

Marry Ex's Uncle After Divorcement

Chapter 351-400

Chapter 351

Since Charlie asked Roger to take over Jimmy's job, Jimmy has no power to do something he wants, although he is still a general manager. Jimmy can't wait!

Jimmy hosted a birthday party for his father because he wanted to contact his colleagues. When Jimmy drove, he asked Rose about Charlie, "By the way, how is your Uncle Charlie?" Charlie was going to divorce Theresa. He won't treat him as badly as before, will he?

When Jimmy mentioned it, Rose, who was already upset, became even more depressed.

"I don't have any uncle!"

Hearing that, Jimmy asked, "What's going on? Did he scold you? Actually, Uncle Charlie is sitting in a wheelchair with disabled legs. Sometimes he would be angry with that. I could understand him." Jimmy was now trying to impress Charlie with his kindness.

In Jimmy's opinion, Charlie only conflicted with him because of Theresa.

Charlie won't treat him badly for a woman!

So, no matter how Charlie treated Jimmy before, Jimmy still wanted to please Charlie.

Hearing Jimmy's words, Rose said, "Of course, I know that, but he doesn't think so! Now he has taken Theresa home again."

"Hearing that, Jimmy was shocked "Aren't they going to divorce? Why did Theresa go back? Besides, Keith helping Charlie do the job?"

Charlie originally thought that Theresa must leave the Calsis's residence.

As a result, Jimmy found that he seemed to rejoice too soon

Rose said, "Who knows? Besides, Uncle Charlie treated her better than before He bought her a lot of things."

In the past, Charlie did not give Theresa anything except 200 thousand dollars a month.

The only present was the ring. Theresa only kept it temporarily.

But now, he really gave her everything!

Even Rose couldn't help doubting now. Does Uncle Charlie really fall in love with Theresa?

Rose said, "Uncle Charlie seems to be really fascinated by her. I really don't know what to do."

Jimmy frowned and didn't know how to answer

Jimmy originally thought that his relationship with Charlie would be better as long as Theresa left Charlie. Now he failed.

Theresa was in the kitchen. She has just cooked the porridge when she saw Roderick coming in behind Brenda. "Dr. Hill."

Leonard was still ill. Roderick came to see Leonard.

When he saw Theresa, he said politely. "Hello, madam."

Theresa was speechless.

Theresa looked at him and smiled. "Just call me by my name."

"I'm afraid that Mr. Calsis will be jealous." Roderick said, and went upstairs with her to examine Leonard.

They found Charlie in the room with Leonard.

Leonard was awake. He played with a toy in his hand. As for Charlie...

He sat by and stared at Leonard. Neither father nor son spoke.

The same face, the same attitude.

Roderick said, "Mr. Calsis."

Charlie looked up and took a look at Roderick.

Roderick came up to Leonard and said, "Leonard, I've come to see you."

"Hello, Dr. Hill." Leonard was polite to Roderick.

Charlie's son greeted Roderick, but ignored him. Charlie sat by and watched them.

Charlie snorted, "Did he know who his father is?"

Chapter 352

Chapter 352

Theresa's mouth twitched when she heard what he said.

Was he crazy?

Roderick smiled, "I hope I can have such a son. Mr. Calsis is so lucky. What do you think?"

God is fair.

Although Charlie suffered from an accident, he got two children.

Roderick envied Charlie for these twins.

Charlie sat aside and rarely heard Roderick's praise. He narcissistically said, "I've always been lucky."

Roderick smiled when he heard what he said.

It's good to hear that.

Before the two children and Theresa appeared, Charlie was very depressed.

Charlie could only sit in a wheelchair, and Sarah hurt his feelings. It may be the biggest setback for Charlie in his life.

In retrospect, sometimes accidents are not necessarily bad.

Through this, Charlie could know Sarah clearly.

Luck and misfortune come in turn.

That's probably what he figured out.

Roderick took Leonard's temperature, checked it again, looked around, and stared at him. Theresa was worried. "Nothing much. Take the medicine on time. I'll come to see him tomorrow." Charlie sat aside and found that Roderick had said this to Theresa, not to himself.

Was he a bystander?

Charlie was a little upset and said, "I am Leonard's father. Are you ignoring me?"

Roderick knew the real relationship between Theresa and Leonard and naturally chose to tell Theresa.

Even if Roderick was not there last night, he could imagine how worried Theresa was.

Unexpectedly, Charlie was even jealous of that!

Roderick smiled, "Mr. Calsis, you look like a spoiled kid. Theresa is Leonard's mother, right?"

Theresa was shocked when she heard Roderick's words. She subconsciously looked at Charlie, wondering if he could understand Roderick's meaning.

Charlie looked up at Theresa and remembered that she had been taking care of Leonard. He agreed with Roderick. Although she was not the biological mother of the two children, she also treated them well. As a mother, Theresa is much more reliable than Cristina.

He said to Roderick, "You can go now."

It seemed that Charlie did not understand Roderick's words. Theresa was speechless, but she felt relieved about that.

Perhaps Charlie never thought that they might be Theresa's sons.

Roderick looked at Charlie. He couldn't help wondering why he was so dim.

What's going on?

Theresa looked at Roderick and asked, "Dr. Hill, why don't you stay for lunch?"

Roderick came here at the lunchtime.

Out of courtesy, they should ask him to have lunch together.

Hearing that, Charlie's ear moved and he looked at Theresa defensively, "Why did you ask him to have lunch with us?"

Theresa said, "Don't you agree?"

Roderick came to examine Leonard. Can't she ask him to have lunch to express her gratitude?

Charlie looked at Theresa's confident face, and choked, "Of course, he should stay."

Charlie had no choice but to agree to it now.

After all, he was pursuing her.

Charlie took a look at Theresa. He was so kind to her, but she did not respond at all.

On the contrary, Roderick did nothing, but she was so nice to Roderick!

Alas, she must discriminate against cripple!

However, he will get better sooner or later.

#Chapter 353

Chapter 353

Chapter 353

Theresa went upstairs and brought the porridge to Leonard. Roderick has gone downstairs and talked with Mrs. Calsis.

There was only one family of three in the room.

Theresa fed Leonard porridge, "Have it. Mom made it."

Leonard had it obediently.

"Is it delicious?" Leonard smiled. Theresa looked at his small mouth.

Leonard nodded, "Yummy."

Charlie sat aside. Theresa just made oatmeal. Why did Leonard have it so happily?

Charlie looked at Theresa, "I want to have porridge."

Theresa said, "I will tell Brenda. She will make it for you."

Charlie said, "I want you to cook it for me. We are a couple. Couldn't you do that for me?"

Theresa turned around and looked at Charlie, who took it for granted. She was speechless.

Did Charlie really want to pursue her?

While pursuing a woman, the man should learn to cook.

However, Theresa has been used to him since the day she met him.

Theresa said, "I don't have time to do that."

"Is there porridge left?"

"No."

"Then go and cook for me."

"How much you will pay me?"

Charlie gritted his teeth. "I didn't give you a lot before, isn't it enough?"

Charlie thought he has given too much to her.

It turned out that he couldn't have the porridge Theresa made!

"You did it yourself."

Charlie hummed, "Leonard didn't give you any money. Why can he have your porridge?"

"He is only four years old. Are you four, too?"

"I'm three years old!"

Theresa has never seen someone say that he was three years old, and he was so confident.

Before Theresa answered, Leonard on the other side was unhappy. He directly exposed Charlie, "He lied!" Charlie, "How did I lie?"

What a naughty boy! He dared to refute his father.

"You are not three years old." Leonard looked at Charlie in disgust, "You are an adult!"

He's four years old. How could Charlie be younger than him?

Theresa looked at her son and smiled. "Yes, he is a liar."

Charlie rubbed his eyebrows. "When will Ben come back?"

"He was in class. Why ask?"

"I just think he is good to me in this family."

"Hey! We were not bullying you. Ok?" Theresa looked at Charlie's aggrieved look.

Theresa was speechless.

"You are bullying me."

Theresa treated Charlie's son well, but treated Charlie badly.

It's not fair!

Theresa said, "Who dares to bully you?"

Soon, Leonard had already finished a bowl of porridge

Because Theresa made it, Leonard enjoyed it very much.

Brenda came over. "Mr. Calsis, madam, we should have lunch

Theresa said, "I see."

She picked up the bowl and said to Leonard. "We're going to have lunch You can play by yourself for a while, is it ok?"

Leonard nodded, "Ok"

Theresa looked at Charlie and walked out of the door

Charlie looked at her coldly. He found that this woman didn't care about his feelings at all.

Chapter 354

Chapter 354

Charlie used to think that if he waved to someone he liked, the other person would come right away.

After all, most of the women flattered him. He has never met a woman who ignored his feelings,

Emotional people are easy to be hurt.

Charlie suddenly regretted being too proactive.

Jonathan has been waiting at the door, looking at Charlie and saying, "Mr. Calsis, how is the young master?"

Charlie looked at Jonathan and said, "Theresa takes care of him. They don't need me."

Jonathan looked at Charlie in disbelief. He felt that Mr. Calsis was jealous.

Jonathan said, "The young madam is really a good woman! Although Leonard and Ben are not her own children, she treated them even better than her own. She must do that because she loves you."

When Charlie heard Jonathan say that she loves him, Charlie looked relaxed instantly. "Is that true?"

Jonathan, "Anyway, if I were her, I wouldn't do that."

Hearing that, Charlie said, "You've worked hard this month. I should increase your pay."

Jonathan looked at Charlie in confusion. He wondered why Charlie suddenly increase his pay.

Is it because he just said something nice about Theresa?

Theresa has already sat down in the dining room. Robert Calsis, Leticia Calsis, Old Mr. Calsis, and Roderick were both there. Pat and Rose were not.

Theresa sat down and saw Charlie pushed by Jonathan.

Charlie sat down next to her, and Theresa ignored him.

He offered her a glass of water.

Theresa picked up the glass, "Thank you."

Then she looked at Charlie and found that he looked tender.

Charlie looked angry upstairs. Did he calm down so soon?

Charlie is a man with an uncertain temper.

At dinner, Mrs. Calsis and Robert were talking about Leonard. Theresa sat aside and found that Charlie sometimes took food to her. Looking at the man who has been courting her, Theresa asked curiously, "Are you out of your mind?"

Charlie said, "I just try to be nice. You are so mean."

Theresa didn't appreciate him but scolded him.

Theresa said, "I don't need your help."

"Are you not willing to let me help you? I rarely help someone else."

"Ok. thank you." Theresa looked at the man and found that he was moody. She couldn't understand him.

Old Mr. Calsis sat by and looked at Theresa, "Sarah."

Theresa said, "Grandpa."

When Theresa lived in the Calsis's residence, she went to see Old Mr. Calsis almost every day.

She hasn't been here recently. Therefore, she hasn't seen Old Mr. Calsis until now.

Old Mr. Calsis asked, "Have you finished your work?"

Theresa looked at Old Mr. Calsis in puzzlement. She was wondering what kind of work she had to finish.

Charlie said, "She's almost done."

Because Theresa was gone, Old Mr. Calsis had been looking for Theresa. Charlie lied that Theresa had something to do in order to appease Old Mr. Calsis.

Theresa certainly didn't know what Old Mr. Calsis meant at the moment.

Old Mr. Calsis said, "I'm glad you're done. If you have anything to do, just ask Charlie to help you. Charlie, you should be nice to your wife. Do you know that?" Charlie rubbed his eyebrows and said to Old Mr. Calsis, "Am I not good enough for her? Someone needs to be grateful."

Theresa didn't seem to want to be grateful.

Mrs. Calsis was talking to Robert. Now she looked at Charlie and asked, "Are you two reconciled?"

Theresa just ate watermelon. When she heard Mrs. Calsis's words, she choked.

Charlie nodded, "Yeah."

Mrs. Calsis said, "Charlie, I hold the same opinion as your dad do. We all hope you will stay with Theresa, no matter how good the other girls are."

Theresa is so kind to the two children. Mrs. Calsis felt that she would never find a more suitable woman for them.

That is why they didn't want them to break up.

Hearing Mrs. Calsis's words, Charlie looked at Theresa, who was quiet, and suddenly held her hand under the table.

Theresa was stunned for a moment, and instinctively struggled, but Charlie firmly grabbed her. Charlie said to Mrs. Calsis "I think so."

Chapter 355

Chapter 355

Roderick sat aside and looked at Charlie in surprise. Was he the timid Charlie who was afraid to admit his feelings for Theresa?

What's going on?

Why did Charlie suddenly straighten out his thinking?

Theresa just found Roderick laughing at them, she felt very embarrassed.

Theresa looked at Charlie beside her. Damn it! He held her hand tightly and didn't give her a chance to shake it off.

Theresa couldn't help asking, "Is it necessary?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Calsis looked at Charlie. Although Charlie was good to Theresa before, he always kept a low profile in front of his family about their love.

Unexpectedly, one day, Leticia could see her son saying these things in front of her.

Leticia had thought that if Charlie still treated Theresa the same as before, she would try to persuade him.

It seemed that she didn't need to do that.

She smiled and said, "Then I will continue to prepare for the wedding."

Hearing the wedding, Theresa was about to say something but Charlie said, "OK."

After dinner, Theresa followed Charlie upstairs and said, "What do you want?"

"Didn't I make myself clear?" Charlie looked at her and said, "I want you to stay with me. Leonard and Ben like you a lot. They can't live without you. You just wait for this moment, right?"

Charlie obviously wanted to keep her around himself, but he couldn't help looking for other reasons.

It seemed that he made such a decision because of her.

Theresa almost didn't laugh when she heard what he said. "You are so shameless. I treat them well because they are cute. Don't flatter yourself! Leonard is ill. I came to see him. It has nothing to do with you. I did all the things because of this, I must make it clear now."

When Theresa came back last night, Charlie didn't behave like that.

Rose said that Theresa came back to flatter him. That was why Charlie changed his attitude.

Charlie misunderstood Theresa, so he thought Theresa treated Leonard and Ben well because of him.

He was so shameless.

With that, Theresa found Charlie angry.

He looked at her with a stiff face and complicated expression.

His look reminded her of the day when she left the Calsis's residence. She was a little guilty. Has she gone too far? However, she must make it clear.

Theresa looked at him and said tentatively, "What? Don't you want to hear the truth? When you hear that, you will get angry. Didn't you say you like me?"

"Who said I was angry?" Charlie said.

Theresa said, "Then why don't you talk?"

Charlie's look made Theresa feel scared.

"You are so beautiful. I just want to look at you, ok?"

Theresa lowered her head and took a look at herself. Was she beautiful?

Theresa didn't sleep well. People could see her dark circles. She would at least dress up before. Today, she did nothing but wash her face. She didn't put on makeup. Was she really beautiful?

Was he blind?

Theresa didn't want to talk about it. Seeing that Charlie was not angry, she said, "Tell Leticia about the wedding. I won't agree to it."

"Why not?" Charlie asked.

Theresa said, "Your legs will get better soon. When you get better, we will still divorce. It is unnecessary to prepare for the wedding now."

Charlie might get better in a month or two.

However, they might prepare for the wedding for a long time. It's too troublesome.

Chapter 356

Chapter 356

If they were preparing for the wedding now, it's a waste of time.

Charlie said, "You will marry me sooner or later."

"Who said that? When did I say I would marry you?"

"Who do you want to marry?" Charlie stared at Theresa closely.

Theresa choked, "Do women have to get married? I don't want to get married. I can live a good life with my children. I hate men. You are jerks. You always treat women as objects. It seems that women can't live their lives without men!"

Hearing that, Charlie was silent.

Theresa said, "Tell your mom. Ok?"

"What did you say?" Charlie was pretending.

Theresa rolled her eyes at him, "Anyway, I told you to stop it. If you really prepare for the wedding, find someone else to marry you then. I will not marry you."

Charlie looked at her and thought, "You liked me very much before, and you were very frank. Why are you getting timider now? I said I like you and want to be nice to you, but you don't admit your feelings for me. You must be crazy!"

"Huh?" Theresa didn't expect him to take the past as an example.

When did she like him?

She's just pretending in front of him.

She looked at Charlie's confident face and said, "Maybe that's human beings! You didn't like me before, and I thought you were unattainable. Now that you are nice to me, I think you are just an ordinary person. I lost interest in you soon. Do you like my explanation?"

Charlie gritted his teeth. "OK! I'll see how long you could do the things against your heart."

"I will try." Theresa refuted him confidently.

Charlie ignored her and went to practice walking by himself.

Although Charlie made tiny progress every day, Theresa must admit that she was happy to see him stand up again.

She just hoped that he could get better now.

At three o'clock in the afternoon, Theresa woke up from her nap, opened her eyes, and found

Charlie lying beside her with one hand under her neck.

Theresa didn't know when Charlie came. He was not there when she began to sleep.

Theresa looked at the man, reached out, took his arm away, and took out the phone that had been ringing.

It was Cristina, "Hey, Theresa."

Theresa responded when she heard that. She glanced at Charlie next to her. She was afraid that he would hear her. She got out of bed, put on slippers, and left the room.

At the door, she continued to talk to Cristina, "What's wrong?"

"I have something to do, so I won't come here. Is Leonard OK?"

Cristina wanted to go home and change her clothes before coming to help Theresa take care of Leonard.

She couldn't come now. That was why she called Theresa.

Hearing Cristina's words, Theresa asked, "What's wrong?"

"Hah Hah. Nothing. I just met someone I know." It seemed that Cristina was satirizing.

Theresa said, "Are you okay?"

Theresa was worried about Cristina.

However, Cristina didn't even say goodbye and just hung up the phone.

Theresa went directly to the next room to see Leonard.

After a day's rest, Leonard got better, His fever was gone, but he caught a cold, so he still needed to take medicine.

When Theresa was feeding Leonard water, Jonathan appeared at the door and knocked.

"Young madam."

Chapter 357

Chapter 357

Theresa looked up at him and asked, "What is it?"

Jonathan said, "Mr. Calsis said that there are guests at home at night. He asked you to prepare it."

Theresa said, "OK."

Theresa thought it strange. Was it necessary to inform her that guest would come?

However, Theresa took the time to change her clothes and put on makeup. She didn't want to shame Charlie.

Theresa dressed up and came out. She saw Charlie sitting in the room, staring at her.

Theresa wore the skirt she selected from the wardrobe.

Theresa usually didn't pay much attention to dressing herself. She usually wore business suits or the casual clothes she bought in Amazon.

When Theresa dressed up, she looked like an angel.

Looking at her swan-like long straight neck and slender waist, Charlie was fascinated.

Shit! Charlie thought that he was more and more attracted to Theresa.

The more Charlie looks, the more he likes Theresa.

Theresa said, "Aren't you busy?"

When she came over, he was in the study all the time, as if he was dealing with work affairs.

Charlie said, "I come here to take something."

"Take what?" She said, "Did you find it? I can help you."

"I think there is something wrong with my eyes." She was about to help him find something and heard his voice behind her.

Theresa looked back at him and said, "What's the matter? You have worked for too long. You must be too tired."

"I can't see anything but you."

Theresa was stunned, and then she realized that Charlie was teasing her.

She turned around, took a look at him, and walked up to him. "I don't think you have a problem with your eyes, but your brain. Do you want me to call Dr. Hill and ask him to examine you? You can't go on like this."

Charlie seldom said romantic words, but Theresa made fun of him.

He stretched out his hand and held her waist. He was not reconciled. "Woman, I can accept your rude behavior because I like you." Looking at Charlie, Theresa did not push him away unexpectedly.

Because the man in front of her was so obedient.

It's different from his usual behavior.

It looked a little cute.

Because Charlie has been making up to her all day today, Theresa was also somewhat soft-hearted.

She looked at Charlie and said, "Well, why do you like me? Tell me, and I will change it."

"I like it when you say you don't like me. Please change it!"

Theresa looked at him helplessly.

Just then, someone knocked on the door.

Theresa pushed him away and said, "Come in."

The servant came in, "Mr. Calsis, Mr. Nandlall is here."

"I see."

Charlie answered.

When the servant called Mr. Nandlall, she knew it was Pat Nandlall.

Theresa snored, "He could come back quietly. Why did he inform everyone? Did he want you to receive him?"

Charlie took a look at her and found that Theresa didn't like Pat.

Charlie reached out, took Theresa's hand, and said, "Is your father's birthday coming?"

"So what?"

"Hold a birthday party, Charlie suggested.

Theresa said, "No, he is not in good health. He wouldn't want us to do this. Besides, our financial situation is not good."

"What happened?"

"What do you think?" Theresa looked at Charlie. "If other people control your company, would you still want to hold the birthday party for yourself? No matter what you do, others can make your company bankrupt easily."

"It won't happen again, Charlie said. "I promise you, ok?"

Charlie did not like Theresa's father.

He even resented Johnson.

After all, Johnson, like Sarah, treated him as a cripple.

Chapter 358

Chapter 358

However, Charlie was willing to put up with Theresa's father for her sake and decided not to haggle over how her father defamed him.

Theresa said, "How can I trust you?" She didn't believe him at all now. Even if he had promised, what about the others?

Charlie said, "If you don't trust me, how can you know whether I can do that?"

Theresa was speechless.

"Well, I'm going downstairs." He tapped on the back of her hand and went out in his wheelchair. Theresa left him alone and went about her business. Before long, Ben came back.

She then went downstairs to welcome Ben and was a little surprised to see Pat, Charlie, and a young man sitting in the living room, who was very good-looking, wearing a black sweater with his jacket laid on one side. She hadn't seen him for quite a long time, having not expected to see him here.

When the man saw her, he was also a little stunned, seeming to recognize her as well.

Without a word, Theresa glanced at Charlie and went straight out to welcome Ben. When she went out, she saw Ben, who was carrying his small schoolbag and wearing a beret with a lollipop in his mouth, standing at the door, and Cristina standing right next to him. She walked up to Cristina and said, "I thought you said you were not coming."

Cristina said, "Is Eugene in there?"

Theresa looked at her nervous look, "Yes! I didn't expect him to know Charlie."

Cristina said, "Me, neither." She had followed Eugene here, having not expected to arrive at Calsis's Residence.

"Aren't you going in?" Theresa looked at her and said, "What are you doing here? It's cold outside."

Cristina said, "I'm a little hot so I'd like to stay here."

Theresa couldn't help but laugh softly, "It's just an ex-boyfriend, why are you being such a wimp? Come on." After finishing her words, she grabbed Cristina and pulled her in.

Cristina followed behind Theresa, feeling so nervous that she almost couldn't walk. 'Shit!' What she had thought before was that if she had seen that scumbag again, she would definitely have slapped him across the face, not having expected herself to suddenly turn into a wimp.

When they reached the door to the living room, Theresa let go of Cristina and led her and Ben through the door.

Eugene was stunned to see Cristina enter, following behind Theresa.

"Daddy." Ben walked over to Charlie as soon as he saw him.

"Daddy?" Eugene looked at the little one who looked exactly like Charlie and said to Charlie, "Since when has Mr. Calsis had a child?"

"A few days ago."

Eugene said, "That quick?" He didn't seem to have been away for such a long time as Charlie's child had been at this age.

Ben took out some candies from his pocket and handed them to Charlie as well as Pat and Eugene beside him in a quite polite manner.

Seeing the little one, Pat reached out and took the candies. He hated Theresa but did not hate Charlie's two children. After all, they were not Theresa's children.

Eugene had said this to Charlie just to defuse the embarrassment of seeing his ex-girlfriend. As a result, just as Eugene finished his words, Cristina came over and sat down on the couch, "I'm his mother." Speechless, Eugene raised his head in disbelief and glanced at Cristina to make sure it was Cristina speaking.

Chapter 359

Chapter 359

Charlie looked at Cristina, "Didn't you leave? Why are you still here?"

Cristina said, "Of course, I'm here to see my babies." After finishing this, she deliberately walked to Charlie and sat down beside him as if Ben was really her child! She then turned to Eugene and asked, "Look carefully, doesn't this child look like me?"

Standing aside, Theresa felt a little worried for some reason though she knew that Cristina just wanted to take revenge. The others didn't know about the relationship between her and Cristina, but... Eugene did! He knew that she and Cristina were close friends. Would this spoil Cristina's plan?

Cristina's approach made Charlie unconsciously want to move away. Although she had given birth to this child, he had nothing to do with her.

However, seeing that he wanted to move away, Cristina hastened to hold his arm.

Unable to move at all with broken legs and her holding his arm, Charlie subconsciously glanced at Theresa because this mattered to her innocence. He then turned to Cristina and said, "Let go!"

The corner of Cristina's mouth twitched. 'Damn it, what's wrong with this guy? I'm just pretending, trying to get his cover. Does he have to be so disgusted, not covering for me at all?' Cristina snorted sulkily, "Charlie, is this how you treat your two children's mother?"

Ben stood aside looking at Cristina. 'Oh, what's going on?'

As his face darkened, Charlie reached out, directly pushed Cristina away, and said, "What's wrong with you?" 'Is there something wrong with this woman? I'm trying to win Theresa's heart, and she hasn't yet agreed! And now she came here messing around!'

He had thought there had been something wrong with this Cristina before, sending the children back without asking for anything in return. He had known she had meant to pester him! He had had no evidence before, but now she behaved like this. She finally couldn't pretend anymore and exposed her intention?

As Eugene sitting aside looked at this, an uncomfortable feeling crowded his mind. 'What is this woman doing? Is she still the Cristina I remember?'

Cristina glanced at Charlie and said, "Ben, let's go and leave your father alone." After finishing her words, she stood up, took Ben's hand, and was about to take him upstairs.

Ben glanced in confusion at Charlie and then at Cristina, but still followed Cristina upstairs anyway.

Standing aside, Theresa glanced at Charlie and noticed his disgusted look.

Mr. Calsis must be very confused at this moment!

However, Theresa knew very well that Cristina had done this not because she was interested in Charlie but because ... she was trying to irritate Eugene by letting him know that she had given birth to Charlie's two children.

Without saying anything to them, Theresa wanted to go upstairs and console Cristina. But just as she reached the stairway, she heard Pat say, "Charlie, Cristina is your children's mother anyway, you have to go easy on her! And I do think that she appears much more reliable than your wife." Hearing this, Theresa was speechless, sneering coldly in her heart.

"Pat." Charlie glanced at Pat unhappily.

Pat didn't say anything more.

Still, Pat's words verified the fact that Charlie's children were Cristina's, putting Eugene in a bad mood, who stood up and said, "I'm going outside to have a cigarette."

Standing at the stairway, Theresa saw Eugene walking out.

Chapter 360

Chapter 360

The man with a gloomy face, who had been quite gentle just now, looked very funny.

Theresa went upstairs and looked at Cristina who was sitting aside weakly, defeated, totally different from just now. "Are you okay?"

Cristina glanced at her and leaned sideways against the couch, holding the pillow, "I think I'm dying." Even she herself had no idea what she had been doing. She only knew that she had just done it in her excitement.

Theresa said, "I just saw Eugene go out to smoke. He didn't seem to look well."

Hearing this, Cristina glanced at Theresa as her eyes lit up, "For real?"

Theresa nodded, "Yeah. It seems he hasn't forgotten about you either. You've managed to irritate him."

Cristina said, "He deserves this." For some reason, she was in a much better mood.

Theresa looked at Cristina and sighed. If a woman still followed a man's every move, it was proved that she still cared about that man in her heart. She then rubbed Cristina's head, "Pumpkinhead."

Just then, Charlie appeared at the door. With a grim face, he instructed Jonathan, "Get this woman out of here, I don't want to see her again." Once remembering what Cristina had just done, he thought that Cristina should not stay in this house. Hearing Charlie's words, Cristina stared at him warily.

Theresa looked at Charlie and said, "Charlie, it's not a big deal. Cristina was just joking with you."

"Joking?" Charlie sneered, "You think she looked like she was joking? I don't want to see her in this house again." After finishing this, Charlie left in his wheelchair.

Jonathan looked at Cristina and said, "Miss Lagarde, please." He had to obey Mr. Calsis's order.

Cristina looked at Jonathan. Usually, she would leave at once if she was told to. But now ...

Eugene was here, so she didn't want to leave. She then glanced at Theresa as if she was asking, "What should I do?"

Seeing Cristina not moving, Jonathan said once again, "Miss Lagarde." If Cristina wouldn't leave, he had to have someone take her out.

Theresa glanced at Jonathan and said, "Jonathan, Cristina has something important to do here. Please let her stay here with the kids, at least for Leonard and Ben's sake." Jonathan was surprised by the friendship between these two women. Theresa is speaking up for Cristina? Aren't they supposed to be rivals in love?' He said, "Madam, this is Mr. Calsis's order, I can do nothing about it. You know what Mr. Calsis thinks of Miss Lagarde." Even after the two children had returned to Calsis's Residence, Charlie had never been nice to Cristina! "I'll go talk to Charlie." After saying this to Jonathan, Theresa walked out the door. Seeing her determined look, Jonathan took a glance at Cristina and had to listen to Theresa for the time being.

Charlie had gone back to his room.

Theresa walked in and saw him changing his clothes.

The clothes he had just taken off had been thrown on the floor. He seemed to feel disgusted to have been touched by Cristina.

Theresa walked over to Charlie, looking at him with a smile, "How come I didn't know about your fetish about cleanliness?"

Charlie looked up at her, "That Cristina is crazy! I have nothing to do with her, don't make an issue of it."

Theresa froze for a moment, having not expected Charlie to get so angry and the first thing he would have done to be explaining to her. Looking at Charlie, she suddenly weakened and said in a soft voice, "You're afraid that I'll misunderstand?"

Charlie took out the clothes and put them on in front of her, "Of course I am."

Theresa reached out to help Charlie get dressed, saying, "Maybe Cristina is not the kind of person you think. You know she usually doesn't bother you, there should be some reason for her to behave like this. And Leonard hasn't felt any better yet, can you not drive her away for the moment?"

Chapter 361

Chapter 361

Hearing Theresa's words, Charlie who had just gotten dressed froze. He reached out and pushed her away, looking at her, "You're here to intercede for her?"

Theresa said, "I just think it's not good to drive someone away like that. For the sake of the children, don't go too far, or you will give the children a bad impression." Hearing Theresa's words, Charlie laughed coldly, "So you're really here to intercede for her. She is so disgusting, but you are not jealous at all! Theresa, it doesn't matter to you what I do with the other women, does it? You don't care about me at all, do you?" He had been afraid that she would have gotten angry and had hastened to explain to her, while she ... had come to intercede for her? Her attitude disappointed him deeply.

Theresa looked at the man in front of her, "Why are you angry even with me now? I'm just explaining for her."

"No need!" Charlie said, "Don't you talk to me now, I don't want to see you. As for Leonard's illness, I didn't see her take much care of it, so what's the point of keeping her here? The children are nothing more than a means of gaining self-interest for her." He insisted on kicking Cristina out. He also didn't talk to Theresa, not willing to listen to a word Theresa said.

He then went into the bathroom, stood at the sink, turned on the faucet, and began to wash his hands. He applied some hand sanitizer and washed and disinfected his hands over and over again, but he still felt them unclean.

Seeing him like this, Theresa frowned.

Charlie kept staring at his hands, only feeling depressed in his heart. Suddenly, as a pair of hands held his waist from behind, Charlie froze for a moment and then looked down at the slender hands at his waist. He wanted to tug at them but found his hands wet, he then asked with a straight face, "What are you doing?" She would go this far to intercede for her? This made him even angrier! Theresa said, "What if I beg you?" Cristina was already sad to see Eugene now, Theresa didn't know what would happen if she was driven away.

Charlie took the towel beside him, dried his hands, pulled her hands away, and turned to look at her, leaning against the sink, "Have you no shame?" In order to get his agreement, she actually seduced him? Theresa looked at him and said, "What shame? I already have you. Are you going to agree or not?"

Charlie said, "No."

"If you don't agree, I'll kiss you!" After saying this, Theresa rested her hand on his shoulder, and only now did she realize how tall he was.

Charlie snorted. He wouldn't admit that he was actually kind of... looking forward to it.

Theresa stood on tiptoe and offered her kiss on his lips.

Charlie had thought that he would not have been captivated so easily, but at this moment he found that he not only did not want to push her away, but he also wanted to take the initiative ... As he thought this, his hands had already started to move. He held her waist tightly with his arms, continuing the kiss that had been offered her.

Out of his arms, a little breathless, Theresa looked at the man with a straight face in front of her and asked, "Have you cooled down?"

Staring at Theresa with his deep eyes, Charlie was still eager to continue kissing her lips.

Theresa asked, "Are you done?"

Stunned looking at her for a moment, Charlie suddenly came to his senses, "When did you and Cristina get so close? In order to keep her here, you actually came to intercede with me for her?"

Theresa froze for a moment and then said, "We took care of the children together every day and I found her quite nice, so we gradually got close! Women's friendship is just this simple." "Really?" Charlie's eyes were full of doubt.

Looking at Charlie, Theresa raised her eyebrow and said in a confident manner, "What? You don't believe me?"

"Yes, I do." Theresa's confidence dispelled Charlie's doubts. "She can stay here for now, but you need to warn her not to touch me again, or I won't let her off."

Theresa looked at him and smiled, "Okay, Mr. Calsis." After getting his agreement, Theresa turned around, walked out the door, and went to Jonathan.

Jonathan had been waiting outside. Hearing that Charlie had agreed, he looked at Theresa in disbelief and complimented her, "Indeed, Mr. Calsis does love you very much, Madam."

Chapter 362

Chapter 362

Jonathan who worked for Charlie by his side could feel the obvious change in Charlie.

Charlie was now treating Theresa more and more nicely! He could soon be persuaded by Theresa into changing his mind.

Theresa went back to Leonard and Ben's room and said to Cristina, "Charlie has agreed to let you stay."

"Really?" Cristina was delighted for a moment but then suddenly a little skeptical, looking at Theresa, "Is he such a pushover?"

"Kind of."

"You let him touch you?" Cristina had a pair of sharp eyes.

Hearing her words, as the corner of her mouth twitched, Theresa thought, 'Cristina is really perceptive' but she didn't admit it, "Who told you that?"

"Where's the lipstick you just put on?" Cristina stared at her.

Theresa was speechless. 'Shit, I forgot about that.' She went into the bathroom, looked at the lipstick that had almost been rubbed off, and hurried to put on some more.

When she came out, Cristina who was sitting on the couch, folding her arms stared at her, "Tell me the truth, how far are you two going?" "There's nothing between us."

Cristina sneered and rolled her eyes as if saying she was a liar. "Yesterday you couldn't get along with him at all and were almost kicked out by him. While today he forgave you so easily just for a few words of yours. I deeply doubt that you two have already fallen in love with each other."

"What are you talking about?" Theresa said, "He and I are getting a divorce."

"Do you have to?" Cristina stared curiously at Theresa.

Theresa nodded, "Yes."

"Then why did you let him touch you?"

"I did it for you."

Cristina was about to say something when Charlie was pushed past the door by Jonathan.

Theresa saw Charlie pass with a gloomy face. 'Uh... Did he hear that? "I did it for you." He heard this, didn't he?' For some reason, Theresa had a sudden urge to slap herself across the face. When she had said that, it had seemed as if she had really taken advantage of him just now though she had not thought that way. She just hadn't expected Charlie to care so much about her feelings, having hurriedly explained his relationship with Cristina to her, afraid that she would have misunderstood. She could sense that he cared about her! Unlike before, he now seemed to really... love her. Maybe this feeling was not very strong, but this man really cared about her.

Theresa checked the time and chatted with Cristina for a while before taking the two children downstairs to have dinner.

Leonard was still ill, but... had gotten much better by now. And after he had been lying in his bedroom all day, Theresa also wanted him to go downstairs for a walk.

In the dining room, everyone had been seated. Today, Eugene was a guest and also Rose's uncle, so Rose had also come back especially for him. Today, it was very lively at the table.

Theresa paid attention to no one but Charlie. She had not been at ease in her heart upstairs just now, feeling a little sorry for him.

Chapter 363

Chapter 363

But on second thoughts, it would be too intended for her to go over to him just to explain. So she planned to talk about it later when she was alone with him.

The two babies' seats had been arranged long ago. And Cristina usually sat along with the two babies when she came here.

At this moment, Cristina was about to sit down beside Ben when she heard Charlie say, pointing at the seat next to him, "Sit here."

Cristina looked at Charlie in confusion. When she had just come back, she had just touched him and he had gotten so angry that he wanted to kick her out. But now... he was asking her to sit next to him?

Seeing Eugene sitting at the table, Cristina took a look at Theresa and apologized to her before going to sit next to Charlie. She had been trying to irritate Eugene, and now that Charlie had given her the opportunity, she was glad to take it.

So Cristina and Theresa switched seats. Theresa went to sit with the two children.

Cristina guessed that this should be Theresa's idea. 'Theresa is a friend indeed. I have to thank her later!'

As Cristina seated herself next to Charlie, she glanced at Eugene with a proud look. She now just wanted to see how her ex-boyfriend would react. 'Humph, scumbag!'

Theresa sat in her seat and stole a glance at Charlie, not thinking much about it. 'It's just a meal anyway, it doesn't matter where to sit.' However, Charlie kept caring for Cristina during the meal. He kept handing Cristina tableware and picking up food for her, looking quite intimate.

There were a lot of people at the table tonight.

Rose was talking to Eugene, "Uncle Eugene, you're not in a hurry to go back this time, are you?" Eugene answered, "No, I'll stay here for now."

"That's great!" Rose said, "I missed you so much. You didn't even come to my wedding, which made me heartbroken!"

Eugene could barely force a smile at her because Cristina was sitting right next to Charlie.

Cristina looked up at Eugene and asked, "You're going to stay here afterward?"

Hearing Cristina's words, Eugene nodded his head, "Yes." He would like to see what this woman wanted to do.

Cristina said, "Then I'm looking forward to your visits. My babies and I will welcome you together." After saying this, she took a quite tender look at Charlie. Eugene was speechless.

Seeing this, Rose opened her eyes wide. 'What's going on?' She had been curious since just now!

Cristina was actually sitting next to Uncle Charlie, while Theresa was apparently the one who was cold-shouldered. 'Ha-ha, it looks like Cristina is going to take the initiative? That's right, how does Theresa compare with her?'

Seeing this, Leticia sitting aside instantly felt confused again. 'What's wrong with Charlie? He said he was going to be with Theresa, but now he is treating Cristina like this!'

On the other side, Theresa ate in silence, only feeling uncomfortable and breathless as if her heart was pressed by something. She finished her meal despite the unpleasant feelings, then she stood up and left the dining room.

Seeing Theresa's reaction, Charlie glanced at Cristina who was very close to him, "Get away from me."

Cristina was speechless. 'Damn it!'

Chapter 364

Chapter 364

'What's wrong with him?' As the corner of her mouth twitched, Cristina glanced at Charlie, moved away from him, stood up, and went to the bathroom.

The wind tonight was strong. Theresa stood in a draught outside, collecting herself. She knew that there was nothing between Charlie and Cristina, but having seen them together just now, she couldn't have helped feeling jealous! After standing alone for a while, she saw Eugene come out. Looking at her, Eugene walked up to her and asked, "What's going on between Cristina and Charlie?"

Hearing his words, Theresa said in confusion, "What do you mean?"

"Is it true that she has two children with Charlie?"

"Everyone knows that." Looking at the man in front of her, Theresa could sense that this man was even more anxious than her at the moment. After all, she was aware of what was going on between Charlie and Cristina, while Eugene, on the other hand, knew nothing about it.

Eugene said in an abrupt manner, "But aren't you Charlie's wife? You two have gotten close enough to share a man?"

Hearing his words, Theresa said calmly, "I don't think I need to tell you about us, do I? Mr. Oneill, why are you asking me about this? Are you unwilling to be outdone? Are all men like this? When they have her, they don't cherish her, and after they break up with her, it bothers them to see their ex-girlfriend living a good life."

"Good?" Eugene said, "I don't think she has a good life!" He had seen how disgusted Charlie had been to be with Cristina! He just wanted to know about the two children. He then said to Theresa, "When did they have children? How come I know nothing about it?"

"You've left her alone in the first place, how can you know?"

When Theresa had given birth to Leonard and Ben, Cristina had already broken up with Eugene. So Eugene naturally had been unaware of it!

Just then, Cristina walked out, "Eugene."

Hearing her voice, Eugene froze for a moment. He then turned around and saw Cristina walking toward him. Cristina walked over, stood next to Theresa, and asked, "What are you two talking about?" She obviously had come over to show off.

Looking at her, Eugene didn't answer her but directly grabbed her wrist, "You, come with me!"

Standing aside, Theresa could only watch Cristina being pulled away by Eugene. Eugene was very tall and walked fast, Cristina following him had to run to barely keep up with him. Seeing this, Theresa found it quite interesting.

Seeing that the two were gone and thinking they were not coming back, Theresa went back inside.

The dinner had already been over.

Rose bumped into Theresa and asked frivolously, deliberately striking her nerve, "Aunt Theresa, what's going on between you and Uncle Charlie? How come Uncle Charlie is with Cristina now? I thought you two have been reconciled. Alas, I really don't understand."

Theresa hadn't felt bad at all when she had heard Rose say this before, but not now! She now found Rose's words harsh enough to make her heartbroken.

Theresa looked at her with a smile, "I'm getting a divorce from your Uncle Charlie, and soon Cristina will become your aunt-in-law. Are you happy now?"

Rose deliberately said with irony, "That's no fun, I still want you to be my aunt-in-law! It's quite interesting to see you everyday."

Just then, Charlie came out, followed by Jonathan.

Seeing Rose talking to Theresa, Jonathan said, "Miss Nandlall."

Turning around and seeing Charlie, Rose walked over to him and said in an innocent voice, "Uncle Charlie, are you getting a divorce from Aunt Theresa?" Recently this girl had been getting more and more frivolous. Charlie glanced at Theresa and asked, "Are we?"

Chapter 365

Chapter 365

Rose said, "Aunt Theresa said it herself just now. It must be true!" Charlie glanced at Rose, "What? You're looking forward to our divorce?"

Rose pouted her lips, "How would I dare? I'm just caring about you."

Charlie said coldly, "I'm busy right now." He then asked Jonathan to push him back to his room.

Standing aside, Rose looked at Charlie's expression. 'It looks like they are really getting a divorce?' She then turned around and glanced at Theresa, "It seems to be true?" Her Uncle Charlie surprisingly had not denied it. Rose had just been so angry about Theresa and Charlie's relationship in the morning, while now seeing Theresa and Charlie like this, she was in a much better mood. It was just one of life's little ironies!

"Rose!" Leticia led the two children over.

Seeing Leticia, Rose greeted her, "Grandma." She then walked over to Leticia and held her arm affectionately.

Leticia asked, "Where's your Uncle Charlie?"

"He went upstairs." Rose reached out and petted Ben who took a glance at her and walked away with his lips pressed together. 'Bother!'

Rose then said to Leticia, "Uncle Charlie and Aunt Theresa are getting a divorce." She was itching to inform the whole world of it. "I really don't understand them. They were close in the morning, and now they're getting a divorce. Aunt Theresa is really good at flipping Uncle Charlie's lid."

"What are you talking about?" On hearing Rose's words, Leticia scolded her, "How come I don't know they are getting divorced? Your Uncle Charlie and Aunt Theresa are fine! It's impossible for them to get divorced." "Grandma." Having suddenly been scolded by Leticia, Rose felt wronged. 'If I didn't mishear, Grandma is speaking up for Theresa? Why is she so irritated on hearing of their divorce?'

While Rose was still stunned, Leticia glanced at Theresa and said, "Theresa, come here."

A little surprised that Leticia was actually speaking up for her, Theresa walked over to Leticia who then took the two children upstairs and asked her to follow. Ben led Leonard into the elevator, followed by Leticia and Theresa.

Leticia glanced at Theresa and said, "Charlie is in a mood again? He and Cristina are not going to work out, don't make an issue of it." She could tell that Theresa had been a little unhappy since the meal and she felt her! Which woman could stay calm when she saw her husband with another woman?

Theresa said, "I know." How could she not know that Charlie had been taking it out on her?

Leticia took her and the two children upstairs and went directly to the study instead of Leonard and Ben's room. Seeing Leticia appear at the door, Charlie, who had been on the phone, hung up the phone at once, "Mother." Leticia walked up to him and asked, "What's going on between you and Cristina?"

"Nothing," Charlie deliberately said in a calm manner as he glanced at Theresa behind his mother.

Leticia looked at Charlie with a disappointed look, "Charlie, you are not an irrational person, how could you be like this? I've been teaching you since you were a child that as a man, you should be nice to your wife, and now hook up with another woman while you're with Theresa? Since you're like this, then don't blame me for being rude to you."

you

Speechless, Charlie looked at his mother, not knowing what her "being rude" meant.

Leticia said, "If you don't want to be with Theresa, then fine, you two get divorced."

Hearing this, Theresa immediately looked at Leticia. 'Excuse me? That's not what you said outside just now!'

Chapter 366

Chapter 366

Charlie glanced at Theresa with his pair of deep, sharp eyes. 'Mother is asking me to divorce Theresa?' Charlie was about to say something when he heard Leticia say, "After you two get divorced, I'll take her as my god-sister."

Theresa was speechless.

As Charlie heard this, the corner of his mouth twitched. 'Mother is... going to make Theresa my aunt? After all, she is afraid that I am not nice to Theresa, so she's here to teach me a lesson!' Charlie then said, "Okay, I know what you mean! I have a business to do now, could you please leave me alone?"

Leticia snorted, "That's more like it." After saying this, she stood up and said to Leonard and Ben, "Come on, let's go have a rest."

Theresa was about to follow Leticia out when Leticia took a glance at her, "You stay here and keep a close eye on him for me." And after finishing her words, Leticia directly closed the door of the study before Theresa could say anything.

Being forcibly locked in the study with Charlie, Theresa only felt extremely embarrassed, but she could do nothing about it since Leticia had said so. She turned to glance at Charlie who was back on the phone, then she sat down at the desk, casually took a book beside her hand, and started reading it.

She didn't pay attention to Charlie even when he finally finished his phone call, flipping through the pages of the book with her slender fingers, the sound of which could be clearly heard in the quiet study.

Charlie said, "I didn't expect you to snitch to my mother and ask her for help."

As her fingers stopped, Theresa looked up at Charlie who was staring at her expressionlessly. She could sense the implication in his words that he thought it had been her who had asked Leticia to come to him tonight. She then said, "I didn't snitch. You did it so blatantly that everyone could see it without being told." "Wasn't that what you wanted?"

The corner of Theresa's mouth twitched, "What I wanted?"

"You don't mind who I am with anyway. Besides, you're so close to Cristina that you can even take advantage of my feelings to help her, so isn't it a favor to you that I treat her nicely?" Theresa was speechless. It turned out that it was because of that remark of hers after all. Theresa stared at

Charlie, feeling angry and uncomfortable. She hated herself for having fallen for him so easily. But should she explain to him and forgive him despite such an outrageous thing he had done tonight, which had deeply shamed her in front of the family? Looking at Charlie, she said in despair, "Then you shall be with Cristina! That's what I want now."

Charlie looked at her, "What did you say?"

"Didn't you say that you will do whatever I want you to do? I want you to be with Cristina now, shouldn't you be with her according to you?" She knew very well she couldn't hold something forever that didn't belong to her. If she really fell in love with him, then once something like this happened again in the future, she would go crazy. So instead, she would like to let go and let him do whatever he wanted, treating him as a stranger, which might make her feel better!

Charlie said, "Theresa, you are heartless!"

"I'm going back to rest." Theresa stood up, put the book she hadn't finished back on the table, and walked out of his study.

After a shower, Theresa went to check on the two children and found that Leticia had already put them to bed. She stayed with the two babies for a while before going back to the bedroom and directly went to sleep on the couch, ignoring Charlie who was taking a shower.

Feeling uncomfortable at night, Theresa woke up from her sleep to find there was another person on the small couch.

Chapter 367

Chapter 367

Charlie was sleeping right next to her. He was 6' 3" tall, no wonder she had been feeling uncomfortable! Because the couch was small, she was held in his arms and could not move at all, feeling his breath tickling her ear...

She reached out to push him, shouting out loud, "Charlie, what's wrong with you?" 'Damn it! He sleeps on the couch with her instead of the king-size bed?'

Hearing her call him, Charlie who was fast asleep asked lazily, "What's the matter?"

"Why are you sleeping here instead of in the bed?" She was really annoyed with him.

Charlie held her tight, "Because you smell good." Her body had a pleasant smell, why would he sleep in the bed without her?

Hearing his explanation, Theresa pulled a wry face. If she remembered correctly, their conversation in the study had ended unhappily. She hadn't expected him to be so shameless that he still had come to sleep with her. Theresa then asked, "Aren't you angry with me?" With the night light on, Theresa could barely see his face. Hearing her question, Charlie looked a little forlorn, "You really don't like me at all?" Thinking that she had taken the initiative to comfort him and kiss him only for Cristina, Charlie felt heartbroken. He didn't compare with the other people who were close to Theresa, but wasn't Cristina ... her rival in love? Why did Theresa still think her more important than him? Charlie was so frustrated with Theresa that he felt heartbroken.

Seeing him like this, Theresa actually felt a little pity for him. She had been angry with him, but now... seeing his pitiful look, Theresa actually weakened a little. She moved a little, adjusting her posture to feel comfortable in his arms, "I didn't mean it. If I knew you could hear me, I wouldn't have said that." That remark of hers had been heard by him and had given her a hard time.

Charlie said, "So do you like me or not?"

Theresa didn't say anything.

"No."

Disappointed, he said before closing his eyes, "Fine."

Looking at his face which was very close to her, Theresa whispered, "You're Mr. Calsis of the Calsis family, how dare I like you? And I'm not good enough for you either, am I?" Charlie opened his eyes, looking at her, "Yes, you are."

"I'm a divorced woman."

"I like divorced women."

"I've cheated on you."

As Charlie heard this, the corner of his mouth twitched, "You're joking, right? I know you haven't."

Theresa looked at Charlie, "How do you know? How do you know about me?"

"I trust my vision, and I trust you," Charlie said, "Don't you ever talk nonsense again. If you really have cheated on me, then tell me, who is he?"

Theresa said nothing.

"You can't tell his name?" It seemed that Charlie was more confident than her in this regard.

Theresa looked at him with her watery bright eyes. Though he was always annoying, she thought him kind of cute sometimes. Because it seemed that there would never be another person that would trust her like that! She then reached out, hugged him, and went back to sleep nestling against his chest.

Staring at the woman in front of him who nestled in his arms instead of pushing him away, Charlie only felt his heart racing. At this moment, he felt so reassured though she had said nothing.

After a while, Theresa felt uncomfortable again, "Let's go sleep in the bed."

"No, it's fine sleeping here." Unlike here, the bed was too big for him to sleep close to her.

"Don't you feel uncomfortable?"

Chapter 368

Chapter 368

"How can I feel uncomfortable if I can hold you?"

Theresa laughed, "If you keep talking to me like that, I should like you a lot." At least, he was not annoying now, and willing to sweet-talk her, which he did not usually do. Charlie said, "You like me?"

"What?" Theresa was speechless.

"Anyway, you said that."

Theresa said, "If you do that to Cristina again, I won't forgive you." The thought of the evening made her blow at fuse.

Charlie said, "Are you being jealous?"

"Yes, I am! Can't I?" she told the truth. It was hard to hide feelings for someone.

Charlie said, "Of course you can." He had been afraid that she wouldn't have been jealous, and that she had had no feelings for him. Now he was overjoyed to hear she was jealous. "Charlie's children are really yours?"

"Of course."

"When?"

"After I broke up with you! I slept with him and got pregnant. What? I can't date someone else even after we broke up?"

"Cristina, you saw how Charlie treated you. You still think he is interested in you?"

"Why not? If he hadn't married Theresa in the first place, his wife would have been me now!"

Eugene sneered.

Late at night, Cristina was lying in bed at home, recalling Eugene's back when he had left in anger, and wondering if she hadn't been cruel enough! 'I should have been crueler!' She felt she still had gone too easy on him.

She picked up her phone and sent messages to Theresa. [Tess, are you asleep?]
[Tess, I can't fall asleep.]

Theresa hadn't slept well either, mostly because the couch had been too crowded. She woke up early in the morning and turned on her phone to find that Cristina had sent her a lot of messages. 'Cristina kept sending me messages all night instead of going to sleep?' She then replied, [Morning, why didn't you sleep at night?]

Theresa thought Cristina should be catching up on sleep now. But as soon as she sent the message, Cristina immediately replied, [I couldn't fall asleep. Let's have breakfast together later, okay?]

Theresa was speechless, [You're not sleeping?]

[I tried.] It seemed that she was really bothered with Eugene. She was the one who slept in every morning and needed dozens of alarm clocks to wake her up!

Theresa typed, [Okay, let's agree on a place!] Leonard and Ben had no class today, so it was a good chance to take them out for a walk.

"Chatting on the phone early in the morning?" On hearing Charlie's voice, Theresa hurriedly put down her phone, glanced at him, and said, "I'm going out for a while."
"Where?"

"I want to take Leonard and Ben out for breakfast," Theresa asked, "is that okay?"

Charlie said, "I'll go with you."

Theresa was kind of speechless, "Why? Since it's the weekend, I also want to take them to the park, what do you say?"

"Isn't there a park right in front of our house?" Calsis's Residence was huge with a park indeed right in the front of it, whose environment was no worse than others.

But...

"I also have a friend to meet for breakfast."

"A male friend?"

"Female," Theresa snorted, "What? You want to chat her up?"

"You don't want to take me with you anyway?"

"Charlie," Theresa said, "Do you feel yourself behaving like a kid right now, even more childish than your two sons?"

Chapter 369

Chapter 369

Charlie grunted reluctantly, "When are you coming back?"

"I don't know."

"Are you trying to take my sons away from me?" He looked at her suspiciously.

Theresa was speechless, wondering what made him think that. She did have the intention, but it was not the right time. She had thought that if one day she really had to leave Charlie with her children, she would have to deal with the company first. She couldn't watch it go bankrupt even if her father was okay with it. They had so many employees. Maybe her father would have to take legal responsibility.

With this in mind, Theresa said, "I'm going out to breakfast and then to Cameron's Residence. I'll be back as soon as I can!"

"Okay," Charlie agreed reluctantly, "but you have to give me a reward."

"What do you want?"

"You know it," he said softly, staring at her lips.

Probably because of his blazing eyes, Theresa understood what he meant. She sighed and gave him a kiss on the chin. "Okay?" His stubble was a little scratchy, but she didn't hate it at all.

Charlie whispered, "Hmm." He looked indifferent, but there was a happy look behind his eyes.

Theresa sighed again as she got up from the couch. She went to wash up and then wake the children up. When it was all done, she took the children out.

Cristina had booked a hotel and Theresa had the Calsis family's driver drive them there.

At the hotel restaurant, Theresa asked Cristina, "Why did you choose this place?"

They both agreed that the food in the hotel was expensive and awful. It was surprising that Cristina chose this place.

"Eugene is staying at this hotel," Cristina said bluntly.

Theresa nodded. "So thoughtful!" Cristina had stayed up all night and come to see her so early in the morning! She had never seen Cristina this crazy before! Cristina had never been so attentive to Eugene even when they were in a relationship. 'Women are terrifying!' Theresa thought.

Cristina sat Theresa down next to her. "I thought about what I'd done with him all night. I don't know why I fell in love with him. He was so bad, but I thought he was so handsome back then! I want to kill myself right now."

"Uh, I don't think Eugene's that bad." Theresa knew Cristina was still angry. After all, Eugene had left without telling her, which had been quite a blow.

Cristina was not like other girls. She grew up in a single-parent home and didn't believe in love at all. Eugene had pursued her and Theresa had encouraged her, so she finally accepted him.

Chapter 370

Chapter 370

However, he had left her behind like her mother who had divorced her father and had never come back.

Cristina was a little upset when Theresa said Eugene wasn't that bad. "Come on! He's the worst person in the world! I hate him!"

Theresa had ordered and the waiter had served their food. She took videos of the two children with her phone while they were eating. Leticia doted on the children, but she had also gotten them a couple of classes. Theresa rarely had the chance to take videos of them, so she wanted to take a few for the fans today.

Cristina said, "Leonard and Ben have got a lot of fans lately! We have pictures of them every day in our company's group chat."

The two children were really cute!

Theresa caught a glimpse of a familiar figure accidentally. It was her sister Sarah, who had disappeared to prevent being sent to Calsis's Residence by her father. She had thought Sarah had escaped again. She hadn't expected to see her in Serameton.

A man walked in and Sarah lunged at him and took his arm. "Honey!"

The man was no other than Eugene. He looked at Sarah, who had been following him everywhere. He thought she was so persistent. He shook off her hand. "What!"

Sarah looked at him, not at all as mean as she had been in front of Charlie. "Where did you go last night? Why didn't you call me? I was so scared in the hotel."

Eugene glanced at her and stepped aside to have breakfast, but Sarah took his arm again. Cristina glared at them with fireballs coming out of her eyes. "I'm going to kill both of them!" Theresa almost spewed water out of her mouth. "Sarah seems to have a thing for

"Sarah? She's Sarah?"

Theresa nodded. "Yeah."

"Why is she pestering Eugene?"

"Maybe she thinks your husband is good."

your husband."

Sarah was a practical and arrogant woman. She only liked excellent men. She had liked Charlie before, but Charlie had broken his legs, so she had moved on and reached out to Eugene.

Eugene was considered a young talent in architecture and had helped build some of Serameton's most famous landmarks. He had been abroad for the past few years, but he had been in the media all the time.

Cristina clenched her fists. "Doesn't she have a fiancé? How can she hook up with Eugene?" She didn't retort when Theresa said Eugene was her husband.

Theresa said with a smile, "What about you? Have you forgotten? You're a mother of two in his eyes now." Theresa's words reminded Cristina. She asked in frustration, "I shouldn't have said that to him, should I?" She regretted it. She had only wanted to piss Eugene off, but that had given Sarah a chance!

Eugene sat down and soon noticed Cristina and Theresa. He was surprised when he saw the two children beside them.

Sarah sat next to him and followed his gaze. When she saw Theresa, she panicked and shielded her face with the menu. 'Damn it! Why is Theresa here?'

Chapter 371

Chapter 371

Sarah prayed in silence that Theresa wouldn't see her. She didn't want to be taken home and sent to Charlie! She wouldn't have come back if it weren't for Eugene. She hated Charlie so much. Seeing that Eugene kept looking in Theresa's direction, she asked, "Why are you staring at Theresa?"

Eugene suddenly realized that he had been staring at Cristina. "None of your business."

Sarah looked at him suspiciously. He was now her target and she had to observe his every move. "You two had an affair?"

Eugene and Theresa were both from Serameton University. It was said that they used to be quite close back then.

Sarah suddenly suspected that Eugene was the guy Theresa had had an affair with. Theresa had been so close to Jimmy. She couldn't be pregnant with someone else's baby unless it was a guy as excellent as Eugene.

Eugene turned to look at Sarah. "What did you say?"

Sarah said, "Or why do you keep staring at her? I heard you two are from the same college. I'm telling you, don't get any ideas. She's married to Charlie for money!" She didn't think Theresa was her match, but she was still not confident. She thought Theresa's children were likely to be Eugene's. She must not let Eugene know about this! Eugene thought Sarah was talking a lot of nonsense. He wasn't staring at Theresa but at Cristina! He didn't think he had to explain to Sarah.

Sarah was upset when she found out that Eugene was still staring in that direction. "Eugene, I'm right next to you but you're looking at another woman. I'm so sad!"

"Aren't you going home?" Eugene asked. "Why do you keep following me?" He knew Sarah's home was in Serameton but she kept following him instead of going home.

Sarah tugged at his sleeve sadly. "You're breaking my heart. Did you forget what I told you? My dad forced me to marry an old man in a wheelchair! I'm only in my twenties! I didn't want to light myself on fire, so I ran away." She hid her relationship with Charlie and her real name and pretended to be a poor girl in front of Eugene. Therefore, Eugene didn't know who she really was and didn't mind her following him! Sarah acted like a child in front of Eugene. They talked all the time and seemed very close.

Cristina gritted her teeth. She had the urge to rush over to Sarah and kick her out, but she was Eugene's ex-girlfriend and had to hold back her anger. She asked Theresa, "Do you think they're in a relationship?" Theresa said, "It's possible. Sarah has said she liked someone! I didn't expect it to be your husband." Cristina felt even worse.

Sarah asked Eugene, "When are you free?"

Chapter 372

Chapter 372

"Why?" Eugene looked at her warily, wondering what she was up to.

"Will

you come home with me and pretend to be my boyfriend?"

"I refuse."

"Please!" Sarah shook his arm. "Come back with me and tell my dad you're my boyfriend so he won't push me anymore." She didn't think her dad would say no since Eugene's family had money. It was also part of her plan. Once Eugene agreed to pretend to be her boyfriend, he would never escape her. She was so sure about this plan.

Eugene said, "I'm busy."

"What are you going to do?" Sarah looked at him curiously. "I can wait for you. Are you going out for lunch? Can you take me with you?" Eugene said, "It's not convenient."

"Take me with you! I can pretend to be your girlfriend!" Sarah looked at him expectantly.

Eugene glanced at her and then at Cristina. His attitude suddenly changed. "Okay." It was no big deal for him to take Sarah out to lunch!

After breakfast, Eugene took Sarah out and Theresa and Cristina were outside preparing to leave.

"Eugene," Theresa greeted him.

Sarah was worried that Theresa would come after her, but since Theresa had seen her, she didn't have to hide.

She deliberately took Eugene's arm and walked over.

Cristina gasped. She hadn't expected Eugene to really be interested in Sarah! She thought he had bad taste. Theresa knew Cristina was angry, and she deliberately asked, "Is this your girlfriend?"

Eugene glanced at Cristina and answered, "Hmm."

Sarah leaned in closer to Eugene like she was showing off. Her smug look was so annoying.

"Excuse me," Eugene said and took Sarah away.

Sarah tightened her grip on his arm.

Theresa turned to look at Cristina. To her surprise, Cristina looked very calm. It was just that there were tears in her eyes.

Suddenly, a tear ran down Cristina's cheek. She lowered her head and wiped it off.

Theresa put her arm around her shoulders. "Don't cry. I'm here. I'll introduce a man who's much better than him to you."

"Deal," Cristina whispered sadly. She was usually very strong, but she was very vulnerable at the moment.

Theresa and Cristina took the children to the park and took some videos.

Theresa went home to see her dad and get some stuff. She got a message and address from Charlie when she got back. [Come here for lunch.] [With who?] She knew there must be others.

[Eugene.]

Chapter 373

Chapter 373

Theresa got angry at once. [I'll bring the children.] She wondered if Eugene knew who Sarah really was. She didn't think he knew about Sarah's relationship with Charlie. After hanging up, she asked Cristina, who was waiting for her in the car, "Charlie and Eugene are going to have lunch together. Do you want to join us?" "No." Cristina lowered her head and wiped her eyes. Since Sarah and Eugene were so close, she didn't want to embarrass herself.

"Are you giving up so soon?" Theresa frowned at Cristina.

"What else can I do?" Cristina snorted. "Can I steal him from her?"

What do you think Eugene will do when he finds out about Sarah's relationship with Charlie?"

Eugene was Pat's brother-in-law and had a good relationship with Charlie while Sarah was Charlie's ex-fiancée who had humiliated him.

Cristina's mood changed for the better and she quickly wiped her eyes. "Yes! I almost forgot!"

Theresa smiled. "You're blinded by your feelings."

"I don't have any feelings for him!" Cristina quickly denied it.

Theresa gave the driver the address and asked him to drive them there.

It was an upscale restaurant with a nice ambiance. Eugene and Sarah took a cab there and the waiter opened the door for them at the entrance.

Sarah took Eugene's hand and Eugene glared at her. "Let go." He had just acted in front of Theresa and Cristina. Now it was just the two of them and he didn't want to be so close to her.

Sarah snorted. "Come on, you're taking advantage of me, okay?" However, she let go of his hand and followed him carefully so as not to anger him.

They were about to enter when they saw Charlie in a wheelchair, Jonathan beside him, and the manager of the restaurant.

Eugene was about to walk over when Sarah stopped and ran to the corner quickly.

Eugene followed her in confusion. Looking at her pale face, he asked, "What are you doing?"

Sarah said, "Uh... I'm not feeling well. I want to go back to the hotel."

"You're not feeling well? Do you need to go to the hospital?" Eugene asked with concern.

Sarah said, "Don't bother. Just go and have lunch with them."

"It's okay. I'll tell Charlie." Eugene didn't want to leave a sick girl behind.

Sarah, however, refused. "I'm fine. I'm... I'm just having my period. I want to go back to rest."

Eugene froze and said, "Then I'll walk you out." He walked Sarah to the door, called a cab, and helped her get in. Sarah looked at Eugene through the car window and breathed a sigh of relief. She freaked out completely.

Chapter 374

Chapter 374

She hadn't expected Eugene to have lunch with Charlie. Charlie would kill her if he saw her with Eugene. She didn't want to risk her life and had to pass up the opportunity to pretend to be Eugene's girlfriend. She believed that she could get Eugene as long as Charlie stayed out of her way. Charlie and Eugene were talking about work when Theresa and the children arrived at the private room.

Ben went in first and walked up to Charlie. "Daddy."

Eugene looked at the boy, who looked cute and exactly like Charlie, but he was angry and averted his eyes at the thought that his mother was Cristina.

Ben was bold. He walked up to Eugene and stared at him.

Eugene was speechless.

Theresa walked in with Leonard and Charlie immediately pulled out the chair next to him.

However, the next second, Cristina walked in.

Charlie's face darkened. He hadn't expected Cristina to come! He said to Theresa, "You didn't say she was coming."

"I came to see Leonard and Ben," Cristina said as she sat down in a chair far from Charlie.

Charlie breathed a sigh of relief.

Theresa's mouth twitched as she sat down next to him. Charlie had asked Cristina to sit next to him last night. Why was he acting like Cristina was pestering him now?

Ben sat on the other side of Charlie and Leonard sat between Theresa and Cristina so that Cristina was close to Eugene.

Cristina asked Eugene curiously, "Mr. Oneill, where's your girlfriend?" She had expected Eugene to bring Sarah. It was a pity that it didn't happen!

Eugene was speechless. He thought Cristina was up to no good. "Ms. Lagarde, why are you so concerned about my girlfriend?"

"Concerned? No, I'm just curious. We have to talk about something. I'm the only one who can liven things up besides Ben, aren't I?"

Eugene explained, "My girlfriend wasn't feeling well and went back to rest."

"Really? She wasn't feeling well before having lunch with us? But she was fine at the hotel this morning, wasn't she?"

Eugene felt that Cristina was aggressive. He defended Sarah, "She's just a naive girl. Why are you targeting her? She's having her period so she went back to rest."

Cristina's face darkened. She hadn't expected them to be close enough for Eugene to know Sarah's period. She had been curious, but at the moment, she felt sick and regretted coming to this place!

Charlie was afraid that Cristina would cause trouble and affect his relationship with Theresa, but he realized that Cristina had been targeting Eugene since she came in. He had no idea what was going on. Seeing that Cristina was silent, Theresa asked for her, "Mr. Oneill, you and your girlfriend seem very close."

Chapter 375

Chapter 375

Eugene was proud and didn't want to lose face in front of Cristina. "Of course."

Theresa said, "I envy you guys. Alas... You only choose who you like and don't care who she is, but I advise you to be careful. Your girlfriend is not someone you can handle."

Eugene knew about the relationship between Cristina and Theresa and realized that Theresa was defending Cristina. He couldn't help but sneer. Theresa was a little younger than him. He didn't have to listen to her at all. "That's not for you to worry about."

Theresa said firmly, "But I'm in!"

Charlie frowned and handed her a hot towel. "Stop it." He thought Theresa was targeting Eugene because Eugene was Pat's brother-in-law and Rose's uncle, but he didn't want them to argue and had to stop her.

Theresa turned to look at Charlie, wiped her hands with the towel, and put it back on the plate. "I'm not kidding." "I asked Eugene out for work. I don't care what Cristina does, but you can't be as childish as she is." Charlie was actually being sarcastic about Cristina. After all, Theresa was the most important to him!

Cristina glared at Charlie.

Theresa knew Charlie was defending Eugene. "Can't I talk to your guest?"

"You can talk about something other than his girlfriend." Charlie didn't think Theresa would say bad things about Eugene's girlfriend for no reason.

Theresa knew what Charlie was worried about. In fact, she wouldn't interfere if it was someone else. She asked Charlie, "Aren't you curious about who Mr. Oneill's girlfriend is?" "I'm not interested," Charlie replied casually.

Eugene asked Theresa, "Do you know my girlfriend?" He was curious as to why Theresa was so firm.

Jonathan also looked at Theresa curiously. Theresa had been friendly to everyone. He wondered why she knew Eugene's girlfriend and sounded like she had a grudge against the girl. Theresa said, "Charlie, you know her better than I do."

Charlie looked at Theresa in confusion.

Jonathan asked, "Who is it?" He had a suspicion, but he couldn't believe it.

However, Theresa's answer proved it. "Sarah Cameron."

Charlie's face darkened and Jonathan's mouth twitched. The temperature in the private room suddenly dropped.

Jonathan asked Eugene, "Mr. Oneill, are you really in a relationship with Sarah?"

Eugene looked at Jonathan, confused.

Jonathan explained, "Sarah is Mr. Calsis' ex-fiancée. She dumped him and ran away because he broke his legs." Eugene remembered the girl who had been following him and asked Theresa, "Is she really Sarah?"

Chapter 376

Chapter 376

"She's also my sister," Theresa said, "and I didn't say hello to her this morning because we weren't on good terms. She ran away so I married Charlie in her place. Are you satisfied?"

Eugene said to Charlie, "Mr. Calsis, I didn't know. She didn't tell me her real name. She only said her father forced her to marry an old man with broken legs..." Suddenly, he realized Charlie was in a wheelchair. He hadn't expected things to turn out this way. He could only explain, "Actually, I don't have any relationship with her. She didn't tell me who she was. I just thought she was pathetic so I took her with me. She's not my girlfriend."

Theresa was speechless.

Cristina looked at Eugene and sneered. "How can you lie to Charlie to prevent being punished?"

Eugene glanced at her and said seriously, "Charlie and I have known each other for a long time. I didn't have to lie to him, but I had to explain to him. How could I be interested in a woman who had hurt him?" Charlie just drank water in silence. He knew Sarah was back, but he hadn't expected her to come back with Eugene. He couldn't believe she was trying to hook up with Eugene.

Cristina sneered. "Yeah, right, she took your arm and talked to you this morning but you don't have any relationship!"

Eugene was speechless. He had thought Cristina hadn't looked at him this morning. It seemed that she had been concerned about him. He said with a smile, "Ms. Lagarde, you're so attentive, but I'd dump her even if we were in a relationship now that I know who she is."

Cristina sipped some water from her glass and thought Theresa was right. She was smug and happy when Eugene said he would dump Sarah! She felt much better. She came here to break them up but Eugene said they weren't in a relationship! He must have deliberately lied to her because she said she was the mother of the children.

Theresa looked at Cristina and then at Eugene. She thought they were both drama queens, but it seemed that Cristina was no longer angry.

Halfway through the meal, Eugene went to the bathroom and Cristina followed him out.

Charlie watched them walk out and then looked over at Theresa who was eating lettuce. "Is it good?"

"Yeah." Theresa gave him a look. "Why are you looking at me like that?" Not only Charlie but also Leonard and Ben were looking at her. She had goosebumps in front of these three identical faces.

Charlie asked, "Didn't you go to breakfast with a friend? Why were you with Cristina?"

"I ran into her by chance," Theresa replied casually.

Charlie snorted. "But you saw Sarah together this morning."

Theresa had to change herself. "Well, we had breakfast together. She's the friend."

Charlie just stared at her seriously without saying anything.

Chapter 377

Chapter 377

Under his questioning gaze, Theresa couldn't help but hold her breath. She and Charlie had been together for a long time, but she was still a little scared when he looked at her in silence as if he would know her secrets at any moment. "Why are you looking at me like that? Cristina missed the children and we went to the park together. Is something wrong?"

Charlie stared at Theresa and felt she was hiding something. "Theresa, is there something you're not telling me?" He didn't know what it was and he didn't think she had to lie to him, but something told him something was wrong.

Theresa pursed her lips and became serious. "Yes."

"What is it? Tell me."

Theresa whispered, "I can't."

"Say it." Charlie felt irritated. Theresa was there for him and he knew almost everything about her, but he always felt he couldn't see through her.

Theresa said, "You're definitely going to be mad. You have to promise me you won't be mad."

Charlie said, "Okay."

Theresa lowered her head, thought about it, and looked up at him. "I'm in love with Cristina. Please do us a favor."

Charlie was speechless. "What's wrong with you?"

"I'm serious." Theresa shook his hand. "Promise me, okay?"

"Shut up." Charlie felt sick and regretted asking her.

Theresa saw his face darken and continued, "You asked me and you said you wouldn't be mad..."

Charlie grabbed her hand. "Okay, okay, let's eat." He didn't want to ask any more questions.

Theresa breathed a sigh of relief and started peeling shrimp for Leonard.

Charlie looked at her coldly and asked, "Why are you peeling shrimp for him again? Can't he do it himself?"

Theresa asked, "Can't I help him?" It was normal for her to take care of her own son.

Charlie said coldly, "You've never peeled shrimp for me. I want it too."

Theresa looked at him skeptically. "Can't you do it yourself?" He had just questioned her but now he was asking her to peel shrimp for him. He was being unreasonable. Charlie said reluctantly, "Well, I know he's more important than me."

Ben heard their conversation and handed Charlie the shrimp he had peeled. "Daddy."

Charlie was shocked.

Theresa smiled at him. "Wow, Mr. Calsis, turns out you're the most childish here. Ben is more mature than you. He gave you the shrimp he peeled."

Embarrassed, Charlie put on a pair of gloves and started peeling shrimp.

Ben thought it was for him. He opened his mouth and stared at Charle expectantly.

Chapter 378

Chapter 378

However, Charlie gave the shrimp to Theresa instead of Ben. "Here."

Ben was speechless.

"I'll do it myself. Give it to Ben!" Theresa was not as spoiled as Charlie. She could take care of herself.

Ben stared eagerly at the shrimp.

Charlie said, "Ladies first."

Theresa gave him a look and reached for the shrimp.

Instead of giving it to her, Charlie said, "Open your mouth."

Theresa wasn't used to it, but to lighten the mood, she had to eat it.

Beside her, Leonard snorted, put on a pair of gloves, peeled a shrimp, and handed it to her. "Here."

Theresa was surprised. Compared to Ben, Leonard was lazy and rarely did this sort of thing himself, but he peeled her shrimp today. "Thanks, baby."

Leonard said, "You can't eat food from other people."

"Other people?" Theresa looked at him in confusion. "Is he talking about Charlie?"

Leonard didn't say anything and continued to peel shrimp.

Under Ben's expectant gaze, Charlie peeled another shrimp and handed it to Theresa, but Leonard grabbed it, put it in his mouth, and continued peeling shrimp for Theresa.

Charlie finally realized that Leonard was targeting him. He asked Theresa, "He's saying you can't eat food from me, right?" Theresa cleared her throat. "Maybe."

It was not Leonard's fault. Charlie never cared for him and often scolded him, after all.

"Good!" Charlie sneered. "I'll let someone else take care of them as of today."

"Why?" Theresa asked.

"You're my wife. You have other things to do. The nanny will take care of them."

Theresa smiled at Charlie. "Don't bother. I can take care of them. I have plenty of time anyway." She wouldn't stay with the Calsis family if it weren't for her children!

Charlie said, "Then you can stay with me."

"I refuse." Theresa only wanted to be with her children.

"Why? I look just like them."

Theresa was speechless. "You're not the same."

Before Theresa could finish, Leonard said to Charlie, "If you bully my mommy, I'll tell her to dump you and find us a new daddy."

Leonard hadn't spoken to Charlie in a long time! He felt Charlie didn't love him at all and was always mean to him! Most importantly, Charlie had kicked Theresa out. He hated Charlie so much! If it weren't for Theresa, he wouldn't have stayed with the Calsis family!

Charlie shouted, "What did you say? Jonathan!"

Jonathan was reading a file on his phone. He immediately stood up and said, "Yes, sir."

"Come here and teach this brat a lesson. I'm pissed off."

Chapter 379

Chapter 379

'How dare this brat ask Theresa to find him a new daddy? Since he's so unhappy with me, he doesn't have to be my son anymore. Charlie was furious.

Jonathan was speechless. "Sir, he's just a child."

"Then take him away! I don't want to see him."

Just as Charlie finished, Leonard stood up and grabbed Theresa's hand. "Mommy, let's go."

Charlie was speechless. "She's my wife. She's not going with you." He gave Theresa a warning look.

"She's not your wife! She's my mommy." Leonard gave Charlie a disgusted look and pulled Theresa out. He never wanted to talk to Charlie again.

Theresa had almost finished eating and walked out with him, ignoring Charlie's warning look.

Charlie watched them and felt that he had been abandoned once again. Theresa had once abandoned him when her father came looking for her. He turned his head and saw Ben looking at Leonard and Theresa with wide eyes.

Ben wanted to follow them out, but he found Charlie staring at him. 'Will Daddy be mad if I leave?'

Jonathan suggested, "Let's go out too."

Eugene and Cristina had almost finished eating before they went out.

Ben got out of his chair with a sigh of relief.

Jonathan pushed Charlie's wheelchair out of the room and saw Theresa and Leonard standing in the hallway from a distance. They were both wearing ginger sweaters, which was pleasing to the eye.

Charlie noticed that Theresa didn't even look at him. He asked Jonathan unhappily, "Didn't Theresa come back for me? Why do I think she came back for Leonard?" He had believed Rose's words, but now he realized Theresa was really good to Leonard!

Jonathan's mouth twitched. "You and Mrs. Calsis are getting along well, aren't you?" He was surprised that Charlie cared about it. Love was the least important thing in human relationships for adults. After all, lovers just needed to be comfortable together.

Charlie didn't say anything. He thought something was wrong with him. He didn't know why he had to go through all the trouble of proving that Theresa liked him! He was happy if she liked him and he was annoyed if she didn't. "Call Roderick and have him come to my house." He wanted Roderick to examine him carefully to see if there was anything wrong with him. He wanted to know if he was so needy because Sarah had hurt him.

Jonathan said, "Yes, sir."

Before Jonathan could take out his phone, Charlie said, "Forget it. Call someone else." He hated it when Roderick and Theresa met because her smiling face would hurt his eyes. Jonathan nodded. "Yes, sir."

As they talked, Ben ran up to Theresa and wrapped his arms around her legs. "Mommy."

Chapter 380

Chapter 380

Theresa looked at him. "Ben, what's wrong?"

Ben pursed his lips and looked at her worriedly.

Theresa sent a message to Cristina and squatted down. "What's wrong, baby?"

Ben turned to look at Charlie and then at Theresa. "Are you going to abandon me?" He took care of Charlie all the time and rarely made a scene and was not as possessive of Theresa as Leonard was. However, when Theresa took Leonard out, he was really afraid that Theresa would abandon him! He was afraid Mommy would leave him with Daddy and take Leonard away! He loved Daddy and didn't want to cause trouble for Mommy, but he would be sad if Mommy abandoned him.

Theresa looked into Ben's worried eyes and was surprised he thought that way. She did care more about Leonard who had recently fallen ill. She picked Ben up. "Nonsense. I love you."

Leonard asked, "Don't you love me?"

Theresa looked at the two children. "I love you both!" She noticed that Leonard was just as jealous as Charlie. Soon Charlie and Jonathan came over.

Jonathan asked, "Aren't Ms. Lagarde and Mr. Oneill back yet?"

They had been in the bathroom for a long time.

Theresa was speechless, wondering if they were dating in the bathroom. Just then, she got a message from

Cristina. [I'll be right out!]

Soon Cristina came running and Eugene followed her slowly.

Jonathan said to them, "We're going back. Ms. Lagarde, we'll give you a ride." Cristina had been showing up almost every day lately and he was used to it.

Cristina said, "Thanks, but I have something to do." She touched her nose.

Jonathan turned to look at Eugene. "Mr. Oneill?"

"I'm going back to the hotel." Eugene had to go back to deal with Sarah. He was very annoyed. It wasn't Sarah's fault, but he was angry at the thought that he had been fooled by her. Theresa said, "Then we're leaving."

Cristina nodded.

They walked out of the restaurant and the Calsis family's driver was waiting at the door.

Theresa would go back with Charlie. She had gone out early this morning and hadn't given him his acupuncture yet.

Charlie had been focusing on his legs lately and rarely went to the office. He had been working at home and spending a lot of time walking every day since he found out he could stand up.

The two children got in the car and Theresa said to Cristina, "See you."

Cristina said, "Hmm. I'll take a cab."

"Hmm."

When Charlie and Theresa left, Cristina realized that Eugene had been staring at her. "Why are you staring at me?"

"You like Charlie very much, don't you?" Eugene asked.

Cristina sneered and said deliberately, "None of your business! Charlie is a nice guy and the father of my sons. Of course I like him."

"You and Theresa are good friends. How can you like the same man?"

"But we're pretty close. You've seen it."

Chapter 381

Chapter 381

Cristina gave Eugene a smug look, called a cab, and got in quickly.

Eugene stared after the cab. He had wanted to use Sarah to fight back against Cristina, but he had made a fool of himself. Cristina had just laughed at him in front of the bathroom. He thought Theresa's relationship with Cristina was weird. He didn't think they would like the same man. Besides, if it were true, they couldn't possibly get along that well.

Theresa and Charlie returned home with the children. The children went to their room for naps and Theresa gave Charlie his acupuncture. "Done." Charlie said, "Thanks."

Theresa looked at him in surprise. "You're welcome." She turned her head and gathered her things.

Charlie watched her back. She was very thin and the sweater was too big on her.

After gathering her things, Theresa sat down and took some papers out of her pocket.

Charlie asked, "What are these?"

Theresa flipped through one of the papers. "They're from my dad's company. I'm going to study them." She thought the Cameron family's problem was the company. She couldn't expect Charlie to let go or help the Cameron family. She had to think of a way to solve it.

Theresa read those papers for over two hours. Before she knew it, Charlie sat down next to her and hugged her.

Surrounded by his warm breath, Theresa asked, "Aren't you going to take a nap?"

Charlie said, "I can't sleep without you."

"Only children need to be put to bed," Theresa said with a smile. "Even Leonard and Ben don't need it."

Charlie said, "You can't be that nice to the two brats. We'll have another child."

"What?" Theresa sneered. "What's wrong with you?" She knew Charlie was joking, but she was still speechless.

Leonard and Ben were his sons! They wouldn't like him if he kept this up.

Seeing Theresa so focused on the papers, Charlie said, "Sleep with me and I'll tell Cameron's Group. You don't have to read them. It's bad for your eyes."

you what's wrong with

"It's okay. I'm not tired." Theresa refused, but she felt his grip tighten around her waist. She knew he was unhappy! "Can't you sleep alone?"

Charlie stared at her without saying anything as if to say, "Yeah, I can't sleep without you."

"Okay, let's go." Theresa helped him up with a sigh.

Charlie could walk a little bit if someone helped him.

Theresa closed her eyes in bed. She was really tired of reading those papers.

Suddenly, Charlie's phone rang on the coffee table.

Theresa got out of bed, fetched his phone, and glanced at the screen. "Strange number."

Chapter 382

Chapter 382

Charlie took his phone and answered it. "Hello."

"Charlie!" yelled Sarah on the other end of the line, "I'm right in front of your house. Come out!"

On hearing her voice, Charlie hung up the phone.

Theresa asked, "Who was that?"

"Your sister," Charlie said impatiently. Sarah's call put him in a bad mood.

Theresa frowned.

Sarah was at the door of Calsis's Residence. She had stayed away from this place, but today she came because she was so angry!

Leticia returned and saw Sarah asking the security guard to let her in. She asked the driver to stop the car, rolled down the window, and asked coldly, "What are you doing?"

Sarah turned to look at Leticia. "Mrs. Calsis."

Leticia hadn't expected Sarah to come. "Get in the car."

Sarah got into the car and went into Calsis's Residence with Leticia.

In the living room, Leticia sat down and asked Sarah unpleasantly, "Ms. Cameron, what brought you here?" She was angry when she thought of what had happened, but since Theresa had married Charlie, she couldn't get back at Sarah. It was just that she still hated her.

Sarah said, "I'm here to see Charlie. Tell him to get out here!"

Leticia said, "Who do you think you are? You don't order my son around!" Sarah must get Charlie's permission if she wanted to see him.

Sarah sneered. "Mrs. Calsis, your son is not a child. I know the Calsis family is powerful, but so what? He's married now, but he's still pestering me. What does he want?"

Leticia's eyes narrowed in confusion. Was Charlie still pestering Sarah? She had told him to stop thinking about Sarah and that he had Theresa now! "My son won't pester you!"

"Humph," Sarah said, "he won't pester me. He's just gone behind your back. If he keeps this up, I'll expose him on the Internet!" Powerful families like the Calsis family cared about public opinion. It wouldn't do Charlie any good if she exposed him on the Internet.

Leticia looked at Sarah. "What did he do?"

"Humph, he knows that." Sarah was furious. Eugene had been gentle with her this morning, but he had been cold to her this afternoon at the hotel. He had found out who she was and said he never wanted to see her again. She was sure that it was because of Charlie. She thought it was shameless of him to bully her like that!

"What am I supposed to know?" Charlie came out in his wheelchair with Theresa. He had come downstairs when Brenda said that Sarah had come in. He hadn't expected Sarah to dare to come to his house! Sarah stood up and questioned him, "Did you say something bad about me to Eugene?"

Chapter 383

Chapter 383

Theresa looked at Sarah, surprised that she had come for this. She thought Sarah was really bold.

Charlie just stared at Sarah in silence, wondering where she got the nerve to question him.

Sarah said, "Charlie, you're a married man. It's shameless of you to pester me. Listen, you must tell Eugene that I have nothing to do with you, or I won't let you go."

Charlie raised his eyebrows slightly. "You won't let me go?" He wondered what Sarah would do to him.

Leticia was speechless, regretting letting Charlie get engaged to such a woman.

Sarah threatened, "I'll expose what you did on the Internet. You're forcing me to marry you! No way! I'll never marry you!"

Theresa almost freaked out. Honestly, she didn't know why Sarah thought Charlie liked her. She had to say to Sarah, "You misunderstood. I told Eugene who you were. We had lunch together." She didn't want to know what would happen to Sarah if she continued to provoke Charlie. She just didn't want Charlie to take his anger out on her. He was scary when he was angry, after all.

Sarah looked at Theresa skeptically. "Really?" She had thought that it was Charlie.

Theresa replied, "Yes, Charlie didn't know you were together." She and Cristina were the only ones who had seen Sarah and Eugene this morning.

Sarah asked, "Why did you do that?" She suddenly remembered her suspicion that Theresa's children were Eugene's. 'Did she do that because she hates me being with Eugene? Damn it! She's married to Charlie. How could she steal Eugene from me?'

Theresa said, "No reason. Just saying. You don't have to blame Charlie. He's innocent." She glanced at Charlie. It had nothing to do with her, but sometimes she felt bad for him. He had broken his legs and his ex-fiancée despised him.

Sarah said, "Theresa, you're really something. Don't think I don't know what you're up to."

"What do you think I'm up to?" Theresa was curious about what Sarah would say. She just wanted to defend Charlie and didn't want Sarah to be with Eugene. Sarah didn't deserve it!

Sarah looked at Theresa. She wanted to tell them about Theresa's relationship with Eugene, but on second thought, Charlie would kick Theresa out, and then Theresa would go to Eugene. She must let Theresa stay with

Charlie in her place. "Forget it. You know that. Since it was not Charlie, I'm leaving!" She stood up and prepared to leave.

"Wait." Charlie, who had been sitting in silence, finally spoke up.

Sarah asked, "What?"

Chapter 384

Chapter 384

"You can't just come and go as you like." Charlie looked at her coldly. He had just seen what attitude she had toward Leticia.

Sarah looked at him. "So what?"

"Apologize."

Sarah sneered. "You and your wife encouraged Eugene to break up with me! Why should I apologize?" She was furious. She and Eugene hadn't been together, but she had thought it was only a matter of time! She hadn't expected Eugene to leave her because she was Charlie's ex-fiancée. She had no relationship with Charlie now! She was free to have a relationship with someone else!

Charlie said, "You're not going out today if you don't apologize."

Sarah was pissed off. She didn't want to stay! She glanced at Leticia and said reluctantly, "I'm sorry. I shouldn't have yelled at you."

"No need," Leticia said. "Don't show up at our house again." Charlie's broken legs had been quite a blow to her. She had been so nice to Sarah before, but instead of comforting her, Sarah had pissed her off. Sarah said, "I don't want to, but Charlie..." She glanced at Charlie. "He's been pestering me since he married.

Theresa."

"I pestered you?" Charlie's mouth twitched.

"You have people watching me. It's affecting my life! I can't even get a job now! Aren't you ashamed to get a woman in that way?"

Charlie said, "It's all in your head. I have nothing to do with you, and I'll never force you to marry me! I can say that in front of Eugene. It's none of my business whether he likes you or not."

"I just want you to stop pestering me." Sarah was a little surprised that Charlie let her go so easily. It meant she was free!

Charlie said, "Don't worry. I won't marry you even if you get on your knees and beg me one day."

"Remember your words." Sarah sneered. She would never get down on her knees and beg him! She had liked

Charlie very much and wanted to marry him and learned all sorts of skills to impress him, but he hadn't even looked at her. Since he had broken his legs, she wouldn't be with him! She didn't want to spend her life taking care of a disabled man!

Charlie said, "I will."

"Can you get that in writing?" asked Sarah. "You have to write that I have nothing to do with you and that you won't pester me."

Theresa looked at Sarah with wide eyes.

Actually, Sarah didn't think Charlie would do as she said, but she was afraid that he would go back on his word and keep pestering her. He hadn't told Eugene who she was, but she was afraid that he would get jealous again. She wanted to get rid of him once and for all!

#Chapter 385

Chapter 385

Chapter 385

Brenda was standing next to Leticia. She said coldly to Sarah, "Mr. Calsis said he wouldn't pester you. How dare you ask him to get that in writing?"

Sarah asked rhetorically, "How do I know if he's telling the truth or not?" She didn't think she had done anything wrong. She needed some real evidence.

Charlie sneered at Sarah. "Okay." He looked calm as if it wasn't a big deal. He glanced at Jonathan, and Jonathan quickly fetched two agreements that said Charlie had called off his engagement to Sarah and would never pester her. He picked up a pen and signed them directly.

Leticia tried to stop him. "Charlie..." It was too humiliating for them to write an agreement to Sarah. She didn't think Charlie had to do that. Sarah didn't deserve it.

However, Charlie ignored Leticia, handed the agreements to Sarah, and said, "Check them yourself and sign them."

They each took a copy.

Sarah walked over and made sure they said Charlie would never pester her. She looked at him in surprise. "You agreed?"

"I said I'm not interested in pestering you."

Sarah breathed a sigh of relief silently. She had been hiding all these years and had never told anyone who she really was for fear that they would know she was Charlie's fiancée. Everyone knew that she had dumped Charlie and run away. She couldn't even find a job in Serameton. With this agreement, she could not only go back to the Cameron family but also fall in love and work like a normal person.

She picked up a pen, signed them quickly, and looked at Charlie with delight. "I'm sorry. You're a nice guy. I don't deserve you. My sister is gentle and beautiful. You're a good match. Just forget about me!" With the agreement, she was not so hostile to Charlie anymore.

Charlie said, "Your sister is indeed better than you. Thanks for running away or I wouldn't have married her." Sarah's face darkened. "I'm glad you think so. I wish you every happiness." She didn't mind Charlie taunting her as long as he didn't pester her.

"Get out," Charlie said coldly.

Sarah grabbed the agreement and ran out with a happy smile.

Leticia stared at her back and turned to look at Charlie. "How could you do what she said? It was so humiliating! She's free with the agreement, isn't she?"

"What's wrong with that?" Charlie picked up the agreement and glanced at Sarah's signature with satisfaction. "From now on, I have nothing to do with her."

Leticia said, "You idiot." She didn't understand why Charlie let Sarah off the hook instead of punishing her.

Chapter 386

Chapter 386

Furious, Leticia asked Brenda to help her back to her room.

Jonathan asked Charlie, "Mr. Calsis, is that good?" He also thought Charlie was too lenient with Sarah.

Charlie asked rhetorically, "What's wrong?"

Jonathan was speechless, but he could only say, "Nothing." He couldn't say anything else. He was happy that Charlie had let go of the past. Since Charlie was able to stand up, they didn't have to mind Sarah.

After walking out of Calsis's Residence, Sarah took a cab back to the hotel. Regardless of Eugene, she packed her things and took a cab to Cameron's Residence. With the agreement Charlie had given her, she was thrilled and posted a photo on WhatsApp Moments in the cab. [I'm free.]

She was free! She no longer had to hide as Charlie's fiancée. She had rarely posted anything on WhatsApp Moments for the past two years for fear of exposing her whereabouts. She was finally free!

At the door of Cameron's Residence, Sarah asked someone to take her bags off. Leah came out and saw her."

"Why are you back? Didn't I tell you not to come back?" She was afraid that Johnson was going to send Sarah to Calsis's Residence again.

Sarah took out the agreement. "Look at this!"

Leah took it and Sarah explained, "Charlie said he wouldn't pester me anymore. I'm free. I don't have to worry about him coming after me anymore."

"Really?" Leah was surprised. "He let you go so easily? I don't trust it."

"He said so and signed the agreement. It's useless for him to pester me. Maybe he realized he had treated me badly before and that I would never fall in love with him. By the way, is Dad home?" Sarah had been forced to leave, but she didn't think Johnson would blame her anymore since she now had the agreement. Leah said, "Yes, come in." She had someone get Sarah's bags into the house. Johnson saw Sarah, but he didn't say anything.

Sarah greeted him, "Dad." Johnson wasn't her real father, but she grew up in Calsis's Residence and wasn't really mad at him. The most important thing was that Johnson could give her a decent life.

Johnson averted his eyes and didn't say anything. He had long realized that he couldn't control Sarah and that he couldn't force her to go back to Charlie.

Seeing that Johnson was still angry, Leah quickly walked over to him. "Honey, Sarah's back." "What's she doing back? She left without telling anyone. She didn't think of this place as her home." Leah said with a smile, "You know what? She went to Cameron's Residence and Charlie forgave her." "What?" Johnson looked at Sarah skeptically, not believing she had gone to Cameron's Residence. Leah took out the agreement. "Look, Charlie signed it himself. The Calsis family won't agree even if you force Sarah to marry him. Since Theresa is now with Charlie, we can make up with the Calsis family sooner or later. Don't worry about it too much."

Chapter 387

Chapter 387

She knew Johnson wanted Sarah to marry Charlie because he felt sorry for him. Now that Charlie had forgiven Sarah, there was no need for Johnson to worry.

Johnson glanced at Sarah. He had known the day Sarah left that Theresa's two children were Charlie's. Since Theresa was now with Charlie, he wouldn't be in a hurry to call her back. He would let her handle it on her OWN.

Sarah looked at Johnson. He didn't say he forgave her, but she could tell that he wasn't that angry anymore.

"Dad, I'm sorry for giving you trouble. It's my fault. I'll make it up to you!"

"Whatever." Johnson sighed.

Sarah knew he had forgiven her.

Leah breathed a sigh of relief and went upstairs with Sarah. This agreement solved all of Sarah's problems. Sarah went back to Theresa's old room. She stayed there while Theresa was away and there was nothing Theresa could do about it. She threw herself across the bed. "I was so tired. I was hiding like a fugitive.

Thankfully, Charlie didn't haunt me all the time." She still couldn't believe that Charlie had let her go! Leah asked, "Are you sure Charlie really let you go?"

"He signed the agreement. Did he have to lie to me? I posted it on WhatsApp Moments and everyone knows about it. There's no chance for him to turn back. I'll take two days off and look for a job. I'm finally free." "Where do you want to work?" Leah looked at her curiously. "How about you work at your dad's company?

Theresa is married to Charlie. Cameron's Group will be yours." She only wanted Sarah to inherit everything from the Cameron family.

Sarah asked Leah, "Would Dad be okay with that?"

"Of course!" Leah said. "Theresa is with Charlie. Your dad is not well and needs someone to run the company.

It's a good opportunity. You have to behave yourself. A woman has to earn money so that men will respect her, right?"

Sarah nodded. "Yeah."

It was cold outside. Theresa and Charlie were sitting across the table on the couch, and Theresa was still reading the papers.

Jonathan walked in. "Sir."

Charlie asked, "What is it?"

"Sarah posted the photo of the agreement on WhatsApp Moments. Do you want me to warn her?" He didn't think Sarah should flaunt the agreement Charlie had given her.

Theresa picked up her phone and saw the picture Sarah had posted.

Sarah had rarely posted anything on WhatsApp Moments. Now that she had the agreement from Charlie, she definitely wanted to share it with everyone.

In fact, the story about Charlie and Sarah was absurd.

The Calsis family had a strong presence in Serameton and each of the sons was excellent. As the third son and heir, Charlie was naturally in the spotlight. Everyone was curious to know what kind of girl he would marry. However, in the end, he married the daughter of the Cameron family, as his grandfather had told him to do. The Cameron family was far worse than the Calsis family, but Old Mr. Cameron had a good relationship with Old Mr. Calsis. However, Sarah was not the Cameron family's daughter but an impostor. When she was engaged to Charlie, she almost didn't get a diploma from the local college.

Chapter 388

Chapter 388

Everyone laughed at Charlie for having such a fiancée. Many people were jealous of Sarah, but she was unaffected and bragged about it. People hated her, but no one dared to bully her because they knew she had Old Mr. Calsis behind her. Charlie didn't despise her, but she despised him when he broke his legs. How ridiculous. Now Sarah was back, but Charlie not only didn't punish her but also gave her an agreement and set her free.

Even Charlie's close friends were puzzled.

Jack sent a message to Charlie. [Charlie, how can you let that woman go? I'll deal with her if you want.] He was that Sarah was still so arrogant and flaunted her freedom! It seemed like Charlie had been pushing her all these years.

angry

Charlie replied, [No need.] He had said Sarah would get on her knees and beg him! He didn't care what she did now.

Just then, Theresa's phone rang and she picked it up.

Johnson said, "Sarah's back."

Theresa said, "She's fast."

Johnson asked, "She came back with an agreement. Was it really from Charlie? Did Charlie really let her go?" Theresa looked up at Charlie. Even her father didn't believe it, but Charlie had really done it. Johnson called just to ask if Sarah was lying.

Theresa said, "Yes, the agreement was from Charlie. She's free. Charlie won't pester her anymore. They don't have anything to do with each other anymore."

Johnson was a little embarrassed. "I've been feeling sorry for Old Mr. Calsis. How is he?"

Old Mr. Calsis were the closest to Johnson of the whole Calsis family and had often helped the Cameron family and treated him like a son since Sarah got engaged to Charlie. Johnson was embarrassed about what Sarah had done.

Theresa said, "He's fine."

Old Mr. Calsis was just acting like a child. His health was fine.

Johnson said, "You have to take care of him."

"I know." Theresa would do that. She was close to Old Mr. Calsis too. She hung up the phone and saw Charlie staring at her. "Why are you staring at me?"

Chapter 389

Chapter 389

"What did your dad say?" Charlie guessed that Johnson had heard that he wouldn't pester Sarah and wanted to call Theresa back. He wouldn't allow it! He hated Johnson so much, but Johnson was his father-in-law. How frustrating.

Theresa said, "He asked me if the agreement was true and told me to care more about Grandpa." "Humph," Charlie said, "so he remembers Grandpa! Your family owes Grandpa." Even though he liked Theresa now, he still hated the Cameron family. After all, if it weren't for them, Grandpa wouldn't be like this.

Theresa whispered, "I know."

Charlie was angry, but Theresa's reaction softened his heart. "Forget it. It has nothing to do with you. I'm not blaming anyone. Grandpa used to be really good to your family." If it weren't for Grandpa, Charlie wouldn't have agreed to marry Sarah!

Jonathan walked out quietly to make room for them.

Theresa put down the papers, walked over to Charlie, and sat down next to him.

Charlie was surprised that she took the initiative to approach him. "What are you doing?"

Theresa asked, "Are you tired? How about I give you a massage?"

Charlie refused, "No."

Theresa hadn't expected him to refuse. "Don't you like it when I'm nice to you?"

"I know you want something from me!" He remembered that Theresa had seduced him for Cristinal before. He wouldn't fall for it again! After all, he would be upset in the end.

Theresa said, "Don't get me wrong. I just feel sorry for you and Grandpa. I owe you."

Looking at her guilty expression, Charlie said, "You don't have to. If you really feel sorry for me, you can be nice to me. After all, you can't give me anything but love."

Theresa was speechless. "I'll let Keith come and give you acupuncture tomorrow. I'm useless and can't help you anyway."

Before Theresa stood up, Charlie took her hand and held her in his arms. "Well, well, I know you're the best." He looked down and sniffed Theresa's hair. "Why don't you ask me why I gave Sarah the agreement?" Everyone was confused and his mother was even angry with him, but Theresa didn't ask him. He wondered if she cared about him.

Theresa said with a smile, "I'm not stupid. One day she would get down on her knees and beg you, right?"

Everyone thought Charlie was forgiving, but Theresa knew he was playing an intricate game. She wondered how Sarah would react when she knew Charlie could stand up.

Sarah was a bad student, but she had learned all kinds of skills for Charlie and had been so obedient in front of the Calsis family. She was now so arrogant. She would definitely be stunned when she learned that Charlie could stand up!

Chapter 390

Chapter 390

Charlie said, "You know me."

"I know how vindictive you are." Theresa sighed.

At that moment, the door was thrown open and a man walked in without even knocking.

Theresa looked up and saw Pat at the door.

Pat came over and glared at Theresa in Charlie's arms. "Get out!" In his eyes, Theresa was not Charlie's wife but an insignificant woman, so he had no respect for her. Charlie let go of Theresa. "Go check on the children." He didn't want her to be there while he was talking to Pat because he was afraid that she would hear something bad.

Theresa stood up and walked out. She didn't leave but stopped at the door, curious about what Pat would say.

Angry and helpless, Pat asked Charlie, "Are you crazy? Do you know how angry Mom is? You've let her down."

Charlie asked, "What's wrong with Mom?"

"Did you really give Sarah an agreement? Are you out of your mind? Have you forgotten what she did to you? She ran away and caused Grandpa to be hospitalized! Johnson sent his divorced daughter here. You accepted her and spared the Cameron family for her!" Pat got angry at the thought of the Cameron family. He was stable in front of outsiders, but now he could barely contain his anger.

Charlie said, "I know what to do. It's a private matter. I'll handle it myself." It was his own business how to handle the Cameron family.

Pat said, "You're poisoned with that woman! Will you do whatever she says? If so, I'll have to get rid of her." Theresa had bullied Rose and he had warned her. He hid a lot from Charlie because he didn't want to embarrass him, but Charlie had let the Cameron family go and given Sarah an agreement. It was so humiliating! He was eager to give Charlie a beating to sober him up!

"It had nothing to do with Theresa. I didn't sign the agreement for her."

"Do

you think I'll believe that?" Pat looked at Charlie angrily. "If you keep doing that, I'll call Chandler back!" He knew Charlie only listened to Chandler, who was always away on business trips. Charlie said, "No need."

"Chandler will get rid of that woman! You don't have to defend her! They're sisters! If it weren't for her, you wouldn't have spared Sarah and the Cameron family! They're so ungrateful! They deserve to die!"

Theresa clenched her fists outside the door. Charlie no longer hated her family, but that didn't mean his family had let it go. Based on Pat's words, she could tell how much he wanted her and Cameron's Group to disappear. She knew Pat hated the entire Cameron family!

Chapter 391

Chapter 391

Charlie said to Pat, "You can't have such deep hostility toward Theresa."

"I don't want to, but your mind is not clear. I'll get rid of her for you! I don't want to see her in this house again," Pat said, walking aggressively toward the door. Charlie stood up and stopped him. "Pat."

Pat was furious. "Let go." Suddenly, he felt that something was wrong. He turned his head and looked at Charlie standing in front of him. "You... can stand up?" He was completely stunned and even thought he was hallucinating.

Charlie said, "I'm recovering. I can just barely stand up now." Then he sat back down. "I signed the agreement so Sarah wouldn't pester me anymore. You know what kind of person she is, don't you?"

Pat calmed down, sat down, and stared at Charlie's legs. "How did your legs recover? What did the doctor say?"

Charlie said, "It was Theresa."

Pat narrowed his eyes slightly.

Charlie said, "I kept her around because she was able to cure my legs. If it weren't for her, I'd probably be disabled for the rest of my life." Because of her, he had the hope to get up and confidence in his future Pat didn't say anything.

Charlie said, "So, can you not kick her out?"

Pat replied, "Hmm." He could put up with it until Charlie got better. He didn't think Charlie would necessarily be as enamored with Theresa when he recovered as he was now. He finally knew why Charlie had signed the agreement. He had thought Charlie was really out of his mind.

Outside the door, Theresa didn't want to hear anymore and went to Leonard and Ben's room.

In the evening, the family had dinner together except for Rose.

Leticia asked, "Isn't Rose back yet?"

"She went out with Mr. Watson," Brenda replied. "He's been coming to get her every day lately."

Leticia frowned.

Pat had mixed feelings.

Theresa lowered her head to eat. Rose's relationship with Jimmy had nothing to do with her, but she knew Jimmy would go back to Rose sooner or later and no one could separate them unless Rose gave it up. Her father had objected to her being with Jimmy, but she hadn't listened to him back then.

Just then, Charlie said, "Mom, I want to move out."

Leticia looked at him, "Why?"

"No reason. I just want a quiet environment."

"No. What about the children if you move out?"

"They'll go with me. Theresa will take care of them."

"I'm worried about them."

Chapter 392

Chapter 392

Theresa was good to the children, but Leticia didn't want them to move out with her. She thought Theresa was not their real mother and didn't care about them in private. Besides, Pat didn't live with her. If Charlie moved out, she would be bored at home.

Pat said to Charlie, "I'll have Rose move back home. She won't bother you anymore." He knew Charlie wanted to move out because he hated Jimmy but couldn't force Rose to break up with him.

Pat couldn't force Theresa to break up with Charlie either. In a way, the two brothers were a lot alike.

Charlie glanced at Pat. "Don't take it personally."

Pat said, "Save it! Don't think I don't know what you're thinking." He knew Charlie was defending Theresa. Theresa felt Pat glare at her. She was speechless.

Since Charlie was about to stand up, Leticia was very kind to Theresa tonight. After all, there was nothing more pleasing than for Charlie to be able to stand up. "Tess, try this." She put some food on Theresa's plate. "Thanks, mom." Theresa continued to eat.

Cristina took a nap and a shower in the afternoon. She was about to order a take-out when her phone rang. She picked it up and saw it was Eugene calling. After hesitating for a moment, she answered it. She was excited, but she couldn't resist saying aggressively, "Why are you calling me, Mr. Oneill?"

"Come out to dinner."

"Why should I?" Cristina sneered. She had no idea why Eugene was inviting her to dinner.

Eugene said, "You'll be sorry if you don't come." He hung up the phone quickly.

Soon Cristina received the address. She thought about it and changed her clothes and went out.

Cristina walked into the restaurant and saw Eugene sitting alone by the window with a glass of water on the table. She hated the fact that the man who had broken her heart was now sitting there like a noble prince. She walked over, sat down, and asked coldly, "What do you want?"

Eugene looked at Cristina. "Are Charlie's children yours?"

Cristina's heart jolted, but she calmed herself down and sneered. "Why? Do you want Charlie to tell you in person?"

Eugene said, "I found out that you've been working all these years and have never taken any time off. How could you have children?"

Cristina hadn't expected him to look into it. Even Charlie hadn't done that.

1

Chapter 393

Chapter 393

She said, "None of your business!"

Eugene sneered. "The two children aren't yours. You're lying!" He had been so angry since he returned to the hotel that he had investigated it. The result surprised him. Cristina couldn't be the mother of the two children.

While Cristina was trying to make an excuse, she heard Eugene ask, "The children are Theresa's, right?"

Cristina said, "They're mine." She knew that Eugene was close to Charlie. She couldn't let him know about this!

Eugene sneered. "Liar. I'll ask Charlie. He'll be happy to look into it." Then he took out his phone.

Cristina stopped him. "Don't you dare!"

"Why?" Eugene ignored her.

Cristina stood up angrily and reached for his phone. "What's wrong with you? What does it have to do with you?"

Eugene looked at her and put the phone down. "So you're admitting the children aren't yours?"

"Yeah, so what?" Cristina was angry. She had wanted to piss him off, but she hadn't expected him to look into it. No matter what, she couldn't let him talk to Charlie about it.

Eugene asked, "Why did you lie to me?" He had been frustrated since he learned that the children were Cristina and Charlie's. However, the truth surprised him.

Cristina said, "Because you deserve it! You're a liar. You abandoned me! I wish I'd gotten married and had children before you came back."

Eugene's lips curled into a smile. He touched her nose and asked gently, "Why do you hate me so much? Do you still like me?"

Cristina sneered. "I like you? Who do you think you are? Why should I like you? I'll never be fooled by men. again." She wouldn't make the same mistake.

"But I still like you," Eugene said gently.

Cristina froze and her nose twitched.

Eugene took her into his arms. "Shall we start over?"

"In your dreams." Cristina pushed him away hard. "What do you think I am? You can't just tell me when to go and when to stay! You're dead in my mind. You said you'd never leave me unless you died. Why did you come back since you're dead?"

"Cristina." Eugene looked at her.

Cristina stood up and strode out of the restaurant. She felt that Eugene had never taken her seriously. He had abandoned her but now he was asking her to come back to him! How ridiculous! Eugene followed her out.

Cristina was dragged back when she was about to cross the street.

Eugene took her into his arms. "Are you crazy? How could you run a red light?"

Cristina's ears rang. She turned her head and saw the red light and that everyone was standing still. She struggled in his arms. "Let go."

Eugene let go of her but took her hand, trying to drag her back to the restaurant.

Cristina yelled behind him, "Are you out of your mind? Let go of me."

Chapter 394

Chapter 394

Cristina said, "Why should I eat with you?"

Eugene smiled. "I'm afraid I'll tell Charlie about what you and Theresa did." He didn't know why, but he knew that neither Cristina nor Theresa wanted Charlie to know the truth.

Cristina looked at him. "How dare you threaten me with this? Shame on you!"

"You pissed me off with this first." If Cristina hadn't irritated him with this, he probably wouldn't have investigated it.

Cristina could only go back to the restaurant reluctantly.

Theresa was having dinner with Charlie when she received a WhatsApp message. She picked up her phone and saw that it was from Cristina. [Eugene knows about Leonard and Ben and says he'll talk to Charlie about it. What do we do?]

Theresa froze.

Seeing that she was staring at her phone, Charlie asked, "What are you looking at?"

Theresa quickly put her phone down. "Nothing."

Charlie was skeptical. "Who sent you the message? Show me."

"I refuse." Theresa hid her phone. "It's my privacy."

Charlie said, "I don't mind showing you my privacy."

"But I do."

Charlie glared at Theresa, but he couldn't force her and had to put up with it.

After dinner, Theresa went outside and messaged Cristina. [How did he know?]

[He investigated it and threatened me with it. What do I do?]

[What did he ask you to do?] Theresa hadn't expected Eugene to be so mean.

[He asked me to have dinner with him.]

Theresa's mouth twitched. [Just do as he says.]

Cristina was speechless. [Don't you love me anymore?]

[Sorry I'll deal with it when I'm done with the company.] Theresa just wanted to deal with the company and take the children away as soon as possible.

[Hurry I don't know how long I'll stall him.]

[Hmm.]

Charlie was standing by the window looking out when Theresa returned to the room. Since his legs were broken, he had been confined to a wheelchair and rarely looked out the window. Now he felt different. When he heard Theresa close the door, he turned his head. "You're back."

Theresa nodded. "Hmm." She walked up to Charlie. "What are you looking at?"

It was dark and there was nothing but bright lights in the yard.

Charlie said, "The view."

Theresa looked up at his face with a smile. Obviously, he was in a good mood. "Enjoy. I'm going to take a shower."

Charlie pulled her back. "Stay with me."

Chapter 395

Chapter 395

Theresa was held in Charlie's arms. He often held her when they were alone. The wind outside was cold while his arms were warm. She felt like she was dreaming. She caught a glimpse of the reflection of Charlie's handsome face on the glass window and stared at it for a long time.

Charlie asked with a smile, "Why are you staring at me? Do you suddenly find me handsome?"

She chuckled. "Come on. Don't flatter yourself!"

Charlie snorted. "You're lying!"

Theresa sensed that Charlie had become much more confident lately. "Let go of me. I really have to go take a shower. I'm going to my dad's office tomorrow."

Charlie said, "Kiss me and I'll let you go."

"Didn't you say you didn't need me?" She offered to give him a massage during the day but he refused.

Now she wouldn't kiss him!

Charlie said, "I regret that."

Theresa thought about it, lifted her head, and kissed him on the cheek. She didn't know how long she could stay with him. Since she had to leave sooner or later, she wanted to cherish the moment so that she would smile when she thought of him in the future.

Theresa went into the bathroom to wash her face and take a bath. She and Charlie had been married for some time. She felt like she was dreaming every day, but she still remembered why she had married him. Even though Charlie was good to her now, she hadn't forgotten what she was supposed to do.

Theresa got up early the next day. She came downstairs and found Eugene alone in the dining room drinking coffee.

Eugene greeted her when he saw her, "Good morning."

Theresa remembered what Cristina had told her last night. She sat down across from Eugene and stared at him.

Eugene asked, "Why are you looking at me like that?"

Theresa smiled. "I just want to know what scumbag looks like."

Eugene's mouth twitched. "Why do you have to be so mean? I didn't offend you."

"Cristina rejected you and I persuaded her to accept you, but what did you do to her?" Theresa regretted being so naive and having encouraged Cristina to believe in love. She hadn't wanted to break Cristina's heart. It turned out that men were all the same.

Eugene frowned and didn't say anything.

Theresa sighed. "Forget it. It's between you and Cristina. Don't go too far."

Eugene said as Theresa was about to stand up, "I want to marry Cristina."

"What?" Theresa turned to look at him.

Eugene put down his glass. "I want to marry her."

Chapter 396

Chapter 396

"Do you think she'll say yes?" Theresa sneered. She knew Cristina had never forgotten Eugene, but he had. broken her heart and she wouldn't agree to marry him so easily.

Eugene said, "I don't know, so I was hoping you could help me."

"I won't help you," Theresa refused outright.

"Aren't we friends?"

"I'm Cristina's friend, not yours." Theresa gave Eugene a look. They were from the same university and he and Cristina knew each other because of her, but she was totally on Cristina's side and didn't want to talk. to him!

Eugene asked, "Why did you say your children were Cristina's?"

Theresa frowned. "Mr. Oneill, don't threaten me with this. I won't betray my friend."

Eugene said, "You know Cristina likes me. I just want to be with her. You don't have to do anything except speak up for me. What do you think?"

"Then why did you leave her? I don't understand."

Eugene lowered his eyes. Something had happened to his family back then.

"Uncle." At that moment, Rose came downstairs, approached Eugene, and sat down beside him. She glanced at Eugene and then at Theresa across the table. "Uncle, why are you here so early? What were you talking about?" She looked at Theresa suspiciously.

Eugene looked at her. "Nothing. Why are you up so early?"

"I couldn't sleep."

Theresa stood up and went to the kitchen.

Rose stared after her and said to Eugene, "Stay away from her and don't talk to her. She's up to no good."

Eugene asked Rose, "What happened to you?"

Rose froze, "What do you mean?"

"You never talk behind people's backs." Rose had always been obedient and polite. Eugene was surprised at her change.

Rose said, "She's not a bad woman. She bullies me."

"Why hasn't your husband been here lately? Ask him out to lunch."

"Okay" At the mention of Jimmy, Rose had a delighted and adoring look in her eyes. "You didn't attend my wedding. I have long wanted to introduce him to you. Jimmy is a nice guy!"

Eugene smiled. People in love were silly.

Rose messaged Jimmy and asked him out to lunch.

Hearing that Rose's uncle would be there, Jimmy made a reservation and offered to pay.

Rose said to Eugene, "Jimmy said he'd pay

Eugene nodded. "Okay"

Jimmy arrived at the restaurant early. He hadn't been getting along with Charlie and Pat lately and had no chance to go back to the office. He could only pin his hopes on Rose's uncle Maybe he would have a chance to go back if he could impress him! With this in mind, he was excited.

Soon Rose and Eugene arrived.

"Jimmy," Rose came over, sat down beside Jimmy, and said, "This is my uncle."

Chapter 397

Chapter 397

Jimmy looked up and froze when he saw Eugene.

Eugene looked at him. "Hello."

Jimmy was completely stunned. When they were at Serameton University, Jimmy had been.

close to Theresa and had had dinner with Eugene. They hadn't met in a long time, but he was embarrassed to think about the past.

The three of them sat down.

Eugene said to Jimmy, "I knew Rose was married, but I wasn't expecting you."

"Do you know each other?" Rose thought Eugene sounded like he knew Jimmy.

Jimmy said, "We're from the same university."

"Oh, I remember. Uncle's from Serameton University too."

Jimmy was worried although Eugene didn't mention the old days. He asked Eugene, "Uncle, I heard you've been abroad before. Are you coming back?"

Eugene said, "Yeah, I'll be joining Charlie's company. My family and friends are here."

Jimmy said, "I think it's good to be at home too."

Eugene smiled.

While they were talking, Rose stood up and went to get the sauce.

Jimmy asked Eugene worriedly, "You didn't tell Rose about me and Theresa, did you?" He didn't want Eugene to tell Rose that he had been close to Theresa before. Eugene asked, "What are you afraid of? Aren't you divorced?"

Jimmy said, "Yes, but... I don't want Rose to think too much about it."

Eugene smiled. "You used to be so close to Theresa. I didn't think you'd get divorced."

Everyone had thought they were perfect for each other before. They had also said they would be together forever, but they divorced within a few years.

Jimmy was a little embarrassed, but he didn't want to lose face and blamed Theresa. "I didn't want to, but... Theresa cheated on me and had two children with another man. I couldn't stand it although I loved her."

Eugene looked at Jimmy with mixed feelings. He had heard that they had divorced because Theresa had cheated on Jimmy. He had despised Theresa for doing that, but yesterday, he had learned the truth. The more Jimmy said bad things about Theresa, the more he felt Jimmy was despicable.

Eugene reminded Jimmy, "It's all in the past. Since Rose is married to you, I hope you treat her well. My sister risked her life to give birth to her. You know the consequences if you fail her." What had happened with Theresa and Jimmy was none of his business, but he wouldn't put up with it if Rose was bullied

Jimmy promised, "I will"

"I have work to do Enjoy your lunch" Eugene stood up and left.

Jimmy stared after him and breathed a sigh of relief. In fact, he had been afraid of meeting ofd friends since he and Rose got married. He didn't know how to face them.

Chapter 398

Chapter 398

He felt that he would look like a scumbag in front of them.

Rose only saw Jimmy when she returned. "Where's my uncle?"

"He said he had work to do and left, Jimmy said.

Rose smiled. "Why do you look scared of him?"

"He's your uncle!"

Rose chuckled. "That explains it."

Since Rose and Robert were away, only Leticia, Theresa, the two children, and Old Mr. Calsis were in the dining room for lunch.

Leticia asked, "Did Charlie go out?"

"He went to the office."

Charlie had gone out early in the morning. He had said he would come back for lunch, but he didn't. Theresa didn't care because he often didn't come home when he was busy at work. Leticia asked Theresa, "It's the weekend. He'd better rest at home. By the way, does he need to go to the hospital for a checkup?" She was concerned about Charlie's legs.

Theresa said, "It's been done. Don't worry."

Leticia said, "Take care of him." She had thought Theresa had married Charlie because Old Mr. Calsis liked her. Now that Theresa could cure Charlie's legs, she didn't hate Theresa as much.

Theresa nodded. "I will."

After lunch, Theresa grabbed her bag and went to her father's office. It had been a long time.

since she had last been there. When she was in school, she had come every day after school.

In the lobby, the receptionist said, "Please sign in."

Theresa asked, "Is Robert in?"

The receptionist didn't know her and looked at her suspiciously. "No, it's the weekend. May I ask what this is about?"

"So who's at the office?"

"You are

Theresa said, "Theresa Cameron, Mr. Cameron's daughter."

Confused, the receptionist said, "How many daughters does Mr. Cameron have? I'll call. One second, please." Then she picked up the phone from the table and made a call. When she hung up, she said, "You can go in."

Theresa went upstairs and found the door to her father's office open. Sarah said arrogantly inside, "How dare you defy me? My dad is sick and he let me run the company! Do as I say!" The secretary said helplessly, "Ms. Cameron, I just think we should discuss it with Mr Cameron."

"Why? I said I'm in charge now and you just have to do what I say. You stay at the office every day, but so what? You're taking this company into the ground!" Sarah thought she would be in charge of the company instead of Theresa.

Chapter 399

Chapter 399

Thinking of that, Theresa was under great pressure.

Theresa walked to the door and knocked. Sarah sat on a chair in a suit. She looked nice. When Theresa appeared at the door, Sarah frowned and asked, "What's the matter?" Sarah answered the call from the receptionist just now.

Theresa looked up and looked at the doorplate. "Isn't my father's office here?"

Sarah took a sip of her coffee and said, "Dad is not well. I will take charge of the company's affairs in the future."

Sarah said to the secretary standing aside, "Hey. Pour a cup of water for the guest. It's working time."

Hearing that, the secretary went to the pantry with fear.

Theresa went to her seat and sat down. Hearing that Sarah called her a guest, she thought it was an irony. "Well, no one tells me you are the owner of Dad's company."

Sarah didn't care about Theresa's feelings at all. "Since you divorced Jimmy, you have never contacted us. It's normal that you don't know what happened to our family. Dad is not in good health now, so I will naturally help him manage the company.

Sarah would not be sensible like that!

Sarah made Theresa a troublemaker in their family. What a shameless woman!

Theresa looked at Sarah and said, "You must be tired."

Sarah curled her lips and said, "I'm not tired. I should do it."

Theresa said, "Well, I haven't found that you care so much about our family and our father before. I remembered you just ran out of your wedding. It's you who made our family become like this."

Sarah was shameless. She paid no attention to what Theresa said. She sneered.
"Charlie doesn't care about it at all. I don't think you should mention it. If you want to talk about it. Ok. I will tell you what you have done. You had an affair. You just disgraced our family. Do you still want to talk about it now? I don't think you want. I must go out now because I have an appointment. After all, I'm not like you. You married Charlie, so you don't have to do anything. Alas."

Sarah made this ironic comment on purpose. Subsequently, she stood up, took her stuff, and left the office.

The secretary came over with a cup of water, looked at Theresa, and said, "The water is here."

"Thank you." Theresa looked at the poor secretary. She must be a newcomer, unlike Robert, who has been working here for a long time. That was why Sarah treated her badly.

Theresa picked up her cell phone and called her father, "Dad."

"This is Leah." Leah answered the phone, "What can I do for you?"

"Where's my father?"

"Your father doesn't feel well. He is in the hospital for an examination with me. What's wrong?"

Theresa said, "Sarah has joined dad's company. Did you arrange it?"

Leah said, "Well, I've discussed this with your father. Sarah is not like you. She is tender. I'm worried that she will be hurt. The New Year is coming, so I asked her to help your dad to manage the company. What's up?"

Hearing that, Theresa was speechless.

Leah took it for granted.

Leah continued to say, "We're short of hands right now. I must take care of your father and manage the company's business. I was unable to do that. If you are free, I will be glad if you help me. But I know you need to take care of the children, so I don't want to bother you."

"Well, that's a good explanation." Theresa curled her lip.

Chapter 400

Chapter 400

"What do you mean?" Leah looked innocent.

Theresa said, "Forget it. How about my dad? I want to see him."

Theresa originally wanted to help her father manage the company affairs, but now her father's health was more important.

Leah said, "You always asked me about the company. I don't even know you care about your father. I almost thought you are a heartless woman."

"Come on, stop satirizing me."

Hearing her stepmother's words, Theresa was speechless. She just wanted to ask Leah why Sarah joined the company. Jesus. Leah's words made Theresa feel that it was all her fault. After leaving the company, Theresa went directly to the hospital. After examination, her father returned to the ward.

Leah was with him. "See. I asked you to have a good rest, not to be angry. But you just kept working. I don't want to worry about you all the time."

Johnson said, "Can you stop it? You've been talking about it all day."

"I talked about it because I really care about you." Leah said, "In this world, only I would be so kind to you. Now I thought it's a pity that I will stay with you all my life. I treat you well, but you consider me an outsider."

"I didn't say that." Johnson gazed at Leah. Leah reminded him that she did treat him well. That's undeniable.

However, when Johnson thought that Leah was biased against Sarah and treated Theresa badly, he, a father, was sad.

Theresa said, "Dad."

Johnson looked at her. "Why are you here?"

"Janet said that you went to the hospital for an examination, so I come to see you. Have you finished the examination?" Theresa sat down.

Johnson looked at Leah and said, "I told you not to tell Theresa."

"She is your daughter. She should know that!" Leah looked at Theresa and said, "Your dad had finished the examination. The doctor asked him to take more rest and not stay up late. Theresa, you should persuade your dad. He is old. Although the company is important, his body is more important, right?"

At this point, Leah said to Johnson, "Sarah has joined the company now. She could help you manage the company. She is not a child anymore, and I will keep an eye on her. You have raised her for so many years. It's time for her to help you."

Johnson said, "Well, it's up to you."

Theresa stood aside, looked at Johnson, and said, "Dad, take a good rest. You must be tired. I'll keep an eye on the company's affairs."

Hearing Theresa's words, Leah suddenly looked at Theresa and sneered, "I remember you haven't cared about your dad before. When your father was in a dilemma about company affairs, you didn't even call your dad. I'm happy to see you grow up. Your dad must be delighted as well. But you must know that our company didn't need your help. You had better talk to Charlie. With the support of the Calsis family, our group must solve every problem."

"But... We can't rely on the Calsis family forever."

Theresa knew that the Calsis family had invested father's company. Now, the future of the Cameron Group would depend on Charlie.

However, it's a double-edged sword. Charlie could support the Cameron Group, while he could ruin it as well.

Charlie controlled the fate of the Cameron Group.

Leah said, "We have known the Calsis family for a long time. Old Mr. Calsis has always been very kind to us. Without them, the Cameron Group would not become like this. Do you really think we can live without them? That's impossible!"

Leah looked at Theresa with doubt. "So, did you make Charlie angry again? Listen. You can do whatever you want to do at home, but you must learn to be obedient in the Calsis's house. If Charlie gets angry sometimes, you must give in. Sometimes your dad would quarrel with me, but I always give in."
