mr. Calsis. Seeing Theresa walking inside, Jimmy thought that she was going to tell the seniors of the Calsis about their past.

Rose's grandparent didn't like him as Rose's husband because he had married once and didn't have a . family background. If Theresa went in and let out his past, he would be in trouble! He rushed towards Theresa and stopped her, "You can't go in." "Let go!" Jimmy grabbed her arms and dragged her towards outside. He roared, "I know you're here to make things difficult for me You are being an acupuncturist for the Calsis? Stop daydreaming! You want the house, do you? I'll give it to you! Why do you have to pester me like this?" He had to admit that she had her connections and some guts or she wouldn't be able to come to the Calsis's residence. Though she would definitely be sifted out as a fake acupuncturist, Jimmy couldn't risk her appearing in front of anyone of the Calsis family. Theresa couldn't believe that he actually agreed to give her the house.

But she didn't come here for him or the house.

She was dragged out by Jimmy and her struggles were in vain. When she was feeling desperate, she heard a cold voice saying, "Dr. Cameron." Theresa stopped struggling and Jimmy loosened his grip on her. It was in the Calsis's residence. Jimmy didn't want to be seen having too much body contact with Theresa.

Theresa raised her head and found Jonathan standing not far away. Jonathan said, "Brenda is busy now. She didn't see you coming in, so she asked me to come out and see whether you're doing well." Theresa's words in the morning made Jonathan expect to see what her acupuncture skill could do. That was why he came out to meet Theresa in person. Jimmy recognized Jonathan to be Charlie's assistant. Rose's father, Pat Nandlall, was adopted by the Calsis family. Pat would call Robert and Leticia Calsis father and mother, but he had no blood relation with them.

Pat's parents were good friends of the Calsis. After Pat's parents passed away in an accident, he was raised by Robert and Leticia. Therefore, though Pat was supported by the Calsis, he didn't have the right of inheritance. After all, the Calsis had male offspring. Their second son was in the army and he seldom came home. Robert and Leticia had retired years ago and Charlie was in charge. All the Calsis's business was in the charge of Charlie. But rumor said that Charlie broke both his legs in a car accident two years ago... Jimmy came today to let Rose introduce him to the Calsis so that he could have one more backer. However, he only managed to look at Charlie from a distance, and didn't have a word with Charlie. As he saw Jonathan, he immediately produced a polite smile. He had a round-about change from his hideous look when he dragged Theresa. He said, "Greeting, Jonathan." Jonathan cast Jimmy a glance and didn't answer. He was totally focused on Master Calsis's thing. He said to Theresa, "Hurry up and go in."

After saying, he left. Jonathan should come to invite Theresa to go inside all by himself but ignored Jimmy. Jimmy was panicked... He cast Theresa a glance and asked, "What does he want you to do?" Theresa answered coldly, "None of your business." Seeing his coldness, Jimmy felt more panicked. However, he could do nothing but threatened, "If you dare to speak one sentence, then don't blame me for being ruthless!" Theresa shrugged and tidied her clothes. She then answered, "I'm expecting." She wanted to see how ruthless Jimmy could be! After saying, she followed Jonathan into the house.

Chapter 5

Chapter 005 Don't Fall Love with Me

Rose was chatting with Leticia. When she saw Jimmy coming in, she said gently, "You are back! Where have you been?" Jimmy sat down beside her and said softly, "Just took a walk outside." Rose smiled and continued chatting with Leticia, "How is Uncle Charlie recently? I heard that he wants to hire an acupuncturist?" Leticia replied, "His legs are hopeless. But the doctor suggested that we find him an acupuncturist. Make every possible effort!"

On mentioning Charlie's legs, Leticia sighed.

Rose held her hand and comforted, "Grandma, don't worry, Uncle Charlie will get better. I'll say hello to Uncle Charlie."

Rose was the eldest child of her generation in the family. Ever since she was born, she was spoiled by the whole Calsis family, especially Charlie, who used to dote on her. However, in the past two years, he closed himself from the outside world for his broken legs. That was why he even absent from Rose's wedding ceremony. Rose wanted Jimmy to meet Uncle Charlie.

"Okay, go." Rose stood up and took Jimmy upstairs. They went directly to Charlie's room. Theresa was preparing to have acupuncture for Charlie, She tried to calm herself down from her encounter with Jimmy I can't... can't let that scumbag affect my work. She tried to be composed when she suddenly heard a knock on the door. Jonathan opened the door and said, "Mrs. Watson."

Rose and Jimmy appeared at the door. Rose walked in and saw Theresa standing there at first sight. She was surprised, "Ah, she is also here!"

Jonathan glanced at Theresa and asked Rose, "What, you know each other?"

Rose said, "I met her in the yard when I came over in the morning. I heard that she came to apply for the acupuncturist. You've hired her already?"

Jonathan answered, "Yes. And Dr. Cameron will do acupuncture for Master Calsis from today on." Rose asked, "She really can cure Uncle Charlie's legs? Yeah!"

Theresa looked at Rose and smiled. Rose looked innocent. And she suddenly felt that Rose was like her daughter.

It's a shame that such a cute girl was to be ruined by this Scumbag Jimmy Waston. Jimmy was skeptical about Theresa's ability. He said, "What are you thinking? She? Cure Uncle Charlie?"

The disdain in his tone couldn't be more obvious. He didn't know other acupuncturists, but he knew Theresa. He could bet that Theresa came to earn some easy money and take her revenge at him. He wouldn't believe that Theresa could really cure Charlie's legs.

Rose snorted, "You are so mean again!"

Jimmy said to Charlie, "Greetings, Uncle Charlie."

Charlie looked at the couple and asked, "What are you two doing here?"

He grew fond of tranquility and quietness recently, and he hated noise extremely. Therefore, he didn't even want to go downstairs to have meal.

Rose replied, "Of course we came to see you. You didn't attend my wedding ceremony. And I can't pay you a visit?"

Charlie shot Rose a glance and said, "You can. Get out if you think you've visited enough!" Rose held Jimmy's hand and introduced him to Charlie, "Uncle Charlie, it is Jimmy, my husband. He is doing great in the company! And he is nice to me." She knew that Jimmy wanted to get himself acquainted with Charlie, so she deliberately mentioned Jimmy to Charlie again. Charlie glanced at Jimmy and showed little interest to this man. He said, "I know. You've mentioned him many times!" Ever since Jimmy started dating Rose, Rose had been putting good words for Jimmy in front of Charlie.

She was naive, and she wouldn't judge men or things from all aspects. Charlie didn't think Jimmy as nice as he appeared to be. But, as long as Rose liked this guy, he didn't want to be a garrulous uncle. Rose pouted. And Jimmy took the initiative to say, "Uncle Charlie, I happen to know some renowned acupuncturists. I can introduce them to you. We'd better find some experienced acupuncturists. Those unskilled acupuncturists wouldn't be of any help and might cause trouble."

After saying, he intentionally looked at Theresa.

Theresa darkened her face.

The villain brought suit against his victim. Is this scumbag so afraid of me? The rumors made her infamous. She had lost too many jobs for that in recent years. Even so, he still wanted to ruin her. Charlie looked at Theresa and then at Jimmy, and said, "No, thanks. She is good."

Jimmy continued, "She doesn't look like a good acupuncturist. I guess she doesn't even have certificate."

Theresa produced a bitter laugh. She felt ironically flattered that Jimmy tried his best to tarnish her. She showed Jimmy her certificate and said, "Mr. Waston, do you want to check it carefully?"

Rose took the paper and cast a glance at it. The certificate really surprised Jimmy. He didn't expected Theresa to be so well-prepared that she even got herself a fake certificate. He snatched the certificate and looked at it. He then satirized, "Where did you forge it? It looks quite authentic."

Theresa gritted her teeth. "Check online to see if it's fake! Mr. Waston, you seem to be a bit afraid of me. Do you fear the fact that I am doing acupuncture for Mr. Calsis? Or are you afraid that some shady business you did would be found out?. Am I right?"

I also know how to acid and ironic! For me, the worst was that I will have to find myself a new job. However, if the Calsis got to know about Theresa and Jimmy's past, especially the Jimmy's version of the story, what would they think of her? Timmy looked at Theresa and said, "You might get yourself into troubles for wronging people. You be careful."

Rose watched the whole quarrel, and she tried to mediate, "Jim, why are you being so unkind?" She didn't know why Jimmy was being so mean to Theresa. She had felt that something was wrong with Jimmy in the morning when they met the acupuncturist. Jimmy replied, "I'm just worrying about Uncle Charlie's health."

Charlie was sitting aside and he ended the quarrel. "I know best about my health. You may go out!" jimmy said, "Please do take care of yourself." After speaking politely to Charlie, Jimmy raised his head and cast Theresa a lofty glance. Then, he followed Rose out of the room.

After Jimmy had gone out and Jonathan had closed the door, Theresa finally came back to herself and found that she had been clenching her fists so tightly. "Can we get started, Dr. Cameron?" Reminded Charlie as he found that Theresa stood blankly aside and seemed to be daydreaming. Theresa came back to herself and turned to Charlie. She said, "Please wait a moment."

She took out the needles and sterilized them. Then, she began giving Charlie acupuncture treatment. She didn't know why she somehow felt Charlie a nice person. Perhaps it was because he took after Leonard and Ben... or perhaps it was because he didn't believe Jimmy's evil speaking. Jimmy was contemporarily Rose's husband, which made him Charlie's relative. She almost thought that Charlie would fire her and find a new acupuncturist. Charlie felt Theresa locked her gaze on him. He finally raised his head and looked at Theresa.

"What? You an acquaintance with my niece-in-law?"

Chapter 6

Chapter 006 He Could Barely Stand

Theresa hurriedly denied, "No, no!" Seeing that Theresa was speaking with hesitation, Charlie said, "If their appearance affected your state of mind, you could go outside and calm yourself down in case of any mistakes during the treatment." He didn't want her to make his legs completely incurable! Theresa heard his words and replied, "Don't worry. There won't be any mistakes. But, Mr. Calsis, I'd like to thank you for what you did just now."

"Me?"

Theresa said, "Thank you for not driving me away after others' nonsense." Charlie captured the gratitude in Theresa's eyes. He looked away and spoke coldly, "I just hate trouble. It's too troublesome to hire a new one. As for you... if you're really useless as that Jimmy guy said, I will fire you. Don't worry about that! Don't fall in love with me for that! I have an extremely high standard for my other half. You won't be able to meet that standard."

Theresa was dumbfounded by his words full of narcissism. Fall in love with you? How did you come to that? And that last sentence is so mean. To avoid him from thinking too much, Theresa clarified herself, "Please rest assured, Mr. Calsis. I came to treat you for and only for a little sum of your money as my hard-won salary. I'm not interested in anything else."

Charlie replied, "Good." With his status and power, he was a perfect husband for too many women. Seeing the confident and aloof expression on Charlie's face, Theresa was speechless. Jonathan had come back from bringing Mr. and Mrs. Waston out. He asked as he saw that Theresa didn't get started, "Can you get started?" Theresa was ready.

"Yes, I can." Charlie had been paralyzed from his hips down for a long time. He had long been able to having any feelings on his legs. However, when Theresa was giving him acupuncture treatment, he felt a faint ache on his legs. Theresa asked, "Do you feel the little pain?" Charlie was surprised by the effect of her skills. Hearing her words, he nodded. Theresa continued, "That's good. It proved that I was right. The leg nerves haven't been completely dead. I will come here every day for the next week. We will see each other very frequently then, Mr. Calsis."

Looking at Theresa, he felt that her appearance brought him a glimmer of hope. He was also in a much better mood, and seeing Theresa was about to go out, he ordered, "Jonathan, give Dr. Cameron a ride." Jonathan nodded:

He followed Theresa downstairs and was to drive her home personally. It was difficult to get a taxi near the Calsis's Residence, so Theresa didn't refuse.

They got in the car and after Theresa told Jonathan her address, Jonathan drove her home.

When they reached Theresa's apartment, Jonathan said, "Dr. Cameron, we've arrived."

Theresa said, "Thank you, Jonathan."

She opened the car door and got off the car. As Jonathan saw that Theresa was off, he decided to leave.

Suddenly, he caught sight of a man standing at the gate of the apartment. It was Jimmy.

How could Jimmy Waston come to Theresa's place in this middle of the night?

Do they know each other? Jonathan saw how Jimmy tried to humiliate Theresa in front of Master Calsis, and, as he saw Jimmy now, he suddenly realized that there was some personal grudge between Jimmy and Theresa.

Theresa also saw Jimmy.

She darkened her face and said scathingly, "Oh, isn't it Mr. Waston who had been avoiding me? It's harder to see you paying me a visit than see a pig flying."

Jimmy also darkened his face. The fact that he was to meet this woman often in the Calsis's residence made him feel creepy.

He looked at Theresa and asked, "When did you become an acupuncturist? Why didn't I know?"

"Do I need to write reports to you?" Theresa gave him a cold glare. Jimmy's harsh words at the Calsis's residence occurred to her and she continued satirizing, "And, I thought you were confident when you told Mr. Calsis that I am a liar, that my certificate is forged."

Jimmy looked at her and felt it ridiculous that Charlie should have hired this woman. He sneered, "Acupuncturist? You? Calsis could find better acupuncturists. They don't need you! I see. You managed to approach Charlie with your pretty face, didn't you? That Mr. Charlie Calsis is a cripple. He could barely stand! And even so, you are throwing yourself on him? You really have become a shameless woman!" Jimmy somehow felt jealous when he saw Theresa doing acupuncture for another man, and that she might see or even have contact with another man's body! Maybe it was men's nature. Even if they had divorced, he still wanted her to be loyal to him. Theresa laughed.

"He? Cripple? Better than you, I suppose! Jimmy boy, I don't think your little thing could put you in a position to make such slanderous remarks on others?" Theresa suddenly felt that she must have been crazy that she should get over with such a thing as sexual dysfunction.

What was the result of her endurance? He ruined her life, her everything!

Thinking of which, she didn't want to give any face to Jimmy. She knew that Jimmy would take offense at this and she deliberately said so to exasperate him. Hearing Theresa's sarcasm, Jimmy felt more furious. He had been cured. However, his past impotence was an indelible shame. What's more... Theresa was the only person who knew about his dysfunction.

He was somehow unconfident in front of her. He said, "I've been cured."

"Is that so?" Theresa looked at him suspiciously.

Her gaze full of doubts made Jimmy extremely uncomfortable. He said, "Why are you staring me like that? I tell you. I didn't feel the desire because you are not attractive at all! "I am good when I'm with Rose. That was all your problem. I see. Charlie is crippled and he couldn't fuck. That is why he took fancy to you! I came to tell you. You can stay in the Calsis as you like. But you will have to shut your mouth!! you ever try to ruin my things, neither of us will get away with it! Theresa sneered, "What? Are you afraid that they might find out that I am your ex-wife?"

Jimmy defended himself, "I'm not. I just don't want to be involved with your kind! Understand?"

"My kind?" Theresa sneered, "How you knelt before my father, begging him to marry me to you. You forgot? And how you knelt before me, crying and begging me to accept you. You also forgot? I was pregnant for you. For seven months, I gained weight, I became bad-looking... Tell me, what is my kind?"

"Jimmy Waston, I know you hooked up with Rose, and you are doing great in the company. So, you think you're superior to me? You're nothing but a piece of shit who gets everything by hooking up with ladies from higher classes. As your ex-wife, I should be the one to feel ashamed. Do you understand?"

"What did you say?" Jimmy suddenly became fierce and squeezed Theresa's neck. Apparently, Theresa's words made a blow to him. He hated her so much that he wanted her to vanish from this world as he knew that she knew all his secret and his unbearable past.

Chapter 7

Chapter 007 Other Intentions

Theresa didn't struggle to free her throat. She continued infuriating him, "My words didn't make you what you are. You made yourself! You wanna choke me? Fine! But that will not make you something better. And I will haunt you after I become a ghost!"

Theresa looked at Jimmy, and her eyes unwittingly became moist. No one knew how she got through all these years. If it wasn't for her boys, for Cristina... she must have died.

Jimmy stared at her bloodshot eyes and was stunned. He then let go of her and wiped his hands with his handkerchief as if he thought she was dirty. He looked aloof. In his eyes, he was superior to Theresa. He warned, "As long as you don't mention our past in the Calsis, we will stay cool. But if you let out a word, you will go to hell with me!" After saying, Jimmy jumped into his car and drove away. In the darkness of the night, Theresa felt a breeze. But the breeze brought her chill.

It was summer.

She became more and more susceptible to coldness after giving birth to her boys. She rubbed her hands and walked into the apartment building. She took out her phone and checked. The latest message was sent by her stepmother Leah Cameron.

"Theresa, your father fell ill and is now in hospital. Pay him a visit someday."

After she divorced Jimmy and gave birth to her boys, she hadn't gone home once. Father didn't want to see her or talk to her. However, when she heard that father was ill, she was still worried. Theresa's mother passed away when she was little and it was father who painstakingly raised her up. When she saw the message, she hurriedly texted to see father's condition. (How is he?)

[He's in Victoria Hospital. Pay him a visit when you're free.]

Leah was Sarah's mother. Leah married Johnson after Theresa's biological mother passed away. She was with Sarah when she married Johnson. And Theresa didn't call Leah mom but by her name. Theresa replied, (Okay. I'll be there tomorrow.) She wondered whether father was willing to see her. Father thought that Ben and Leonard were bastards. He felt ashamed for Theresa and refused to forgive her.

As Theresa opened the door, she saw her boys both standing at the entrance. One brought her slippers and another brought a cup of water. They were both attentive. Theresa looked at the little fellows and said, "Alright, mom got this."

"No." Cried Leonard, "Mom is tired for working. Leonard could be of some help." Ben brought water to Theresa. Before handing the water to mother, he even took a sip.

"It's not hot at all."

Cristina was lying on the sofa playing a mobile game. Seeing the scene, she said enviously, "Your sons are so nice to you. Sweet little boys. I wonder how happy you will be when they are big boys." Theresa also felt much better at the sight of her boys.

Though she had been through lots of unpleasant things, God seemed to be making it up for her through her boys.

However, when she looked at the two little fellows, Charlie's face somehow occurred to her.

Theresa left early the next morning. Before going to the Calsis's Residence, she went to the hospital.

Before she entered Johnson's ward, she heard an emotionless and serious male voice coming from inside. "Due date has passed. Where is Sarah Cameron?"

Leah said tremblingly, "Mr. Gay, I don't know where Sarah is either. My husband is sick again now. Could you please give us a couple of days' grace?" Jonathan looked at the woman indifferently. He felt that she was buying time and that she didn't plan to tell him where her daughter was. "How much time do you want to buy from me? I only need Sarah Cameron's address. You hid her well. If you don't tell me where she is, bankruptcy awaits you, Cameron!"

Leah pleaded, "You just want a wife for Master Calsis, right? Actually...we have another daughter. She is very good-looking and well-educated. She'll come over soon. You can take a look. If you're satisfied, let her marry Master Calsis in place of Sarah. What say you?" Leah wouldn't marry her daughter to a cripple.

Theresa stood by the door and heard Leah's words. She frowned.

She came to visit father. But it seemed that Leah had other intentions. To let me take Sarah's place? Theresa had a little memory about Sarah's fiancé.

The two families' grandfathers agreed on a marriage between the grandchildren of the two families. Later, when Theresa married Jimmy, the child to be married became Sarah. When Theresa divorced Jimmy, Sarah boasted in full complacency in front of Theresa that she was going to become the madam of a wealthy family. But something seemed to have happened to the bridegroom and Sarah ran away. And my stepmother wants me to take Sarah's place? What am I in her eyes?

Theresa now knew why Leah informed her of father's illness.

Hearing Leah's words, Jonathan sneered, "Mr. Careron, isn't your other daughter divorced? You want a divorced woman to marry our Master Calsis? Our Master Calsis wouldn't marry a divorced woman even if he is now having some difficulty with his legs." He insisted on finding Sarah because he thought Sarah dishonest, and he was mad... Jonathan said, "Since you can't find your daughter, then you will find yourselves bankrupt."

After saying, Jonathan walked out of the ward. Two men in black was following him, which made the scene a bit frightening. Leah followed behind Jonathan with an attempt to stop him. "Mr. Jonathan. We could talk...". As they got out, Jonathan ran into Theresa who was standing by the door. He was surprised. "Dr. Cameron." As if Theresa was a savior, Leah said to Theresa, "Theresa, you're finally here!" Theresa looked at her stepmother and sneered, "Since when did Mrs. Cameron become so eager to see me?" Seeing that Theresa was being ironic, Theresa was blue in the face. Jonathan looked at Theresa surprisingly. "Are you Mr. Cameron's daughter?" Theresa didn't deny it, "Yes, I am the divorced woman you were talking about." She didn't think her divorce had anything to do with others and she disliked it to be talked behind her back Hearing Theresa's words, Jonathan was embarrassed. "I'm sorry. I didn't know it was you." How could he possibly know that Theresa should be Johnson's daughter! "It's okay, we don't know each other very well anyway." Theresa walked into the ward after she was done speaking Leah's voice came from behind Theresa, "Theresa, don't talk to Mr. Gay like that! That's too rude." Theresa ignored them and went directly towards her father. Leah feared that Theresa's words might infuriate Jonathan, and she flattered, "Mr. Gay, please take no offense. It's not her normal self. My Theresa had been a good girl since her childhood. She is much better than Sarah." Just as Theresa sat down beside Johnson, she heard Leah's words, which was somewhat ridiculous to her. In order to make Jonathan agree to let Theresa marry Charlie, Leah even began putting in good word for her. Pigs can fly now! Jonathan cast a glance at Leah and said, "Don't even think about it."

Chapter 8

Chapter 008 Marry in Sarah's Place

Charlie could find much better woman than Sarah. To the Calsis, it wasn't about marriage at all. It was about Sarah's breaking promises. How dare she escape marriage only because Master Calsis was injured! Jonathan would not lei her go easily. Since he couldn't find Sarah, he would have to make the Camerons pay.

Johnson woke up on the hospital bed. Upon seeing Theresa, he immediately pulled a long face and asked, "Why are you here?"

"Dad." Theresa looked at Johnson and found that her father was aging so fast. His hair became gray in the past two years. She had thrown all Leah's tricks behind, and she asked with concern, "Are you feeling well?" Johnson said coldly, "Get out." Jonathan had left and Leah came back in. She said to Johnson, "John, Theresa finally came to visit you. Don't be like that. You've been quarreling for so many years. It's time for you two to make peace. It's not all Theresa's fault that they divorced. Jimmy is also responsible for that. If he had been nice to Theresa, how would she..."

Theresa should be relaxing the tension between Theresa and Johnson. Theresa almost thought that she misheard. Sarah and Leah had made great efforts to alienate Johnson from Theresa for all those years. Theresa sneered, "It's been a while and, Leah, you welcomed an all-around change. I even began doubting whether you the the real Leah?" In the past, Leah would have refuted. However, she needed Theresa to marry the cripple of the Calsis in Sarah's place, and she couldn't offend Theresa. Leah pretended to be in a dilemma and said to Theresa, "Theresa, the person came just now, you saw him. He is from the Calsis. They are trying to ruin us. They threatened to make us bankrupt." Theresa said, "I wasn't deaf. I heard from your conversation that they came to make you tell them where Sarah is. If you are truly wishing the best for our family, you'd better give Sarah to them! If it wasn't for my father, you think your daughter could become Charlie Calsis's fiancée? And now you see that he is disabled, you betrayed your promises. If I were Charlie, I would also make you pay."

When Charlie was a healthy man, Leah put so many good words for Sarah in front of Johnson to make Sarah Charlie's fiancée. After Charlie suffered the car accident, Sarah disliked Charlie because he was disabled and she ran away. That was why the Calsis was so eager to take their revenge at the Cameron that they even decided to make the Cameron bankrupt. Theresa didn't think she should take the responsibility? Leah darkened her face and pretended to be innocent.

"I also want to give Sarah to them. But I don't know where she is hiding. I can't help it. Theresa, please, marry Charlie Calsis, okay? "As long as you become Mrs. Calsis, we will not be bankrupt. And your father doesn't have to worry about the Calsis, and he could focus on regaining his health. Do you know that he fell ill because of the Calsis's threats?"

As Leah spoke, she even squeezed out several drops of tears. She knew that Theresa was worried about Johnson and she knew how to take advantage of Theresa's filial piety. Theresa didn't reply. She just looked at the father's gray hair, and a lump came to her throat. She said to Johnson, "Dad, i'll handle it. Don't you worry about it." Johnson heard her words and said, "The Calsis want you to marry Charlie. Are you sure?" Theresa replied, "I could if I have to. I've met him. He seems to be a nice guy."

Just a little narcissistic. Theresa added in her heart. "But he broke his leg. If you marry him, maybe you will have to serve him for the rest of your life." Although he bore a little grudge to Theresa, he was actually reluctant to marry his daughter to a paralyzed man. He wouldn't want to break with his own daughter if she didn't shame the whole family. Leah sensed that her tricks worked. She hurriedly added, "The Calsis is so wealthy! Theresa has married once. It's a good thing if she could marry into the Calsis." In Leah's eyes, Theresa didn't have to right to pick and choose. Theresa looked at Leah and fought back. "Leah, why don't you marry into the Calsis?" Hearing this, Leah was so angry that she wanted to kill Theresa.

"Theresa, what are you talking about? You want me to divorce your dad?".

"You know well what I want."

"John, hear what she said..." Leah pointed at Theresa and was exasperated. But she didn't want to show her arrogance in front of Johnson. She could only pretend to be abused for no reason and said with tears, "It was like I owned you Cameron. I take pains to solve troubles and I am still considered at a wicked witch by you."

Theresa didn't want to waste her breath with Leah, She stood up and said to Johnson, "Dad, I'll take my leave. I'll come again later." After she finished, she went out of the ward. She wanted to halt a taxi, but, when she went to the outside of the hospital, she found Jonathan waiting for her.

She was to treat Charlie anyway, and she carpooled with Jonathan.

Johnson sat on the front passenger seat. He was texting with his phone. Theresa looked at him and asked, "Mr. Gay."

Jonathan looked up at her and replied, "Dr. Cameron, what is it?" "If I find Sarah, will you spare the Cameron?" She hadn't thought about marrying Charlie, and Charlie didn't like her either. And finding Sarah seemed to be a possible option, Jonathan frowned when he heard Theresa mentioning Sarah. He said, "I didn't expect Dr. Cameron to be that Cameron."

His wasn't being as polite to Theresa as he was the day before after he found Theresa to be Sarah's sister. Theresa wasn't stupid. She could sense the contempt in Jonathan's eyes. She replied, "I'm not home these years. I don't quite know what happened in my family. And I'm sorry about the trouble caused by Sarah."

"Sorry won't amend anything." Speaking of which, Jonathan became angry.

"I've never seen such an ungrateful woman. Damn, when Master Calsis was healthy, she wagged her tail like a dog. And she runs faster than any beasts when Master Calsis suffered the accident!" Theresa heard his words in silence. She didn't think it fair that Jonathan vented his anger on her.

Jonathan calmed himself down and coughed to cover his embarrassment. "I know that Dr, Cameron might have nothing to do with it. But I was just so pissed. As for Sarah, Master Calsis will decide whether he will forgive the Cameron or not. I don't know his idea. You may ask him when we get there." Charlie was the one who controlled the life and death of the Camerons. Theresa nodded, "Thanks." Soon, they arrived at the Calsis's residence. Theresa followed Jonathan upstairs to meet Charlie.

Charlie was having a video conference by his desk. When he saw them come in, he ended the conference. Jonathan walked to his side, and greeted, "Master Calsis."

"What's with the Cameron?" Asked Charlie. Jonathan cast a mixed glance at Theresa. He was to speak when Theresa said, "Mr. Calsis, I have something to tell you."

Chapter 9

Chapter 009 Negotiate with Charlie

Charlie landed his gaze on Theresa and said, "Dr. Cameron, I'm listening."

Theresa's treatment recovered consciousness for his legs, and he was being polite to her. Theresa said, "Please forgive the Camerons. My father is getting aged and the Cameron's company is the fruit of his whole life's labor. Please show mercy."

Charlie cast a glance at Jonathan and then at Theresa. He was almost confused.

"Your father?" Jonathan explained, "Dr. Cameron is Mr. Cameron's daughter, and... Sarah's sister."

"Is that so?" Charlie looked at Theresa surprisingly, "You don't look like her."

Charlie didn't really like Sarah. He accepted the marriage because it was his grandfather's wish. He had been close to his grandfather since his boyhood. Grandfather arranged the marriage together with grandfather's comrade-in-arms. As it was grandfather's wish, Charlie didn't refuse.

But Sarah was not a good woman to marry. Anyway, it was a marriage without love. He thought that he could tolerate it. However, after the car accident, Sarah should run away, which made him the butt of joke to the whole city. More than that, Grandfather fell ill because of her running away, and he was still in hospital. He couldn't bear the harm Sarah caused to Grandfather. Theresa said, "Jonathan is right. I'm Johnson's daughter. My father is in hospital right now and he really can't take another blow, so... I hope Mr. Calsis could show mercy to the Camerons."

Hearing her words, Charlie produced a mocking smile. Although he was polite to Theresa, this request crossed the line.

"Why should I listen to you?" "I will try my best to help you with acupuncture and for free. Also, if you really want to get Sarah, I will also find a way to find her and bring her to you." Charlie darkened his face when he heard Theresa's words.

"You won't give Sarah to me. If you will, it wouldn't have taken this long." He was angry because the Cameron refused to bring Sarah to the surface. He kept grandfather's promise and made Sarah his fiancée. But what did the Cameron do in return? Did they have the slightest respect to him?

Theresa explained, "Sarah is not a Cameron. She was with her mother when her mother married into the Cameron. What she did has nothing to do with Cameron." "Oh." Charlie sneered, "You Cameron said that she is one when we were engaging. And now that I become a cripple, you are telling me that she is not a Cameron! Do I look like an idiot to you?"

Theresa stared at Charlie and said, "So, your opinion is that you will ruin the Cameron no matter what? Even if I help you with acupuncture and cure your legs?" "Yes." Charlie didn't deny, "Under no circumstance will you make me change my mind. I am quite a vengeful person. You cannot pay for what Sarah did. I don't believe that you can understand my feeling when my other half ditched me when I run into trouble. If the person you marry is so unreliable, then tell me, who else can I trust in this world?"

Theresa was surprised by his opinion. She didn't expect Charlie to be able to reach such a conclusion.

She smiled. Charlie looked at her and asked, "Why are you smiling?" "I smiled because I think Mr. Calsis is pretty naive. You haven't married Sarah Cameron, and you began expecting her to be reliable? In this world, you might be unable to count on your spouse, let alone fiancée?" Speaking of which, she thought of Jimmy, who she didn't see through until dating him for three years and being his wife for another three years... And her failure to see Jimmy's true color early enough resulted in her current miserable fate. And Charlie, who was powerful enough to do anything he wanted in this city, should be naiver than her. When she spoke, tears welled up in her eyes. The past was like a thorn stuck in his heart. No matter how hard she tried, she couldn't get rid of it. She trusted that man, but he made her suffer so much and made her lose the confidence to trust.

Charlie looked at her. Somehow, he could feel the pain exuded from her eyes. Theresa continued, "Since Mr. Calsis refuse to spare the Cameron, then you will have to excuse me that I couldn't do acupuncture for you." Charlie looked at her in disbelief. He didn't expect that she should be threatening him!

"Dr. Cameron, it seems that you don't have an intelligent understanding of your position. Are you suggesting that you're the only acupuncturist in this world? Let me tell you, others could do what you could." "Then find someone who could. Mr. Calsis, I could not accept to treat a man who would break my family and make my father end up in hospital." After saying, she nodded towards Charlie as a farewell, and then turned towards the door. When she reached the door and was to open it, she heard Charlie saying, "Wait."

Theresa turned her to Charlie.

Charlie said, "I can spare the Cameron." He was not sure whether a new acupuncturist could be of any help. But at least she could. If she could really make him again on his feet, by then, mercy to the Cameron wouldn't seem to be so unacceptable. Theresa came back.

"I am more than glad to do acupuncture for you. Please rest assured. I will try my best to restore your health." As he agreed to spare the Cameron, she was in much better mood. And she could finally speak with ease. Charlie looked at her and continued, "I haven't finished yet. I have conditions."

Theresa looked at him in surprise. Charlie said, "Since Sarah has run away, then you will marry me."

What? Marry him? Is this a joke to ease the tension or something? Theresa looked at Charlie in disbelief.

"But you said yesterday that you have no interest in me. Besides, I'm divorced. I have two kids. Mr. Calsis, it will do you no good." "I didn't say that I am interested in you." Charlie said loftily, "Don't think too high of yourself." His eyes showed contempt, which made Theresa want to punch him in the face. Theresa said, "But I don't want to get married."

"So, you think I don't deserve you? Jonathan, go inform the Cameron of my marriage with Dr. Cameron." He made the decision on the spot. Jonathan persuaded, "Master Calsis, it might be inappropriate. You can find better women. Why do you have to marry her?" "The Cameron owns me!" Seeing that Jonathan and Charlie began weighing and ordering, and had completely ignored her, Theresa felt speechless. She cut in, "I haven't agreed."

Charlie looked at her and said, "You want to help your father without any price? There's no such thing. When we find Sarah, we will let you go." Theresa understood. Charlie was taking her as a hostage. She answered, "I will find Sarah for you. And I don't think marriage is necessary!" I will keep my promise, okay?

"I don't trust any Cameron." Theresa was dumbfounded. He didn't give her any chance to refuse at all. Theresa looked at the man and said, "If you insist on letting me marry you, then so be it. But don't regret it." In fact, Theresa had no worry that Charlie would harin her, or that he would get interested in her. She didn't have anything that could arouse his interest. And, with his background and arrogance, he wouldn't develop any interest in her.

Chapter 10

Chapter 010 Harsh Conditions

Jonathan went out and Theresa did acupuncture in the room for Charlie. The treatment went on smoothly and ended soon. When Theresa began packing her things up, Jonathan came back with a newly- printed file in his hands. Jonathan said to Theresa, "It is the marriage agreement. Have a look."

Theresa glanced at the file and then looked towards Charlie. "I have to sign a contract before I get married?" Charlie replied, "Of course you have to. No one knows whether you will covet the position as Mrs Calsis and refuse to leave when the time comes."

Theresa was dumbfounded. Theresa took the file and flipped through it. The conditions were harsh. To name a few, she would have no rights on the Calsis's properties, and Charlie had the right to leave her not a coin when they were to divorce. And, she would have to find Sarah for Charlie, or he could withdraw his promise and punish the Cameron. Also, he had the right to divorce at anytime, and Theresa shouldn't pester him after that. Moreover, she could not intervene in any affairs of Charlie in the name of his spouse. In short, the core was to prevent Theresa from taking any advantage of Charlie. Theresa looked at the agreement, and felt it was out of reason. She asked Charlie mockingly, "If you are so afraid of my taking advantage of you, why do you have to marry me?" Charlie looked cold. "I've explained. If you Camerons could be a little more trustworthy, I wouldn't have gone this far." He sounded as if he had been greatly wronged. Theresa heaved a sigh. Charlie asked, "What? You think it too harsh?" He looked at Theresa as if she was so eager to become a Mrs. Calsis and enjoy the Calsis's wealth and status. Theresa replied, "I didn't. I can sign."

Theresa didn't think he needed to worry. She didn't want his money and she wouldn't pester him. As for Sarah, she will find this selfish woman. The woman caused so much trouble for the Cameron and shun her responsibilities. Theresa didn't want the Cameron to pay for her selfish doings. Father kept a low profile and did everything carefully in order to cause no trouble all these years. Theresa believed that father didn't expect Sarah would directly run away. Theresa took the pen and signed her name on the agreement.

The agreement was in triplicate. Theresa kept one copy for herself. She put the agreement in her bag and was to go home when Charlie suddenly said, "Have lunch with me this noon. And I will have men from civil affairs bureau here to register the marriage for us." Theresa was worried about her boys. She asked, "May I go home? I will come back later." "What? You think having lunch with me make you feel ashamed?" Charlie looked at her reprovingly. Theresa replied, "Just some family affairs."

Charlie asked, "What's more important than your father's trouble?" Charlie thought, I want to save you some trouble from running around, and, out of my kindness, I invited you to lunch. How dare you refuse me! Theresa said, "You promised that you will spare the Cameron as long as I marry you."

Judging from his words, Theresa felt that she would have to make him her master and couldn't do anything that might displease him. Charlie replied, "Yes I did. But I have told you that I have the right to abort the agreement at any time. Besides... it can't be more normal for a wife to have lunch with her husband." Theresa felt annoyed when Charlie had begun ordering her under the name of husband. He adapted the character husband fast. Theresa didn't want to argue with him and she nodded assent. After all, it was her who needed his mercy. She got out of the room and called Cristina, "I need to take care of something at noon. I can't come back." Cristina asked, "Oh? What is it? Is your father's illness very serious? How is he?"

"He is fine." Said Theresa, "It's something else. How's Leonard and Ben? Put them on the phone." "Good." Said Cristina, "But forget about them. They're on live stream. Don't a distraction." Theresa was speechless. "I just want to hear the voice of my boys. That makes me a distraction?" Cristina joked, "You can see your boys in their live room. They are now big internet celebrities. Not like you." Cristina had a glib tongue. Theresa sometimes thought that her best friend was born to taunt her. Theresa said, "Alright. Then you have lunch by yourself. Order a take-out." Cristina didn't know how to cook, and Theresa wouldn't go back. Cristina and the boys could only order take-outs. Leonard and Ben didn't like takeaway food. They liked Theresa's home-made delicacies. And they wouldn't eat much when they had to eat takeaway food. This was also why Theresa wanted to go home at noon. Cristina said, "I know. We're not infants. You take care. I gotta go. Game's Duty calls."

Cristina hung up soon. Theresa heaved a helpless sigh at the phone. She worried that they might be hungry if she couldn't go back. But now her worries seemed to be needless.

After making the phone call, Theresa went to the living room, and found Leticia sitting on the sofa, watching live stream with her phone and beaming with smiles.

"Madam." Theresa took the initiative to greet Leticia. If she married Charlie, this woman was to be her mother-in-law. Past again occurred to her. When she married Jimmy, she didn't bear children in the first two years of their marriage. Though it was because of Jimmy, Rosales thought that she was infertile and kept finding faults with her. When she saw Leticia, she felt nervous. The relationship between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law had been an eternal problem. Though she knew that her marriage with Charlie would be temporary, she wondered what will Leticia do when she knew about Charlie's decision. Leticia heard Theresa and looked up at Theresa. She said smilingly, "Dr. Cameron. Come. Have a seat."

Theresa sat on the sofa. Leticia started the conversation, "I heard from Jonathan that the treatment is effective. If you could really cure Charlie, I wouldn't know how to express my gratitude to you." Theresa was embarrassed. "Mrs. Calsis, it's so kind of you. It's my pleasure to be able to be of some help to Mr. Charlie Calsis."

Leticia smiled. She didn't lock the screen of her phone. Theresa asked, "You are watching live stream?" "Yes." Leticia shared the screen with Theresa. "See the little boys. They are so cute. I watch them every day, and I wonder when will my Charlie have a child." Theresa cast a glance at the screen and was stunned. On the screen, Leonard was playing a magic cube on the sofa.

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorcement By Jacqueline

Chapter 11

Chapter 011 Dinning at His House When Leonard had a broadcast live, he would not talk much as Ben. He just did something quietly. He even could spell the twelve-order Rubik's Cube quickly now. Theresa had never seen the live broadcast of Leonard and Ben on her mobile phone. She thought the two children were just playing with it. After all, people all loved to have a broadcast live, but few people really watched it. It was just a way to amuse oneself! Unexpectedly, someone really watched it! She glanced at Leticia, and found Leticia was smiling. When she saw Leonard, she smiled happily. Leticia said to Theresa, "Look. He is so powerful. He is so young, but he could spell the twelve-order Rubik's Cube. Even I can't do it." Theresa said awkwardly, "Not bad." It was the basic operations. Theresa watched this at home frequently, so she thought it was normal. Leonard knew a lot of things. Children were naturally proficient in these things, and other children should also know this. Theresa nodded. "Yes." The two children who were having a broadcast live were his children. Leticia said, "You are really blessed. Charlie was not interested in marriage at all, and he only loved working. I hope he can get married and have his child quickly. In this way, I will be busy. The more I looked at these two children, the more I loved them. They looked like Charlie when Charlie was a child." Theresa, "...". Theresa looked at the screen, and she recalled the cold face of Charlie. The two children looked like him now too. They almost had the same nose and mouth. Theresa had an indescribable sense of guilt, and she even wanted to turn off the video. Fortunately, Brenda appeared suddenly, "Mr. Calsis, lunch is ready." Leticia said, "OK, ask Charlie to come down for dinner. Dr. Cameron, let's go to the restaurant first." Theresa nodded. Theresa went to the restaurant with Leticia first, and soon Charlie went downstairs with the help of Jonathan. Only them in the Calsis's Residence were at home. During dinner, Leticia greeted Theresa warmly, "Dr. Cameron, eat more. Just take here as your own house."

Theresa glanced at Charlie, who looked cold, and holded, "Well." Leticia refilled the food for Theresa and said, "Charlie and I usually eat at home. He is so boring, and always wears a cold face Don't be scared by him." Theresa laughed, "No."

It seemed that Leticia understood her son quite well. Hearing his mother's words, Charlie said, "Mom. Do you need to scold me when you meet others?"

Leticia said, "I'm just kidding. I didn't say anything about you. Look at you, Dr. Cameron is having dinner at home, and you still have a bad temper Am I not worried that you are varim, her?"

Charlie glanced at Theresa and did not say anything. Leticia said, "By the way, Your grandpa called just now." Hearing this, Charlie softened his eyesight, "How is he?" "He asked me for things related to your marriage. If you did not have a car accident, you would have been married and had children by now. By the way, didn't Jonathan go to Cameron's Residence today? Was there any news of Sarah?" Charlie said, "No." Leticia said, "In fact, there is nothing good about that woman. You should forget her since she had left you alone. I arranged several blind dates for you, and you can have dinner with them. If the girl is good, just marry her immediately. As for Sarah, although she was engaged to Charlie before, there would be no place for her since she left Charlie alone.

Sarah was good at coaxing others, so Leticia liked her very much. She urged Charlie to marry her. But now, she was a little glad that her son did not marry that woman. Charlie said, "No." Leticia said, "Charlie..." Charlie knew what his mother was trying to say, so he interrupted her. "I've already decided to get married. Someone will come over to do the procedures of getting married in the afternoon." "Huh?" Leticia still wanted to persuade her son. When she heard her son's words, she was shocked, "The procedures of getting married? To who?" Charlie looked at Theresa, "She."

Leticia was shocked, and she looked at Theresa in disbelief. Sensing that Leticia was looking at her, Theresa was also embarrassed. If she had changed her position, she would not have accepted her son marrying a woman who had divorced and had two children! What's more, they just met for a short time.

Fortunately, it was just a short marriage with him. Theresa said, "Mrs. Calsis..." What Charlie said was not clear, and she wanted to explain it clearly. Thus Leticia would know the fact that she was not going to stay with Charlie. But Leticia signed before she said something. Then Leticia said, "That's fine. I didn't have any requests for you, and I wish that you could marry a woman. As long as you want to get married, that's fine."

Theresa, "."

Mrs. Calsis, would you be too casual? Shouldn't you refuse this? Shouldn't you throw a lot of money at me and ask me to stay away with your son?" Why did you agree so quickly? Theresa said, "Mrs. Calsis, in fact, I..." Charlie said immediately, "Actually, she is Johnson's daughter." Hearing this, Leticia looked at Theresa in surprise.

Theresa was embarrassed and said, "Yes, I am a daughter of Cameron's Residence, and Sarah is my sister. However, she came to my family with her mother. I am sorry for what happened before. I will find her as soon as possible, and let her apologize." Seeing that Theresa said seriously, Leticia did not say anything. After lunch, Theresa followed Charlie upstairs from the elevator and into the study. In the study, she said to Charlie, "We are only getting married temporarily. Why don't you tell your mother clearly? She will take it seriously." Charlie said, "I don't want anyone to know about the agreement except Jonathan. I marry you to reassure my family. What else do you think?" "If you really want to reassure your mother, you should find a woman you like to marry. Your mother loves you and hopes you can get married and have a child immediately. Charlie raised his eyebrows and looked at her. "So what? Now we don't get the procedures of getting married, and you already hinted that you wanted to have my child, right?" "... It was so terrible to chat with him! Theresa said, "I'm not interested in you, let alone having a child with you." Did you think you were an emperor? It was really... Now she had Leonard and Ben, and she was satisfied with this! Seeing that Theresa said seriously, Charlie said, "It's no use playing hard to get to me." "Forget it, I don't want to get married." Theresa could not bear it now. Was he overconfident in himself? He always fantasized that others had wild desires for him.

+ 20

Charlie said, "I knew you were no different from Sarah." ".. Theresa gnashed her teeth, and glanced at the man in front of her. Alas... If she hadn't asked him for something, she would slap him heavily.

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorcement By Jacqueline Chapter 12

Chapter 012 Charlie's Grandpa Fortunately, Jonathan came in with the staff of the Civil Affairs Bureau soon, "Master Calsis, we can start now."

The staff helped them with the procedures of getting married, and gave them a marriage certificate. Theresa looked at the photos above, and she didn't expect that she would treat marriage as a trifle one day.

When the procedures were over, Theresa looked at Charlie and asked, "Can I go back now?" "I will go to the hospital to see my grandfather, and you should accompany me." Charlie said. Hearing this, Theresa remembered that Charlie had just talked to his grandfather.

It seemed that Charlie's grandfather was sick of the thing related to Sarah. In terms of the family background, no one in the whole city could be compared to Calsis's Residence. So the two families were not in the same class level. But Charlie's grandpa ignored all of this. In order to fulfill the agreement with the old comrades-in-arms, so he made an engagement with Cameron's Residence, and asked his grandson to marry Cameron's Residence's daughter. But Cameron's Residence did not show any gratitude for this. When Charlie had an accident, Cameron's Residence even did such a bad thing.

Coming out of Calsis's house, Theresa followed Charlie to the hospital. Outside the ward, Jimmy was on the phone. "I am in the hospital now, and I will come back later. Can't you handle such a small thing?" He was here with Rose Nandlall today to see Old Mr. Calsis. Rose was obedient at home usually, saying that Old Mr. Calsis was poor in the hospital alone, and she wanted to accompany him. Jimmy had no choice but to come. After all, a woman's heart was always softened! What's more, if he pleased Old Mr. Calsis well, he also could improve his position in Calsis's Residence in the future. Jimmy knew that people in Calsis's Residence all looked down on him, and thought he did not have a strong family background. They thought he was not in the same class level as Rose. But if Old Mr. Calsis loved him, that was different! "Honey." Rose's gentle voice sounded in the ward. Jimmy hung up immediately and walked into the ward. He saw that Rose's clothes were wet with porridge, and Old Mr. Calsis sat beside and looked at Rose, "Go away."

Old Mr. Calsis was delirious usually. The key point was that he loved to play practical jokes, Every time his family came to see him, they were all amused by him. Rose looked depressed. "My clothes are dirty. What should I do?" Jimmy took a paper towel and helped her wipe her clothes. "Nothing. I can wash it." "Grandpa is in such a bad state. What should I do? He even can't recognize me now!" Rose looked gloomy. Jimmy said, "Stay away from him, otherwise, he will hurt you. Are you hurt?" "No." Rose shook her head. Jimmy pulled her aside, and let her sit beside him. He took a handkerchief to wipe her clothes and fingers. The nurse hurried in to clean the room. Jimmy was taking care of Rose, and Old Mr. Calsis came over with a cup. Then Old Mr. Calsis poured water on Jimmy's head... Jimmy was a very particular person. Every time he went out, he paid attention to his clothes and hairstyle. But now, Old Mr. Calsis poured water on his head, destroying his image. Jimmy looked up, and grabbed the cup in Old Mr. Calsis's hand. He was so angry! How could Old Mr. Calsis always do such a bad thing? He wished that he did not come here. Anyway, no matter how good he was to this old man, he did not remember it. Then did not him for being ruthless! "Master Calsis." Jimmy was about to vent his anger when the nurse's voice sounded. Jimmy was shocked and put down the cup. Theresa followed Charlie into the ward, and found the room was a mess. Jimmy was drenched all over. Although he was a bad man, he always dressed well. Now he was drenched in water and looked very miserable. Old Mr. Calsis stood beside them with a smile on his face, and it seemed that he was proud of what he did.

If it weren't for his white hair, people would think they had seen a child came from kindergarten." When Jimmy saw Charlie, he called, "Uncle Charlie." Rose also said, "Uncle Charlie, why are you here?" Jonathan politely said, "Mrs. Watson, Mr. Watson." When Jonathan saw Jimmy, he glanced at Theresa subconsciously. When he sent Theresa back last night, he saw Jimmy go to Theresa. At this moment, when Jimmy saw Theresa, he wore a gloomy face. Why was Theresa here?

Wasn't she just an acupuncturist? She did not come to Calsis's Residence to give Charlie acupuncture, and why did she come to the hospital? When Rose saw Charlie, she complained, "Uncle Charlie, please look at grandpa. What did he do to us?" Then she said to Jimmy, "Honey, you should go and wash it." Jimmy took a paper towel and wiped the water from his body and head. And then he said with a gloom face, "I am fine." He could not do anything. Now he was in the hospital, and he did not bring any clothes, thus he could just wipe it with a paper towel. Charlie glanced at Old Mr. Calsis and asked, "Hasn't he eaten?" Rose said, "I was going to feed him, but he refused, and he even poured water and porridge to me and Jimmy Rose was very depressed. Charlie frowned when he looked at Old Mr. Calsis. He grew up with his grandfather since childhood. He had a good relationship with him. When he had an accident, Sarah left him alone. Then his grandfather was ill. His accident was a blow to Grandpa, and Sarah's departure made things worse. That was why Charlie tried to find Sarah back. He would not let that woman go so easily! Theresa stood behind Charlie, looking at the white-haired man in front of her. She was surprised that she knew this old man. When she was young, an old man came to her home.

The old man was very kind and gave her pocket money. He also said, "Theresa, when you grow up, are you willing to marry my grandson Charlie?" She was very young at that time and didn't quite understand it. She nodded, "OK"

It had happened a long time ago. She never expected that the old man was Charlie's grandfather. Charlie said, "Reprepare lunch." "All right." The nurse walked out to prepare the food. After a while, lunch was served. Charlie lifted the bowl and said to Old Mr. Calsis, "Time to have lunch" Old Mr. Calsis looked at Charlie and said, "No." Charlie said, "How old are you? Why did you act like a child." "I want Sarah to feed me." Sarah performed well when she became Charlie's fiancée. So Sarah had now become the obsession of Old Mr. Calsis. Old Mr. Calsis only regarded Sarah as his.

. + 20 great granddaughter-in-law. And he never regarded other people as his granddaughter-in-law. Charlie said, "She ran away and wouldn't come back." "No, Sarah is a good child." Old Mr. Calsis did not believe it. Jonathan said, "Grandpa, have something to eat." Old Mr. Calsis snorted, turned over, and refused to eat. Then he looked at Theresa who came in with Charlie. Usually, he just recognized Charlie. No one would be in a good state when they approached him. But at this moment, when he saw Theresa, his eyes lit up...

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorcement By Jacqueline Chapter 13

Chapter 013 Old Mr. Calsis Liked Her Very Much

"Sarah is here! I know Sarah is a good child."

Theresa."

Did Old Mr. Calsis regard her as Sarali?

For some reason, Theresa felt wanted when Old Mr. Calsis looked at her.

Old Mr. Calsis said to Charlie, "I want Saral to feed me."

Charlie glanced at Theresa, "You come here."

Theresa came over, took the bowl from his hand, and said to Old Mr. Calsis, "OK, Grandpa, I'll feed you."

Theresa sat down and began to feed Old Mr. Calsis. Now Old Mr. Calsis, who was making trouble with others, ate obediently.. Charlie sat beside them. He looked at this and felt comfortable. He looked at Theresa. When she fed his grandfather, she was very gentle. He never thought that grandfather would like Theresa so much. He never expected that he would have a pleasant surprise when he married her. Jimmy had wiped the water on his body. When Theresa fed Old Mr. Calsis, Old Mr. Calsis ate obediently. Jimmy frowned. What did Old Mr. Calsis mean? Every time he visited Old Mr. Calsis with Rose, Old Mr. Calsis always treated them badly. But now Theresa came, and Old Mr. Calsis liked her so much.

It was so bad.

Old Mr. Calsis asked Theresa as she ate, "Sarah, when will you get married?" Theresa glanced at Charlie and said to Old Mr. Calsis, "Charlie and I are married." Jimmy stood aside and gave her a sarcastic look.

Tut. Did she say she married Charlie? How dare she say this! Although Charlie was now in a wheelchair and disabled, he would not marry Theresa. But Charlie did not refute when he heard Theresa's words. Jimmy knew that Charlie wanted to please Old Mr. Calsis, thus Charlie did not refute. So Jimmy did not say anything. Old Mr. Calsis looked at Theresa excitedly, "OK, It's better to get married. In this way, I can have grandchildren early, Hearing this, Theresa answered, "Well." Old Mr. Calsis was happy when he saw Theresa, so he ate more than before. The nurse was also surprised. After eating, Old Mr. Calsis looked at Charlie who just sat beside them and kept silent, showing no care for his wife, so he said to Charlie, "Come here."

Charlie walked to his grandfather. Old Mr. Calsis said, "You always wore a gloomy expression, and why don't you treat your wife well."

Old Mr. Calsis held Charlie's hand and put Charlie's hand on Theresa's hand as he said. So Charlie had to hold Theresa's hand.

Charlie's fingers were slender, and her nails were neatly trimmed. The man held Theresa's hand, and Theresa could feel the warmth of his hand.

Old Mr. Calsis held their hands as he said. He wished that they could have a child immediately.

He looked totally different from the old man who just went crazy and made Rose and Jimmy extremely embarrassed! Jimmy stood beside and looked at Charlie and Theresa. He felt bad. This woman was shameless. How could she let Charlie hold her hand at random? The key point was that she did not refuse when Charlie held her hand. Was she disgusting? Theresa fed grandfather and accompanied Grandpa in the hospital, then Theresa went to the bathroom.

Theresa put her hand under the faucet and washed her fingers with water. She felt embarrassed when Charlie held his hands. It was burning now. Theresa patted her face. After all, she had married Charlie. Thus she had to act like this. So she had to make preparation in advance. Theresa dressed well. When she walked out of the bathroom, she was about to go back to the ward. Suddenly, a man appeared. The man pulled her, and dragged her to the stairwell!

Theresa was shocked and looked at the man in front of her. "Jimmy, are you crazy?"

Seeing that Theresa blushed, Jimmy sneered, "Are you a bi*ch?" "What did you say?" Theresa looked at him in disbelief. Jimmy chuckled. "Are you happy to be held by Charlie? You did not refuse him when he held your hand. You are a bi*ch, and anyone could stay close with you, right?" Theresa looked at him in disbelief. "What does it matter to you when Charlie holds my hand? Who are you?" Didn't he know the relationship between them for the past two years? Now another man held her hands, and he was even angry with her. Jimmy said, "It has nothing to do with me. I just remind you that even if Charlie is disabled he is not a man you can love. Old Mr. Calsis regarded you as Sarah, so Charlie held your hand. Don't you think you are Charlie's woman, do you?" Theresa felt ridiculous when Jimmy said this to her in a contemptuous tone. "Even you can marry Rose. Is there anything wrong with me marrying Charlie?" "Do you really want to marry Charlie?" Jimmy never thought that Theresa had such an idea. "If I really want to marry him, what can you do?" She had gotten a license with Charlie. Even if it was fake, so what? Jimmy said, "Then you can marry him. I don't believe Charlie will fall in love with you. Does he know that you have two children at home? Does he know that you are divorced?" "What's the matter with being divorced? I met a bad man when I was young. Aren't you divorced? It seemed that Rose did not know this, right? Theresa looks at Jimmy. Seeing that Jimmy was so nervous, she suddenly understood something So Rose did not know this! No wonder Jimmy was so nervous when he saw her. Theresa said, "Should I talk with Rose about you? She loved you so much, so he must be very interested in your past." "How dare you!" Jimmy grabbed Theresa's wrist and pressed her against the wall. "If you say a word to her, your two children will be in danger." "Do you want to make trouble with my children?" Theresa was shocked, and looked at the man in disbelief! In the past, when she was pregnant, Jimmy couldn't tolerate the child in her belly. Now she had given birth to the two children, and Jimmy still wanted to... How could he do this? Jimmy said, "So don't push me." "What did I force you to do?" Theresa said, "Did you just come to see me? Charlie held my hand just now, but it's none of your business!" "You should stay away from him." Jimmy said. "I got bored when I saw you seduce others. You are already the mother of two children. How can you seduce others outside? You should him acupuncture at home, and why did you come here with him? Don't you want to get close to Charlie and win his sympathy?" Theresa really had a mind of her own., and she knew she should please Old Mr. Calsis at first. Theresa did not know what she should say when she heard Jimmy's words. He could marry Rose, and couldn't she hold Charlie's hands? Theresa said, "I just hold hands with him, and you feel annoyed! Then if I have an affair with him..."

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorceement By Jacqueline Chapter 14

Chapter 014 He Thought She Was Beautiful "How dare you!" Jimmy interrupted Theresa before Theresa finished her words. "Are you shameless? I know you just want money, and I will give you money. Is it enough? Is it enough?" Jimmy took out his wallet as he said. Then he took out cash from the inside and stuffed it into her. "Don't make a fool of yourself outside." Theresa looked at the money he stuffed into her hand. It should be more than 2,000 dollars. Now people seldom pay in cash. So Theresa was surprised that Jimmy had so much cash. So he gave her money because he did not want her to stay with Charlie, right?

It was so ridiculous!

Now Jimmy looked like before. When she talked with other men, he would be jealous. He would be angry with her for a whole day for this. At that time, she treated him well and loved him. So she always kept her distance from others because he did not like her to talk to other men. But Theresa didn't expect that he did not change his bad temper until now.

But now his behavior was too ridiculous!

Who was he Did he think he was still her husband? Theresa wanted to say something, but her mobile phone rang. Theresa took her phone out and looked at it. It was Charlie. She glanced at Jimmy, pressed the call button, and said, "Mr. Calsis." Jimmy kept silent when Theresa answered the phone. He was afraid that other people would know about the relationship between Theresa and him. Charlie's magnetic voice sounded on the phone, "Where are you?" She said she went to the bathroom, but she hadn't come back for so long! Theresa said, "I will come back immediately." !! Then Theresa hung up. She looked at Jimmy and threw the money in her hand to Jimmy's face, "Keep the money for yourself, and I don't need it." When Theresa finished her words, she went out through the stairwell door. Jimmy gnashed his teeth as watched Theresa leave. Then he kicked the wall next to him. Theresa went back to the ward. Old Mr. Calsis was in a good mood when he knew Charlie had gotten married. So he fell asleep after lunch. Seeing that Theresa walked into the ward, Charlie looked up at her and asked, "Where did you go?"

Theresa said, "I went to the bathroom." "Do you need such a long time?"

"I am constipated."

Charlie was embarrassed. This woman was really... Then he said, "let's go back." Rose said, "Where is Jimmy? He's out, too!" Hearing this, Jonathan looked at Theresa. Did Jimmy go to Theresa just now? Bu he was not an eventful person, so he would not say this in front of others. Then he said to Rose, "Mrs. Watson, are you coming back with us?" Rose said, "You go ahead, and I'll wait for him." "OK, goodbye." Jonathan accompanied Charlie out of the ward as he said, and Theresa followed behind them. Charlie's car stopped at the door, and they got in the car. Theresa sat next to Charlie, and she rubbed her wrist gently. She suspected that her wrist was blue. Jimmy grabbed her tightly just now, and she was a person whose skin would be hurt easily. In the past, when she stayed with Jimmy, he treated her well, and he was gentle, just like what he did to Rosa now. However, when he saw her now, it seemed that he had seen an enemy, and he wanted to strangle her. Every time she talked to him, she felt that she would be strangled by him. Charlie sat beside her, and he seemed in a good mood. Then he said, "I've never seen Grandpa so happy. He likes you very much." Theresa glanced at him and said, "Maybe it's because I've seen him before." "Have you met my grandfather?" Charlie was a little surprised. "When I was a child, he went to my house, so I saw him. But I have forgotten this matter. When I saw him, I remembered it again." Theresa was ashamed when she realized that Old Mr. Calsis was ill for the thing related to Sarah. She said to Charlie,

"I'm really sorry about Sarah." Hearing this, Charlie looked at Theresa. To some extent, he thought this woman looked better than Sarah. Charlie said, "Did you mean my grandfather went to your house before?" Theresa nodded. "Yes. I was very young at that time. He went to my home once. He even asked me to marry his grandson in the future. If there was no accident, it should be you." Hearing this, Charlie said, "So my Grandpa asked you to marry me at first. You promised him, but you married someone else later, right?" Charlie looked at Theresa critically when he said this. It seemed that he was blaming her for marrying others.

Theresa said. "It happened a long time ago. Who knows. What's more, we don't have any contact later. Now it's a new era. Marriage is a matter of two people, and our parents can make a decision for us."

Charlie listened to his Grandpa's words, so he agreed to marry Sarah at the beginning, Charlie felt terrible when he heard this. So he sneered, "So you have a free love. How about the result? Are you divorced?" Hearing that Charlie mentioned this, Theresa's body became stiff Charlie destroyed her good mood in an instant

Theresa pressed her lips and looked aside, "Yes! I am blind." She was blind, so she fell in love with Jimmy and married him. She even thought she was married to love Theresa sat beside and lowered her head. She even wanted to cry Charlie looked at Theresa and didn't expect that Theresa would be sad at his words. He pulled the paper towel and handed it to her. "Don't cry, it's my fault. I shouldn't have said this. You just divorced, and it's nothing. You will meet a better man in the future." He was not good at comforting people, but he didn't want to see a woman crying for him. He was most annoyed to see women crying!

The car stopped at Calsis's Residence, and Theresa stopped crying. She sat aside. She was embarrassed when she realized she had cried in front of Charlie. "Sorry, I lost my manners." Seeing that Theresa stopped crying, Charlie signed, "Okay, get off the car." He was so bad. Why did he mention this in front of her? Theresa opened the door and got off the car. Jonathan helped Charlie out of the car. Charlie sat in the wheelchair, and Jonathan pushed him into the home. When they entered the room, Theresa began to prepare for the acupuncture in the evening. She was in a bad mood, and wished she could go back quickly. She had stayed with Charlie all day. Charlie sat aside. Theresa still lowered her head, and it seemed that she was still sad. Charlie did not know how to coax women. He felt embarrassed in the silent atmosphere. So he said, "Dr. Cameron, I want to drink some water." Hearing this, Theresa looked at him. Was he asking her to pour him water?

Theresa lowered her head and said, "It should not be my duty to pour water for you." She was just responsible for treating him. Charlie said, "It should be your duty as a wife to take care of me." "We only agreed to marry, and I didn't really marry you." The duty of being his wife? How dare he say it!

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorcement By Jacqueline

Chapter 15

Chapter 015 An Abominable Woman "As long as we are not divorced, you are my wife." Charlie said, "I hope Dr. Cameron can have such consciousness I did not marry you for nothing." Theresa looked at Charlie. To some extent, when she heard this, she did not want to mar him.

The fact was that she was just a slave. But why did he become a hostage?

But Theresa still poured water for him.

She was not afraid of him, but she did not want to hear his voice all the time

Theresa handed the water to the table in front of him and said, "I don't like to listen to people's nagging before acupuncture, and it will affect my mentality. When I give acupuncture, I may do something wrong" "Are you threatening me?" Charlie looked at her. How dare she threaten him with this! Charlie was angry! "Yes, Mr. Calsis, you are not stupid, and you know the meaning." Theresa smiled. She found she felt much better when she quarreled with him. When she finished her words, she turned back and continued to disinfect. Charlie drank water and looked at Theresa who was busy. This woman cried just now, but when she talked with him, she could anger him to death. Although she grew up with Sarah in the same family, she was totally different from Sarah. Sarah was a yes-man in front of him, and she was afraid of offending him. Sarah was just like an accessory without her ideas. She stayed around him all day, wondering what he liked and disliked. Theresa was different.

She was not a flamboyant woman. She always behaved well. But she would not flatter others deliberately.

Anyway, she was his Fiancee that his Grandpa chose for him at first. If she hadn't been divorced, maybe she would be more suitable as his wife. It was a pity that...

He was not interested in women who got married for the second time.

"We can start now." When Theresa prepared well, she said to Charlie. Jonathan had something to do when he came back. Thus he did not come here. Only she and Charlie were doing acupuncture in the room. Theresa said, "Should I help you to take off your pants?"

Because she needed to prick his leg, he had to take off his pants. Jonathan helped him to do this before.

"L

." Hearing Theresa's words, Charlie looked at her and said, "No."

He felt strange if he asked this woman helped him to take off his pants. Since he was unwilling to accept her help, Theresa did not force him, He was inconvenienced in doing this, so she could give him help. It was just a job for her. But Mr. Calsis refused. Theresa waited for a while and saw him pull his pants off with great difficulty. Since he hurt his legs, he needed to take a wheelchair when he went out. It was very inconvenient in his daily life. For Charlie, who had never experienced this, the accident destroyed his life suddenly. He was like a bird with its wings broken, like a fish out of water... Theresa stood aside, and she suddenly felt a little pathetic about Charlie. Both Leonard and Ben could dress well now. But it was a difficult thing for Mr. Calsis. The acupuncture was over, and Jonathan hadn't come back yet. Theresa reached out and pulled up his pants. Charlie looked up at the woman. Jonathan took care of him all the time. But now, this woman did this for him, and he was a little uncomfortable about this. Charlie grabbed her hands immediately, and it seemed that he had been greatly insulted. Theresa looked at him. "Mr. Calsis." Why did he grab her hands suddenly? Charlie glared at her and said, "Who asked you to help me?" "It's a traditional virtue to help people in need." Theresa said calmly "I don't need it. Mind your own frigging business! Charlie said. "That's fine." Theresa said, "I'll take it off for you, and you can put it back on yourself." Theresa did what she said immediately. Charlie was even angrier with her action. He held her wrist tightly, "Woman, are you deliberately making me angry?" He said something bad and hurt her in the car, thus she was going to humiliate him now! Hearing this, Theresa said, "Originally, I thought that there was something wrong with Mr.

Calsis's leg, but now it seemed that there was something wrong with your brain." Charlie said, "You are the first woman who dares to talk to me like this! Do you think that I can't live without you now? Do you believe that Cameron's Residence will go bankrupt as long as I say something? Your family will disappear forever." "... Theresa did not have too much contact with Calsis's Residence, but now she worked in Calsis's Residence, so she naturally knew how powerful Calsis's Residence was in the city.

+ 20

Charlie would do what he said.

And he could do what he said.

Theresa said, "What I said was the truth. It seemed that Mr. Calsis did not listen to my words carefully. I help you put on your pants because I think you need my help. Now you were inconvenienced, so I helped you. You don't show your gratitude to me, and you are still angry with me. Judge by yourself, do you think you are reasonable?"

Charlie did not say anything, and Theresa continued, "Your legs are disabled now, but your heart is more inferior. When others cared about you, you would think it was an insult to you. You are angry about this. Am I wrong? In this case, I said there is something wrong with your brain. Is there a problem with my words?" "... Charlie was very angry after hearing Theresa's words. But for some reason, Theresa's words touched him deeply. He wanted to refute, and he did not know what he should say. So he let go of her hand! Since he had an accident, people around him never mentioned this in front of him. They dared not to offend him, even dare not say anything bad to him. They never mentioned the word disability in front of him. They all tried their best to protect him, fearing that he would be hurt again. But this woman!

An abominable woman!

She seemed to be afraid that he did not know he was a disabled man, and she said this in front of him all the time. He was so angry Theresa said, "There is no shame in having disabled legs. In our life, we don't know what will happen, and we don't know tomorrow or accident who will come first. When we encounter it, we can't do anything but overcoming it. No one will discriminate against you because of it. In fact, even if Mr. Calsis is in a wheelchair, you are much better than most people. Why are you so keen?" Charlie glanced at her and said, "Really, Sarah..." Now, he had become such a man, and Sarah should bear part of the responsibility. When he was well, Sarah flattered him all the time. But when he had an accident, she left immediately... Thus Charlie couldn't help but doubt himself. Theresa said, "That's not your problem, it's hers. Sarah discriminates against many things. She was jealous of others who were better and who lived a better life than her. Do you feel inferior because you are better than her?" Charlie was shocked when he heard Theresa's words.

It seemed that she knew Sarah well.

Seeing that Charlie looked at her, Theresa didn't know if he was still angry. Anyway, she had said what she should say.

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorcement By Jacqueline Chapter 16

Chapter 016 He Was a Little Sad

Theresa said, "I'll go back today. I'll come back tomorrow. I'll do what I should do before Cameron's Residence goes bankrupt." Theresa packed her things up as she said. Then she walked out. Charlie stared at the left back of Theresa...

Today, Theresa wore a white shirt and a black skirt. She stiffened her back when she walked. She had practiced dancing since childhood, so she walked like an elegant white swan. Charlie stretched out his hand and grabbed the armrest of the sofa at hand. He found he was crazy, and even thought this woman was beautiful! Beautiful? No sooner had he had this idea than he snuffed it out.

Theresa went downstairs. Leticia was talking to Jonathan. Leticia looked at Theresa when she went downstairs and asked, "Dr. Cameron, how's Charlie?"

"He is fine, and he is upstairs. Today's acupuncture is over, so I will go back."
"Jonathan, send Dr. Cameron back." Leticia looked at Theresa and said, "It's been a hard day." Regardless of Theresa's marriage to Charlie, Theresa was just an acupuncturist in Leticia's mind. So she was very polite to Theresa. Theresa nodded, and Jonathan led Theresa out of the door. She had been working all day, and she was tired. If she was at home, she would take a nap with her children. Theresa sat in the car, relieved to think that she could finally go home. Jonathan looked at her and said, "Mrs. Calsis, you have a hard day." "Mrs. Calsis?" Theresa looked at him. Jonathan said, "Since you are married to Master Calsis, you are naturally his wife." "You know that it's fake, and it's temporary." "But we should make a show in front of others." Theresa did not want to argue with him, so she said, "Suit yourself." Jonathan asked, "By the way, do you know Jimmy?" Hearing Jonathan's question, Theresa was stunned for a moment. She recalled Jimmy and asked, "Why did you ask this?". Jonathan said, "I am just checking. It's true that this is your personal matter. Mrs. Calsis, since you married Master Calsis, you should pay attention to this. You should keep a little distance from other men. If other people see this, it isn't good for Master Calsis." It was a fake marriage, but other people did not know this. So they still needed to make a show in front of others! Theresa was sure that Jonathan should have seen something. Theresa said, "Don't worry. I won't have any misleading relationship with Jimmy in the future." If there was something relationship between them, that should be enemy! She would never forgive him in her life! Jonathan said, "I'm relieved to have your words." Jonathan kept silent after finishing his words. He was driving seriously, so Theresa also closed her eyes. After having a rest in the car for a while, her cell phone rang. It was her stepmother. Theresa answered the phone, "Hello." Leah said, "Theresa, how are things going with you and Charlie?" Although she was angry about what Theresa said to her before Theresa left the hospital, this matter was related to Cameron's Residence, so she still had to call Theresa and talk with her politely. -Theresa said, "It's done. Everything will be fine with our family. Please tell my dad about this." Her father only had one daughter. Now there was something with their family, and if she did not care about it, no one would care about

So she would not evade responsibility. Hearing this, Leah was happy, "Really? Do you decide to marry Charlie?" "Yes," Theresa said, Her stepmother probably in her heart that it was lucky for her to marry Charlie. Anyway, in the eyes of her stepmother, she should marry a bad man, and her own daughter should marry a wealthy family and live a better life than her. Sure enough, when Leah heard that Theresa married Charlie, she was very happy. Leah said, "Although Charlie broke his legs, he had a strong family background. You two lead a better life in the future. I will tell your father about this." Leah hung up after finishing her words.

112 con

Theresa looked at her mobile phone and thought that if Sarah knew she had married Charlie, would she come back immediately? Sarah was a mama's girl. Her mother doted on her very much. Now she had grown up, but she could not live without her Mom. Her Mom needed to take care of her all the time. She had hidden herself for such a long time since Charlie had a car accident.

Considering that if she married Charlie, Sarah might come back, thus Theresa agreed to marry Charlie.

When Theresa got off Jonathan's car, Theresa bought something at the supermarket downstairs, and then she went home. Cristina had gone back. She lived far away from here, and she needed to go home by subway. She needed to go to work early tomorrow morning. Now only Leonard and Ben were at home. Theresa opened the door. Then she found Leonard and Ben were busy. One was washing dishes, and the other was cooking noodles. The stove was a little high, and both of them stood on a chair. Theresa felt bad after seeing this. Then she quickly took Leonard who was cooking noodles down, and said, "Leonard, I told you that you should not touch these things. It's not safe. What if you are burning?" Leonard struggled in her arms, "Mom, let go of me. I want to cook noodles. It will be ready soon. Don't make trouble with me." "...". Theresa was shocked. "I'm afraid you'll burn. How can you say that I am making trouble with you?" "I won't burn." Leonard said, "It's so easy, and I can cook noodles." "Leonard, how old are you!" Why did you say it in an adult tone?

Leonard said confidently, "Four years old."; I was four years old, and I was not three years old! Theresa recalled that when she was four years old, she couldn't do anything. At that time, her mother was still alive, and she cooked all kinds of loving meals for her and her father every day. Now even Leonard could cook noodles! How a bad mother she was! Sometimes, she worked outside. Like today, she wanted to come back early, but she had no choice but to come back late. Two babies stayed at home, and they were like two industrious bees. Leonard said, "Get out of here. The kitchen is so small. It's crowded when you come in." Leonard said, and then he climbed back to the stool. Theresa said, "No. Leonard and Ben, you two go outside together. I will do it." "No." Leonard refused. Ben said, "Mom, we can do it. You are tired of work Leonard and I will do housework in the future." "...". Theresa looked at two babies, and they said seriously. It... Finally, the three people worked together to cook the noodles. Three people sat down at the table and ate noodles together. Ben asked as he ate noodles, "Mom, are you going out tomorrow?" "Hmm." Theresa said, "Mom has a job recently, and I need to treat an uncle. Ben said, "Is that uncle handsome?" Theresa was stunned, "Why do you ask this?" "If he is handsome, can he be your boyfriend?" Ben said, "You work so hard, and it will be good if you have a husband." Theresa twisted the corner of her mouth after hearing this. "Who taught you that?" Leonard said, "No."

"Why?" Ben asked.

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorcement By Jacqueline Chapter 17

Chapter 017 Grandpa Defend her so much!

Leonard said, "Since this man needs to do treatment, he must be in poor health. Mom worked so hard, and she needed someone who could take care of her." Leonard and Ben talked with each other, and they arranged Theresa well. Theresa was speechless. "What have you both learned?" You were so young, but you knew everything. After eating with Leonard and Ben, Theresa took them to the bathroom to wash up. Then they went to bed. She needed to take them to school tomorrow. Theresa took care of two children alone, so Leonard and Ben went to kindergarten when they were two years old. In this way, when she went out to work, she would not leave her children unattended at home.

The next day, Theresa sent Leonard and Ben to the school first. She was a little late when she arrived at Calsis's Residence. Brenda opened the door for her, and Theresa said, "Sorry, I sent my children to school, so I'm late." She did not like being late. But she had children, so she had no choice. Brenda smiled and said, "It's okay. Today, Old Mr. Calsis is back, and everyone is here." "Is Charlie's grandfather back?" "Yes." Theresa was a little happy when she heard Old Mr. Calsis was back. She really missed him.

When she walked into the living room, she found the whole family was in the living room. They all surrounded Old Mr. Calsis had just returned from the hospital. Jimmy and Rose were also there. They sat on the sofa. Rose looked at Old Mr. Calsis and said, "Grandpa looks much better today." Now he was totally different from before. Leticia said, "It's true." She hadn't seen Old Mr. Calsis in such a sober state for a long time! So the whole family was very happy. Old Mr. Calsis sat beside in a bad mood, "Where's Sarah?" He came back to see his grandson's wife, but when he came back, he did not see her! So he suspected that Charlie was lying to him yesterday! They were not married at all! Charlie sat aside, rubbing his eyebrows. Jonathan said, "She'll be here soon." Theresa walked in from the outside, and Old Mr. Calsis saw her immediately. Then he smiled happily, "Sarah." As soon as he saw Theresa, he was very warm. He withdrew the bad expression on his face immediately! Rose said, "Dr. Cameron, come here. Grandpa is looking for you as soon as he comes back today!"

Because Old Mr. Calsis liked Theresa, Rose treated Theresa well when she saw her. After all, Theresa was the only one who could calm Old Mr. Calsis down. Charlie looked at her and said, "You're late!" If it weren't for her being late, Grandpa wouldn't make trouble with him for such a long time. Theresa was embarrassed, "Sorry, I have something to do at home." No sooner had she finished her words than Old Mr. Calsis took his crutch and tapped Charlie. "How could do snap at your wife?" Charlie, "...". He just said a word to her. Theresa was also surprised. She didn't even think Charlie was snapping at her. After all, she was late first. Unexpectedly, Grandpa offended her so much! Even she forgot how long she had not been so offended, Theresa walked to Grandpa and said to him, "Grandpa, I'm sorry. I'm late for something." Grandpa said. "Nothing, nothing. You can do your things. Have you eaten?" Theresa was about to say that she had eaten, but Leticia's voice sounded, "Let's have lunch with Grandpa first. He hasn't eaten breakfast today. We cooked food, but he refused to eat." Leticia didn't expect that Old Mr. Calsis would love Theresa so much. When Rose said this to her, she even thought it was impossible.

Theresa nodded, "OK, Grandpa, let's have lunch first." Grandpa, who had just refused to eat, went to the restaurant and sat down under the greeting of Theresa.

The whole family had been tossed for all morning, and they were all waiting for lunch. Jimmy was also hungry.

TapiEI UIT Viunupu vurur, The family sat down in the living room. Theresa sat beside next to Grandpa. But when Old Mr. Calsis saw this, he said. "Sarah. you sit opposite."

glanced at the opposite side, and she was shocked. It was a seat beside Charlie. She said to Grandpa, "I want to sit here with you!"

"No, you sit over there." Old Mr. Calsis wanted to see the loving relationship between Theresa and Charlie. Theresa was ashamed. She was hesitating, and then Leticia's voice sounded, "You sit over there. Grandpa must want to see you sit with Charlie. He wants Charlie to get married quickly." Theresa had to stand up and goto the place beside Charlie and sit down. No sooner had she sat down than she noticed that Jimmy stared at her all the time. Jimmy was so hungry. But now when he saw Theresa sitting next to Charlie, he was almost pissed off! Although he had warned her in the hospital yesterday, how long would she play this game of pretending to be married? Theresa was a little uncomfortable. But when she found Jimmy staring at her all the time, she suddenly felt comfortable again. More than that, she looked at Charlie and asked, "Didn't you eat breakfast this morning?" Jimmy did not want her to stay close to Charlie, but she would do this. Charlie said, "No."

Charlie glanced at Theresa. It was because she was late that he did not eat breakfast. How could she laugh now? He frowned. "How can you laugh?" Theresa said. "Sorry. I will try my best not to be late next time. Come on, you should eat more." Theresa took the initiative to refill food for Charlie. In Jimmy's eyes, she was seducing Charlie. Jimmy picked up the water and took a sip. He tried to suppress his dissatisfaction in the heart. Then he took the initiative to find a topic and asked, "Grandpa, will you live at home later?" Old Mr. Calsis had a mental problem, and he lived in the hospital all the time. As long as Old Mr. Calsis did not live at home, Theresa would not have a chance to stay close to Charlie. So he was very concerned about this. The doctor said, "The doctor said that Old Mr. Calsis had the intention to go home. It would be good for him to stay at home." Calsis's Residence respected Old Mr. Calsis. Even though Old Mr. Calsis was old, they did not think Old Mr. Calsis was a burden to them. They never prepared to let Old Mr. Calsis live in the hospital. They were willing to live with Grandpa. Hearing this, Jimmy said, "I think it's better to live in the hospital. The doctors are more professional. Now Grandpa is much better than before. If he becomes bab when he comes back, that will be terrible." Charlie sat aside. He frowned when he heard Jimmy's words. He looked at Jimmy and said, "Grandpa is back. Is there something wrong with you?" Although Old Mr. Calsis was addled and loved to make trouble for others, Charlie still wanted him to live at home. After all, Old Mr. Calsi was old, he should accompany him more. But it seemed that Jimmy wanted to send Grandpa back to the hospital, which made him very angry.

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorcement By Jacqueline Chapter 18

Chapter 018 Two Hundred Thousand Dollars A Month Jimmy didn't expect Charlie to get angry, so he explained quickly, "No, Uncle Charlie, I didn't mean that. I just care about Old Mr. Calsis."

Rose also said, "Uncle Charlie, Jimmy didn't mean it. He also cares about Grandpa. Don't be angry." Rose was afraid Charlie was mad at Jimmy. Hearing the beg from Rose, Charlie restrained his anger. Jimmy was not in a good mood when he was snapped by Charlie. The Fact showed that even if he married Rose, his life in Calsis's Residence was still bad. In this family, no one liked him except Rose. The key point was that he needed to live on the whims of Charlie, a disabled man. He felt terrible. He finished his meal quickly and went out to smoke. Theresa sat aside and looked at Jimmy, who was so arrogant in front of her, becoming a wuss in front of Charlie, and she was in a good mood.

After jimmy went out, Old Mr. Calsis ate for a while. Then he looked up and saw Charlie and Theresa sitting together. He asked Leticia, "When will they get married?" Leticia said, "I am already preparing for the wedding. I will arrange it as soon as possible." "Hurry up." Old Mr. Calsis was in a hurry. Leticia said, "Got it." Leticia looked at Charlie and Theresa. Anyway, they had got a marriage certificate, and it was time to prepare for the wedding.

Seeing that Leticia looked at her, Theresa was shocked. Although Leticia said she was preparing for the wedding, she thought Leticia didn't mean what she said. But now, it seemed that Leticia really wanted to hold a wedding for them. After eating with Grandpa and taking him upstairs to rest, Theresa and Charlie went back to the room to give him acupuncture. While doing acupuncture, she asked, "Your mother won't really give us a wedding, will she?" Charlie said, "Grandpa wants to see it." "So should we hold a wedding?" Theresa said in disbelief. Theresa refused, "There are so many things if we hold a wedding. I have no time. You'd better tell your mother in advance." Otherwise, what Leticia did would be a waste. Charlie said, "Miss Theresa, we have gotten a marriage certificate, and we should hold a wedding. You should arrange your time well in advance." He did not accept the reason that she had no time to do it. Theresa didn't expect that there were so many things after they got a marriage certificate. "Mr. Calsis, I don't want to get married. Can I regret it now?" "Regret?" Charlie looked at her. "We have got a marriage certificate, and now you tell me you regret it. Then why did you promise to get married before?" "That's because..." Theresa explained, "I think when Sarah gets the news that I marry you, she will come back. How do I know there will be a wedding? How about postponing the wedding? In this way, there is no need to have a wedding. What do you think?" Charlie said, "According to you, I think we should hold a wedding as soon as possible. Sarah will not believe that we are really married until she sees the wedding." Theresa felt bad, "Why do you join the heckling? There are many things to do at weddings. Do you think it would be so easy? How can I have so much time?" She was married before, and she knew how tedious it was to get married, she didn't want to get married again in her life! "Then you should give me all your time from now on." "Do you think I'm you?" Theresa said, "There is someone who can take care of you, and you don't need to worry about food and clothing. But I have two children. Besides giving you acupuncture, I have to earn money to raise children. I am busy." If she gave all her time to him, how about her children? How about the rent for the next month? Their rent was paid once every three months, and she should pay the rent next month. She gave treatment to Charlie, because she wanted to earn money from Calsis's Residence. With this money, she didn't have to worry about the rent. But for the sake of the matter in her family, she gave Charlie free treatment. So she had to find other ways,

Charlie looked at her and said mercifully, "You said this to me, because you want to get money, right? As long as you are good, my grandpa will be happy, and my family will be happy. In this way, I can give you money. Can you earn more money from outside?" "Well, OK." Theresa agreed immediately. She just wanted to earn money. Charlie, "..."

He thought that this woman would refuse him directly, but she agreed immediately. Charlie even thought this woman said this to him on purpose! Forget it. He had a lot of money, and he could afford it! Charlie said, "As long as you can come to me when I need you, I can give you 200,000 dollars a month." "200,000 dollars." Theresa widened her eyes in disbelief. Charlie snorted, "It's a lot of money, and you should not be so greedy." Theresa, "...". She knew it was a lot of money! She never thought that Charlie was so generous! As long as she pleased his family members and pretended to be his wife, she could get 200,000 dollars a month." In the past, in order to support her children, she tried all kinds of jobs. Although she went to interview for a well-paid job as a programmer, she was so tired. She needed to accompany her children, thus she could not do it. Then she worked as an acupuncturist, and she could get good payment when she met a good boss. In this way, she could support her children well. But she never expected that she could get 200,000 dollars a month. Now when she saw Charlie, she felt happy. He was her financier! Theresa, "Is 200,000 dollars before tax or after tax?" Charlie was shocked. He looked at Theresa, feeling that he was offended. "What? What do you think? I warn you. Although you are my wife, that is only in daily life. You should not think other things!" Theresa, "...". Unh? What did this man think? Forget it. She could accept getting 200,000 dollars before tax. It was a lot of money. When the acupuncture was over, Theresa walked away directly. Charlie said, "Come back."

Theresa glanced at Charlie, "Mr. Calsis, what's the matter?" When Theresa thought that he would give her 200,000 dollars a month, Theresa could bear any request Charlie proposed. Charlie said, "Help me to put on my pants." Jonathan was also not here. But Charlie got angry yesterday because she did this for him. So Theresa Theresa didn't take the initiative to do something that made him unhappy as she did yesterday. But today, Charlie had volunteered to ask her to help him! Theresa walked over and helped him to put on his pants. She remembered what happened yesterday, thus she said, "Weren't you quite angry yesterday?" "I thought about it. I think you are right." Charlie said short and surly. Theresa did not know whether he was praising her or not. Before Theresa said something, Charlie's voice sounded again, "You will do this in the future!" "Put on your pants? OK. As long as you add money, I can serve you. I can do whatever you want me to do." "...". Charlie felt terrible when he heard that, "What a cheek! She could do anything. Sure enough, she was not a woman of virtue!

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorcement By Jacqueline Chapter 19

Chapter 019 I'm Your Aunt-in-law Theresa had helped him put on his pants. She looked at him and asked, "Would you like some water?" If he did not want to give her money, he could refuse. Why did he scold her? Charlie said, "Yes." Theresa went and poured him water. Then she handed the cup to him. Charlie looked at her defensively, fearing that she would do something to him. Seeing this Theresa stood beside him, Charlie said, "When you are fine, stay away from me." "Well." Theresa walked away. She didn't want to stay close to him. Charlie, "...". Seeing that Theresa was so obedient, Charlie felt a little weird. In the afternoon, Theresa picked up Leonard and Ben from kindergarten on time. She was in a good mood, because Charlie promised to give her a high salary. She took Leonard and Ben to eat sushi, which was expensive. Leonard and Ben loved to eat sushi. "Mom, did you win the lottery?" In the dining room, Ben asked Theresa. Leonard also looked at Theresa with a curious face. Something was wrong. Mom brought them to eat sushi! Theresa, "...". She coughed and explained to Leonard and Ben, "Mom has found a job, and the boss is very generous." "Does the boss like you?" Ben asked.

Theresa, "...". Theresa gave Ben an angry stare. "What are you talking about?" "My mother is so beautiful, and it is normal for the boss to like you. But mom, you should protect yourself. I don't want you to meet bad men again!" Hearing this, Theresa recalled Jimmy. It seemed that it was fate. She really saw Jimmy when she mentioned him. He walked with Rosa, and Rose took his hand and followed him, like an innocent girl. Today, their family came out for dinner, and it was Rosa's treat. Rosa was afraid of being fat, so she invited her family out to eat Japanese food. Jimmy's sister and brother-in-law were also there. Jimmy's sister and brother-in-law's child was more than one year older than Leonard and Ben. When their child was born, Jimmy's mother was anxious and asked Theresa and Jimmy to have children. Jimmy found a way. Only then did a series of things happen. Theresa did not expect that she would meet them when she went out with her children! The boss found them a private room. A group of people walked in, attracting others. Rose held Jimmy's hands, and they were talking about something. When Jimmy saw Theresa sitting there, he changed his expression.

From a distance, he even saw two children sitting opposite her... This woman... She appeared everywhere I went. She made trouble with him in Calsis's Residence. Now, he came out to have dinner with his family, and she still followed him. She even took the children with her. Did she take the children to Rose on purpose? Did she want to provoke their relationship? Jimmy sent his family and Rose to the door of the private room. Then he said to Rose, "You go in first, and I'll go to the bathroom." Rose nodded, "Okay." Then Rosa entered the private room with his family. Jimmy walked to Theresa, Theresa has already finished eating. She needed to go to Calsis's Residence later, so she had to send her two children home first. Just now, she saw Jimmy, and she wanted to leave quickly. But... When she packed her things well, she put on hats and masks for Leonard and Ben. Then she took them to the bathroom, and she waited for them outside She saw Jimmy walking toward her. "You appeared everywhere I went. Jimmy said in a bad tone as if Theresa owed him money! Seeing that Jimmy walked to her, Theresa said coldly, "I come here for dinner, and I did not do it on purpose!"

Jimmy walked to her, gnashed his teeth, and said, "Didn't you bring your two children here just to disgust me? Theresa almost laughed at his theory. "I came here first. I'm going to finish eating. And then you come, can you blame me for this?" Jimmy said, "You knew I was coming, so you waited here in advance. Am I right?" Jimmy felt uncomfortable when he met Theresa in the Calsis's Residence during the day. Now she even came here to anger him! Did she think it was easy to bully him? "...". Theresa looked at him quietly as if she was looking at an idiot.

Seeing that Theresa kept silent, Jimmy thought she was guilty, "Why don't you talk? Am I right?" Theresa said, "I just wonder what are you thinking about? Did you think you were so charming? Did you think I am so powerful that I can know what you want to do? Do you want to make trouble with me? Well, you can take Rose here. You can ask Rose to look at two children who were abandoned by you. How about it?" Hearing that Theresa mentioned Rose, Jimmy frowned. He did not want Rose to know the thing between Theresa and him. After all, Rose was helpful to his future.

Jimmy took a cigarette out of his pocket, lit it, took a sip, and then said, "Go ahead. What do you want? When do you leave Calsis's Residence? When will you disappear from my eyes with two children? Do you want that house? I can give it to you! You come to me tomorrow, and I will give you the house. But you should not appear in front of me again, OK?" Jimmy knew that Theresa had made trouble with him those years, because she wanted the house they lived in before. He admitted that she had some means. He was afraid of her now. Thus he gave in, and he could give her the house! Theresa looked at him. When they divorced, Jimmy's mother got that house. Jimmy refused to give it to her all the time. He even dared not to see her. He only dared to let his mother argue with her. But now, he was willing to give her the house. But... She did not want it now! Theresa said, "You can keep the house, and I'm not interested in that house." She stayed at Calsis's Residence because she needed to help her family. Did he think she stayed there for him?" Even if he gave the house to her, she could not leave. Of course, she wouldn't leave either! How could this man make the decision for her? Jimmy said, "Don't push your luck! You won't get anything later!" "Who said that? Theresa said, "If I stay at Calsis's Residence and marry Charlie, you'll have to call me aunt-in-law!". "Aunt-in-law?" Jimmy said, "Are you shameless? Do you want to marry Charlie? If you can marry him, I will write my name upside down! Charlie just played with you, and he was pleasing his grandfather. You even take this seriously. Do you know your identity well?" The people in Calsis's Residence said this to please Old Mr. Calsis. This woman was proud as Lucifer! Did she think Charlie would really marry her? Did she deserve it? Theresa looked at him. "Then I'm looking forward to it." Jimmy looked at the time and said to Theresa, "I won't talk nonsense to you, I have something to do now. If you want that house, you come to me tomorrow! In this way, both of us can live a good life! Otherwise, even if you kneel and beg me in the future, I won't give you the house."

Theresa looked at Jimmy who was self-righteous. She did not know how he could be so confident. Just then, a voice sounded from the side, "Theresa!" It was none other than Jimmy's mother who came over.

Ex's Uncle After DiMarryvorce By Jacqueline Chapter 20

Chapter 020 Jimmy Was Afraid That Others Would Know the Truth

Rosales was about to go to the bathroom. When she saw Theresa and Jimmy stay together, she rushed over. She walked to Theresa and looked at her warily. "Are you pestering Jimmy again? Are you still shameless? You derailed, and why did you appear in front of Jimmy again?" Jimmy didn't expect that his mother would come out. "Mom, why did you come out?" "Why did I come out?" Rosales Watson gave him an angry stare. "What are you doing here? Why are you polite to this woman? You are all divorced, so you should stay away from her. You should not have pity on her when you hear her words. A woman like her should lose all her reputation, and she was never getting off this bed again!" Although Jimmy was now married to Rose, Rosales did not forgive Theresa for the derailing. She still remembered it. She would scold Theresa every time she met her. Even if Rosales met Theresa when Theresa was working, she would scold Theresa directly, causing people's attention. Now, Rosales was too arrogant, so people who passed by all looked at them. Jimmy said, "Mom, don't do this. You should do your thing quickly." Rose was still here! If Rose heard the noise and came here, she would know his past with Theresa. Now Theresa stayed at Calsis's Residence, and Rose could Theresa every day. What would she think? Although he also hoped that Theresa could leave Calsis's Residence, he did not want to affect his future. So he dared not to quarrel with Theresa in public! Rosales was anxious when she saw Jimmy become a wuss in front of Theresa. "What are you afraid of? Why are you polite to this woman? This woman had an affair with another man and betrayed you. Why do you still protect her? Jimmy, you are married to Rose, and you should stay away from this woman in the future! Do you know it? Don't be soft hearted when she says something to you." Rosales was afraid that Jimmy would forgive Theresa. In this way, he was sorry for Rose instead. She knew that when Theresa divorced Jimmy, Theresa always lived a poor life. It seemed that the clothes Theresa wore were just a hundred dollars. She was so poor! How could she compare with before? So Theresa must have come back and begged Jimmy to stay with her. She wanted to live a good life. But Jimmy would not forgive this cheating woman. Did she want to get money from them? No way! Thinking of this, Rosales shouted, "Everybody, come here. This cheating woman had two children with others, and now she seduced my son. How shameless she was!" Passers-by all looked at Theresa in a disdainful way. Rosales continued, "When she left my son, her lover also abandoned her. It was ridiculous! She lived a poor life now. Now, my son became a rich man, and she came back to seduce my son. Shameless!" Theresa stood aside, feeling that passers-by all looked at her with a sneer. Theresa was familiar with this scene. In recent years, when Rosales saw her, she would make trouble with her, hoping that she could lose her job and be spurned by everyone. She also explained it to others, but no one believed her. Now her body became cold, feeling that she had come back to the most desperate and sad time of her life. At that time, she had just given birth to her children.

Theresa looked at Jimmy who stood aside. He was usually busy with his work How could he know what she had experienced for him? Jimmy was afraid that Rose would know this. Thus he looked at his mother and said, "Mom, stop it!" "Rosales said, "Why should I stop? Is she wronged? Obviously, she is sorry for you....." "I'm sorry for him?"

Theresa laughed angrily. "Why don't you ask your son? When am I sorry for him?" "You did this in person, and why should I ask my son? Rosales looked rightfully at Theresa. Just then, Leonard and Ben walked out. Seeing this, they ran over and grabbed Theresa's hand. "Mom." "Look at..." Rosales said, "Have I wronged you? These two bastards! Were they born when you married my son? Hmm? Are they grandchildren of our family? Would you like to have a paternity test now? You married my son, but you had an affair with another man. Are you reasonable? You're not convinced, are you? OK? Then let's do a paternity test to show everyone how shameless you are!" Rosales walked over and grabbed two children as she said! Seeing that Rosales rushed over, Theresa hurriedly protected the two children behind her. "Get your dirty hands off me!"

This bad woman could not touch her children. Rosales was angry after seeing this, Could not she touch her children? She was going to touch them! "Look at it. Didn't you say I wronged you? Why don't you dare to do it now? You are a bi*ch, and your father even break his relationship with you! If I were you, I would not live in this world!" Rosales scolded with bad words. She grabbed Theresa. Seeing that Theresa refused to let her touch the children, she beat Theresa. Seeing that Theresa was bullied, Leonard and Ben rushed over. "Weird, let go of my mother!" Leonard, in particular, grabbed Rosales's hand, and almost broke her finger! Rosales thought Leonard and Ben were just two children, and she looked down on them. But Leonard held her fingers tightly. She pus Leonard several times, but she did not pull out her fingers. "My hand... my finger is broken. He is beating me!" Leonard looked at he coldly. "You hit my mother and I'll break your hand!" He loved his mother, and no one could beat his mother!

Seeing that his mother was caught by the child, Jimmy walked over, "Let go! Theresa, how did you teach your children?" This child looked at his mother with hatred, and he was startled! It could be seen how Theresa taught her children usually. The two children developed such a bad habit! Theresa said, "It's none of my son's business. You are cruel!" Rosales shouted, "Jimmy, I feel pain, and my finger is broken. Pull this bastard away!" Even though Rosales was screaming, Leonard grabbed Rosales's finger tightly, and did not let her go. Jimmy looked at Leonard with disgust. He grabbed Leonard's hand and forced him to let go. "You are a disobedient child." He was an adult, and he was ruthless. He ignored that Leonard was just a child, and he did his action rudely. He threw Leonard aside, finally, Leonard and Rosales were separated. Leonard bumped into a side wall because of inertia, causing a loud sound, Jimmy ignored this, and walked to his mother directly Theresa widened her eyes when she saw this. She quickly picked Leonard up "Leonard!"

By Jacqueline Chapter 21

Chapter 021

Only then did she realize her son had a raised bump on his head. Although the two children didn't grow up in superior living conditions and didn't have the best upbringing, Theresa never let them get hurt, Jimmy was the jerk who had harmed them.

"Jimmy!" Gritting her teeth, she yelled his name. She caught Jimmy's cold stare as he sarcastically remarked, "You go back to discipline your son, and look at him; He is behaving like a little rascal! He won't have a good future! Luckily he met me today, if he met anyone else, his hand would be broken!" It was just a bump on the head. He had shown mercy! Theresa rose to her feet and smacked him across the face, "My son is not a little rascal. Please keep your mouth shut!" Jimmy had no idea she was going to hit him. "How dare you hit me?" he asked, looking at her. Theresa slapped him across the face in front of everyone. He, as a man, simply could not stand it! Theresa ignored his rage because she was concerned about Leonard, so she squatted down, hugged Leonard, and prepared to leave. Jimmy grabbed her hand and pulled her back, "Would you like to leave after beating me?" Theresa took a look at the man. His eyes were bloodshot and ferocious. He was not as gentle and elegant as usual. She twitched the corner of her mouth, "What? Do you want to fight back? Then you try hitting one instead." "Don't hit my mother," Leonard warned as he wrapped his arms around Theresa's neck. Theresa's heart was softened by Leonard's words. Even though he was injured, he still wanted to protect her. Her heart was racing and tears were welling up in her eyes. Theresa had never cried, no matter what her family had done to her. But the child was injured, which made her a little unable to bear. The situation was in a stalemate. "Honey," Suddenly, a voice came from the side. It happened to be Rose's. Rose walked over from the crowd and was surprised to see everyone there, including Theresa and Jimmy, "What's wrong with you?" "Rose," Hearing Rose's voice, Rosales immediately restrained herself. She behaved well in front of her daughter-in-law, as if she was a well-educated and polite woman, and would not let Rose see her shrewish side. In the past, when they got married, Rosales had kept it from Theresa very well. At that time, Theresa even thought that she had a good mother-in-law. Later, she realized how crazy her mother-in-law was! Seeing Rose, Jimmy felt a little guilty, "Why are you here?" "I didn't see you come back, so I came to see you. What's wrong? Dr. Cameron, why are you here?" She looked at Theresa in confusion and then looked at Jimmy. Jimmy replied, "Nothing. Let's go to have dinner. I'll talk to you later." He couldn't let Theresa say anything to her. Theresa looked at the guilty look on Jimmy's face as soon as he saw Rose. She found that he was good at pretending! Rose asked, "Dr. Cameron, would you like to have dinner with me?" Anyway, they had known each other! She wanted to invite Theresa to join her. Jimmy said, "No need." He took Rose and left, calling his mother with him. After returning to the private room, Rose asked, "What happened? I heard so much commotion." It turned out that when she left, nothing seemed to have happened. "Nothing," Jimmy replied. "How is it all right?" Rosales said, "Rose, that woman is bullying me, look at my hand, my hand is going to be wrenched off by her." "Did Dr. Cameron do it?" Rose inquired. She was a little taken aback. Theresa did not appear to be this type of person! But...

Her mother-in-law was normally a very gentle person. "Her son was the one who did it. I've never seen such a menacingly wild child. He's only a few years old, but he's already so cruel. He must become a murderer when he grows up!" Rosales had Rose on her side and simply blamed Theresa. Of course, she wouldn't blame herself.

Anyway, she was the right one in her eyes. After all, Theresa had an affair and cheated on her son! Rose stated, "Some children are, in fact, more disobedient. Mom, how are your hands? Let's go to the hospital and take a look." Rosales said, "I'm fine. It's just that woman. Her son hit someone, and she just hit Jimmy. Look, there is a palm print on his face now." Rose sneered at Jimmy's handsome face and saw a palm print. She frowned and asked, "Did Dr. Cameron hit you?" "Nothing," replied Jimmy "Nothing, I have to ask her to apologize. Jimmy, you are too softhearted!" "Mom," Jimmy glanced at his mother and didn't want her to say anything more. The more he talked, the more he couldn't hide his relationship with Theresa. Rosales glanced at her and said nothing.

They didn't have much to eat. Rose had to go to Calsis's house, so they finished the meal in advance. Jimmy accompanied her out of the restaurant and the two got in the car. In the car, Rose asked, "did she hit you?" She felt terrible when she saw the slap on his face. Anyway, Jimmy was her husband and Theresa... Even if her family liked her, she couldn't take such an outrageous move. "It doesn't matter," replied Jimmy. "I'll ask her when we get back." Rose said, "No matter what, you can't just let people hit you." Jimmy looked at Rose's firm look and didn't say anything.

Theresa sent the two children home. Leonard was injured. She applied some medicine to him but didn't rush to Calsis's house. Instead, she stayed and accompanied Leonard, "Leonard, does it hurt?" Leonard was held in Theresa's arms and said, "No, it doesn't hurt." Theresa said, "In the future when you encounter this kind of thing, don't rush up there again." Although he protected her, she didn't want to see her child get hurt. Leonard shook his head, "I want to, I want to protect mommy, I can't let mommy be bullied by the bad guys." He had a determined face. Ben was on the side, saying, "Mom, don't worry, Leonard and I will grow up, no one will dare to bully you in the future, don't be sad, okay?" Theresa listened to the conversation between the two babies, her nose was sore and tears were falling. But she did not want to cry, afraid that if she cried, the two babies would also follow. She said, "Yes." Whenever she felt that life was meaningless, seeing them instantly filled her with strength again. Theresa turned to Leonard and said, "Don't go live on video calling tonight, you sleep well, okay?" "Okay." She took Leonard back to her room and called Ben over to accompany Leonard for a while. The phone rang, it was Jonathan's voice, "Ma'am, you're not here yet?" Half an hour had passed since the appointment, "Do you want me to come and pick you up?" "Sorry, I have something to do. Come over right away." Theresa hung up the phone and looked at Leonard, Ben was sitting aside, looking at Theresa's worried look, and said to Theresa, "Mom, go ahead with your work. I'll take care of Leonard." He always looks so reassuring! Theresa saw the scene and nodded her head. Then she got out of the house and took a taxi to the Calsis' house. The car stopped at the side door of Calsis' house, Theresa got down from the car and entered the door to find Rose and Jimmy had already come over. Rose usually lived with his father, but he was always away, busy with work, and she had nothing to do, so she liked to run over here to Calsis' house and spend time with Leticia and Grandpa Calsis.

By Jacqueline Chapter 22

Chapter 022 She was sitting on the sofa with Jimmy beside her, peeling fruit for her. The two of them looked very much in love. Theresa frowned at the sight. Leonard was still injured, but Jimmy was here with his beautiful wife! Rose raised her head and saw Theresa come in. "Dr. Cameron," she said. Theresa replied, "Yes, I'm going to see Mr. Calsis." She was going upstairs to give Charlie acupuncture. She was late! Rose replied, "I have something to ask you." Theresa looked back at her and saw the look in her eyes, guessed that she was going to ask about what happened at the restaurant, and she said, "About the restaurant?!" Rose replied, "Okay. Come and have a seat." She pointed to the sofa next to her. Seeing this, Theresa came over.

Leticia, who was also sitting aside, heard about the restaurant and looked up at Theresa and Rose, "What is it?" This atmosphere made it a little serious. Rose's eyes looked a little cold. She seemed to be angry, but she maintained her politeness because she had to pay attention to her public image. She asked Theresa, "Did you hit my husband?" Theresa listened to her protective words and could understand how much she liked Jimmy. Because she liked him, she wouldn't let anyone hurt him. Looking at the stiff face of this noble lady, she knew that Rose was going to make trouble for her. Theresa took a look at Jimmy, who was sitting next to Rose, and admitted, "I hit him!" "Then you should apologize to him," Rose pursed her lips and looked serious. Theresa heard Rose asking her to apologize and said, "Does Mrs. Watson know what happened at that time? Do you want me to apologize to her?" Rose said, "I don't want to know, and I'm not interested in knowing. No matter what dispute you have, it's always wrong to hit someone. Grandma, don't you think so?" She hoped to let Leticia do her justice. Leticia looked at Theresa, "Did you hit someone?" "Yes, I did hit, but ..." Before she could finish her words, Leticia said, "It's wrong to hit someone. Apologize first." Although they didn't like Jimmy very much, after all, he was Rose's husband, and... Rose had always been obedient and sensible. Between Theresa and Jimmy, of course, Leticia would help him. Jimmy sat aside, and glanced at Theresa, with the corner of his mouth raised. Did she think that others would understand and believe her when she spoke? Rose was the princess of the Calsis family. Everyone spoiled her. Theresa was nothing but a part-time worker. The old man was confused and mistook her for Sarah. She was insignificant. Rose could let her go whenever she felt happy to do so! How could Theresa still fantasize about marrying Charlie and having Rose refer to her as her third aunt? What a joke!

Theresa looked at Rose's aggressive look and said, "What if I don't apologize?"

Rose pursed her lips and said, "Then I'm sorry. I have to ask you to leave. Jimmy is my husband. I love him very much. I won't let anyone bully him. Even you can't!" Originally, she had a good impression of Theresa because her great grandfather liked Theresa so much. But if Theresa was unwilling to apologize, she would not forgive her! Theresa looked at Rose and asked, "Miss Nandlall, do you know what kind of person the man beside you is?" Jiminy sat aside and looked at Theresa. Afraid that she would say something more, he said, "Dr. Cameron, don't say anything to sow discord, you can't sow discord between me and Rose, and she won't believe your made-up words!" He raised his eyebrows and looked at Theresa. The warning was obvious. Even Theresa dared to inquire about his past, he wasn't scared. Knowing that Rose liked him so much, she wouldn't have to ignore him. But it would be impossible for Theresa to continue working in the Calsis household if the Calsis family knew! Theresa observed Jimmy's relaxed expression. Despite his flaws, he was confident that Rose would protect him. So she couldn't hurt him in any way?

What happened today was his fault, and no one profited from it later. She was still enraged and felt compelled to apologize to him. Theresa said, "I won't apologize. I work for Mr. Calsis. If you want to drive me away, you have to ask him for permission!"

After all, Charlie was Rose's third uncle. Rose couldn't decide for him! However, Theresa still felt a little in vain when she said that.

Theresa didn't know whether Charlie would protect her or not. After all, Rose was his niece. He seemed to care about her very much, but at the moment, she had no choice but to pretend to be nice to him. Hearing what Theresa said, Jimmy pursed his lips. Did she take herself seriously? Would Charlie help her? Who the hell was she? She didn't know how popular Rose was and loved by the Calsis family. Rose was the only one in her generation in the Calsis family now. Besides, she was obedient and sensible, and the Calsis family spoiled her very much. How could Theresa want to compete with Rose? It's so funny!

But it's good. With her personality, she should not apologize! Just let her be driven away because of this! He didn't want to see her in the Calsis' house every day! Hearing Theresa's words, Rose said, "Dr. Cameron, do you think I can't do anything to you? My Uncle Charlie loves me most. As long as I say a word, you still want to stay in the Calsis family. I thought you were a smart person and didn't want to make things difficult for you before, but you are so arrogant in front of me. No wonder you dare to hit my husband. It seems that you think that you can ignore me with the support of my great grandfather." Previously, Rose had thought that Jimmy might have treated Theresa badly. After all, he had been hostile to Theresa before. But now, looking at Theresa's reaction, she felt that Theresa was not a person to be trifled with! She just saw that her family treated her well, so she began to be arrogant. Now she could even beat someone so confidently! While Rose was talking, Leticia sat aside and looked at Theresa, seemingly, without the intention of protecting her. After all, Rose was closer to her.

Rose had a good temper. It was rare for her to be so angry. It could be seen that it was Theresa's fault. Even though they were a family, it made sense for them to support the righteous one. Jimmy sat cross-legged, looking at Theresa with a smug expression on his face. When Brenda saw such a scene, she took the initiative to speak, "Mrs. Watson is there any misunderstanding here?" She had recommended Theresa to the Calsis family. Brenda couldn't help but say a few words for her, knowing how difficult it was for her every day.

"Brenda, she was recommended by you, but now she beat up my husband and didn't even apologize, what do you think I should do?" Rose asked, "How could you stand something like this if you were me?" Brenda looked at Theresa and said, "Theresa, would you like to apologize?"

By Jacqueline Chapter 23

Chapter 023 Anyway, it was not good to offend Rose! At this moment, someone came, "What happened?" Charlie appeared in the doorway with Jonathan behind him. Theresa looked up and saw Charlie because it was evening. He was only wearing a white shirt at home. His collar was open and his collarbone was exposed. He looked casual. Jonathan assisted him in pushing the wheelchair. He came in and paused in the living room. He made a long face at everyone. Rose, in particular, used to be like a little sun, but today she pulled a long face. "Uncle Charlie," she said. When Jimmy saw Charlie, he stood up and addressed him respectfully as "Uncle Charlie." "What occurred? Who was the bully?" Charlie was devoted to her niece. Rose expressed her displeasure by frowning and saying, "No, I just feel like I'm being ignored more and more. Anyone who dares to step on me should be punished." Charlie frowned and said protectively, "With Uncle Charlie around, who dares to bully you?" Theresa was sitting next to her. Rose's eyes soon fell on Theresa. Rose said, "I went to a restaurant with Jimmy today and met Dr. Cameron. Dr. Cameron hit Jimmy. I just wanted her to apologize. After all, we all know each other. That's it. If we are outside and someone dares to hit Jimmy, I won't let it go! But she..." Looking at Theresa, she was a little angry, "She not only didn't apologize but also mentioned Uncle Charlie to suppress me." "Uncle Charlie, Rose is not unreasonable, Jimmy is good to me and is my husband, and I don't want to see people bullying him. Bullying him is bullying me! I don't know if Dr. Cameron doesn't take me seriously at all, or simply relies on the family to be polite to her... He dares to be so arrogant just because he is polite to her at home!" After Rose's words, Charlie's gaze moved over and landed on Theresa, asking, "Why did you hit someone?" Theresa took a look at the atmosphere in the living room. Leticia sat aside and watched quietly. Jimmy sat next to Rose without saying a word, but it could be seen how proud he was. As for Rose, to defend Jimmy, and because Theresa refused to apologize, she seemed to have suffered a great grievance. Charlie, being Rose's third uncle, was always closer to Rose than to Theresa, who was an outsider. It seemed that everyone would think it was her fault. But Theresa was still grateful to Charlie for giving her the chance to explain. She said, "Why did you hit someone? Because Jimmy hit my son, my son is only four years old, he pushed him, hit him against the wall, and he still has a big bump on his head, and he is still at home, and that is why I am late today. If it wasn't for Jonathan calling, I probably wouldn't have come over and would have stayed home to take care of him. As a mother, I can put up with anything, but... I can never put up with something that hurts my child, just like that, and ask me to apologize. That I can't do!" She didn't want to kill Jimmy to vent her anger, but she had to apologize to this man. Rose said, "It was your child who started it. Jimmy's mother's hand was still injured. She should be in the hospital now. Even if he hurt your child, he didn't do it on purpose. He is a nice person and is very patient with children. How could he hurt your child? Don't you reflect on yourself? How did you teach your child in the past? It should be your dereliction of duty to teach him like this, right? Rose had a clear intention of defending Jimmy.

Theresa took a look at Jimmy, seeing that he was sitting aside and didn't say anything. Just let Rose speak up on his behalf. She pursed her lips and said, "So that's what your husband said to you? You should ask him why he doesn't speak now." Rose glanced at Jimmy and said, "That's because he is a man and doesn't want to lower himself to the same level as you." "He used to target me more than once or two times, Miss Rose, are you sure you know the man beside you?" Rose replied, "of course, I know him. He is the best person in the world." "Did he ever tell you that he was married?" Theresa looked at Jimmy. Jimmy frowned and said with a dark face, "Theresa, watch your mouth." "What should I pay attention to? How dare you tell everyone that I've done you wrong?" Theresa was willing to risk everything now that things had come to this. If he wanted to threaten her, he had to see if he could do so! Rose looked at Jimmy and asked in disbelief, "Have you been married?" Jimmy knew that with Theresa here, he couldn't hide it from her. So he lied. This woman would expose him too. He clenched his fist hard, looked at Rose, and said, "Yes, there was a marriage." "Why didn't you tell me? You lied to me." She had never known this, and his family had never told him. The Calsis family had always had a problem with Jimmy, their son-in-law. Charlie sat aside, looked at Jimmy, and raised his eyebrows. Previously they only had a problem with his family background. However, he appeared to be too slick. He didn't seem to be a sincere person in the least.

She had no idea there would be such things! Rose appeared agitated as a result of this; she liked him so much, but he lied to her! Jimmy noticed her rage and said, "Rose, please hear me out; I didn't mean to lie to you. It's only that... It was too humiliating and embarrassing for me to tell you about it because of that incident." "Embarrassed?" Rose said, "But you're making me feel humiliated now!" She looked at Jimmy in disbelief; she was almost driven mad by him! Jimmy raised his head and took a look at Theresa. Blue veins stood out on his forehead. Sure enough, the reason why she was here was to destroy him and his relationship with Rose. He took a deep breath and said to Rose, "Originally, I didn't want to talk about this matter. I wanted everyone to keep a decent face. But today, Theresa said it out here. Rose, I have to tell you. You can listen to me and decide whether to forgive me or not, okay?" "Go ahead. I'm listening," Rose looked at him and wanted to see how he could explain. Jimmy said, "Didn't you always ask me why I hate Theresa? Because... She is my ex-wife!" "What did you say?" Rose looked at Theresa in disbelief. The rest of the Calsis family also looked at Theresa. Charlie took a look at Theresa. He had thought that there was something wrong between Jimmy and her before, but she didn't expect that it was because of this relationship. Jonathan was also surprised. No wonder he saw Jimmy go to Theresa before!

Chapter 24

Chapter 024 Jimmy had a difficult look on his face and said, "You must be wondering why she and I got into this mess, right? When we were together before, I treated her very well, but she... She cheated on me and gave birth to the two children with another man." Theresa raised the corners of her lips when she heard this, and for some reason, she wasn't surprised at all. When his mother said that before, he didn't explain. Now it seemed reasonable for him to coax his beautiful wife and defend himself with such words. After all, he had always been so selfish! "My mother has always been haunted by this matter, so she hates her, and when she saw her today, she just said a few words about her, and then the two got into a fight," Jimmy continued, "Those two kids also charged up and hit my mother... You can consider it. Could I have been unconcerned about the situation at the time? Her child was going to break my mother's hand!" "Theresa was the one who cheated on me, and after I divorced her, she moved out, but she was upset; she gave up all of her marital property, but she was unwilling to give up. For the past few years, she had been looking for me and wanted me to return the house to her. "Otherwise, she wouldn't let me be with other people." "She went to Calsis' house this time, specifically for me... Otherwise, how could it be that we just got married and she became an acupuncturist at the same time? When I first met her, she knew nothing about acupuncture!" "That's why I was skeptical of her acupuncture abilities and wished she'd leave..... However, because of Uncle Charlie..." As he spoke, he stole a glance at Charlie, "Until now, I still don't know how she hid it from Uncle Charlie and stayed in Calsis's house." After Jimmy's remarks, everyone had a new perspective on Theresa. Cheating, childbirth, divorce, blackmail, and even coming to the Calsis home to cheat, all appeared to be extremely abhorrent! It was simply heartbreaking. What a lunatic she was! "I had no hope for love, but when I met you, I realized you are my salvation," Jimmy said, smiling at Rose, "Rose, you are too good; I want to be with you, to be by your side; I dare not tell you why; one reason is that I am embarrassed, there is.....I was afraid you'd dislike me and look down on me because of this...." "Just like now, this woman, she deliberately appeared here, said these, succeeded in alienating me from you, didn't she? But from beginning to end, I don't know what I have done wrong. Maybe my only fault was that I was blind and married her!" Rose was just angry at Jimmy's words, but now when she heard this, she began to sympathize with him again. She even felt guilty for misunderstanding him just now. She turned to Jimmy and said, "It's not your fault, it's my ... I trust this woman too much. She looks like a good person. I didn't expect that there are so many things happening." Jimmy stated, "This is not your fault. You can only blame her for being too good at acting if you want to. That's all. If you still refuse to forgive me, I have no choice. I've had bad luck. I used to be in a relationship with her. But I hope you'll be able to take better care of yourself in the future." He didn't want to leave, but he made deliberate concessions to gain advantages, making Rose feel sorry for him. Theresa stepped back and observed the man's trick She discovered that he had previously played this trick on her! Rose was softhearted and wouldn't let him go. She said, "It's not your fault. Please don't... I'm not angry with you anymore!" She looked at Theresa and said to Leticia and Charlie, "grandma, Uncle Charlie, I used to like this woman, but now I hope you can drive her away. I really can't accept letting her stay at home. She is so shameless. There is no telling what kind of things she will do in the future." Hearing Rose's words, Jimmy finally let out a sigh of relief. He looked at Theresa, heck, just like her, she still wanted to bring him down, and she was unaware of his relationship with Rose. Even if the Calsis family didn't like him, as long as Rose forgave him, the Calsis family had no position to say anything. Theresa turned to face Jimmy and said, "Jimmy, you're as shameless as your mother. I was unable to bear children at first, which is why you duped me into giving birth in a hospital. Now you're accusing me of cheating on you?" Jimmy paid attention to her and said, "You're talking nonsense now that I've exposed you? Did you have your baby in a hospital? So why don't you show me the evidence?" Theresa's expression darkened. She considered the evidence. He was in charge of all the medical registration procedures when she gave birth to the baby, He later abandoned the baby and destroyed all evidence. Theresa had attempted to locate the evidence in the hospital, but it was not available. He was so confident now, just because he was sure that she couldn't find evidence! What a scheming man. Rose said, "Dr. Cameron, you should stop stirring up trouble, do you want to go by yourself, or should I ask you to ask you out?" She had reached the limit of her tolerance for Theresa and was even less willing to listen to Theresa's nonsense here, and she would not believe a word Theresa said now.

After all, just now, she had almost misunderstood Jimmy because of Theresa's words. Theresa looked at Rose and realized that she was really stupid and was being led by Jimmy She stated, "I can go by myself, but I hope you don't regret your stupidity today, Ms. Nandlall. After all, I believed in this man like you.. Her trust in him was all brainwashed at the time. She wished she could go back in time and slap her foolish self. She didn't know why she didn't hate Rose. She simply felt pathetic because she resembled herself in the past. Jimmy stated, "Rose is not the same as you. At the very least, she will not cheat. We've explained everything, but you haven't left yet. We appear to need to ask someone to invite you out." He gleefully looked at Theresa. She still wanted to fight with him despite the circumstances. He might have been more polite to her if she had listened to him. But it wasn't his fault that things had turned out this way! Theresa looked at Jimmy and stood up as soon as he finished his words. She knew that everyone in the world would believe Jimmy more than she would Everybody had been this way for years, including her father, except for Cristina. They were all convinced she was having an affair! Calsis' family members were not her relatives or friends, so she didn't expect them to believe her. When she was about to go out, she heard Charlie say, "Wait a minute."

Theresa looked back and saw Charlie sitting right in his wheelchair, having just listened to Jimmy and Rose. He hadn't said a word. He looked at her and said angrily, "I've been waiting for you the whole night. Do you want to leave now?"

Chapter 25

.....

Chapter 025 Theresa said, "As you can see, it's not that I want to leave, but Ms. Nandlall wants me to leave." Charlie said meaningfully, "Jimmy said you can't be a good person, I see that it is indeed a little worse." " " Theresa looked at him in disbelief, with a feeling of annoyance. What did he mean? Add insult to injury? She thought he was a good man before, but she didn't expect him to be such a person! Jimmy sat aside, hearing Charlie's words, Jimmy raised his eyebrows. He looked at Theresa with contempt. Not even Charlie could assist her. She, at last, understood what the Calsis family thought of her. Did she previously want to wed Charlie? It was absurd! Charlie uttered, "How will I perform the acupuncture if you leave? You previously made a promise to do it, but you are free to leave at this time. You have no contract spirit." She could tell that Charlie was speaking with obvious disgust, but when she paid close attention, she realized that he wanted Theresa to stay. Jimmy stated, "If you need acupuncture, Uncle Charlie, I can find another person for you. As for her, she's just playing a bluff. She might have given the wrong diagnosis and made the situation more severe!" Hearing Jimmy's words, Charlie looked at him and said, "I'm talking to her. When is it your turn to interrupt?" Jimmy was stunned. He didn't understand why Charlie got angry with him again! Maybe it was because... he had been married and made Charlie unhappy. Jimmy didn't dare to say anything. Rose said, "Uncle Charlie, Jimmy is right, this kind of person, should not stay in the house, she is too bad in character." Charlie said, "Rose, Uncle Charlie understand, you and your husband's feelings deep, but... What Jimmy just said, it's all in the past,

Theresa is my person now. She cannot go!" "I don't want to see her at home anyway. It's okay to change another person to do the acupuncture." Rose frowned. If Theresa stayed at home, wouldn't she have to find a way to destroy her relationship with Jimmy all the time? The thought of such a thing would keep happening, and she was upset. Charlie glanced at Theresa lightly and said to Jimmy and Rose, "There is indeed more than one acupuncturist. One can change an acupuncturist at will, but to be my wife, she is the only one." Jimmy looked at Charlie in surprise, what did Uncle Charlie mean by this? How did Theresa become his wife? Just because of the old man's business? Rose said, "Uncle Charlie, you want to marry her? Even if grandpa likes her, you can't do this! She cheated on you and had a child with someone else, how can she be worthy of you?" In Rose's heart, even if Uncle Charlie, her third uncle, got married, he had to marry an incomparably excellent woman, not someone like Theresa who had bad deeds. She didn't deserve her third uncle at all. Charlie replied, "No." Jimmy was relieved to hear him say no. Rose said, "It's good that it's not, I almost thought, Uncle

Charlie, is going to be old and confused." Looking at the two people, Charlie smiled and said, "I've already got the marriage certificate with Theresa, and the formalities have already been completed. I haven't informed you before. Today, I'll officially introduce her to you. From now on, she's your third aunt!" Jiminy "..."

Thuid..... Third Aunt! Was be kidding?

Charlie and Theresa had gotten the marriage certificate? The point was that Charlie didn't know about Theresa at that time. But now, he had heard of all the evils of Theresa. Why did he insist on keeping Theresa here? "Is it take? I don't believe it." Rose said, "Uncle Charlie, don't make fun of me." How could they have gotten the marriage certificate? "Jonathan, go to get the marriage license and show it to Rose." Jonathan nodded, "Yes" Then he walked away The atmosphere in the living room was so silent, Theresa glanced at Charlie, not understanding what he wanted to do. Seeing that Charlie was so determined, Rose hesitated and asked, "Have you got the marriage certificate?"

Charlie said, "You'll know soon." Why did he have to lie? Rose stated. "But Theresa... She's been involved in so many awful things. She hides out at home to hunt down Jimmy Jimmy and I won't have a day of peace with her at home." Not to mention that she was here to make people uncomfortable, it was uncomfortable enough that she was Jimmy's ex-wife. Charlie said calmly, "Don't worry, she's not interested in your man, and she won't threaten your relationship." Rose glanced at Theresa and said, "I don't believe it! You just met her, you don't know what kind of person she is, and I was all fooled by her before and thought she was a good person!" Charlie took a look at Rose and smiled, "When she is with me, she only cares about me. Not everyone will treat Jimmy as a treasure like you, right? Honey?" Charlie glanced at Theresa and asked for her opinion.

Theresa took a look at him. She had thought that he would protect Rose and believe Jimmy's words. She had thought he also came for Jimmy, at this moment, hearing him speak for herself, Theresa was a little touched. She nodded, "yes. Before I came here, I didn't know that Jimmy was also here I didn't mean to destroy his relationship with Ms. Nandlall."

After getting Theresa's words, Charlie said to Rose, "Did you hear that?"

Rose replied, "Of course, she said that now. If it weren't tor Jimmy's explanation today, I would have been in trouble."

"That's because you are stupid. What does it have to do with her?" Charlie looked at Rose. Although this niece was very cute, she was led by Jimmy's nose from start to finish!

Even though Rose was deeply touched by Jimmy's sincere words just now. Charlie was used to those double faced and insincere people, so she didn't believe Jimmy's words at all. Rose was choked by Charlie's words. But Charlie was her third uncle, so it's only right to say a few words about her. She felt wronged and her eyes turned red, "Uncle Charlie always bullies me! It's obvious that this woman is wrong for such a big thing to happen, and you still help her, an outsider!" "She's not an outsider, little girl; she's my wife, she'll be the one, who gives birth to my children, and she'll be the one who stays with me until I die; how can she be an outsider?" Jimmy and Rose, to be honest, were the outsiders. Rose's eyes welled up with tears as she heard Charlie's words, "Is that why I should let go of what happened today? just forget about it?" This annoyance was unbearable to her! Charlie cast a glance at Theresa, saw her sitting aside with a frown on her face, and said, "Of course not let it just go! Then what do you want to do about it?" Rose asked Charlie after hearing his words

Chapter 26

Chapter 026 Charlie said, "I have understood the matter of Jimmy's beating; both sides are responsible, both sides are at fault! Don't you want an apology? I also agree with what you proposed at the beginning. Since we're all family, apologize and forget about it." Rose heard; just let Theresa apologize, and let bygone be bygone. How could that work? She had asked Theresa to apologize because she didn't know what else she had done!

But now... She said, "Let this woman apologize and forgive her. That's too easy for her!" Theresa pursed her lips and clenched her fists hard; she was not going to apologize! She would never apologize to Jimmy! Charlie glanced at Theresa, who was alone and angry, with a somewhat complicated expression Jimmy sat aside and knew that Rose was very serious when she was angry, and no matter what, she would throw Theresa out. But he didn't quite want to offend Charlie, didn't want to be the bad guy himself, so he pretended to persuade Rose: "Rose, Uncle Charlie has said so, let her apologize and forget it!" Rose took a look at Jimmy and said, "No! You are just too soft hearted! Just an apology, I am not sure how she will bully you in the future! She dares to come to the Calsis' house, she just wants to see you being bullied!" Charlie smiled as he heard what the two people said. He told Rose, "You appear to have made a mistake Rose. When did I ask Theresa to apologize? I asked your husband to apologize to your third aunt. This situation will be over." "No..." Rose was astounded. What? Why did he ask Jimmy to apologize? Was Uncle Charlie insane? She turned to Charlie and said, "But it's entirely her fault! She even smacked Jimmy!" "Let's not get into it. It was started by Jimmy's family. Even if Theresa was the one who started it, she is your third aunt. She has the right to discipline the younger generation. Is there anything wrong with this? She can still beat you if you don't listen to her in the future." Charlie's wife occupied the same position in the family as he did. How could his wife have been bullied? Rose said, "It's unfair! Uncle Charlie, you are so unreasonable!" "Unconvinced?" Charlie said, "Hold back." Rose: "....." Charlie looked at Jimmy and said, "Jimmy, I asked you to apologize to the third aunt. What are you waiting for?" "....." Jimmy had just pretended to persuade Rose. Jimmy felt a burning pain on his face after Charlie had made the acknowledgment. How could Charlie ask him to apologize to Theresa? Charlie continued, noticing his hesitation, "Theresa is my wife, and her child is, by definition, my child. My young sons were injured as a result of your actions; I am asking for an apology; what went wrong? I am not an unreasonable person, and you are not required to apologize. You can directly divorce Rose. Since she was a child, Rose has been a good girl. You were out of her league to match her." Charlie spoke in a light tone. However, it was clear that he was not joking. Uncle Charlie threatened to separate the couple if Jimmy didn't apologize! "Uncle Charlie, do you want me to divorce Jimmy?" Rose inquired. She looked at Charlie, stunned. He did it on purpose for this bad woman Theresa! "Yes," Charlie replied... Rose bit her lower lip and stated, "I disagree, and I'm not getting a divorce. I adore Jimmy, and no one can ever separate us." "Rose," Charlie's expression darkened, "It appears that you don't even take Uncle Charlie's words seriously because of this brat?" Although Charlie was easy to talk to, he looked very frightening when he got angry! At this moment, seeing that he was about to lose his temper, Rose immediately turned to Leticia, who was standing aside, and said, "Grandma." Leticia looked at this scene, and then looked at Theresa, she asked Charlie, "Charlie, you and Theresa, really want to continue to be together?" She only knew that Theresa had divorced before, but at that time, she didn't know that she had anything to do with Jimmy. No matter how much Charlie liked her, she wouldn't let her stay! Hearing her words, Charlie knew what her mother was thinking. He wanted to keep Theresa here because Theresa could cure his leg and his grandfather liked him. The two of them had no feelings for each other. What happened between her and Jimmy had nothing to do with him.

He nodded, "Yes. I like her very much. I won't marry anyone except her." Looking at his serious face, Leticia knew that he was not joking. With a straight face, she sighed. Charlie had never been in a hurry to get married. Leticia had urged him numerous times, but the two of them had not held the wedding, Leticia didn't know what to say now that he was so obsessed with Theresa! "Jimmy, apologize to your third aunt!" she said to Rose and Jimmy.

The Calsis family had always been concerned about the elder-child hierarchy. Charlie was correct; given that Theresa was his third aunt, not to mention hitting him, she even has the right to help discipline Rose. That was also the right thing to do in the Calsis household. What's more, since Charlie had said that, Rose could only make Jimmy suffer a little humiliation. Jimmy had thought that he would see Theresa get out of Calsis's house soon, but he didn't expect that... He would apologize to Theresa. Theresa sat aside, holding the cup and crossing her legs as if it was none of her business. Even if she didn't do anything, in Jimmy's eyes, Theresa was mocking her. However, Charlie just sat aside. Jimmy took a look at Charlie and knew that Charlie was a man of his word. The Calsis family didn't like him at all. Rose's father was also extremely critical of him. It Charlie intervened once more What if he had to divorce Rose?

He didn't dare to think about the outcome. He had to put up with Theresa and said, "I'm sorry, what happened today, it's my problem, and I apologize to you." Theresa took a look at Jimmy and knew that he cared about everything he had now. Otherwise, he wouldn't have apologized to her! She didn't expect that the proud man would bow to her. She spoke calmly, "I've never met you before. Please do not call my name. Just refer to me as the third aunt." Jimmy: "....." This lady! Did she do it on purpose to irritate him? Charlie and Leticia were sitting next to him. Everyone in the room was staring at him. "I'm sorry, third aunt," he bit his lower lip. The last two words nearly slipped out of his mouth. Theresa turned to face him and said, "It makes no difference. I forgive you, my nephew-in-law." Jimmy: "....."

Jimmy's face had darkened as a result of what she had said. It couldn't be any darker on the face! He would never forget his humiliation! Rose didn't expect that things would turn out like this and she was in a bad mood. She took a look at Charlie and said, "Uncle Charlie, I'm going back today."

After saying that, she stood up and walked out directly. Jimmy took a look at Theresa, holding back his anger, and had to go with Rose.

Chapter 27

Chapter 027 As soon as they left, Theresa and Charlie went upstairs and went back to Charlie's room. Thinking about how Charlie had just defended her, she felt relieved. She couldn't help but be polite to this man, "Thank you." Charlie said, "No need to be polite, since you are my wife, I naturally won't let others bully you." Only he was capable of bullying his people. Theresa relaxed with upturned lips. She said, "I don't expect to see that Mr. Calsis is a person with guts. The woman who can marry you in the future should be very happy." She was an honest and forthright woman. She didn't mind complimenting Charlie. Charlie gave her a cold look and said, "Don't fall in love with me, lady. Remember our agreement. Don't put yourself down because I treat you better. The most annoying women are those who flatter themselves." Theresa shook her head helplessly, finding him to be just as narcissistic as before. She assured him, "Don't be concerned! I haven't forgotten a single detail of the contract. I won't like you even if the sky falls apart and the river flows backward." Charlie snorted slightly. Looking at her double-face, he hoped that she would be able to maintain her stubbornness.

After the acupuncture was over, Theresa packed up her things and was ready to go back when Charlie said, "You stay at home." Theresa said, "Why?" "Because of Grandpa, of course. What else?" Charlie said, "Grandpa has been looking for you since you left this afternoon. We have been coaxing him for a long time. If you live at home in the future, it will be more convenient and you don't have to come and go." Theresa refused, "no, the child is still at home. I want to go back to see him." Thinking about Leonard's injury, Theresa's face was ugly. Charlie heard this and said, "Oh." Theresa said, "When Grandpa wants to see me, just call me. I really can't make it tonight."

Charlie said, "Okay." Looking at Charlie, Theresa remembered that he had helped two children teach Jimmy a lesson. She said, "Mr. Calsis you are a good person. Thank you for helping my children today." Except for Cristina, Theresa found that no one around her treated the two children well. Including her father... They all thought that her children were the product of her infidelity and had no good feelings for the two children.

It was the first time that someone spoke for the two children. Charlie said, "If you want to thank me, don't talk nonsense. Just find a way to get Sarah back!" Theresa nodded, "Okay." Charlie said, "All right, go back!" Theresa looked at him, never asked about herself from the beginning to the end, and said, "My two children... are actually..." She originally thought that since Charlie helped herself, she had better tell him clearly, lest he thinks she was a woman who cheated on her mate. As a result, before she could finish, Charlie interrupted her, "This is your private matter; it has nothing to do with me." Theresa raised her eyebrows. She was moved by his behavior of standing on her side without asking anything. She said, "Anyway, thank you." Theresa chatted with Charlie for a few minutes when there was a knock on the door of the room. Charlie: "Come in." Jonathan walked in and took a look at Theresa. He said to Charlie, "Master Calsis, grandpa is awake. He is looking for your wife." Hearing this, Charlie frowned. Grandpa was eager to see Theresa as soon as he opened his eyes. They walked out of Charlie's room and went straight to see their grandfather. At this moment, Grandpa was in the lounge on the two floors. The horse was beside him

I Let him eat he did not eat, take medicine also did not eat, want to see Theresa.

It was only when Theresa and Charlie appeared together and he saw the two of them that his face got better, "Sarah." "Hello, grande," Theresa said politely, Grandpa Calsis said, "Come quickly and sit down." Theresa listened to him, nodded her head, walked over to Grandpa, and sat down. The caregivers were envious when they saw how sensible Grandpa was as soon as Theresa appeared. It would be nice if the old man was Theresa had just sat down when Grandpa Calsis said, "By the way, where are the things you were told to prepare, hurry up and bring them over." The maids listened and hurriedly went to get them. Theresa was a little curious, and soon saw the maid bring two large booklets over, Grandpa Calsis took them over and flipped them to Theresa, while flipping them and asking, "Sarah, take a look, which one do you like." All of them were wedding dress pictures, "Grandpa, is this too much of a rush?" Theresa wondered.

"Of course, you young people must attend to the wedding despite your procrastination. I swear to you, this Charlie kid knows nothing about romance, Furthermore, he has poor taste when it comes to wedding gowns. Grandpa has excellent taste." Charlie rubbed his brow as he sat on the sidelines, listening to his grandfather's constant derogatory remarks. Was he still his grandson? He was even going to doubt his origin. Theresa laughed as she listened to her grandfather's words. She glanced at Charlie, who with his stern face didn't look like a romantic man.

As for his taste, she didn't know. But if Grandpa said so, it would not be good. Seeing that she was watching a good show, Charlie asked, "What are you laughing at?" "I just think Grandpa knows you pretty well." "Do you believe his nonsense?" Charlie snorted, "What's wrong with my taste?" "Then you pick one?" Grandpa looked at him. Seeing that he was still not convinced, he simply gave him the job. One of the brochures was quickly handed to Charlie, and he flipped through the wedding dress styles, saying, "These, can you look at them? All of them are ugly as hell." "Look, look, and here he goes again," Grandpa covered his mouth with one hand and whispered to Theresa in a voice that Charlie could hear. Charlie: ". ." Could this be his problem? Those wedding dresses were ugly in the first place! When she was chatting with her grandfather, Theresa coaxed him to take the medicine. Her mission was finally over.

She looked at her watch. It was late. If she didn't go back, the two children would be anxious to death. She took a look at Charlie with pleading eyes. Charlie understood that she was in a hurry to go back. He said to Grandpa, "Grandpa, we want to go back to our room to have a rest." Grandpa listened to Charlie's words and looked at Theresa with some reluctance, always feeling that talking to Theresa was not enough. Charlie continued, "If we don't go back to our room earlier, how can you have a great-grandson?" She knew that was what grandpa cared about the most.

Hearing this, Grandpa Calsis's face immediately turned better, even more, anxious than theirs. He said, "Go, and go! Go to bed early. Don't worry about me, grandpa." Theresa blushed when she heard that she had a great-grandson. Charlie sat aside and looked at the blush on her face. He didn't expect that this woman was so innocent. Taking advantage of this opportunity, the two of them finally came out of Grandpa Calsis's house. After leaving the lounge, Theresa took a look at Charlie and said, "thank you, Mr. Calsis. I'll go back today," "Wait a minute."

Chapter 28

Chapter 028

"Mr. Calsis?" Charlie didn't like the way he addressed her, "Call me hubby or my name at home." "Hubby?" Theresa was embarrassed by the way she addressed him. She coughed and said, "Then I'd better call you Charlie." She couldn't call him hubby! "Whatever." For the sake of his grandfather, he gave her this opportunity. It was okay if she didn't cherish it! After greeting Charlie, Theresa left Calsis's house. When they arrived home, Leonard and Ben had fallen asleep. Ben was lying next to his brother with his hand still on Leonard's body; the two little ones who looked alike snuggled together lovingly. In the morning, Theresa got up and made breakfast for the two children, while the three of them sat in the dining room to eat. Ben kept browsing on his little video game, and Theresa said, "Ben, eat well, you're going to be late later." "Okay," After hearing that, he began to eat obediently. Only five minutes later, he was back to his original situation "Don't play with the phone if you keep on doing that again, okay?" Theresa's words finished and her mouth puckered together. After two punches on the dining table, Ben began to eat. He never checked his mother's phone again. Theresa's phone rang. She opened it and found that it was Jonathan who sent her a message on Whatsapp "Madam, Master Calsis is going to the company today. You can go straight to the company to find him later I'll send you the address." The following also carried the location of Calsis Group, Theresa replied, "Got it." Ben languidly raised his head and complained, "Then why can mom play with her phone)" "... .." Theresa was flustered, "Mom is working" It seemed that she had to play with her cell phone less in the future when she had dinner, so as not to give her child a bad influence Theresa hurriedly put her phone down and finished her meal. After sending the two children to the kindergarten, she rushed to Charlie's company according to the address sent by Jonathan. The Calsis group was very large. The eighty-eight floor building stood in the center of the city. Theresa walked in and registered at the front desk. The receptionist, who was a cute girl, asked, "Miss Cameron, are you looking for someone? Do you need me to contact her?" Theresa said, "Well, I'm looking for Charlie; just tell me how to get there." Hearing the two words "Charlie", the receptionist's face became a little complicated. She said, "Mr. Calsis usually won't meet anyone casually. If you want to see him, I'm afraid you won't be able to see him." This woman dressed very ordinary and didn't look like a rich woman. So she should not be a friend of Mr. Calsis. There were often women coming to the company to look for Charlie. Nine out of ten were driven out. Theresa replied, "I know. But I'm his wife." "What?" When she heard that, the cute girl smiled and said, "In fact, I'm his sister." "....." Theresa's mouth twitched. Without further argument, she handed over her name card and said, "I'm an acupuncture specialist. I'm here to treat him. I've made an appointment with Jonathan. You can call him and ask him." After hearing that, the cute girl made a phone call. After receiving a response, she took Theresa to the VIP elevator. She pressed the elevator door for Theresa and made a gesture of welcome, "Take your time." "Thank you." Theresa smiled and took the elevator upstairs. The secretary came to pick her up and said, "Mr. Calsis is still in a meeting. Please wait here." "Thank you." Theresa sat down on the sofa. After a while, someone poured her a cup of tea. It had to be said that the service attitude of their company was really good.

Theresa sat there for a while and looked at her phone. The kindergarten's sent her a message about the two children at school; she was looking at it seriously when someone came over. "Miss Christie," was the courteous voice of the secretary. "Where is Mr. Calsis?" The woman, called Miss Christie by the secretary, spoke in a somewhat domineering tone. The voice... It was somewhat familiar. Theresa raised her head and found that it was Marlene Christie, her high school classmate.

Because of the children's matter, Theresa seldom contacted her classmates, nor attended any classmate reunion.

She used to be a social person. Later, her life changed a lot. The secretary was still answering Marlene's question, "Mr. Calsis is in a meeting. You have to wait." Marlene sat down on the sofa aside and said, "Do you know how valuable my time is? Can you afford to pay for the loss of delaying me by telling me to wait?" Theresa was a little surprised, Marlene used to be so timid, but now she dared to call Charlie's bluff.

Marlene was an actress now. She had filmed several movies, and the reaction was not bad, and her popularity had also increased. When people went smoothly, their temperament would also be different. They looked completely different from before. Theresa didn't greet her. But Marlene found her soon after she sat down. When she saw Theresa, she didn't embarrass the Secretary anymore. Instead, she turned to look at Theresa, "Theresa?" Theresa smiled, "Marlene, it's been a long time." Marlene's lips lifted and said, "It's been a long time since we last met. How did you get into this mess?" Cameron's family was well off. Theresa's father, Johnson, had been doing good business all the time. Therefore, Theresa was a rich girl in high school. She had new clothes to wear every day, and even her schoolbag was the best and most expensive. Usually, there was a car picking her up to and off work. At that time, she was like a little princess. Compared to her, Marlene felt like an ugly duckling. Her family was poor, and her father was addicted to gambling. After graduating from college, Theresa got married to Jimmy and Marlene became an internet celebrity, she was popular online and later moved directly to the entertainment industry. Her career was getting better and better.

As for Theresa, she divorced Jimmy, and there were rumors that she had an affair. Even her father ignored her, and her life was a mess. Even the clothes she was wearing now were bought on Amazon for around 100 dollars. Unlike Theresa, Marlene was dressed in designer labels. Any piece of clothes was enough for her to eat for a year. Theresa praised, "You're doing great now." Marlene flipped her hair and said, "I'm fine. So women should have their careers. They can't get married too early nor have children too early. What's the use of having children? Look at you... If I don't tell you, I can't recognize you!" She kind of looked down on Theresa at the moment. She had liked Jimmy before, but at that time, Jimmy was a big shot in the school and didn't like her. Now she thought about it and felt lucky that she didn't like it. If she got married as early as Theresa, how could she be like today? Theresa listened to Marlene without saying anything. But Marlene didn't seem to let her go. Marlene continued, "By the way, look at my watch. Is it beautiful?" Theresa took a look at it; it was something she couldn't afford to wear, "Not bad." "It costs several million."

Chapter 29

Chapter 029 "You're so wealthy now." Perhaps it was because Theresa had made every effort to buy gifts for her two children. She even purchased clothes at a low cost. She didn't spend as much money on herself. Of course, the family used to be quite well off, but it wasn't extravagant, and Cameron's family was just an ordinary family. Marlene stated, "I'm fine. Life seems so magical to me. When I was in school, I envied you greatly. I've always had the same thoughts as you. You come from a wealthy family with good grades, but fortunately, I was not like you... Do you think so?" Theresa's mouth twitched, "Yes." Marlene asked again, "what are you doing here? Looking for Mr. Calsis?" Theresa replied, "I'm an acupuncture specialist. I'm doing the acupuncture for Mr. Calsis these two days." "I see." Marlene said, "Do you make money by doing this? I thought you would find a decent job anyway." As a result... That's it?

Hearing the superiority in Marlene's tone, Theresa didn't know what to say, "I think my work is not bad." It seemed that it was not shameful at all! Marlene flaunted, "I'm the spokesperson of the brand under the Calsis group now. They have paid a good amount of money for the spokesperson. There are tens of millions a year. If you have the chance, let's have dinner together. It's my treat." "Thank you," Theresa smiled. Not to mention that Marlene didn't have her eye on Theresa, but Theresa herself was dissatisfied with her situation. She must have had a brain cramp at the time because she chose to have Jimmy have a child at such a young age! Even Marlene dared to brag in front of her now. Fortunately, Charlie completed the meeting quickly. Jonathan was accompanying him in a wheelchair. Seeing him, Marlene stood up and said, "Mr. Calsis." Although she looked arrogant in front of the secretary just now, she didn't dare to be arrogant in front of Charlie. She was too polite. After all, Charlie was the sugar daddy of the entertainment industry. If she offended Charlie, it would be difficult for her to stay in the entertainment circle in the future, not to mention that she couldn't get the endorsement. Charlie didn't look at her. She looked at Theresa and said, "Come in with me." Theresa stood up and followed Charlie into the office. Seeing the two people enter the room, Marlene looked at Jonathan and protested, "Why didn't you talk to me first and make me wait? I have an announcement to catch later." Jonathan had a polite smile on his face, "Sorry, Miss Christie, our Mr. Calsis is rather busy." "But..." Anyway, she was the spokesperson of their company. She was better than Theresa! She didn't expect Theresa would to meet Mr.

Calsis first! Seeing that Marlene was unhappy, Jonathan said, "If Miss Christie has a problem with it, you can come again next time." But Charlie was always busy. It was difficult to make an appointment with him. If Marlene left, she didn't know when she would see Charlie next time. Marlene was speechless and sat down at one side.

Theresa was leading Charlie into his office, his office is not small, and he sat down by the sofa, and said to Theresa, "Waiting for a long time?" "No, I just arrived." Theresa said, "That Miss, Christie... How about you get down to business first?" After hearing what she said, Charlie asked, "Do you think your business is not serious?" Marlene was just a spokesperson. He had too much work to handle. But Theresa was related to the treatment of his leg, which was the most important thing. Theresa said, "But the acupuncture will take a long time." It would take forty or fifty minutes to finish it. Charlie said, "Let her wait." Theresa was speechless. No wonder he was the sugar daddy of the entertainment industry.

Marlene waited at the door for twenty minutes and was a little anxious when she saw that Theresa hadn't come out of Charlie's office. She frowned, "How long do we have to wait?" The assistant said, "Wait a little longer, maybe she'll come out in a while." ". ." Marlene was upset inside, "Will we be late later?" "It's okay; I'll call and ask for a leave of absence."

Forty minutes later, Theresa was finally done with her acupuncture this morning. She packed up her things and heard Charlie say, "Wait for me outside and have lunch together." "Uh..." Theresa looked over at him and said, "No, I guess, I can..." "You're turning me down?" He looked a little reluctant. Every time he was rejected, his face was gloomy. Theresa remembered the salary he offered and gave a happier- looking smile with an upturned lip, "Okay Mr. Calsis, I'll wait for you outside." She grabbed her things and walked out the door. Marlene hurriedly stood up when she saw the office door finally open and Theresa walked out. It was... She had been waiting for him for so long. Theresa saw her and said, "Marlene, Mr. Calsis wants you in." Marlene frowned, took a look at Theresa, and said, "I thought you wouldn't come out!" "Sorry for keeping you wait." Seeing her enter the room, Theresa walked to the sofa and sat down. Charlie asked her to wait for him, and she would wait here.

Since her two children were going to school, she had nothing important to do now. Marlene entered Charlie's office and forced a polite smile at Charlie. Although Charlie had to sit in a wheelchair because of an accident, this man was still very handsome. He was so handsome that his look made people suffocate. If... If nothing had happened to him, she might still have a crush on him! Marlene said, "Hello, General manager Calsis." Charlie glanced at her. Marlene said, "I just saw Theresa go out, and I heard she is your acupuncturist." "What are you trying to say?" Charlie didn't look too good when he heard her talking nonsense. Marlene said, "Theresa and I used to be classmates, I didn't expect to meet her here, quite a coincidence." "Classmates?" Charlie was a little surprised, "You graduated from the university." Jonathan said that Theresa was a graduate of the University. As a top university, the students who graduated from it were not bad. He didn't know how Theresa got into such a mess. But he had never heard of Marlene. Marlene was flustered, "We were classmates in high school." Although they were classmates in high school, the two of them went to different universities. Theresa performed well and got into the top university with first place in the school, while she was only able to get into second-tier community college. However, even if the school was worse than Theresa, it didn't hinder her from stepping on Theresa's feet. She said, "Theresa was admitted to such a good university before. I didn't expect her to be like this. She got married to Jimmy after graduation. But she cheated on her husband after marriage and had two children. I heard that her father doesn't want to talk to her now. Mr. Calsis, you'd better be more careful when dealing with her." It was not the first time that Charlie had heard about Theresa. He looked at Marlene and asked, "Are you teaching me how to do things?" Marlene was startled by Charlie's look and found that she was really difficult to deal with.

Chapter 30

Chapter 30

She smiled and said, "I'm just reminding you. I'm afraid that General Manager Calsis will be deceived." "Since you are in the mood to care about me, why don't you care about yourself?" "You asked me to come here not to talk about the festival?" Calsis Group was planning a recent event to which many celebrities would be invited. Marlene was their company's spokesperson. They had previously worked together, so she would attend this meeting. Charlie stated, "Someone else will handle the festival's business, and I don't have time to worry about it. I called you to inquire about your boyfriend." Marlene's expression changed instantly when she heard the words "boyfriend". "General Manager Calsis, how do you know?" she asked guiltily. How could he know that she had a boyfriend? She did have a boyfriend recently, a male artist in the entertainment circle. The two of them went out several times in private. She thought she had hidden it well! Charlie said, "I remember that we have signed a contract that you can't fall in love during the contract. It seems that Miss Christie has completely forgotten about it." An actress like Marlene would cause big trouble if her love affair was exposed. He didn't want the company's public image to be affected. Marlene said, "I'll handle it well. Please give me some time." She was a rational person and knew which was more important in love and her career. She could find another boyfriend, but she couldn't lose the endorsement. Hearing her words, Charlie said, "No, there's no need. Cancel the contract. You don't have to come here in the future. I don't want the spokesperson of my company to be such a person without the spirit of the contract." When he asked her to come here today, he didn't mean to fire her. But her words just now made him inexplicably unhappy. Marlene was in high spirits before she came here. Now she couldn't believe what Charlie said, "General Manager Calsis, please give me another chance. I really know I was wrong." This endorsement of hers was the envy of others for a long time. It was rare for Calsis group to find a spokesperson. She was able to come in because she had some connections. "That's all for now, my wife is still waiting for me." "Mrs.?" Marlene was a little confused, wasn't Charlie single? Where did he get a wife? Charlie didn't want to waste any time with her at all and left the office in his wheelchair. Theresa was outside on the sofa and expected to wait for a long time, but it turned out to be less than ten minutes back and forth before she saw Charlie come out. Jonathan hurried up and said, "Master Calsis." "Let's go to have dinner." Said Charlie. She was a little hungry. Theresa also stood up, took her belongings, and was about to leave. Marlene walked out of the room and quickly walked towards Charlie. But she was stopped by Jonathan, so she could only keep a distance of two meters. She said to Charlie, "General Manager Calsis, I know I was wrong. Please give me some time, and I can handle it right away. Please give me another chance." Charlie glanced at her and said, "I am a person who never takes back what I say." Marlene said, "But this time, I can remedy the situation. I'll go back to deal with my personal affairs right away." Charlie glanced at her and curled his lips. The woman had no idea of why she provoked him and the real reason she had gotten herself into trouble. Charlie took a look at Theresa and said to Marlene, "Introduce yourself to Miss Christie, this is my wife."

Marlene was stunned, Cameron, Theresa... Is she Charlie's wife? Was he kidding? "Didn't she say she was an acupuncturist?" Charlie stated, "She is my wife and an acupuncture specialist. Do you have an issue with that?" He possessed no other characteristics. He only wanted to protect the weak Theresa is unique; she is his wife, Mr. Calsis was slapped in the face when Marlene spoke ill of his wife in front of him.

He can't afford to be ashamed of this! Marlene didn't dare to say no, "No... No..." She looked at Theresa with a sullen face as if she had eaten a fly. Thinking of what she had just said in front of Charlie, no wonder... He was unhappy. Standing aside, Theresa heard Charlie introduce herself to Marlene and coughed awkwardly. She didn't understand why these two people talked about her when they were talking about business.

After leaving the Calsis group, Theresa followed Charlie to the restaurant. Charlie liked to be quiet, so they found this restaurant with few people. Theresa was drinking soup. Suddenly, someone added her as a friend on Whatsapp, with three words on the note: Marlene. Theresa saw this and casually clicked through. Since Marlene became a superstar, she seldom contacted her classmates. Now she took the initiative to add her own Whatsapp, Theresa was quite surprised. After Theresa agreed, Marlene sent her a message, "Hey Theresa, you're married to Charlie. I've never heard of it." Theresa said, "It's not something important, so I didn't say it." She didn't think it was important. It was not a real marriage. It was just a game, and they would break up sooner or later. However, in Marlene's eyes, her plain tone was nothing more than a Versailles - style show-off. Marrying Charlie meant marrying into a rich family. It was difficult for a big star like Marlene to marry into an ordinary rich family, let alone the Calsis family. However, Theresa, a second marriage woman, had the opportunity to marry into the Calsis family. That's fine. She said it was not something important! This woman was good at showing off! However, Marlene didn't dare to act recklessly in front of Theresa. She added Theresa's Whatsapp account for her own business. She said, "I envy you so much. You are always so excellent." Theresa listened to her and said, "I'm flattered." She was in Charlie's company just now.

That's what she said! Theresa couldn't understand why this woman changed her face so quickly. Marlene said, "I'm so blind today. Theresa, please help me ask the General manager Calsis to give me another chance to endorse. I've broken up with that man just now. I promise I won't fall in love with him." Theresa said, "Break up, so soon?" The speed was so fast.

Marlene said, "In fact, we don't like each other very much. Anyway, it doesn't matter. It's about work. Please... Please have mercy on me."

"You're welcome." Theresa said, "I can't meddle in the matter of Mr. Calsis. Even if I tell him, he won't listen to me. I can only say that I'll try my best." **Thank you." Marlene took it as a yes. Charlie, who was sitting opposite Theresa, noticed that she had been looking at her phone all the time. With a cold face, he said, "you've been playing with your phone all the time while eating with me. Is your phone so attractive?" Theresa didn't seem to pay respect to Charlie at all! Theresa coughed and said, "Marlene added me on Whatsapp and sent me a message." Hearing the words "Marlene", Charlie's face softened a little. He asked curiously, "Why does she want to see you?" "Apologize to me and ask me to intercede for her, I hope you can give her another chance."

Chapter 31

Chapter 031 How Come Theresa Know Roderick Hill

Charlie Said, "Do you think I should give her this chance?"

Theresa raised the corner of her lips and said, "Mr. Calsis, this is your business and I've no intention to get involved. I promised not to interfere with your affairs."

Calsis replied, "Good, you know your place."

He thought: it's good that she doesn't forget their agreement!

Great!

Because the last thing he wanted was to put up with an idiot from day to day.

Theresa said, "But she told me that you canceled her ambassador title because she's seeing someone, right?"

Charlie replied, "That's one of the reasons."

Theresa said, "I see."

Theresa ate a piece of beef without speaking a word.

Seeing her have no intention to keep asking, Charlie said, "Why don't you ask about the other reasons?"

She replied, "Not interested, and you just said I know my place. I'll keep it that way."

She really knew the art of words!

Charlie didn't expect her to talk him back with the words he said himself.

With a humph, he said, "Because she talked bad things about you in front of me."

Theresa was drinking soup, and upon hearing that she almost choked herself.

She picked up the napkin and used it to wipe her mouth. After that, she looked at Charlie and said, "Does it have anything to do with you if she did that?"

Charlie didn't know what to say.

Exactly, what did it have to do with him if someone talked bad things about her?

He stood up for her and he told this to her now?

At this moment, Charlie really wanted to choke himself.

He thought: I shouldn't have defended this ungrateful bitch!

With a grim look on his face, he just made up an excuse at random and said, "Those who talk bad things about others.

behind their backs are people I hate most. They've got a bad personality. I just have a problem with her, alright?" Theresa said, "You're the boss. General Manager Calsis, Mr. Calsis and Master Calsis, anything you do is right." Only the strong had a say in this world.

Any word coming from the mouth of people like Charlie, even just a trifle matter, will be deemed as an order that couldn't be defied.

While words from nobody carried little weight.

Charlie didn't feel happy about the flattery, so he said, "I sense sarcasm in your tone."

Theresa said, "Absolutely not. I'll never be sarcastic to someone who pays me! You're the almighty god in my eyes." Charlie had no mood to talk to more upon hearing that.

At this moment, someone approached and said, "Master Calsis."

Theresa raised her head and looked at the person walking into the room.

The place they were at was a small bedroom with windows and nice decoration.

The

guy who walked in wore a white shirt and black suit pants. His face looked gentle and kind.

Charlie raised his head and took a look at him, then he said, "Why are you here?"

Jonathan said, "Mr. Roderick."

Roderick smiled and said, "My sister told me that Master Calsis is having dinner right now with a girl, so I come here to take a look."

His elder sister was the owner of this restaurant.

Roderick rested his arms at will on the back of the chair where Charlie was sitting, and then his eyesight fell on Theresa. When he saw Theresa, a slight astonishment swept across his good-looking face. Seeing him look at herself, she greeted first, "Hi, Doctor Roderick."

Roderick was even more sure that this girl was Theresa after she greeted him, and he said, "It's really you, I thought I mistook you for another girl."

He didn't expect her to be with Charlie just after a few days.

Theresa asked, "Are you not on duty today?"

Roderick replied, "I'm here to have some food, I come over here because I was told Charlie is here as well. How come you're here with Charlie?"

Just now his sister said Charlie took a woman with her and it seemed that he wouldn't be single no more. But now it looks like his sister was totally wrong.

Roderick thought: Theresa and Charlie together? Not that possible.

Theresa said, "We've got something to talk about, so here we are."

Charlie was sitting next to them, and he didn't expect Theresa and Roderick knew each other.

And they seemed to be familiar to each other.

Charlie thought: doesn't Theresa want to marry him at all? How come she's putting on such a nice smile to Roderick?

On top of that, is the fact he's her husband that embarrassing to tell?

He couldn't believe she just said "we've got something to talk about."

Charlie said to Roderick, "I'm her husband, what's wrong with us having lunch together?"

Roderick was stunned.

Just now he thought it wasn't possible for them to be together, but.....

Charlie and Theresa were married?

He said in a surprise tone, "Are you kidding?"

Charlie said, "I don't see why I should do that."

Roderick replied, "You two, married. How come?"

With an unfriendly humph, he said, "Do you know my wife well?"

Roderick said, "Theresa was my junior back in college and we met a couple of times. She asked a favor from me days.

ago."

Charlie took a look at Theresa and asked, "A favor? What kind of favor?"

Seeing Charlie start to ask this, she explained in a hurry, "Nothing, it's nothing. It doesn't concern you."

Upon saying that, she gave Roderick a signal with her eyes, which suggested that she wanted Roderick to keep this a secret for her.

Roderick got her point, and smiled, then he said, "It's about something in the hospital, and it truly doesn't concern you. I didn't expect you two to really get married! I'm surprised. So when was it?" Charlie said, "Just recently, I'll let you know the date of the wedding."

Roderick nodded and said, "Okay."

He checked the time and said, "I've got some business to attend to, I'll just leave you to lunch."

He went out sing that.

Watching his back, Theresa stood up and went out too.

It seemed like Roderick knew she would catch up, so he waited outside.

She walked up to him and said, "Doctor Roderick."

Roderick turned around and looked at Theresa, then he said, "About the thing you asked me last time?"

Theresa nodded.

The favor she asked from Roderick was that she wanted him to pull up the documents about her previous artificial insemination.

Those files were deleted, and she thought the hospital should have a backup.

But the hospital staff knew nothing about it when Theresa went over and asked. She racked her brain but still went nowhere, and at that point, someone happened to mention Roderick.

They met twice in college, and this time she asked a favor from him and Roderick agreed to help.

Roderick said, "I've checked and didn't find your files. It's weird. Are you sure you underwent an artificial insemination process in our hospital?

There must be files if you did.

Theresa nodded and said, "Of course I'm sure. I just can't have a baby on my own, right?"

Roderick said, "That's really weird. I checked after you told me, but I just couldn't find anything."

Theresa frowned and thought: Jimmy can't be that capable.

Could he even be able to delete the hospital files?

She said to Roderick, "Not even a back-up? Don't tell me your hospital never keeps backup files, does it? Roderick replied, "We should do that according to procedures. But I really couldn't find yours." He even started to suspect Theresa of having a mental problem, otherwise how come she remembered it wrong?

The look on Theresa's face was complicated, she thought Roderick would help her take care of this, but..... Roderick looked at her and asked, "Do you really need it that much?"

Chapter 32

Chapter 032 Being Jealous?

Hearing what you said, Theresa replied, "My ex-husband was infertile, so we decided to have two kids, but later he changed his mind and we got divorced over this. It's just that now he's been spreading the rumor that I cheated on him and got pregnant, so I'm just trying to prove my innocence."

She didn't know a better way to have people convinced other than showing them the solid evidence.

Just like what happened last night, Jimmy could deny everything with just saying she didn't have the evidence.

Roderick said, "In that case, I can forge a file for you, do you think it's gonna work?"

Being left speechless, Theresa was looking at him, and then she put on a forced smile, "Doctor Roderick, don't tell me you really believe I had an affair and I'm being unreasonable right now, don't you?"

Roderick was stunned because that was what he had in mind.

Theresa said, "I thought you could help me out, but now your hospital has a problem and you think of me like that?"

Her self-esteem was hurt.

She didn't know what she did wrong really.

She thought: I was too stupid to believe Jimmy that much. I'm the one to blame.

Seeing the disappointing look on her face, Roderick started to feel a strong sense of guilt, and then he said, "I'm really sorry, two people of those in charge at that time already resigned, I'll just go ask them, but it's gonna take time, is that okay?"

Theresa asked, "Can you find my files?"

She now even started to doubt her own life.

She thought: was Jimmy that competent?

Could he really pull this off so perfectly without a loophole?

Roderick replied, "I'll try my best, I'll let you know if I find your files."

She said, "Thanks." At this moment, he was the only hope she got.

After the conversation with Roderick, Theresa went back to the restaurant and saw Charlie still there.

So she went to sit where she sat.

Charlie looked at her coldly and ridiculed, "You just followed him out like a dog begging for petting, do you have any pride as a woman?"

Theresa was thinking about the file thing, and got stunned after hearing what Charlie just said. She turned to look at him and said, "What do you mean by that?"

She was surprised that he would verbally assault her out of the blue.

She might depend on him financially and decide to put up with him in many aspects, but she wouldn't step down when it comes to her principles.

Charlie asked, "You like Roderick, right?"

Theresa said, "Doctor Roderick is such a gentleman and has a successful career at his young age. What's wrong if I do like him?"

Charlie put on a mocking smile and said, "That's funny, I can't believe you, as a divorced woman, are so delusional." Hearing Charlie's mocking remarks, Theresa got mad and replied, "Yes, I'm divorced, so what? Did I say I need you to support me financially? Did I ever live like a parasite and live on your money? I never said I would marry you." Seeing her keep talking without let-up, Charlie said, "Nice, with Roderick having your back, you're now even showing no respect to me at all."

She had been docile for the past two days, but she just changed her attitude after meeting Roderick

Theresa smiled and said, "Respect is mutual, Charlie, you disrespected me first."

She was divorced indeed, but she didn't expect to rely on anyone else. So why would she allow him to belittle her like Charlie replied, "You're the one showing no respect, okay? You're my wife, but you lost your grip when seeing another man and followed him out like a lackey. This is humiliating, you know that?"

Thinking about she just followed him out and talked to Roderick for that long outside, and he had no idea what they were talking.

Charlie grew even madder!

He thought: is this woman cheating on him?

If that was the case, he wouldn't let her get away with it.

Hearing what he said, Theresa felt irritated, and said, "Mr. Calsis, you're making everything your own business right now. We're just going to take marriage in case you forget, okay? Why are you acting like you're jealous?"

Jealous?

Charlie was stimulated by this word.

He thought: I would never get jealous!

Never!

Looking at Theresa, he explained with a made-up excuse, "I'm jealous? You gotta be kidding. I'm just trying to remind you that a man like Roderick will never like a divorced woman like you and he'll never marry you!

Theresa replied, "Thanks for that, but that's none of your business! I know I'm divorced, but no everyone else has a prejudice against divorced women. If I can marry you, why can't I marry Roderick?" Charlie said, "The Roderick Family isn't like mine. You're daydreaming!"

He never expected her to want to marry Roderick!

He thought: this woman here was such a dreamer.

Theresa said, "Doctor Roderick is a gentleman and I think his whole family is alike, after all a man's decency is much related to how they were raised up. So I think his family members should be decent."

Charlie got a little angry and said, "I dare you say that again."

He thought: it was bad enough to talk bad about himself, it wasn't acceptable if she tried to humiliate his family. Noticing that Charlie was mad, Theresa said nothing else. She checked the time and said, "We almost finished the lunch, can I go back and take a rest now?"

"No." replied by Charlie, he just directly denied her plan for a nap at noon. Theresa asked, "What else?"

One hour later, she found herself in a wedding dress shop and finally she realized. She didn't expect him to take her to a wedding dress shop right after the lunch. Charlie sat nearby and several saleswomen were offering service to Theresa. They took out all the wedding dresses for Theresa to put on one by one.

Theresa stood inside the dressing room and a saleswoman helped her put on the dress, and she said, "Wow, lady, your figure is quite excellent, this wedding dress seemed to be tailored for you."

Hearing that compliment, Theresa lifted the corner of her mouth and thought: come on, I wasn't really going to get married.

It didn't take great pains like this when she got married with Jimmy.

After putting on a dress, Theresa pulled open the curtain and saw herself in the mirror. Charlie and Jonathan were sitting next to it.

Charlie was holding a tablet computer dealing with affairs in work. The reason why he took Theresa to a wedding dress shop today was that he was ridiculed by his grandfather.

He thought: just pick a wedding dress for Theresa, a piece of cake.

When Theresa appeared before him in that dress when that curtain was pulled open, Charlie was amazed.

That dress actually was ordinary in style, but it looked much better on Theresa.

Theresa stood next to them feeling quite sleepy. She looked listless because she had undergone such a boring thing.

"I think this dress looks good, let's just have it." temporized Theresa.

She thought: it wasn't like they were really getting married, there was no need to take this whole thing seriously because it was just some kind of formality.

After she said this, she saw Charlie sitting there, staring at herself and remaining silent.

It looked like he wasn't quite satisfied.

The saleswoman noticed his dissatisfaction and said, "Let's try another one."

Theresa said, "Okay."

She had to because Charlie was the man to pay her money and wasn't happy now.

The curtain was closed again, and then Charlie looked away.

#Chapter 33

Chapter 33

Chapter 033 Met Rosales Again

Theresa put on several dresses and she thought they were all nice. But Charlie didn't like none of them. By the time

Theresa put on all the dresses, the saleswoman almost cried.

There were lots of styles in their shop.

She thought Charlie would like one at least, but that wasn't the case.

On the way back, Theresa felt frustrated in the car and said, "I think those dresses are nice, I just don't know what kind of style you're looking for. What a waste of time."

Hearing her complaint, he replied, "You're ugly, that's why you make those dresses ugly too."

Rolling up her eyeballs, Theresa had no intention to argue, so she said, "It's my fault, okay? No one points a gun at your head asking you to make an ugly woman like me your wife. I'm gonna take a nap now."

She was so sleepy back at the wedding dress shop already, so she wanted to sleep while in the car on the way Charlie let her sleep.

He continued to work with his tablet computer.

back.

After a while, he suddenly felt Theresa leaning against him. He turned his head around and saw her head resting on his shoulder.

Humph, she was getting better at seducing him!

Charlie raised his hand and wanted to push her away, but somehow he didn't do that.

He could hear her shallow breathing due to the close distance.

His mind was filled with images of her wearing wedding dresses. He thought she was as shining as a star.....

At this moment hearing her breath, he felt his body starting to get out of control.

"We're here, Master Calsis."

Time flew when they were in the car.

The guy who spoke was Jonathan.

the car already arrived downstairs at Theresa's apartment.

Theresa heard Jonathan's voice and sat up, then he rubbed her eyes and looked out, and she said, "I'm going home, see you later."

She had to pick up her two kids before going to Calsis's home.

She got out of the car without saying goodbye to Charlie.

Sitting in the seat, Charlie felt the weight gone on where Theresa's head was resting and had a complex feeling he couldn't describe.

It felt like he wanted her head on his shoulder still.

He was astonished, because that woman just seduced him a little, and he wasn't the only man she did that to, and he thought he wouldn't rise to the bait that quick, would he?

No! No! I just couldn't, he said to himself.

He told himself that he just couldn't be bewitched by that woman.

He took a look at Theresa's back and was about to tell the chauffeur to drive, he saw an old lady stop Theresa who just gotten off the car by the intersection.

Looking at Rosales, Charlie thought, she lived far away from here, so that she showed up here wasn't supposed to be a coincidence but planned. Rosales just went out of the supermarket with a plastic bag in her hand. She shouted angrily,

"Theresa!"

Theresa looked at Rosales indifferently and said, "What's going on?"

Last night Jimmy wanted her to leave Calsis's home and was taught a lesson by the latter. Who would have guessed that Jimmy's mother came?

Theresa didn't want to have anything to do with this family, but they seemed to never want to leave her alone!

Rosales said, "Look at what your sons did to my hand!"

Rosales was there last night, but Jimmy defended Theresa, so she backed off!

But the anger grew on her, so she came over today and got even with Theresa.

With Rosales saying that, what happened yesterday came back to Theresa, so she said, "My sons haven't recovered from injuries yet, I didn't go after you and you come over here blaming me?"

Today she really understood the meaning of the idiom: the guilty party files the suit first!

Rosales said, "You shameless bitch, you brought up your sons to that kind of people! Those bastards knew nothing good!

I bet they'll be a scumbag just like you when they grow up."

Hearing the word "bastard", Theresa frowned and said, "You gotta watch your language."

Don't insult my sons like that!

My sons aren't a bastard!

Seeing Theresa getting mad, Rosales felt more complacent, and she said, "They're bastards! What? What are you gonna do, huh? They're bastards of your adulterer and you! They should be cursed because they have a mother like you! You're so shameless. But that makes sense, if you did value your reputation, you wouldn't have an affair. Your parents already denounced you, you should be ashamed of being alive!"

"Jimmy isn't ashamed, why should I be?" replied Theresa angrily and she stared at Rosales. She continued saying, "Your son isn't a man of responsibility, he wanted those two kids in the first place. And now you're blaming me for everything?"

Actually, I do really thank him for giving me two kids, and as for Jimmy, I'm afraid he will never have sons again in his life."

"What did you just say?" Rosales stared at Theresa and asked. Then she said, "How dare you curse on my son? You vicious woman!"

Theresa laughed and thought: did she just call me vicious?

Her viciousness paled in comparison with Jimmy's!

Too bad that his mother wouldn't believe the artificial insemination.

After all, from her perspective, Jimmy was the son she felt proud of the most, so she would never admit that the child he gave birth to was a man without any sense of responsibility!

Rosales said, "My son was so blind that he married a woman like you. But now he won't like you anymore, so just perish the thought! If you dare to harass him ever again, I'll curse you every time when I see you! I'll ruin your reputation!" In her opinion, that Theresa was with Jimmy yesterday meant for sure that Theresa went to Harass Jimmy. Theresa wanted a house and she had been demanding that for years. Nine out of ten she went to see him for that matter! Hearing what Rosales just said, Theresa sneered and thought: Jimmy was blind?

It was her who was blind, okay?

Her family was financially sound when she married Jimmy, and the college she went to was top rank in the whole country. She would've had a decent life if she had focused on work instead of choosing marriage and believing Jimmy's promises.

She was so naive at that time.

She didn't understand why she would believe that a man would love her forever.

She gave up her career because of her, and that was the biggest mistake she had ever made in her life.

She said Rosales, "I harassed him? Why don't you tell you son to leave me alone? I don't see any point in blaming me for everything!"

She didn't harass Jimmy because she was in the Calsis's home and it was Jimmy who came harass her every time! Rosales said, "My son won't go see you if you're not a bitch, okay? He's getting married with Rose, a girl way much better than you! Don't you ever come harass my son again! He won't like you anymore!"

Theresa pulled the corner of her mouth backward and said, "Even if he will like me again, I might not like him! What's the use of an infertile man?"

Kids are the sore point to Rosales and upon hearing Theresa say that Jimmy was infertile, she flew into a rage. She shouted, "Don't you ever try to ruin my son's reputation just because you two are divorced! My son is absolutely fertile! Who said he's infertile? You're such a vicious woman! How dare you curse on my son like that! If you say that again, I'll go talk to your father and ask him to show his daughter some manners."

Chapter 34

Chapter 034 Rosales stirred up trouble

Upon hearing Rosales mention her father, her mood went pretty bad, so she said, "Leave my dad out of this!"

It was bad enough that Rosales had been harassing her for the past several years, that woman said something dripping with sarcasm every time she spoke to Theresa's father, and that made him a laughing stock for everyone

Rosales said, "I can do that, but only after you pay me the medical bills! Don't tell me I'll let you get away with what happened yesterday!"

Rosales couldn't wait to slap Theresa on her face when she thought of her broken hand.

"Medical bills?" replied Theresa, and she continued saying, "You want some money? Not before Jimmy pays my sons' medical bills!"

Rosales said, "So you're gonna deny it, huh? Let me tell you this, I'm not leaving unless I get the money!"

Theresa looked at her and said, "Whatever."

She was in a hurry to pick her sons and had no intention to waste time on her!

Seeing Theresa try to leave, she immediately grabbed her clothes.

Theresa was left speechless when looking at this unreasonable woman. Every time Rosales appeared, she was gonna make a scene.

When she was with Jimmy in the past, it never occurred to her that this old lady would be this crazy. She had been driven nuts for the past several years.

Theresa said coldly, "Let go of me or I'll not get easy on you."

Rosales showed no fear and said, "You wanna hit me? Come hit me! Everyone is watching! I'm not afraid of you. I'm not like my son, he doesn't give you a hard time for old time's sake, but I won't let you get away. If you hit me today, you'll be in big trouble. You gotta pay me compensation and serve me at hospital everyday."

She laughed complacently as she talked, acting like a shameless old thug.

Theresa didn't panic even if Rosales acted like this. She took out her cellphone and turned on the camera, and then took two pictures of Rosales.

Rosales didn't see that coming.

She asked vigilantly, "What are you doing?"

Theresa replied at ease, "I'll show this to your daughter-in-law and her family."

Rosales was a person you could never understand. She might be rude and unreasonable now, but she would put up quite an act before people she wanted to curry favor with. Before Theresa married Jimmy, Rosales was quite an excellent actor who pretended to treat Theresa like her own daughter.

She started to show her true colors after Theresa and Jimmy got married.

Theresa thought that Rosales would pretty much do the same thing to Rose, after all she had to leave a good impression to the the Nandlall Family.

The moment she knew Theresa had already took pictures of herself, she panicked like hell.

She tried to snatch Theresa's phone and said, "Delete the photos now! It's illegal to take pictures of people like this, do you know that?"

"Nice." a compliment from Theresa, and she continued saying, "You've made some progress."

Rosales learned how to threaten people now!

Seeing Theresa look pretty calm, Rosales was overwhelmed by anger and shouted, "You bitch, how dare you take pictures of me!"

Right after that, she raise her hand and moved it towards Theresa.

Rosales failed to snatch the phone, and she burst with anger and shame, so she tried to get physical!

Before her hand fell on Theresa's face, it was grabbed by another big hand of a man.

Theresa was surprised and saw Jonathan grabbing Rosales by her hand.

Seeing a man come to Theresa's aid, Rosales asked, "Who are you? Are you that adulterer? Nice job, Theresa, you're more shameless than I thought. You're cohabiting with the adulterer now?"

Jonathan frowned after hearing what Rosales said and then released her hand. He thought that this old lady sounded gruff.

With her hand grabbed, Rosales was struggling moments ago. Now with her hand released, she stepped backward twice and fell onto the ground.

Jonathan asked Theresa, "Mrs, are you alright?"

Theresa replied, "You haven't left yet?"

She thought Charlie and Jonathan were already gone by now. At this moment, she just saw Charlie's car parked where it was.

It seemed that Charlie saw everything.

Jonathan was a tall man standing at near 190cm, he wasn't just an assistant for Charlie, but also a bodyguard. Seeing him try to protect Theresa, she stayed motionless.

So when there wasn't a smile on Jonathan's face, he looked thuggish.

Rosales got scared, she knew that she would be at a disadvantage if she played hardball with them, so she just lay on the ground and stayed there, starting to scream, "Help me, someone is trying to kill me! Someone help me! This woman here cheated on my son, and now she's trying to hit me. So shameless!"

She felt ridiculous seeing what this woman was doing. She divorced Jimmy several years ago, and Rosales had the nerve to call herself her mother-in-law?

After the scream, Rosales found that there weren't many people on the streets, so she was frightened a bit, and took her phone out, trying to make a call.

The call got through, she said when lying on the ground, "My son, someone just hit me. Where am I? On Springfield Road. Come here now, or I'll be beaten to death."

Theresa and Jonathan were left speechless when watching her.

She thought this old lady was quite good at sad fishing.

Hanging up the phone, she said to Jonathan, "Let me tell you this, my daughter-in-law comes from a powerful family!

How dare you push me, you're a dead man."

After the threat, she laid on the ground again and started to scream.

Jimmy came with Rose about half an hour later.

After pulling over the car, the couple got off the car, and ran to Rosales after seeing all this.

Jimmy first took a look at Theresa and then at his mother lying on the ground, then he said, "Mom, are you alright?" Rose was worried too and said, "Mom."

She raised her head and saw Theresa, then she said, "Theresa, you were protected by your uncle last night. It's bad enough that you don't reflect on your mistake, I can't believe you're bullying my mother now!"

Rose left in anger yesterday because of things associated with Theresa, and she remained upset for a whole night. She didn't expect Theresa would do this kind of thing the other day!"

Exactly, this woman should be staying at Calsis's home!

Theresa had an innocent look on her face and said, "I didn't do that."

Though the whole thing was related to her, she didn't pushed Rosales indeed.

Seeing his mother scream loud, he said to Theresa with a long face, "Theresa, if you've got a problem, come at me. Why did you hit my mom? Did she ever offend you in any way?"

"She did." replied Theresa, and she continued, "She came over here to harass me and tried to hit me, don't you think she was messing with me?"

Theresa lived right here while Rosales showed up downstairs of Theresa's apartment. Rosales lived far from here. Jimmy looked unhappy. Jimmy said, "Even if that's the case, you just can't hit her, right?"

Theresa said, "Ask your mother if I pushed her or not."

Rosales cried and said, "It was her man who did it. Rose, someone bullied your mother-in-law, you need to stand up for me."

Rose replied, "Mom, don't worry, i won't let them get away with it."

But.....Men.

Theresa had an affair with another guy?

Chapter 35

Chapter 035 Uncle Charlie Is Here.

There was no way Uncle Charlie would push his mother.

So the person who did that must be someone else!

Upon thinking of that, he seemed to have got something on Theresa.

She said to Theresa, "Where is the person who pushed my mother?"

"I did it." Jonathan standing by the car spoke out, and he was walking to everyone.

Rose didn't see him until now.

She paid so much attention to Theresa that she didn't see someone by the roadside.

Seeing Jonathan, Rose looked grim and said, "Mr. Jonathan."

She didn't expect to see Jonathan here!

Hearing Rose call Jonathan Mr. Rosales couldn't believe it so she asked, "Do you know this man?"

Rose's facial expression froze and replied, "He's my uncle's assistant."

She thought she would teach Theresa a good lesson in the absence of her uncle, but who would have guessed Jonathan was here?

She looked over and saw a car, and she thought, wasn't that uncle's car?"

So that meant her uncle was also here?

Rosales said, "He was the man who pushed me just now! Rose, tell your uncle what really happened, this man is just an assistant, how dare he be so rude and arrogant!"

Rosales pointed at Jonathan and got even more excited when she knew that Jonathan was just an assistant.

But what Rosales didn't know was how much Jonathan meant to Charlie.

He was Charlie's assistant and the person he trusted the most.

Even Rose's father showed respect to Jonathan, let alone Rose herself.

Jonathan said, "Mr. Watson, I'm sorry that I offended your mother. But I was just trying to protect my master's wife. I wouldn't have touched your mom if she didn't resort to violence first."

He didn't deny anything.

He just admitted he did it!

Hearing Jonathan speaks politely, Jimmy didn't know what to say for a while.

He looked down upon Theresa, but Jonathan wasn't someone he could afford to mess with!

Jonathan said, "I pushed your mom and I'll take full responsibility. We were trying to reach an agreement in which I planned to take your mom to the hospital to run a check-up, but she just wouldn't agree and insisted on waiting for you to come. I suggest we go to the hospital now for a thorough examination and all the expenses will be covered by me." Jimmy looked grave and said, "Forget it. No need for that." Rosales thought when her son and daughter-in-law came, they would stand up for her and teach Jonathan a good lesson. Seeing them speaking to Jonathan with much caution, she protested, "But he pushed me, I was so badly wounded! I won't let him get away with it that easy."

She thought he must compensate him big time!

She thought I just couldn't let myself lie down on the ground for that long for nothing.

Hearing what Rosales said, Jimmy just wanted to pour oil on troubled waters, so he said, "Mom, that's enough, let's go back home."

Judging from the way how his mom spoke, he could tell that his mother wasn't hurt that much.

Otherwise, she wouldn't be lying here for this long to wait for them.

He just saw Theresa only moments ago and Theresa made him angry last night, so he also wanted to find fault with Theresa, but he didn't expect Jonathan to be here as well.

Jonathan said, "I really think we need to take your son to the hospital for a body check-up."

Jimmy said, "It's not necessary, I'll do that. Mom, let's go."

Jimmy picked Rosales up and prepared to carry her to the car.

Suddenly, the car window went down and the handsome face of Charlie appeared in front of everyone, then he said, "Jimmy."

Hearing Charlie's voice, Jimmy wasn't surprised because he knew Charlie would be here.

He replied timidly, "Uncle Charlie."

The man inside the car looked about Jimmy's age, but Rosales didn't expect Jimmy to call him uncle!

Rose also said, "Uncle Charlic."

Charlie took a look at Jimmy's mother, and he saw exactly how rude she acted in front of Theresa.

He said to Jimmy, "Looks like you're not happy with how I approached things last night, huh? You're smart, getting your mom to cause trouble for Theresa?"

Jimmy looked grim and explained instantly, "I'm not, Uncle Charlie, I don't know anything about this."

Charlie said, "You don't know anything about it? Why do I just don't believe a word you Jimmy said, "It really has nothing to do with me."

said?"

His mom came over on her own, if he let Charlie put everything on him, there was no way he could explain everything clearly!

Charlie didn't utter a word and just stare at Jimmy with a look of mistrust.

Jimmy thought it was okay if Charlie said something.

But when Charlie said nothing and stared at himself like that, it would make him more anxious.

Jimmy wiped off the perspiration secretly and glared at the rose, then he said, "Rose, do me a favor, tell Uncle Charlie I really have no idea about all this."

Rose said, "Uncle Charlie, Jimmy really doesn't know it, and we just knew that moments ago, so we rushed here." Standing next to her son and daughter-in-law and seeing them acting so cautiously, she thought she might brought big trouble to them.

On top of that, the presence of Charlie just put fear into people's heart, so Rosales didn't dare to say a word at this moment.

Charlie said to Jimmy, "Take your mom back and come to my house tonight. You've got some explanation to do." Hearing Charlie's words, Jimmy nodded helplessly and said, "I will."

Thinking of that Charlie asked him to explain everything tonight, Jimmy had a butterfly in his stomach. He felt that the feeling was just like that when he was taken to the Dean's Office after he stirred up in school.

He took a look at his mother and said, "Let's go home."

Then he and Rose took Rosales into the car.

Sitting in the car, Rosales asked, "Rose, is that really your uncle?"

Rose said, "Exactly."

She was now in a bad mood because in the past Charlie cared for her the most, but now all he wanted to do was to defend

Theresa!

Theresa was that out of line, but Uncle Charlie defended her anyway!

Rosales said, "Your uncle looked so young."

Rose replied, "My uncle is young, just a couple of years older than Jimmy."

Rosales said, "Since he's your uncle, why did he defend that bad woman that much?"
Upon mentioning Theresa, Rosales just couldn't control her rage.

In theory, shouldn't be Rose's uncle on her side?

Jimmy took a look at his mother in the rear mirror and said, "Mom, don't go see Theresa on your own ever again."

Rosales replied, "I heard she hit you so I came here to stand up for you. But I just didn't expect....."

And she took a beating.

Jimmy said, "Theresa are already married with Uncle Charlie, you shouldn't be messing with her!"

Rosales couldn't believe it and said, "What? how come Charlie would like her? She's a deserted woman! A divorced woman! A woman like her even doesn't deserve a single man doing car washing job!"

Rose didn't say a word hearing what Rosales said.

She also thought Theresa didn't deserve a man like Uncle Charlie, she just wondered how in the world did Theresa manage to make Uncle Charlie like her that much!

Rosales was worried for Charlie and said, "Doesn't your family interfere? Your uncle is a good man, we don't wanna see him get deceived."

Chapter 36

Chapter 036 Leonard took the teacher's computer apart

Rose said, "I can't control my uncle Charlie's affairs! He's protecting Theresa. I can't help it Especially now that my great grandpa loves Theresa."

Great grandpa thought Theresa was Sarah, which is probably why he was so protective of her!

It great grandpa knew that Theresa was fake, he would not be so dependent on Theresa!

Downstairs, seeing Jimmy take his mother away, Jonathan looked at Theresa and said to her, "You go about your business, madam. Master Calsis and I go back first."

"Thank you very much." Theresa glanced at Jonathan, embarrassed that he had wasted so much time on her. Jonathan said, "No, you are the wife of Master Calsis. It is my duty to do anything for you." Theresa's got a little sheepish.

As Jonathan walked back to the car, Theresa took a look at Charlie in the car and gave him a friendly smile, she no longer fretted when she remembered how long he had spent with her in the afternoon looking for her wedding dress.

After all, with this man, there is a reward for your work.

Charlie saw that she was looking at him with more tender eyes than before, and he quickly closed the window. Oh, woman, trying to seduce him again!

Just give her a little dessert, and she'll take more!

Theresa went to kindergarten, delayed by Rosales. It was a little late. All the kindergartners were gone, except Leonard and Ben. Before Theresa could enter the room, she heard the teacher's voice crack. "Leonard, why did you take the teacher's computer apart?"

Leonard's voice is serious. "Your computer is broken!"

He had completely forgotten about his injury last night, and now he was as fresh as a daisy!

"That you also can't take the teacher's computer apart!"

She was so angry that she wanted to take the computer to fix, but..... In a flash, Leonard had taken it apart.

When Theresa walked in the door, the teacher saw her, hurried over and said, "How do you take care of the kids, you are coming so late. Look at your son. He takes my computer apart like this."

The teacher, a little girl, was so angry that she almost cried.

A computer was not cheap, he just took it apart, what can she do!

Theresa looked at the broken computer on her desk. "Leonard, how could you just take a teacher's computer apart?" Leonard looked at Theresa, didn't say anything, just lowered his head and continued to dismantle it.

Theresa,

She looked at this scene, and felt sorry for the teacher, "I will compensate you."

The teacher said, "But I still have data in it! Leonard is really....

Although he is usually very lovely and sensible, but he did this kind of thing, the teacher is still a little angry.

Theresa apologized. "I'm sorry, teacher, I was late today. I'll teach him when I get back."

The teacher gave Leonard a glum look and didn't know what to say.

Leonard looked at the two adults and said, "I can fix it."

"Leonard." The teacher's voice is a little helpless. She looked at the little guy's serious appearance, can only put up with ok?"

the injustice, "You know you can't take the teacher's things apart,

Although he said he could fix it, but this is said by a kid?

She won't take it for real! She has to accept her fate.

As it turns out, Leonard listens to them, ignores them, and stands by, very carefully, putting the computer together.

It was restored to its original form.

The teacher was also surprised.

Sheldon: Leonard presses the power button, and the computer, which wouldn't even turn on before, is working again. The teacher went to the computer, picked up the mouse, and examined the contents. Nothing was missing. His eyes widened with surprise, "Gosh, Leonard, you really fixed the teacher's computer

7

Leonard looks cold. "You're welcome "

Theresa stood nearby, relieved. Sheldon: She thought she was going to lose some money and get blamed by the teacher, but Leonard helped the teacher fix the computer.

The teacher stood up and said, "I'm sorry. I thought Leonard took the computer apart, but he was just trying to fix it for me."

She almost thought Leonard was a jerk!

He started by taking off either the remote or the alarm clock.

She used to set her alarm clock to get up in the morning, only to wake up late and find her alarm clock had been broken. into pieces.

Leonard fixed it after she taught him a lesson, but now he can take apart computers.

The teacher was so happy that the computer was ready. "Leonard is a genius! That's amazing. You are really happy to have a child like this. By the way, I need to tell you in advance that we have an activity in a few days and we plan to take the children to attend."

"What kind of activities?"

"It is a business event held by a company, and some children will be invited to perform. Our kindergarten also has cooperation with them. If they do well, they might even get a bonus."

Leonard and Ben have been going to angel baby contests and awards since they were kids. It's normal. Theresa's used to She said to the teacher, "You have been working very hard, thank you."

It's good to give the kids a little more opportunity to show themselves.

After speaking to the teacher, she came out of the kindergarten with two babies.

Ben looked at Theresa and asked, "Mom, what took you so long to pick me and Leonard up today?"

"Something happened," Theresa said.

"Is someone bullying you again?" Ben was worried.

Leonard also looked at Theresa during the conversation.

Theresa looked at the babies and saw that they were like little adults, as if she were being bullied and they would rush to protect her.

"No," she said. Mom is so brave, who dare to bully me?" Ben said, "If someone bullies you, you'll tell us, okay?"

"I see, little housekeeper."

"It doesn't matter." Ben, "Leonard and I can take care of ourselves, right?"

He said and took a glancing at Leonard.

Leonard also nodded, but then gave Theresa a weak look. He still wants to be with his mother! It's just that Ben said so, and he was embarrassed to be a naive baby.

When they got home, Theresa made the babies something to eat, put them to bed early, and went to Calsis' house. Jimmy and Rose are already here.

Charlie was still busy finishing his work in the study. Jimmy was standing at the door of the study.

Charlie asked him to explain, and now he's hanging him out the door.

Chapter 37

Chapter 037 How dare you call your aunt's name?

He wanted to but did not dare to leave, and now he could only wait in silence.

Theresa walked over, took a look at Jimmy, and knocked on the door of the study. The door was opened by Jonathan, who saw Theresa and respectfully said, "Madam."

"Is Charlie finished?" Theresa asked.

Jonathan said, "Come on in." Then he had letting Theresa in.

When Jimmy saw Theresa inside, he said, "Jonathan."

Jonathan glanced at Jimmy, as if remembering his existence, and he said, "Master Calsis is busy. Please just wait, Mr.

Watson."

Jimmy,"

When has he been treated like this?

He felt his legs go to sleep!

He had never been made to stand at school, and the more he thought about being made to stand here, the more he felt oppressed.

Theresa went into the study and saw Charlie sitting there, reading the book in his hand. She didn't know if it was just her imagination, but she thought Charlie was relaxed at the moment.

"Aren't you busy?" Theresa asked.

Charlie said, "I'm done."

"Oh." Theresa said, "And you kept Jimmy waiting outside?"

Charlie raised his eyebrows. "Why do you think I called him here? Invite him to drink tea?"

Theresa looked at the man and said, "He's not messing with you. Do you have to do this to him?"

"Do you feel sorry for him?" Charlie gave Theresa a strange look.

Theresa said, "Who do you disgust? I didn't take the wrong medicine, it's ridiculous for me to feel sorry for him? Do you want acupuncture here or in your room?"

"Here." Charlie.

Theresa nodded.

When they were ready, they began the day's acupuncture.

Nearly an hour later, Jimmy was still standing outside the door.

When it was over, Jonathan called Jimmy in.

Jimmy walked in and saw Charlie sitting in a chair. Theresa had packed her things and said, "I'm out."

"Go ahead."

With Theresa gone, Charlie set his sights on Jimmy. He looked at Jimmy and said, "Have you decided what to say about your mother?"

Jimmy said, "Uncle, I don't know anything about my mother. I wouldn't dare send her to Theresa if I knew!"

"Theresa?" Charlie snorted. "How dare you call your aunt Theresa's name?"

Jimmy,

That's what he called her all the time!

Why can't he call her name now?

But under Charlie's authority, He dared not object at all.

"Yes," said he, "Aunt Theresa."

He never thought he'd have to call his ex-wife aunt! This feeling, really is incomparably depressed.

Charlie said, "I've looked at your performance in the last two years. You've done well."

His performance is always at the top of the company.

That's why Jimmy got promoted so fast.

When Jimmy heard Charlie talking about work, he was excited. He said, "I'm supposed to be working for the company."

Tang is the largest shareholder of Lu Group, and Charlie also has a 30 percent stake in it

He and Rose's father built it together, and now it's one of the biggest companies on the Internet.

Charlie said, "Recently, we want to start a project in Africa. After thinking about it, we don't trust anyone else to go there. Why don't you pack your bags and go to work there?"

Jimmy,"

What's going on?

He's only been married to Rose for a few days, and he wanted to use Rose's connections to get a promotion at Calsis Group headquarters. But now, before he did it, Charlie wanted to arrange for him to go to Africa?

Jimmy yelled in his brain.

But now he could only continue to argue, "Uncle, I really know that I was wrong. Don't do that! I just got married to Rose, and Rose can't leave me. I can't go now!"

33

"Why can't Rose live with her family without you? The family can take good care of her." Charlie kept a straight face, as if he had made sure of it.

Jimmy couldn't understand why Charlie would do this to him!

Just because of Theresa?

Did he have to do this for a divorced woman?

Jimmy turned to Charlie and asked, "Uncle, why are you..... fall in love with Theresa?"

Charlie raised his eyebrows slightly and looked at Jimmy.

Jimmy touched his nose, under Charlie's critical eyes and said, "You wouldn't want a woman like Theresa, would you?"

I've known her for years, and she doesn't deserve your kindness! If... If you're worried about finding someone, I can set you up with someone better than Theresa."

After listening to Jimmy, Charlie looked at the man significantly and said, "Anyway, she's also your ex-wife. You used to be together, and that's how you evaluate her?"

Jimmy said, "I used to be nice to her, but this woman..... She doesn't know how to behave. She's cheating on me.

I'm so disappointed in her! It's not my fault! You are a man too, and what man can bear to be a cuckold"

Charlie sat there listening to Jimmy's complaints about Theresa. He didn't know anything about Theresa and Jimmy, but he didn't feel it was right.

He turned to Jimmy and asked, "Why did you and Theresa get divorced?"

Jimmy said, "She was cheating on."

"Who was she cheating on? After divorce, is that man not responsible for the two kids?" Charlie was a little curious. Jimmy froze for a moment and said, "I have never seen that man. I just know that the baby is not mine."

"In your words, you were fine with Theresa until you knew she was cheating. Since she chose to give you up and to be with the man, that man, should be better than you and certainly not bad for her. That means she can't have been divorced from you for so long and still be single with children."

Jimmy was stunned by Charlie's remark.

It used to be known that Theresa had cheated on him, but nobody thinks about too much else.

He can't believe Charlie's asking now.

At this moment, he didn't know how to make up a complete reason.

Jimmy thought for a moment and said, "That man seems to be married and has a wife. So..."

"So, Theresa divorced you for him, had two kids, and now hates you, not the man?"

In any case, if the man had failed Theresa, she should have targeted him, not Jimmy, as she did now.

But yesterday Theresa said Jimmy told her to go to the hospital to have the baby, which is more reliable!

Chapter 38

Chapter 038 Rose went to see Grandpa

Listening to what Charlie said, Jimmy realized that Charlie was really difficult to deal with. He continued to dissemble, "I don't know, maybe she's sick! She thinks I'm a pushover

"You don't look like a pushover, do you?" Charlie said, "I think if it weren't for me, you'd be happy to kill her."

From the first time Jimmy tried to get rid of Theresa, Jimmy never thought about keeping a relationship with her or whether she would be able to continue working for the Calsis.

He wanted Theresa to be desperate, especially when she lost her job.

Jimmy was a little tired of being asked. He was trying to convince Charlie, but he almost gave himself away when Charlie asked him a few questions. He had to pass this conversation off quickly, "Uncle, I'm saying this for your own good. Seriously, a woman like Theresa is not touchable. Who knows when she's ill? You'll find out later."

Here he unconsciously scratched at the foot of his trousers.

Charlie didn't miss his little act.

He said quietly, "My business is none of your business. Go back and get ready to report from Africa."

"No..." Jimmy did not expect to come back like a circle, "Uncle, you think again, I really can't go..... I can't leave Rose's side!"

"Get out." Charlie acted as if he hadn't heard.

Jimmy was about to say more when Jonathan came up to him and said, "Mr. Watson, please."

Seeing Jonathan's aggressive attitude, Jimmy clenched his fist hard and walked out the door with his head down in frustration. He had no choice but to go to Rose.

Theresa came out of Charlie's room and went to see Grandpa.

She was not only doing acupuncture for Charlie at Calsis' house, but also calming Grandpa's mood, so she wanted to see Grandpa before she went back.

She found Rose with grandpa.

Grandpa was eating, and Rose sat beside him, looking at him tenderly and talking with him.

Grandpa was calm and peace, and they had a good conversation.

Rose shut her mouth when Theresa appeared at the door.

She didn't have a good impression on Theresa, so she didn't want to see her at all.

When Grandpa saw Theresa, he laughed. "Sarah."

Theresa smiled at Grandpa, ignored Rose, and came over. "Grandpa," she said.

Seeing her answer so succinct, Rose took a sip of water from the glass in front of her and said, "Dr Cameron, Sarah seems to be a very good name for you."

Theresa looked at Rose and said, "Mrs. Watson, I know you have a problem with me because of Jimmy, but..... I don't have a problem with you, because I was just like you, thinking that man was the best person in the world. But one day you will find that my fate is yours."

Theresa didn't hate Rose who was just being led around by Jimmy!

On the contrary, there was nothing but sympathy for her.

She was a good girl who should have found a better man, but was deceived by Jimmy, a cheating and philandering man. Rose said, "Do you think I would cheat like you?"

"Well, I'm not going to talk to you." Theresa felt she couldn't talk to her at all.

Grandpa picked up the fruit in front of him, handed it to Theresa, and said, "Sarah, come and eat."

Rose looked at her grandpa and said, "Grandpa."

Grandpa replied, "What?"

"This woman is not Sarah at all. She's just lying to you here as Aunt Sarah. Her name is Theresa." Rose didn't want to break the news, but she didn't want him to be used by Theresa!

Grandpa said, "oh

He continued to Theresa, "Sarah, eat "

Rose put her hand on her forehead. For the first time, she felt so helpless about her grandfather's confusion.

Rose said, "Grandpa, you are so senile!"

As grandpa and Theresa ate, he turned to Rose and asked, "By the way, Sarah, who is this girl? She's been talking here, making a lot of noise."

Rose.

She looked at her grandfather in disbelief and saw that he did not recognize her!

When he was in the hospital, she was the one to accompany him. It's so unfair!

He now only recognized Theresa and treated her as the person closest to him! Frustrated by the sight of her grandfather talking to Theresa, Rose got up and left the room. Outside the door, she was annoyed. Jimmy came over, "Rose."

Rose said, "How are you? What did uncle Charlie say?"

She guessed that uncle Charlie had scolded Jimmy again.

Uncle Charlie was protecting Theresa, and what happened this afternoon was not Jimmy's fault, but now it was. Rose also felt helpless.....

"Uncle Charlie has lost his mind. He says he's going to transfer me to Africa."

"What?"

When Rose heard the news, her eyes widened in surprise. "This is too much! We just got married. You didn't offend him. Why would he do that?"

Just for Theresa?

It's so unfair!

"Yes." Jimmy said, "That's what I told him. I can't leave you behind. What shall we do? If I go to Africa, no one will be able to take care of you."

Even though he didn't want to go, he acted as if he was thinking of her in front of Rose.

After hearing this, Rose was so anxious that she said, "I'll go to my grandparents. I won't let you go to Africa."

She said, and went downstairs with Jimmy.

Robert went out to play soccer with his friends and just got back from out of town. Leticia was having dinner with him at the restaurant when he saw Jimmy and Rose come down.

Rose sat down at the table, her white face full of grievance. "Grandpa, Grandma."

Robert had a very good relationship with Rose's grandfather. It was because of his good friend's accident that he raised Rose's father.

Although Rose's father is not his own son, he has always doted on him.

When Rose was born, he naturally doted on her.

Seeing Rose's grievance, Robert asked, "What's the matter? Who's been bullying our Rose? Is that you?"

His eyes fell on Jimmy, who followed Rose down.

Jimmy,

He's the one being bullied. Why was it also his fault?

"Not Jimmy," said Rose. "Jimmy wouldn't bully me. It's my uncle Charlie."

"Oh." Robert's voice changed and softened. "It's Charlie."

It was as if the next thing he would say, "That's all right!"

He thought about it for a while and then said to Rose, "Charlie has a bum leg now, so he must have a bigger temper. You should just have to put up with your uncle and don't mess with him, huh?"

Chapter 39

Chapter 039 Charlie's father

He said that as if Rose was being unreasonable.

Rose felt wronged. "How dare I offend uncle Charlie? It was him.... each other."

He wants Jimmy to go to Africa. Is Africa where people want to go? Jimmy and I just got married. We do not wish to be parted from Leticia took a look at Rose, then turned to Jimmy and asked, "Did you do something to piss Charlie off again? I know you're recently married and might be neglecting your work. Charlie treats his work very seriously. You need to pay more attention to your work."

Even if he married Rose, he also can't treat his work without hard work.

He's a man, and Rose didn't hire live-in sons-in-law, so he can't be a kept man.

Jimmy knew Leticia didn't like him, but he didn't know why she started suspecting him when something wrong was happened.

"I'm not doing anything," he said. "It's not working. I've been the best performance in the company for months." "Oh," Leticia replied flatly. Hearing what Jimmy said, she still thought it was what he should do.

If he wanted to marry Rose, he needed some skills.

Rose praised, "Jimmy's business ability is really good! The uncles in the company also admire him."

"They admire him because of you." Knowing that Jimmy was Rose's husband, everyone else would take care of him instead of excluding him.

Rose was so depressed when she heard their words. She didn't know why her grandparents disliked Jimmy so much. But that's not the point now.

She walked to Leticia's side, hugged her hand, and said, "Grandma, please help me to think out of a way. Jimmy really didn't do anything this time! He's really innocent!"

"What was that for?" Robert asked.

They didn't want to dismiss Charlie's decision easily.

The company's affairs were all handled by Charlie now. They were not concerned about it at all.

Rose did not say clearly, that this matter naturally could not be resolved.

Rose bit her lip and said, "It's just because of yesterday's incident. My mother-in-law went to look for Theresa in the afternoon and was seen by uncle Charlie. But Jimmy and I don't know about this matter. Uncle Charlie blamed Jimmy for the incident. We are too wronged! Even if uncle Charlie spoils Theresa, he wouldn't treat us like this, right?"

When he heard Theresa, Robert was stunned for a moment. When he was talking to Leticia on the phone, he heard Leticia mention Theresa's matter, but he hadn't seen it yet.

He asked, "Is Theresa here now?"

When Rose heard Robert ask about Theresa, she nodded and said, "Yes! She's upstairs. She's chatting with Grandpa right now. Grandpa likes her very much now and completely treats her as Sarah..."

When Robert heard the words, he called Brenda, who was beside them, and said, "Brenda, go get Theresa to come down."

Brenda nodded, "Yes."

Brenda had to sigh in her heart. Theresa's life was really bitter!

Even now in Calsis's house, she was not in peace.

She only escaped yesterday. Today Robert came back and did not know what to say.

Theresa was still talking to grandpa upstairs. Brenda walked to the door and said, "Theresa, Mr. Calsis is back. He asked you to go down."

"Mr. Calsis?"

"Charlie's dad."

"Oh," Theresa remembered that she had not seen Charlie's father once in the past few days at Calsis's house.

Theresa glanced at grandpa and said to him, "Grandpa, I'll go down and see you later "

"Where to?" Grandpa glanced at Theresa. "Didn't you say you wanted to play chess with me? Are you going to have a baby with Charlie again"

"Theresa wiped her sweat silently

Theresa said, "Charlie's father called me. I'll go and have a look."

"Oh, him." Grandpa looked uninterested said, "Go ahead."

Theresa followed Brenda down from upstairs and asked Brenda, "What is Charlie's father looking for me for?"

Brenda said, "I don't know, but Rose and Mr. Watson are both there."

Hearing those two people, Theresa probably guessed something as well.

Brenda didn't have time to tell her in detail. They had already arrived at the restaurant.

Charlie's father is quite gentle and looks like Charlie. He wears glasses and looks somewhat serious.

Rose and Jimmy sat aside and looked at Theresa.

Jimmy was totally looking like he was watching a good show and wanted to see Theresa make a fool of herself.

After she graduated, Theresa had been at home since she got pregnant, except for working at the beginning. As a woman, she hadn't seen much of the world. When she met a big shot like Mr. Calsis, she certainly didn't know how to say a word!

Theresa did not care about this man with evil intentions. When she saw Charlie's father, she came over and took the initiative to say, "Hello, uncle."

Although she wanted to call her father directly, she felt that it was inappropriate.

Charlie's father looked up and glanced at Theresa. What did she call him? Uncle? Good guy!

His son's wife called him uncle!

He snorted and was a little dissatisfied with Theresa in an instant. He said, "Sit down."

Seeing Robert look cold to Theresa, Rose raised the corners of her mouth. Theresa was indeed hated!

Theresa sat down, glanced at Robert, and took the initiative to say, "Did Uncle just come back from outside? I haven't seen you for the past two days."

As soon as Robert heard the word uncle, his face became more complicated.

Seeing that her husband did not reply, Leticia felt that the scene was very awkward and took the initiative to say:

"He went out with some friends to play soccer recently. He just came back."

"Uncle still plays football?" Theresa was somewhat impressed.

Charlie's father was older than Theresa's father, but he looked younger than Theresa's father. He actually still had the energy to play football, which made Theresa have to admire the elderly now.

Leticia said, "He's a football fan. He used to play in school, but his dad dragged him back to do business."

Theresa suddenly remembered that when she was just upstairs, grandpa heard Robert coming back and didn't seem to care much about this matter.

It seems that the relationship between father and son is not very good!

Leticia asked, "Where is Charlie? What is he doing? How is his treatment going recently?"

Theresa said, "Today's treatment is over. We have to wait for a course of treatment before deciding on the next steps."

Leticia said, "Please."

"Uncle asked me to come down. Is there something wrong?" He told her to come down and did not speak. It made Theresa feel a little uneasy.

Even if it was a crime, he had to give her a judgement earlier.

Dragging like this made her feel creepy.

When Robert heard this, he glanced at Theresa and remembered something. He said, "What did Rose say just now... Rose, repeat what happened just now."

Chapter 40

Chapter 040 Why don't you stay tonight?

Rose heard Robert ask about this and said with a grievance, "Uncle Charlie wants to transfer Jimmy to Africa. He is so fascinated by this woman now. It's really too much."

Theresa glanced at Jimmy with some surprise Jimmy is transferring to Africa?

Charlie is such a genius!

This kind of thing, ordinary people really can't do it!

However, Theresa did not know why hearing this, she actually felt very happy and relieved.

Charlie, who usually speaks so harshly, is so satisfied when he does things.

Thinking of this, Theresa laughed out loud.

Although it was in front of Robert and Leticia, she still did not restrain herself.

Rose saw Theresa smile and said, "You're still laughing! You instigated it, right? Sure enough, Jimmy and I won't have a good life if we let you stay in the Calsis family!"

Theresa said, "My elder niece, your words are hilarious. Is your uncle Charlie the kind of person who is easily instigated by others?"

"Uncle Charlie has no grudges with Jimmy and me. If it weren't for you, why would he target Jimmy so much?"

"Jimmy is young, and it's the time when he needs more experience. Africa is so good! He can also go out and learn more. Men can't always stay in their comfort zone," she said presentably.

Jimmy looked at this woman who spoke eloquently, as if she was doing it for his own good, but he actually saw in her the appearance of colluding with Charlie.

This woman...

She was really getting more and more cunning like Charlie.

Seeing that she could not win against Theresa, Rose said to Robert, "Grandpa, look at her. In front of everyone, she still dares to talk like that! From now on, as long as she continues to stay in this family, I won't come back! Lest I be bullied by her every day!"

Theresa glanced at Rose, who was very protective of Jimmy, and said calmly, "Rose, I still say the same thing. You should keep your eyes open when looking for a man. Don't be fooled by others and still count money for him. Look at yourself, you just got married, and you're being led by others..."

"Theresa!" Jimmy looked at Theresa meaningfully. "Watch on your words!"

He didn't expect her to actually start bewitching Rose!

This crazy woman, as long as he had her in the Calsis family for a day, he really would not have a safe life.

Theresa gave him a supercilious look, "What are you in a hurry for?"

Robert glanced at Jimmy and said with a cold face, "You have no education at all. Are you the one who can talk to the elders?"

Jimmy,

Robert stared at him as he spoke, obviously scolding him!

Theresa,

This crazy woman, as long as he had her in the Calsis family for a day, he really would not have a safe life.

Theresa gave him a supercilious look, "What are you in a hurry for?"

Robert glanced at Jimmy and said with a cold face, "You really have no education at all. Are you able to insert your elders when they were speaking?"

Jimmy,

H

Robert stared at him as he spoke, obviously scolding him!

Theresa, "

She didn't expect that this cold-looking father-in-law would say something so mean.

This meanness did not seem to be aimed at Jimmy rather than her.

Theresa raised her head and glanced at Robert For some reason, she suddenly felt that this old man was not scary at all. Robert said to Jimmy. "Can you call your elders by their names?"

"No, Grandfather" Rose was depressed. Why did he hate Theresa, but was speaking for her at the same time?

When Robert heard Rose's voice, he said to Rose, "Listen carefully to what your aunt Theresa said. What she said is very reasonable Men should indeed take advantage of their youth to go out and experience You should also look at men in a better way. Don't always be led around. It makes me angry when I see you!"

Rose,

Oh gosh Isn't he going to discipline Theresa?

Why did it become a lesson to her!

"Grandfather, how could you do this? You didn't do what you promised!" Rose was so uncomfortable.

Brenda stood aside and felt relieved for Theresa when she saw this.

She almost thought that Theresa was going to be scolded just now!

Robert waved his hand and did not want to talk anymore.

Leticia said to Rose and Jimmy, "This decision was made by Charlie. You'd better go back and find Charlie. Your grandfather has just come back. Let him have a good meal. you need to be obedient."

As she spoke, she pulled Rose out of the living room and called Jimmy along.

Jimmy stood up and glanced at Theresa, who was sitting there. He found that he actually... had no way to take her. He was pinched to death by her.

In the Calsis family, she had higher seniority than him and could simply do whatever she wanted.

Seeing that the two of them had walked away, Theresa did not leave either. She looked at Robert and said, "Uncle, thank you."

Robert was speechless when he heard her words. He still called him uncle?

With a dark face, he did not speak.

Theresa saw that his face was so dark. She glanced at Brenda next to her silently and didn't know what to do. Fortunately, Leticia came back soon.

Leticia glanced at her husband's dark face and looked like he didn't want to talk to Theresa at all. She didn't know what was wrong with him. He had just helped Theresa speak, but when he saw Theresa, he didn't have any good attitude. She didn't even know whether he was satisfied or dissatisfied with this daughter-in-law!

She sat down and said to Theresa, "Theresa, are you staying tonight?"

Theresa's marriage to Charlie was a foregone conclusion. Since Charlie had chosen her, Leticia could only convince herself to accept everything now.

"No." Theresa said, "I have to go back."

She could not rest assured about the two children.

Leticia said, "Oh, I see!"

Theresa said, "Then I'll tell Grandpa and get ready to go back."

"Okay, you're tired today," Leticia said in a friendly manner.

Theresa stood up, glanced at Robert weakly, and said, "Uncle, I'll leave first."

After saying that, she came out of the restaurant and headed upstairs.

Leticia glanced at her husband and said, "Although she was related to Jimmy before, Charlie likes her very much now, and... Dad also likes her very much. Don't be too cold to her!"

Leticia loved her son now and naturally respected all the decisions of Charlie's.

With a dark face, Robert glanced at Leticia and said, "Humph, who asked her to call me uncle? She did not even call me father."

"..." Leticia looked at her husband in disbelief. "Are you ignoring her because of this?"

She thought that he treated Theresa badly because he was dissatisfied with Theresa's conditions.

This made Leticia wonder if her husband's brain circuits were abnormal.

Theresa arrived upstairs and went to see Grandpa first. After chatting with Grandpa for a while, she came out and saw Charlie at the door. It seemed that he was also ready to see Grandpa.

Seeing that she was about to leave, he asked, "Home?"

Theresa nodded. "By the way, I heard that you want to transfer Jimmy to Africa?"

Charlie's eyes were thick, and his expression was very calm. "The project over there is just short of someone."

Theresa looked at him and smiled. Charlie's gaze fell on her face and found that when she smiled, her eyes were curved like the moon, which was very beautiful.

Chapter 41

Chapter 041 Design Wedding Dress by Myself

Charlie froze for a moment and heard Theresa say, "Charlie, I've noticed that you are really growing on me, I'm going back."

Then she went downstairs.

thank you

Charlie paused for a while, then looked up at Jonathan, "What did she say?"

Jonathan said, "Mrs. Calsis said you are growing on her."

"Oh." It appeared that he didn't mishear.

This woman was really in love with him!

Jonathan said, "Actually, Dr. Cameron is lovely, but got divorced with two children. Otherwise, she'll be a good match for Master Calsis."

Charlie heard Jonathan's words and pulled the collar of his shirt with his long, slender fingers.

He snorted coldly, "I have no feeling for her. What does it matter to me whether she got divorced or not?"

Jonathan lowered his head, looking at his master, "Yes, I said the wrong thing."

Charlie paid a visit to Old Mr. Calsis. He was a little disgruntled at the sight of Charlie, "What are you doing here instead of spending time with Sarah?"

Every time Theresa wanted to go home, her excuse for leaving Old Mr. Calsis was to spend time with Charlie. Otherwise, Old Mr. Calsis might really ask her to stay overnight. That was why Charlie's visit made him so disgruntled.

When Charlie heard what Old Mr. Calsis said, he wanted to slap himself across the face. Why did he come here to look for trouble?

"Then I'm going back," he said.

"Go ahead," Old Mr. Calsis said behind him, "The real business is to have a baby with Sarah as soon as possible."

Charlie's face darkened as he heard about the baby. A baby with Theresa?

The baby had to be like him!

Or, if she was to be like her, she would be cheated by men every day.

After visiting Grandpa, Charlie returned to his room together with Jonathan.

Jonathan poured him some water while Charlie sitting aside was working on the design. The wedding dress he went to see with Theresa was so ugly that he thought it would be better to design one by himself.

He used to do designing work for some time, but he gave it up because he was too busy.

After a while. Jonathan looked at the time and asked, "Master Calsis, would you like to take a break?"

Charlie stopped, put down his pen, and frowned slightly.

Jonathan asked, "What's wrong? Not feeling well?"

"My legs hurt."

Theresa came home. The babies had behaved well today, they went to bed by themselves. she took a shower, then lay down on the bed, and before long, saw Ben roll over to hug her, "Mommy."

She was tired all day. Looking at the baby's cute face, she finally raised the corners of her mouth.

Theresa held the baby and fell asleep for a while until her phone rang.

Dizzy and sleepy, she answered the phone. It was Brenda, "Theresa, are you there?"

"Brenda," Theresa sat up and refreshed a little, "Why are you calling at this hour?"

"Something happened to Charlie," Brenda sounded very nervous, "He was sent to the hospital just now because of terrible pain in his legs. Does that have something to do with your acupuncture?"

Cristina told her that Theresa's acupuncture skills were excellent, but Theresa had only studied for two or three years, which was enough only for a novice.

And she introduced Theresa at that time!

If anything went wrong, she would not get away with it.

After hearing her words, Theresa frowned, not feeling sleepy anymore, "Which hospital? I'll go check it out.

Charlie was still having a stake in the future of the Cameron family!

Please let nothing happen to him!

Although she was confident in her acupuncture skills, everyone's condition was different, and there were exceptions.

Brenda said, "I'll text the address to you."

"Ok"

Theresa got up, got dressed, and went out.

She received the address from Brenda as she got out of the elevator.

It wasn't a good time to call a taxi, so she called a Uber car to rush to the hospital.

Having arrived at the hospital, she inquired about the exact location, and ran into Roderick before she got there. Roderick stopped her, "Theresa."

He was very tall and looked very handsome in his white coat.

Theresa said, "I'm here to check on Charlie. How is he?"

"Oh," Roderick said, "Me, too. Let's go together."

He knew the hospital better than Theresa who was like a headless chicken.

Following Roderick, she soon arrived at Charlie's ward.

Jonathan came out of the ward and saw both of them, "Dr. Hill, Mrs. Calsis."

Seeing Theresa, he felt a little surprised. "Why are you here?"

Theresa said, "I heard something happened to Charlie and was worried about him. So I'm here to check on him. How is he?"

On the way here, Theresa went through all sorts of messy thoughts!

Even the imagination of the family Cameron going bankrupt.

Jonathan glanced at Theresa's nervous face and said, "The doctor has just finished examining him. You can go in and see him."

After hearing Jonathan's words, Roderick nodded, pushed the ward door open, and walked in.

Leticia and Robert were still here.

Leticia said, "Then, you take care in the hospital, your father and I are going back. He is tired having been running between home and hospital for two days."

It turned out that everyone fell asleep until this matter made everyone come to the hospital and toss about it for a long time.

Charlie said, "OK."

Leticia saw Roderick come in and smiled, "Roderick, it's very kind of you to come and see Charlie!"

The two families got along well. They grew up together under the care of the two families, so Leticia was nice to Roderick.

Roderick said politely, "Auntie Leticia, long time no see."

"Pay a visit to us when you are available. Then enjoy your chatting, we are going back." Leticia took a glance at Theresa and called Robert out.

Charlie was not surprised to see Roderick. Roderick worked in the hospital. Besides, It was usual for him, as a workaholic, to stay up late.

His eyes fell on Theresa, "What are you doing here?"

Didn't she have to stay at home to look after the kids?

What was she doing in the hospital?

Theresa said, "I heard from Brenda that something happened to you, so I'm here to see you. But it seems to be nothing serious."

If it was serious, Robert and Leticia wouldn't go back so soon.

Charlie said, "My legs hurt, but the doctor examined me and said it's a good sign."

His legs felt nothing at all before.

Now it started to hurt, which was a big step forward. The doctor gave him some medicine, and let him stay in the hospital for observation.

Theresa said, "I see!"

She breathed a sigh of relief, and the big stone in her heart was removed.

Charlie looked at her and raised his eyebrow slightly. He never knew that this woman cared so much about him.

Not sleeping at home in the middle of the night, she came to the hospital to see him! To be honest, even Charlie was a little moved. After all, she was more conscientious than a woman like Sarah!

He glanced at Roderick, who also came to see him, and said, "I'm fine, go do your work."

Chapter 42

Chapter 042 I Can Lump It

Roderick smiled, "I'm glad you are okay, I worried so much about you! Your legs appear promising to recover."

Charlie said, "I hope so."

Anyway, everything was going well.

Roderick yawned. "I'll go to bed then."

He walked out of the ward after finishing his words.

Seeing that Roderick left and Charlie was fine, Theresa said to Charlie, "Then I'm going back, too."

She was glad he was okay!

She just came to check on him.

Seeing that she was leaving, Charlie said, "Wait."

Theresa heard him and glanced at him over her shoulder.

Charlie said, "I decide to give you a reward for spending time with me so late."

"Huh?" A reward?

Hearing the reward, Theresa got excited. The boss was generous indeed, was he going to give her money?

It was so considerate of him to give her money when she was on a tight budget.

She was expectant until she heard Charlie say, "So today, I'll just permit you to stay with me for company."

Theresa was dumbstruck for a moment, and then she looked at Charlie incredulously. Oh, man, you call this a reward? Surely she was not willing to do it!

Why would she stay with him since he was all right? Besides, wasn't Jonathan here?

But Theresa was too timid to make it too obvious.

She made an excuse, "I want to go back. I left two babies at home, I'm worried about them."

"They are just sleeping at night, What makes you so worried?" Charlie looked at this awkward woman. Did she decline the permission to stay with him for the company?

She made it look like he was making her stay!

Theresa said, "But there are only two kids at home..... I am afraid."

"Then what are you doing in the hospital?" Charlie looked at her.

Theresa was speechless. Is it wrong to check on you?

She said, "Just hearing that you are in hospital, I felt worried, so I'm here to check on you."

"That's it," Charlie said, "I need company now, and I want you to stay."

She wanted him to make her stay, didn't she?

He could permit that!

After hearing Charlie's words, she twitched her mouth and looked at this man for a while, not knowing what to say. Charlie saw her sitting aside and said, "Come here." Theresa had no choice but to go there.

Charlie said, "Water."

Theresa poured him water.

She sat down beside him and looked at the man on the bed in the quiet ward. Theresa asked, "Do your legs still hurt?"

"Yeah."

Looking at him, Theresa knew he wasn't feeling well, so she took pity on him and stayed.

Charlie finished his water and saw Theresa staring at him as if she was worried.

He never knew this woman cared so much about him.

He consoled her, "Don't worry, this pain is nothing and better compared to waking up in the hospital knowing I couldn't stand up anymore at that time."

That was a blow to the heart!

As a normal person, to know that he was disabled and couldn't stand up any more was the most devastating thing. And now, everything was reversed. Theresa said, "You're going to be all right"

After the contact with Charlie, she found he wasn't a bad guy.

A proud man like him should be sound instead of being stuck in a wheelchair and hanging loosely down, which was not in her discreet manner as usual.

After hearing Theresa's words, Charlie took a glance at her Theresa had left the house in a hurry, with her hair untied.

He looked at her and said, "Come here."

After hearing his words, Theresa paused for a second. Where?

Charlie patted the edge of the bed.

She stood up, sat down on the edge of the bed, and asked, "What?"

Charlie reached over and smoothed her disheveled hair.

Theresa was stunned for a moment by his subtle gesture.

Maybe she had been single for so long that she thought Charlie was a little handsome at that moment.....

A sucker for men!

She gave herself a harsh disdain and heard Charlie ask, "Didn't you look in the mirror before you went out, with your hair like this?"

Theresa was awkward, "I was woken up in the middle of the night, it's conscientious enough for me to get here! Who cares about hair?"

After hearing her words, Charlie asked solemnly, "You love me that much?"

So much that she didn't care about her appearance?

Theresa,

Why did he think that she loved him?

She said, "Charlie, what are you thinking? I'm just worried about you!"

"Why are you worried about me if you don't love me? You duplicitous woman!"

Theresa said, "I don't want to talk to you anymore."

She sat back in her chair at some distance from him. She remembered clearly that she had signed an agreement with this man, so she would never do anything beyond it.

Theresa sat aside, killing time on her phone.

Charlie took the medicine and fell asleep after a while.

Jonathan walked in, saw Charlie lying flat on the bed, and asked, "Is Master Calsis asleep?"

"He just fell asleep," Theresa looked at Jonathan and said, "You didn't get any sleep at all, did you?"

"No."

"Then you go get some sleep. I'll stay here." At least Theresa had got some sleep, unlike Jonathan, who had run all day and seemed to get no sleep at all.

Jonathan said, "It doesn't seem appropriate."

"That's okay. I'll help you keep an eye on him until you come back after getting some sleep." Theresa wasn't sleeping anyway.

Jonathan gave Theresa a grateful look and said, "Thank you, Mrs. Calsis."

He went out after his words. As he closed the door, he glanced at Theresa sitting beside his bed and imagined the scene of her looking affectionately at Charlie. Oh, what a spoony woman!

Theresa sat beside Charlie's bed for company, reading a book she hadn't got the chance to read in the last two days. She liked reading books in her daily life. She wasted a lot of time during the two years when she was an expectant mother, so now she studied hard in her spare time.

She always thought that people needed to constantly improve themselves.

In the morning, Theresa was still in the hospital. Jonathan brought breakfast, saw Theresa here, and said, "Mrs. Calsis."

Theresa said, "There you are! I'm ready to go back."

It was a good thing that Jonathan came early.

She had to get back and take her two kids to school.

Jonathan said, "All right, go back and have a rest. Thanks a lot for your help."

It was only six o'clock. Jonathan was kind of early!

Theresa said, "It was nothing."

Jonathan said, "I prepared breakfast for you. I didn't know what you want, so I bought some of each. Take it with you."

Theresa swept a glance and took it with great gratitude.

When she arrived home, she just saw the two babies get up.

Theresa put the food on the table and said, "Leonard, Ben, breakfast is ready."

Leonard walked over and stood at the table, barely as tall as the table. Theresa picked him up and put him on his seat, and Ben, too.

She took out the breakfast and divided it among them.

"Mommy, why is there so much food?"

Chapter 43

Chapter 043 Charlie in Hospital

Theresa said. "My boss's assistant bought it. I brought it home."

She took out the boxes and showed them. There was Cantonese breakfast and crystal shrimp dumplings.

The two babies ate happily.

Ben said, "Mommy, the dumplings are delicious."

Theresa asked, "Do you like it?"

"Yes."

"Then mommy will buy some for you."

"Why did the assistant give you the breakfast tasting so good?" Ben asked curiously.

Theresa said, "My boss is sick and I took care of him in the hospital. So his assistant wanted to thank me." "Oh," Ben said, "I thought he wanted to date you.'

Theresa blushed. "You think mommy is a stunner and everyone wants to date me, right?"

"Heh heh," Ben chuckled.

Leonard sat aside with his big dark eyes on Theresa.

Theresa looked at him, "Leonard, why are you looking at mommy? Eat your food."

"Mommy, you look so beautiful," Leonard said.

Usually, Leonard was very quiet.

It was just that he would say something overwhelming like this once in a while.

"By the way, mommy, the teacher asked me to buy new clothes," Ben said. "New clothes?"

"Yes, clothes for the show."

"When do you need it?"

"By next week."

H

"Then I'll take you to go shopping this weekend." Theresa looked at the two babies, "It has been a while since I bought you clothes last time."

"I don't need new clothes," Ben looked down at his T-shirt.

Theresa looked at him and smiled, remembering when she was in the hospital today, she flicked through the Tiktok and saw a comment asking why did Ben always wear the same clothes in every video.

She felt sad looking at it even though Ben didn't think so.

When Theresa arrived at the hospital after sending the two babies to school, she heard Rose's voice, "Uncle Charlie, how are you feeling?"

Charlie said, "good."

Rose and Jimmy heard that Charlie was in hospital, so they came to see him.

There were a few conflicts between them because of Theresa, but they were families after all!

Theresa was about to push the door open and walk in when Jimmy said, "What did I say? I told you Theresa was unreliable. She has never done this before and somehow she got a fake certificate to cheat people."

Last night, Rose and Jimmy couldn't sleep well after they went home, thinking that Jimmy would be driven away to Africa and it was because of a woman like Theresa.

They never thought they would wake up hearing that Charlie was in hospital because of a pain in his legs.

This gave Jimmy hope immediately!

Theresa still wanted to stay in the Calsis family after something happened to Charlie?

It would be outrageous if the Calsis family didn't hold her accountable!

Theresa, who was standing outside the door, sighed helplessly. Jimmy was really good at troubling her.

She had to count herself lucky that Charlie was all right. Otherwise Jimmy would have her killed!

Charlie sat aside, listened to their words, and rubbed the center of his eyebrows, "I'm tired."

It was obvious that he was driving them away!

Rose understood Charlie and said to him, "Uncle Charlie, have a good rest. We won't bother you anymore."

Everyone knew what would happen to Theresa if something happened to Charlie, and there was no need for them to talk nonsense!

All they had to do was to go back and wait!

Jonathan said, "Take your time."

He was relieved to see them leave because he couldn't stand them saying bad words about Theresa.

Master Calsis's legs were promising to recover because of Theresa!

Besides, Theresa stayed here with Master Calsis for the whole night.

the first thing these two people came to do was to say bad words about Theresa. They appeared so annoying.

Jonathan thought he was going to lose his temper before Master Calsis if they hadn't left.

Rose and Jimmy came out of the ward and Jimmy were happy until he run right into Theresa at the door.

At the sight of Theresa, Rose's face showed some surprise, "How dare you come here?"

This woman was such a daredevil that she showed up here instead of hiding somewhere after all this.

Also, when Jimmy saw her, there was glee in his eyes.

Theresa watched their reactions and said calmly, "I'm here to check on Charlie."

Rose said, "You've hurt Uncle Charlie so much that he was sent to the hospital in the middle of the night. How dare you come to see him? I think you'd better not show up lest he gets too angry with you."

Theresa took a glance at Rose and said, "If anything happens, I'll take full responsibility. You don't need to worry about me, Miss Nandlall."

Rose looked at her disapprovingly. "Responsibility, how can you take and afford the responsibility for a noble man like Uncle Charlie? Dr. Cameron, what do you regard the Calsis family as? Do you know you can't afford even the responsibility for causing him in hospital?"

Theresa knew she was trying to drive her away. Now that Rose had something on her, then she had to seize this opportunity.

She looked at Rose and said, "Even if something happens to Charlie, I'm still your aunt-in-law. You shouldn't talk to me like that, should you?"

Rose paused for a second. That wasn't she, but when she saw Theresa, she just felt so disgusted.

she said, "Aunt-in-law? Uncle Charlie is just being fatuous for now. What kind of aunt-in-law are you? After all, you're just a substitute for Sarah. You're nothing without her."

"Even if I'm a substitute, so what?" Theresa pulled the corners of her mouth, "If you feel discontented, ask Charlie to kick me out!"

She was still useful to Charlie, so Charlie would not kick her out.

There was nothing for Theresa to worry about!

She was about to walk through the door when Rose put out her arm in front of her, blocking her way.

Theresa looked at Rose and asked, "What does that mean?"

Rose said, "Uncle Charlie protected you last night because nothing had happened to him yet. Now... Do you still want to see him? What's wrong with you?"

She wouldn't allow Theresa to show up in front of Charlie again!

Theresa said, "When did you take the charge of your uncle's business? Is it his idea not to let me in?"

"I can deal with this kind of thing without him asking."

Theresa asked, "Have you ever thought about what will happen if your uncle finds out what you have done?"

Rose said, "I just helped him deal with some annoying people. What will he do to me? Will he scold me for a woman like you? Or what? I grew up with him since I was a child, and I'm the person Uncle Charlie loves the most. You don't think he loves you more than me, do you?"

Theresa raised her eyebrow, glanced at her, and laughed, "Rose, let Aunt Theresa tell you something. Don't go too far lest you'll pay for it yourself."

Rose looked at her and said, "You can still laugh when Uncle Charlie is like this? What a heartless woman you are true!"

Chapter 44

Chapter 044 Have Rose hit

She realized immediately that she had been too polite to Theresa!

Right, she was such a woman that she even treated Jimmy so rudely, let alone Uncle Charlie she had just met. Theresa said, "What has happened to your Uncle Charlie? He's all right! He's not dead anyway." "You even wish him dead?"

"Is that Miss Nandlall's savvy?" Theresa looked at her, hardly knowing what to say.

"Theresa, women like you will pay for it! You are even a mother, I don't know how children brought up by you are going to survive the society."

Theresa frowned at Rose's mention of the baby and glanced at Jimmy standing aside, who looked very snooty because of

Rose's support

She said to Rose, "I did have paid for meeting people like him in the past. However, you, Miss Nandlall, are nice both inside and outside, I wonder what you have done so wrong that you are suffering the same."

Jimmy heard her turn to him and blackened his face, "Theresa."

"Aren't things like that?" Theresa looked at Jimmy and twitched the corners of her mouth, "You must be elated to see your wife quarreling with me for you now, thinking to yourself how charming you are, aren't you?"

"This is between you and me. Leave Jimmy out of it!" Rose defended him.

Theresa said, "What is between you and me? I have nothing against you. It's all because of Jimmy that you hate me so much, isn't it?"

Rose said, "I didn't remember until you reminded me of what you did. What did you do to Jimmy? It was apparently your fault for beating him, but it was he who had to apologize. What's more, Uncle Charlie almost drove him away to Africa because of you."

Theresa raised her eyebrow. "Almost? Charlie agreed to let him stay somehow? That's not right. I have to talk to him and get him to send Jimmy away!"

While speaking, she was about to walk in. Rose never thought she was so outrageous.

She grabbed Theresa's arm and stopped her, "You are wicked indeed!"

Now she was still wishing to drive away Jimmy!

"I'm not even close to your husband," Theresa said.

Rose was furious as she slandered Jimmy again and again, "Show my husband some respect," she said.

"He is nothing but a scumbag, but you still think he is worth defending, don't you? you are really a kid after all, so stupid." Theresa gave Rose a sympathetic look.

Rose felt humiliated!

For some reason, she felt nothing good had happened to her these days when Theresa was around.

Everything this woman said and did make her sick!

She got so inflamed that she raised her hand and slapped Theresa in the face.

The slap made Theresa stunned for a moment. After all, Rose looked so gentle that Theresa didn't expect her to do it.

She put her hands to her face. "Is this your demeanor as an elder daughter from the Nandlall family?"

Rose rarely beats people!

But seeing Theresa like this, she thought she was right.

She said with a cold face, "What, not content? I will make you."

She said, swinging another slap in her face, "This one is for Jimmy!"

As the slap was about to land on her face, Theresa raised her hand and grabbed her wrist, forcing it to stop in mid air.

Theresa looked at Rose and said, "I'm okay if you hit me for anyone, except Jimmy!"

"Let go," Rose warned, "What, you daren't hit back, dare you?"

She didn't think Theresa would dare hit her!

Who was she?

She was Rose!

She was the granddaughter of the Calsis family.

Pat was her father.

Charlie was her uncle!

In this city, who didn't love her?

What could a woman like Theresa do to her?

She hurt Uncle Charlie so much, and she even wanted to hit her? Unless she really got tired of living!

Theresa, looking at her superior look, raised her hand and swung a slap squarely in her face.

Compared with Rose's slap which was impotent, her slap was a little bit harder, making Rose take two steps back. Jimmy held Rose and looked at Theresa, "Theresa, how dare you do that?"

Theresa looked at the palm of her hand and then at Rose, "I gave the slap back to you, hoping it will wake you up. You'll suffer losses if you're too stupid. As your aunt-in-law, I can't let you go on like that, can I?"

Rose couldn't be more furious, "Theresa!"

She was really angry!

She got rid of Jimmy's hand and rushed over to hit her back

She didn't think Theresa should hit her!

It made half of her face numb.

She instinctively tried to pull Theresa's hand. Theresa took advantage of it and grabbed her curly hair. Rose said, "You grabbed my hair, you are so viperous."

"Aren't you the one who started it?" Theresa looked at Rose and said, "Your uncle said before that, as your aunt-in-law,

I can teach you a lesson if you don't listen. Then how about it if I teach you for him today?"

"What's going on?" It was a man, who looked very handsome and mysterious in age. Two underlings were following him, presumably his assistants.

As soon as Rose heard the voice, she said innocently, "Dad."

Theresa let go. Rose got out of her hand and ran into Pat's arms, "Dad, I'm being bullied."

The point was, she was no fighting match for her!

She got even more furious as she thought about it!

'Don't cry!' Pat said, "Isn't Dad here?"

Theresa stood aside, looking at a man of this age who turned out to be..... Rose's dad and Jimmy's father-in-law?

He looked so young!

Rose held Pat's arm and cried, "This woman hit me! She not only caused Uncle Charlie in hospital but also dared to hit me!"

Pat heard Rose's words and his eyes fell on Theresa.

He had seen clearly what Theresa just did in person.

Glared by Pat, instinctively, Theresa got a little frightened for a moment.

Although having heard of the name of the chairman of Nandlall Group, it was the first time to see him in flesh.. He was very handsome, with an aura of superior stateliness that made people shudder. the price."

Pat turned around and calmed Rose first, "Don't cry. Anyone who dares to bully my daughter will have to pay Hearing her father's words, Rose was relieved and said, "Dad, you don't know, this woman is so hateful! She even made Uncle Charlie marry her somehow! But she's just a liar! Dad, you're finally back. I missed you so much!"

Pat twitched the corners of his mouth, "It's okay. No one will ever bully you again since Dad is back, all right? Jimmy, stafiding aside, saw Pat return, and his eyes fell on Theresa. Pat loved his baby daughter the most, and he was not going to be fooled by Theresa like Charlie!

Chapter 45

Chapter 045 Rose's Father

The way he looked at Theresa at that moment is even a little sympathetic!

If she had been more sensible and judicious and hadn't managed to get involved in the Calsis family, she wouldn't have made things like this'

After causing Charlie she even dared to hit Rose. She literally asked for it!

Pat looked at Theresa with sharp eyes, "Is it you who dared to hit my daughter?"

Theresa said, "Your daughter started it in the first place." "Did she?" Pat said unconcernedly, "Who are you? How dare you compare yourself with my daughter? It's an honor to be hit by her. How dare you hit back?"

Pat always acted aggressively.

Theresa looked at the man and said, "Mr. Nandlall, are you throwing your weight around?"

"Then I'll show you my weight." Pat turned to his underlings, "From now on, I don't want to see this woman and her families in this city again."

Pat's underlings nodded, "Yes, sir."

He always did as he said.

Theresa felt only coldness inside him.

He was going to deal with not only her but also her families?

The two underlings approached, looked at Theresa, and, without saying anything, grabbed her arms, trying to take her away...

Just then, the door of the ward opened and Jonathan came out. He saw Pat and said on his initiative, "Mr. Nandlall." Pat saw Jonathan and said calmly, "Jonathan, where's Charlie? I'm here to check on him." As if nothing had happened just now!

Dealing with Theresa was just a trivial matter and not worth caring about for him.

Jonathan said politely, "He is here. Please come in."

As Pat was about to enter, Jonathan's eyes fell on Theresa. Seeing Pat's underlings trying to take her away, he said, "Mrs.

Calsis, come on in. Master Calsis is waiting for you."

Hearing Jonathan's words, Pat's eyes fell on Theresa. He glanced at her and didn't pursue the matter for the time being. They walked in through the door.

Charlie was lying on the bed. Pat sat down in the chair and looked at Charlie with concern filled in his eyes, "How are you feeling?"

"My legs hurt."

"What did the doctor say?"

'He prescribed some medicine.'

It was a very amicable conversation, which was totally different from what happened outside.

After talking to Pat, Charlie looked at Theresa, "Get me a glass of water."

Theresa heard his words and went to get water!

Hearing this, Pat glanced at Theresa, who went to get Charlie some water, and looked on her with an eagle eye. Theresa could feel him looking at her even without looking at him.

She got the water and gave it to Charlie. He held the glass, took a sip of water, and gave it back to her.

It was only a subtle gesture, but it seemed this couple had a good relationship with each other.

Pat looked at Charlie and said to him, "Charlie, I heard from Rose that you married this woman. I wanted to see what this woman looks like. Now I see, but she's just so-so. I don't know how she managed to trick you into marrying her, but it seems to me that such a woman should not stay with you."

Charlie looked at Pat and said, "Pat, I know you care about me very much. I'm fine. I can handle my own business." "So you mean to keep this woman with you, who caused you in hospital?"

Charlie took a look at innocent Theresa and said, "My legs were already like this, disabled, anyway, it's not her problem. I like her somehow and have no intention of sending her away.

H

Theresa glanced at Charlie. When he said, 'I like her somehow,' it was almost true.

After hearing Charlie's words, Rose couldn't believe Charlie still planned to keep Theresa with him, "But Uncle Charlie, this woman did this to you, and she hit me just now. Dad....."

Seeing that she couldn't persuade Charlie, she had to rest her hope on her father, who got along well with Charlie. She could only expect that her father would talk to Charlie and sober him up.

Pat looked at Charlie, "Are you sure?"

Charlie had never been interested in women before. Even with Sarah, he was only for keeping his promise to Old Mr. Calsis. Why was he so obsessed with this Theresa now?

Charlie said, "Yes, I'm sure."

"But she bullied Rose, which I saw outside in person." He saw Theresa violently holding Rose's hair.....

If he hadn't shown up, he didn't know how this woman would hurt his baby daughter.

As soon as Rose heard this, she put on an innocent look.

Charlie's eyes fell on Theresa. He heard what happened outside. He was not deaf.

He said to Theresa, "Come here."

Theresa heard him and walked over to him.

Charlie saw her darkened face and said, "Give me your hand."

Theresa paused for a moment and looked at his serious look. Not knowing what he was going to do, she reached out her hand.

Charlie held her hand. His fingers were long and slender and his palm was wide, making hers look very small.

Theresa felt her hand in his and could feel the warmth of it.

She didn't know what Charlie was going to say in front of so many people.

Wasn't that going too far?

It made her face burn.

Charlie's voice was very deep, "Why did you hit her?"

Theresa said, "She hit me first and I had to fight back. There's nothing wrong with self-defense, is there?"

She knew that Charlie had to say something for the sake of his brother since she had hit Rose. She could accept it, she got paid anyway!

She had a good attitude. She thought it was better to make things straight and prove she was not to blame so that Charlie wouldn't get in any trouble.

Charlie looked up at her and said, "I mean, don't do it yourself. I'll be distressed if you hurt yourself."

His voice was magnetic and gentle.

People in the ward were a little surprised when they heard this.

Even Theresa!

Rose couldn't believe it, "Uncle Charlie, what do you mean?"

She was the one who got hit, while Uncle Charlie felt distressed for this woman?

Charlie didn't talk to Rose but to Pat, "Pat, since when the kids in our family have dared to interrupt the elders?"

Hearing this, Pat took a look at Rose, and Rose shut up immediately.

Pat looked at Charlie and smiled. He wasn't stupid, he could see that Charlie said these to show everyone that he cared about this woman very much and that no one could offend her.

He said, "Charlie, Rose is not judicious, but..... your wife shouldn't hit her anyway!"

Chapter 46

Chapter 046 Master Calsis doesn't eat pears

Charlie grinned and said, "I'm sorry, but I think my elder brother will understand. My love is spoiled by me. As for what just happened outside, I also heard it My love didn't start the bullying. Instead, she was first victimized by others before.

responding. Anyway, she is my wife at home. Rose should call her aunt-in-law. I give her this right. If anything is inappropriate, I apologize to my elder brother."

Jimmy was present and was astounded by what he heard. Charlie was still protecting Theresa at this point, right?

"But Uncle Charlie, Theresa is to blame for getting you hospitalized.", Jimmy said.

"Why don't I know that? She caused me to stay in hospital? Did the doctor tell you that?" Charlie looked at Jimmy and that was the one who irritated him the most.

Rose wasn't like this before, but look at her now-what a change! It was all his doing, really!

"Rose, take you and your husband out!", Pat commanded after sensing Charlie's annoyance.

"Dad!"

"You don't even listen to what I say?" Pat said.

Rose bit her lip, glanced at Jimmy, and went out with him!

Pat stated to Charlie as they left, "I always think you are a person with a clear head. I still have faith that you can rationally consider your emotions. This woman doesn't deserve you!"

Charlie stated coolly, "She deserves me because I like her. I'm all like this. How depressing would it be if I was even unable to pick whom I liked?"

His few statements left Pat without words.

Speaking of the fact that he was in Calsis's family, he was only an adopted member. Why should he talk if Charlie had a problem?

"Thank you, brother. Come to see me today. "

"Don't mention it." Pat said helplessly, "I'm glad you're okay."

"You don't even need to take a special trip. The company's operations are important.

"Then I'll head back now," Pat remarked.

Before leaving, he straightened up and looked at Theresa. He frequently returned his gaze to this woman. "She was pretty.", he thought.

But.... what kind of woman Charlie had never met? How could she seduce him into a complete mess?

Pat walked out the door and then called Jimmy and Rose to leave.

"Dad, you said you would do justice for me," Rose murmured to Pat as she followed him outside the hospital.

"You made the initial move?", Pat asked Rose as he cast a quick glance at her.

"I was witnessing her get Uncle Charlie into hot water like this. And she really went too far..."

"Why did you say it if your Uncle Charlie didn't say this to her? Look for trouble." Pat said, "Your Uncle Charlie likes her, just accept it. She is your aunt-in-law."

"This person aspires to become my aunt-in-law?" Rose said, "I won't allow it!"

"Stay at home alone if you don't agree. Don't go running around outside." Despite the fact that he adored his daughter, Pat was unable to intervene now that Charlie had made it clear.

He would never contradict Charlie for such a trivial matter.

Besides, Charlie was in such poor health and he was quite worried. Naturally, let him be.

Rose said, "Dad!"

"Stop it." "I have something to handle, now I'm gonna go." Pat said.

In the ward, Charlie was lying on the bed and had let go of Theresa's hand. Theresa pondered what he had just spoken about in front of everyone while she sat there, feeling slightly strange all the time.

She said, "I thought that you would scold me a couple of times to mediate it.

It would be easier for his older brother to accept it if he said something negative about her.

When Charlie heard Theresa's words, he gave her an unexpected look, "In your eyes, I am such a person who fails to distinguish right from wrong"

Theresa paused.

Charlie said, "You assisted me in therapy. It was effective and gave me hope. I still scold you?"

How could he be so ungrateful?

Theresa sat in a chair, picked up a fruit knife and peeled the fruit for him.

Dealing with this man was actually a very happy thing. Although he was narcissistic and spiteful, he was a person of gratitude. He would remember what you had done for him and would try his best to prevent you from being mistreated. She recalled Jimmy..... Compared with Charlie, that man was really left behind in seconds.

Charlie lay in bed and continued to draw his design draft.

Theresa peeled a pear for him. After peeling it, she cut it into pieces and handed it to him, "Do you want to eat it?" Charlie usually didn't eat pears, but it took a lot of time and effort for Theresa to peel them. He was just about to eat some when he heard Jonathan say, "Madam, Master Calsis doesn't eat pears. Give them to me. I like them."

Jonathan worried that Charlie may reject Theresa, causing Theresa to experience emotional pain. After all, girls' hearts were very fragile.

So he helped Theresa ease her embarrassment in advance, took the pears she had already cut, and ate them himself. After eating two pieces, he felt that the atmosphere in the ward seemed to cool down. He raised his head and saw his Master Calsis looking at himself with a resentful face.

Jonathan,

Have he, uh, done anything wrong?

Theresa looked at Charlie unexpectedly and said, "You don't eat pears? Grandpa likes them very much."

"He likes it very much indeed," Charlie spoke in a rigid and emotionless tone. He was not sure why, but he was feeling a little irate.

As if his possessions had been stolen!

He decided to deduct Jonathan's bonus this month!

Theresa said, "So which foods do you enjoy eating?"

When Charlie heard Theresa's words, he looked at the woman and said, "What are you asking about this for?" Oh, woman, she really liked him!

Charlie discovered that she liked him. He was not sure why, but she truly... didn't seem as annoying as before! Although he didn't like her, she was a sensible woman and didn't pester him. Being appreciated by her therefore wasn't all that annoying!

Theresa remarked, "I appreciate things you did for me today. What foods are you craving? I'll buy it for you. It's my treat."

"After hearing her express her gratitude to him, Charlie remarked, "Don't thank me for anything. Because you are my wife, I should act in this manner."

Theresa said, "No, I don't like to owe favors. You'd better tell me!"

Just made a prompt repayment.

She also felt relieved.

Hearing her words, Charlie gave her a dissatisfied look, "Oh, in your eyes, if you buy me some fruit, you will be able to repay my favor? Then my favor is too worthless."

£6

.." Theresa said, "Do you have to do this? Didn't you just say that I needn't thank you...!"

And now he was complaining that her efforts were insufficient?

It was just too much!

Charlie said, "Cut yourself some slack and get Sarah back quickly. That's what you should do."

Here Charlie looked at Theresa suspiciously and said, "You haven't heard from Sarah at all these days? Theresa, you wouldn't deliberately not get Sarah back in order to stay with me, would you?"

It was not impossible that this woman liked him and wanted to stay with him all the time!

Chapter 47

Chapter 047 Charlie doesn't like kids.

Theresa said, "You think too much, Mr Calsis. Every day when I am your wife, I am so busy that I can't wait for Sarah to come back soon, so that I can leave and do my own thing."

She had to spend most of her time following his instructions. But she needed to take care of two babies!

The marriage to Charlie completely upset her initial plan.

Charlie said, "Your business? What else do you do besides taking care of the children?"

"Work! Fall in love! Get married with a man! This is my business. As your wife, I am no longer able to look for a man on the open market!"

Charlie frowned when she said to fall in love and get married with a man.

Although what she said makes sense, the two would be separated in the future. They would definitely get married, but

She was still my wife. Was that the only thing on her mind?

He was not sure why, but he felt cuckolded.

Theresa examined the time and asked, "Will your mother come over today?"

"I have been told that she would come over." Charlie said absently, "She should be on her way now. What's wrong?"

"I'm debating whether to go right away or after she arrived."

Charlie still cared about what she just said, raising his eyebrows and saying, "In a hurry to find a man?"

"No, I just think there's nothing going on here."

"Of course, you should remain in the hospital as my wife while I'm in the hospital." Anyway, she would have to find someone else in the future. He didn't have to shower her with affection. He didn't have a passion for doting on someone else's wife!

So Charlie thought she needed more work

Theresa said, "Isn't there nothing wrong with you here? In the hospital, nothing is awaiting my attention."

"My mother is happy to see you here."

"Charlie, I can't see it. You are quite filial?" Theresa said with a sigh without showing anger.

Charlie gave her a strange look. "What's the shame of filial piety?"

"No." Theresa said, "I simply considered that individuals like you might not enjoy listening to their parents all that much."

"Who said that?" Charlie failed to comprehend.

Theresa said, "It was said on TV."

"..." Charlie blacked out. "It's all bullshit on TV. My parents are very kind to me. Why am I not being filial?"

"I see it." Theresa said, "The atmosphere in your home is quite good."

Charlie glanced at her after she complimented his family and remarked, "You're fine, too."

Theresa felt a little self-conscious after hearing his words. "You don't think I messed you up?"

"Mess me up?"

"Jimmy has been poking holes since I came here. You appear to have a lot of problems because of me."

"It's all trivial" Charlie said, "It's his incorrectness, not yours."

Theresa said, "What if I'm really cheating? Like Jimmy said. Aren't you afraid of trusting the wrong person?" Think carefully, it seemed that he was on her side in every dispute. Over the years, even my father had never trusted her like that.

Charlie raised his eyebrows and said, "I'm not stupid."

Jimmy was obviously lying and prevaricating. Charlie had been sure that there was something fishy going on between Jimmy and Theresa.

Theresa looked at Charlie and felt a little more trust in him. She said, "Charlie, actually, my two children..."

She wanted to tell him that the two children were artificially conceived.

But Charlie interrupted directly before Theresa finished, "I said, I'm not interested in who you were having children with."

Charlie rubbed his eyebrows and added, "I detest kids the most."

"Er..." Theresa said, "Why do you hate children? They are so cute!"

"What's cute about them?" All he saw were two wild kids.

When relatives' children came over, they relied on their youngness to raise hell all around. It annoyed him at the sight of them.

Theresa said, "Children are cute exactly."

Leonard and Ben were so cute!

Charlie said, "I don't want to speak with you about it."

Theresa was talking to Charlie when she received a phone call from Ben's phone watch.

Theresa glanced at it and said, "I'll take a call."

And then stood up.

On the phone, Ben's voice was very excited, "Mom."

Theresa asked, "Why are you calling me now?"

"I'm in the hospital, hee hee." When Theresa saw them out this morning, she said she would come to the hospital today. Theresa said, "Shouldn't you be in kindergarten? Why did you come to the hospital?" Ben said, "Our headmaster was ill and our teacher brought us to visit her."

Theresa's position and those of Leonard and Ben were interdependent. When he got to the hospital he knew his mother was nearby, so he called Theresa.

Theresa said, "Then I'll come and see you."

"OK, Mom, mua?" Ben kissed Theresa over there.

Theresa hung up with a smile.

She glanced at Charlie and said, "I have something to do. I have to go out."

"Your son?" Charlie said.

Theresa nodded and came up with her son's resemblance to Charlie. She said, "They have come to the hospital. I'll go and see them."

"Go ahead."

Charlie was not interested.

Theresa came out of Charlie's ward to look for Leonard and Ben. Unexpectedly, before she got close, she saw a crowd of people taking pictures around Leonard and Ben at the hospital gate.

The key was that Leticia was one of them.

She took a mobile phone and took pictures of these two, especially seriously, just like those little girls in idolization. Robert was also there. Leticia said, "Honey, look at these two children. Do they look like our Charlie? In your opinion, would they be Charlie's illegitimate children?"

Hearing Leticia's words, Theresa was sort of shocked. Feeling her heart thumped hard.

Naturally, illegitimate children were impossible.

But

these two babies, could they really be related to the Calsis family?

Robert said, "No way!"

"But as you can see, they are really similar!" When Leticia used to view the live show online, the filter made it appear otherwise.

But now, only when she really saw them, did she realize how similar they were.

Leticia was suspicious if it was a coincidence.

Leticia walked up to the two babies and asked, "By the way, baby, what's your mother's name?"

Ben gave her a look. Although this grandmother looked like a good person, he still answered, "My mother's name is Cristina. What's up?"

That's what they say in front of strangers.

You couldn't tell people the real information.

Ben's vigilance was still there.

Leticia asked, "Then can you give me your mother's phone number?"

Make sure to reach out and confirm. Leticia had strong suspicions that these two babies were somehow connected to Charlie.

Ben said, "Sure."

And handed away Cristina's phone!

The teacher in charge came up, "Leonard, Ben, we're going back!"

Chapter 48

Chapter 048 Are they Charlie's sons?

Teachers knew that these two babies were cute. Wherever they went they were watched by people. This kind of feeling made teachers quite unaccustomed, mainly because they were afraid of making trouble. They wanted to send the students back as soon as possible.

Ben said, "But I have to wait for my mother."

"When you finish school, your mother will come to pick you up. Let's go back. I'll call your mother

She brought additional kids in addition to Leonard and Ben, so she couldn't change the plan because of that.

Ben was taken away reluctantly.

Theresa soon received a message from her teacher and Ben also contacted Theresa.

When Theresa noticed this, she remained silent.

She knew that the teacher was responsible.

Leticia was still immersed in the amazing feeling of seeing two babies. When she saw Theresa, she came over, "Theresa." "What were you watching just now?" Theresa asked.

Leticia said, "I just saw the two babies, the ones that were broadcast live. God! The real folks resemble our Charlie in every way. I genuinely wonder if they are connected to our Charlie."

Theresa said guiltily, "I don't think so."

"It's not impossible." Leticia said, "Otherwise, how could there be such a coincidence? They cannot be left outside if they are our children. They need to be brought back right away."

How could a Calsis child be left outside to grow up?!

Even the thought of thinking about it made her uncomfortable.

Theresa paid attention to what Leticia said. She initially intended to present the two babies to Leticia because she knew how much she adored the two little ones.

However, at the moment, her words made Theresa wary.

When Sarah returned, they would get divorced because their marriage was just momentary.

If the two babies were really related to Charlie and brought back to Calsis's house.....

No!

No way!

She was unable to accept events like this.

She had almost completely sacrificed herself for these two kids. These two babies were her little angels, the source of her hope and the purpose of her life. She couldn't let them go.

Back in the ward, Leticia said, "Charlie."

Charlie looked at his mother coming with Theresa and replied, "Hmm."

Leticia couldn't wait to share the news of the two babies with Charlie. "I was just outside and I saw two babies. They looked just like you! Tell me honestly whether you have an illegitimate child outside. "

Jonathan stood by. When he heard Leticia's words, he smiled, "Madam, you must be wrong. How could Master Calsis have an illegitimate child?"

"But they really look exactly the same!" Leticia said, "Let me show you their pictures."

Leticia turned on her phone and searched for pictures of the two babies as she was speaking.

Leonard and Ben were very popular at that time. Online fans had made a lot of expression packs, which could be seen in the group. Leticia had collected a lot.

Charlie wasn't interested at all. He said to his mother, "If there is an illegitimate child, I'll bring him back. You don't have to constantly nag me to start a family."

Mother loved telling him he should have kids.

The second elder brother had been away from home constantly due to his job and his marriage had not yet been settled. His mother had pinned all her hopes on him.

"We have no control over your second elder brother's employment. You are not the same. You have to give birth to at child right away. Your grandfather can also take a look before he passes away."

Despite the fact that Pat already had children, the children were not related to the Calsis family because of Pat's last name Lu. Mother was particularly concerned about this.

Charlie was being urged to be more than annoyed.

Leticia said, "Think about it. Have you ever slept with a woman, in case you missed something?"

Charlie rubbed his eyebrows and added, "No."

"It'd be weird if you haven't!" Leticia uttered, "It has to be. Consider this. Don't be oblivious to me repeatedly whenever I mention this."

Charlie said, "I haven't even slept with a woman. How is it possible?"

"Er..." Theresa looked at him in surprise.

Charlie,"

Fuck!

What did this woman's gaze convey? Was this something shameful?

Leticia was also taken aback by the fact that her son had all grown up but actually.....

Not really, right?

He was still very popular!

Leticia said, "Are you serious?"

"Mom." Charlie said, "Go back! I'll just have Theresa at the hospital. You don't have to come here."

He would have problems every time his mother visited!

Charlie was so unhappy.

Leticia said, "How can that work? With so many things going on, Theresa cannot be left alone in the hospital with you." Charlie answered. "It's okay. She can."

Theresa, "..

She hadn't spoken yet!

Forget it. For the sake of money.

Charlie was fine anyway. She didn't have to constantly fixate on him now that Jonathan was around. After all, it wasn't arduous job.

Leticia looked at Theresa and said, "Thank you for getting this done."

Theresa said, "It's my pleasure. Here I am. You could go ahead."

Leticia gave her a look, smiled and left with Robert.

Thinking of those two children, Leticia felt that she still had to figure it out.

After Leticia went out, Charlie lay in the hospital bed, looked at Theresa and said, "Did you just laugh?"

"Huh?" Theresa was aware that he had called his mother away in an effort to get her in trouble. She said, "I'm not.

laughing, am I? When did you see me laugh?"

"Even though you didn't express it, you were laughing inside when you reacted as you did just now!" Charlie was a little irate.

The more he considered it, the more he cared about it!

Theresa continued to play dumb, "No!"

"No." He seemed to look right through her as his adorable eyes fixed on her.

Theresa coughed and asked, "Charlie, is what you said true? You've never slept with a woman?"

Charlie had consistently believed that he upheld his moral integrity. He obviously didn't have the time because he was too busy at work and he also disliked interacting with women. Besides, not a single one of those women was pleasing to his eyes.

He once took pride in leading a moral life.

But now

He was not sure why. But when Theresa asked him this question, he felt humiliated.

He snorted. "What? You think this is funny?"

This woman actually laughed at him!

"No, I simply feel shocked." Theresa remarked. Given your condition, many women would want to attach themselves to you. You're still a virgin?"

"Theresa." Charlie's jaw twitched as her final statement irritated him. He was eager to suffocate her. "Do you want to pass away?"

"I'm living a good life. Why do I want to die? I just want to say that there are only two possibilities for people like you. "What?" He glared at her, but wouldn't say no to hear what wonderful things Theresa could say.

Theresa said, "You either lack the ability or like males. Which one are you, Charlie?"

Lack the ability? Like males?

Oh, well.....

Chapter 49

Chapter 049 I can make do with it

Charlie looked at Theresa and said, "Since you said so, from now on you can move in with me."

Theresa responded after hearing Charlie's statements, "Everything is operating flawlessly. What makes you say that?" "How do I convince you that I am normal considering we don't live together?" Theresa smiled and reminded, "Mr. Calsis, we are a fictitious union."

Did he mean that he would go further?

Charlie said, "Marriage also exists in fake unions. Why do you think you won't have to carry out your duties as a wife if you marry me?"

Theresa said, "What if I refuse?"

"Then break off the engagement and let the Cameron family go bankrupt." He picked up the cup and took a sip while sporting a stern expression.

Say it like it was true.

Theresa coughed and found that this man really bore a grudge!

He took it seriously when she only said a few words to make fun of him.

Theresa repented, "Mr. Calsis, I was wrong. I'm sorry for what I just did. I'll never make fun of you again. So, our excellency doesn't mind a small potato like me. Don't care about me, okay?"

Charlie raised his eyebrows and looked at Theresa's way of pushing and resisting and said, "Why do you act so fake? I allowed you to sleep with me because I think highly of you. You should be happy, right? Maybe what you just said on purpose is also a way to tempt me.

"..." Ridiculous! Oh, I'm happy!

Theresa was unable to talk, but when she realized that this individual would be important to Cameron's family's future, she made an effort to be friendly to him. She said, "I really just made a fool of myself to make fun of you. I really didn't mean to laugh at you! I just didn't anticipate you upholding your moral principles to this extent! As a good man, as you are, it is only natural that you deserve a better woman. I'm just a divorcee. A mother with two children who would defile you.

"Never mind. I can make do.", Charlie said with mercy.

Theresa was speechless, so I should thank you!

He could make do, but she didn't want to. That was all.

Although Theresa already had two children and was divorced, the two had never had sex because Jimmy used to be at loser.

She was not an emotional spendthrift who used her feelings lavishly either!

Especially now, she didn't want to have too much contact with men.

She was aware that Charlie didn't like her before they got married. He picked lovers with such high standards and was disgusted after learning that she was divorced. He certainly had no idea about her.

Who would have imagined

Now, he wanted to live together with her!

Charlie said, "Once you've made your decision, relocate here and ask Jonathan to assist you with the relocation later." Theresa said, "I have two babies. I have to take care of them during regular hours. I'm sure there's nothing I can do about it. Charlie, consider this once again. If you truly desire a woman, I can also introduce someone to you." "Save energy." Charlie said, "I just like divorced women. It's up to you to figure out what to do with your children. But from now on, as long as I miss you, you have to be at home at any time!"

H

Damn, this guy couldn't be serious! Or was her apology not sincere enough?

Theresa was struggling when she saw Charlie look up at her. "Or do you look down on me because I am disabled now?"

"Theresa said, "Of course not."

Even if there was, I dared not to say it!

This person would constantly threaten to bankrupt Cameron's family and deduct her salary or something.

Charlie said, "I wish you didn't. Go back and pack your things. Then let Jonathan pick you up. I want to see you at home when I leave the hospital tomorrow night. "

"But..."

"All right. You can go now." He didn't give her a chance to argue.

He let Jonathan kick her out directly...

Theresa coughed, glanced at Jonathan next to her and asked, "Mr. Calsis was joking, wasn't he?"

"He never jokes easily. I think it's true.", Jonathan said seriously.

"He really wants me to stay with him." Theresa said, "Are you sure there is nothing wrong with his brain?"

When Jonathan, Charlie's faithful lapdog, heard Theresa say that Charlie had a brain problem, he kindly reminded her, "Watch your words, madam."

Theresa rolled her eyes and was at a loss for words.

Jonathan said, "You can return now. Once you've packed your things, I'll pick you up."

II

The master and servant sang in harmony. Were they really going to send her to Charlie's bed?

In the evening, Charlie asked Theresa to pack things at home, so she didn't go to the hospital. She stayed at home and cooked dinner for her two babies.

During the meal, Ben carried the bowl to the camera and ate while broadcasting.

Theresa sat alone at the dinner table, thinking about Charlie.

It was naturally impossible to move there. Naturally, moving there was not conceivable. But....what she had to do at this time was how to make him feel relieved and find a reason to prevaricate.

She was thinking about this problem when the doorbell rang.

Theresa went to open the door and saw Cristina appear at the door. She said, "what are you doing here?"

"I came to see you and also stopped by to see Leonard and Ben,", Cristina remarked.

"Have you had supper?" Theresa asked.

Cristina said, "Not yet. I'm starving after working overtime until now. Didn't you go to Calsis's house today?" "Charlie is in hospital and I don't have to go tonight. So I stay at home." Cristina went to the dining table and sat down. She glanced at the two babies playing in the living room and said to Theresa, "I'm telling you, this afternoon, someone called me and asked me if I was Leonard and Ben's mother." Didn't you say that someone has been contacting you to sign the contract before?"

Leonard and Ben were very popular on the Internet. There were many people who wanted to contact them to sign a contract. Plus the fact that they were registered under Cristina's name, so there were more people looking for Cristina compared with Theresa.

Theresa didn't usually get many phone calls.

Cristina said, "It was not. The caller wanted to know who Leonard and Ben's father was. It was an aunt. She identified herself to me as Charlie's mother."

Theresa said, "She called you so soon?"

"You know she will call me?"

"She is a fan of Leonard and Ben and often watches live broadcasts on the Internet. She saw Leonard and Ben in the hospital today...

"Oh." Cristina said, "Well, does she also want to sign with Leonard and Ben? But from what I heard, it didn't seem like it. And besides, she was asking me out tomorrow."

Theresa had been busy recently, so was Cristina. So she hadn't told Cristina about Charlie.

Theresa felt compelled to inform her of the following at the time it was brought up here.

"You haven't met Charlie. He looks very much like Leonard and Ben. Leticia, therefore, believes that Leonard and Ben are Charlie's illegitimate children.

"Charlie's illegitimate child?" Cristina smiled, "That's not possible."

Theresa says, "I know it's impossible. Just because it's so close. You'll see when you meet Charlie."

Chapter 50

Chapter 050 Cristina meets Leticia

"Now that you say that, I'm looking forward to it. I have to find a chance to see Charlie."
"Do you think it's really possible that Charlie is the father of two babies?", Cristina asked. If so, you must take advantage of the situation. When you marry into the Calsis family, Jimmy, that damn scum would regret to die."

"Impossible." Theresa said, "It's impossible for Charlie and I. Don't think about nonsense! By the way, if Leticia should call you later and ask you about Leonard and Ben, you could say that the babies belong to you and your ex-boyfriend."

Don't tell the truth."

"Why?" Cristina said, "You don't want to find a father for your two babies?"

Theresa said, "Find dad, and then what? Their family finds the kids were theirs and takes them away. What about me?" These two kids were formerly unknown to the Calsis family.

But for Theresa, these two children came into this world to her expectation.

She endured great hardships for them. And as a result, she developed into a powerful mother.

She doesn't want to lose them!

Cristina said, "It's not necessarily so! You will have a wonderful chance to marry into the Calsis family if they are in fact Calsis's children since the family will be overjoyed. It combines the finest of both worlds. Many people are lined up and eager to wed into the Calsis family. "

"Are you kidding?" Theresa looked at Cristina seriously. "Do you think it's easy to marry into the Calsis family?" Theresa understood that Charlie still held a low opinion of her even though she was legally his wife. The two were only legally married by consent.

Charlie would never agree to the marriage!

And..... wasn't it great for her to lead her own life with two babies?

Why must she behave in accordance with their sentiments and emotions?

Perhaps Jimmy was the cause. Theresa no longer wanted to put her trust in anyone.

"Honey, haven't you ever considered of finding someone who loves you and letting him take care of you," Cristina said as she turned to face her.

"Theresa heard Cristina's words and replied, "I told you I don't want to get married anymore."

Cristina heard Theresa's words and said, "You have changed."

Cristina was different from Theresa. Since she was a child, she didn't believe in love because of her parents' divorce. She always felt that men were unreliable. Theresa constantly reassured her at the time and assured her that one day, she would meet someone who would treat her kindly and with love.

However, Theresa, who once inspired her to believe in love, no longer did because of Jimmy, that vile man,

Theresa said, "Everyone will grow up."

Cristina clenched her hand. "I'll strangle Jimmy if I see him again. What a kind and the innocent person you once were!

What he has done to you!

Theresa thoughtfully grinned as she listened to Cristina's speech. It's nothing, but I used to be overly naive." "Honey." Cristina hugged her. "Don't worry, I'll take good care of Leonard and Ben." "Don't get any ideas. Remember what I told you."

"I know." Cristina said, "They are more important than your life. I won't let you lose them."

The following day at noon, Cristina went to a Western restaurant where she had made an appointment to meet Leticia. Leticia saw Cristina and said, "Sit down please."

Cristina sat down and answered, "Nice to meet you, madam."

Since her aunt worked at Calsis' home, Cristina frequently overheard her aunt gushing about Leticia's kindness. She looked quite nice and had no sense of self-importance.

Therefore, Cristina was also very polite.

Leticia asked, "You are Cristina?"

She turned to face Cristina. Cristina had typical features and was attractive. She also didn't appear to be a sloppy woman, neither did she have an unkempt and overdone makeup look.

Cristina nodded, "I am."

"Are you Leonard and Ben's mother?" Leticia asked.

Cristina nodded, "Yes."

Leticia said, "I asked you to come here to ask who is the father of these two children."

"Of course, they were my ex-boyfriend.", Cristina remarked with a smile. "I became pregnant after we split up and gave birth to two kids. Is that all right? What's up? Do you despise those who never got married and had kids?"

Leticia said, "I didn't mean that. It's just that..... these two children are just like my son. I really want to figure it out. Would you mind telling me the name of your ex-boyfriend?"

"The name of my ex-boyfriend is Eugene Oneill. He is an engineer who builds houses. He's a love rat. I get angry when I hear his name!" Cristina answered as Theresa told her.

However, Leticia didn't give up after listening to it. "Do you know Charlie?"

"Charlie, of course, I do." Cristina said, "The Charlie from Calsis Films! Who is unaware?"

37

He had produced a large number of first-tier stars in the entertainment sector. And they were all forced to gaze upon his face and behave in accordance with his sentiments and emotions. Cristina happened to be chasing stars. Sometimes when her brother and sister were treated unfairly, she would go online and scold Charlie, the eccentric boss.

Of course, the key was that Theresa worked for Charlie at this time. So of course she knew him.

Leticia said, "Have you actually met him?"

Cristina said, "Not really."

Leticia turned on her cell phone and flipped a picture of Charlie. "Look, this is my son."

The picture of Charlie was previously shot by him and showed him wearing a suit and unsmiling.

Cristina glanced. Although last night, Theresa had already informed her that Charlie resembled Leonard and Ben, she was nonetheless shocked to see it for herself. They didn't have a similar appearance exactly. They were actually the same!

Yes, You, Theresa!

This matter had been kept secret and you didn't tell me!

If it had been her, she would have told Theresa right away after meeting Charlie.

"You can see that your two children absolutely resemble our Charlie, right?", Leticia asked Cristina as she stared at her in amazement. "Do you truly share nothing with my son when you think about it?"

She always felt that Cristina was lying.

Or, was it really a coincidence?

Cristina coughed. She meant to say it was just a coincidence. But now after seeing Charlie's face, she dared not to do so. She could even be sure that the two babies were really related to Charlie. Leticia stared at Cristina closely, wondering what Cristina was thinking. She suggested, "If Miss Cristina doesn't object, I hope that two children can have a paternity test with Charlie."

Cristina was still immersed in the shock that Charlie looked similar to the two babies. When she heard the words

"paternity test", she woke up like a dream. "No, no, no, I refuse!"

Kidding! She now seriously suspected that these two babies were Charlie's children.

The more so, the more paternity tests they could not perform.