

Marry Ex's Uncle After Divorcement

Chapter 651-700

Chapter 651

Theresa darted at Leonard, realizing he was also upset by what had happened. She stroked him gently and asked, "Are you guys hungry? I'll prepare your favorite food."

When Ben heard about his favorite food usually, he would be excited. However, he still looked frustrated today.

When Theresa was cooking in the kitchen, Cristina entered. She glanced at the two boys helping their mother and called, "Hello, Leonard, Ben."

However, they didn't respond, looking bothered.

Cristina asked, "What happened?"

She had taken a nap in the afternoon, so she didn't know what had happened earlier.

Theresa looked up at her and replied, "Nothing."

"Has anyone been here earlier?" Cristina said, "I heard some noises."

"Ehn. They were gone."

"Who has been here?"

"Charlie."

Cristina was shocked, her eyes wide. "What did he do?"

She glanced at the boys with a lingering fear. Seeing them both there, she breathed a sigh of relief.

"He didn't take Leonard and Ben away."

Theresa darted at her. "You slept soundly, indeed."

There were loud noises, but Cristina wasn't woken up.

Theresa didn't think it was bad, though.

If Cristina was there, it would be more troublesome. She would probably have fought with Charlie.

Cristina said, "Did Charlie bully you? What did he do? Something wrong with Leonard and Ben..."

Theresa glanced at the boys and said, "Dinner is ready. Let's eat."

She put all dishes on the table outside the kitchen.

Johnson was still napping, so Theresa didn't take food upstairs but decided to send him something after dinner.

Rawlins didn't drop off Leah until they arrived at the entrance of Cameron's Residence.

As soon as the car was parked, Leah couldn't wait to open the door and get off.

Standing on the ground, she exhaled in relief and said, "Thank you."

Rawlins could tell how tense she had been, curling his lips into a smile. Then he let the driver pull away. He didn't take the same car as Dick did. Dick preferred peace and quietness, so he always sat alone in his car.

Leah entered the house. Seeing her, Sarah asked, "You are back so early, Mom. Didn't you go to see Dad?"

Leah growled, "Theresa kicked me out."

"How could she do it?" Sarah said, "You brought her up. She should be appreciated. That's too much."

Leah didn't have the mood to think about that matter. She immediately shared what had happened with Sarah. "You know what? Charlie went to her house today."

"Charlie? Did he go to pick the children up?" Sarah asked, "Did Theresa let him take the boys away?" After returning home, Sarah kept wondering what was wrong with Leticia but failed to figure it out. Earlier, Sarah called the police, but Leticia didn't take the children home but blamed her.

Sarah did it out of her kindness. However, Leticia took Theresa's side and defended her.

What an impossible woman!

Sarah was curious, wondering if Theresa had hidden the children after seeing Charlie.

Chapter 652

Leah answered, "Nope. What's wrong with Theresa? I wonder if she has gone nuts after Jimmy divorced. her. She seems abnormal."

She sat on the couch. A maid handed her the slippers to put on.

Sarah sat next to her and asked, "What exactly happened?"

"She'd rather die to let Charlie take the children home. She also asked Charlie to file a lawsuit if he wanted the boys. She must be out of her mind."

Sarah was shocked. "What did Charlie react?"

"How could he react? I could tell he was indeed angry. I don't think he'll let go of Theresa easily. He almost could take his sons home, but Dick went to Theresa's house with his men. After he meddled, Charlie couldn't take the boys away. You should know Charlie and Dick are sworn foes. Theresa is so bold to be friends with Dick. She's so doomed."

Leah added, "I guess Charlie is figuring out how to teach Theresa a lesson now. She always gets above herself. She deserves it! By the way, how's it going between you and Charlie?"

"No progress," Sarah answered. "He's still angry with me for things in the past. Whenever we met, he was cold. I thought he would be nicer after sending the boys back to him. Theresa is indeed nuts. I didn't expect her to stop him from taking the children back."

Leah said, "Why don't you console Charlie? Theresa is making trouble for him now, so it's a good chance for you to impress him. You must change your poor impression."

Sarah nodded to echo, "Exactly, Mom! I know."

After talking to her mother, Sarah went to Calsis Villa.

She had been there during the daytime and parked her car there. Therefore, she returned to fetch her vehicle, which was the excuse for her to meet Charlie.

After Sarah arrived at the gate of Calsis Villa, the security guard asked, "Why are you here?"

Sarah replied, "I've been here in the morning. My car was parked inside the villa. I'm here to drive it away."

The security guard glanced at her and went into the villa with her. "I'll follow you."

Sarah was annoyed. She could tell the security guard was alert to her.

On the way, she asked, "Has Charlie returned?"

The security guard pressed his lips together without answering.

Sarah added, "Charlie and Theresa had divorced. I'll marry Charlie in the future. Aren't you afraid you would be fired after offending me?"

The security guard rolled his eyes at her. "Mr. Calsis won't marry you. You are the one he detested the most."

Everyone in town knew what Sarah had done to Charlie earlier, disdainful her very much.

Sarah's lips twitched. She was unhappy.

In her opinion, those security guards, servants, and maids were snobbish. None of them dared to treat her this way before.

Repressing her anger, she explained, "It was because of some misunderstandings between Charlie and me. Over the years, I've been the only fiancée he has recognized. He hates me because I mistreated him before, but he still loves me. Do you understand?"

The security guard didn't have the mood to answer her. "Where did you park your car?" he asked.

Calsis Villa's parking lot was huge as the Calsis family owned many cars.

Sarah answered, "Probably over there."

She moved slowly to buy some time and didn't find her car until a long time later.

The security guard had been watching her, so she had no chance to approach Charlie, which annoyed her.

When she was about to drive home, Charlie's car entered the villa.

Sarah didn't expect him to return home so late.

She immediately drove towards his car and stopped in front. Charlie's driver was scared and hurriedly stepped on the brake.

Others in the car were also shocked.

Jonathan asked, "What happened?"

The driver answered helplessly, "A car suddenly rushed out and stopped in my way."

Jonathan said, "Check who's there."

He also followed the driver to get off.

Chapter 653

Charlie didn't move. Earlier, he returned to his company to get some files before going back home.

From his car window, he saw a woman get down the car-it was Sarah.

Closing his eyes, Charlie ignored her.

Johnathan asked Sarah, "Why are you here?"

Sarah pretended to be fearful. "Are you OK? Sorry for that. I didn't concentrate earlier."

"You are driving on the wrong side, OK?" Jonathan thought she was a psycho. "Why is she here? Who let her in?" he asked. Soon, he called some security guards over.

The security guard who had been watching her hurriedly ran over and greeted him, "Good evening, Mr.Gay."

"What's going on?" Jonathan asked, "I should have told you never to let her enter. If Mr. Calsis sees her, he'll be angry again."

Charlie detested Sarah to the extreme and didn't want to see her.

The security guard explained, "Her car was parked here earlier, and she wanted to drive it away. I followed her in."

"How did she park her car here?" Jonathan scowled at him, thinking it was a bad day indeed.

The security guard answered, "Mrs. Calsis let her in earlier today."

Looking at Jonathan, Sarah pretended to defend the security guard, "Please don't blame him, Jonathan."

It wasn't his fault. I... I went to pick up the children with Auntie Leticia, so I took her car and left my vehicle in the villa. I came over to drive it back home later. When I was about to leave, I was unfamiliar with the road in the villa, so I caused trouble."

Hearing her mention the kids, Jonathan looked at her. "Did you go with Mrs. Calsis to pick up the children in the morning?"

Sarah nodded. "Yes, I did. I told Auntie Leticia where Theresa stayed. By the way, where is Charlie? I heard he also went to pick up the boys in the afternoon. Has he taken them home?" Johnathan frowned at her, his eyes full of alertness.

Sarah added, "You know what? Theresa must be nuts. When we arrived at her house, she refused to let us take the children away. I also called the police. However, she said something to Auntie Leticia. After the police arrived, Auntie Leticia didn't tell them Theresa had kidnapped the children but scolded me."

Jonathan recalled Leticia angrily scolded Charlie after returning home, wondering what had happened.

The security guards arrived. After checking both cars, one said to Jonathan, "The vehicles are both OK, Mr. Gay." "Help her drive out. Let her leave." Jonathan glanced at his car, only to find the light was on. Charlie didn't get off.

He could tell Charlie was in a bad mood, so he didn't want Sarah to show up in his face.

The security guard glanced at Sarah, drove her car to the roadside, and let Charlie's car pass.

Charlie didn't get down until the car was parked at the house entrance.

He asked Jonathan sternly, "What happened?"

Jonathan answered, "Sarah was in the car. She went to pick up the boys with Mrs. Calsis earlier."

"Did she?"

Jonathan explained, "She said she had told Mrs. Calsis where Theresa stayed. She also said she had called the police, aiming to ask them to take the children away, but Mrs. Calsis scolded her." Frowning, Charlie entered the house.

Leticia was home, and so was Robert.

Seeing Charlie, Leticia asked, "Did you go to see Theresa? How did it go?"

Charlie curled his lips. "I'm exhausted. Please excuse me."

Before his parents responded, he went upstairs.

Jonathan looked at his figure and greeted Robert and Leticia politely, "Good evening, Mr. and Mrs. Calsis."

Leticia asked, "What happened?"

"We went to pick up Master Leonard and Master Ben earlier but encountered Dick White. Mr. Calsis should be angry."

Upon hearing Dick's name, Leticia was tense. "Did you meet him? I hope you didn't fight."

"No, we didn't." Fortunately, Theresa left her room on time, so they didn't make a fuss.

Leticia asked, "How about the children's matter? Did Charlie talk to Theresa? How did it go?"

Jonathan answered, "Not as well as expected. Mr. Calsis insisted on taking the boys back. Ms. Cameron was so anxious that she shed tears. She also said... If Mr. Calsis wanted the boys back, he should file a lawsuit. Mr. Calsis has decided to sue her."

"No way!" Leticia refused. "Is Charlie out of his mind? I sent him to coax Theresa instead of forcibly taking the children back. What will Leonard and Ben do? Also, Theresa is pitiful. I've talked to Robert. If Charlie couldn't convince Theresa to return, we would deal with that matter ourselves. He doesn't need to take care of this matter."

Leticia was depressed, realizing Charlie would mess up the matter if they allowed him to solve it by himself.

If he were adept at dealing with those matters, how would he have kicked out Theresa and his sons? Looking at Leticia, Jonathan said, "Ms. Cameron won't allow the children to come back home in this case."

He had witnessed Theresa's attitude earlier.

Charlie had to sue her in court.

Leticia prompted, "Go talk to Charlie. He cannot sue her. Neither his father nor I would agree."

Jonathan was tongue-tied but had to obey her.

However, he didn't understand as Leticia used to care about her grandchildren the most in the past.

She was always concerned about all the children's matters.

After knowing Theresa had taken the boys away, Jonathan thought she must be enraged and would support Charlie in using aggressive means to take them back...

However, after Leticia met Theresa earlier today, her attitude changed abruptly.

"Hurry! Tell Charlie about my opinion," Leticia urged him.

Jonathan nodded and went upstairs.

Charlie had taken off his suit jacket after entering his bedroom. Sitting on the couch, he stared at the gem ring, which he gave it to Theresa before.

At that time, Cristina came to the house and made her upset. Charlie bought the ring to please Theresa and prove she was his only woman.

Thinking of that, he realized Theresa had known Cristina at that time.

However, she lied to him, and he believed her.

Charlie thought she was indeed evil.

Jonathan entered his room. "Excuse me, Mr. Calsis."

"I asked you to contact a lawyer. How did it go?" Charlie looked at him.

Jonathan answered, "Mrs. Calsis forbade me to sue Ms. Cameron."

Charlie was surprised, gazing at him. "Are you sure my mother said it?"

Jonathan nodded. "Yeah. 100%"

He also wondered why, as Charlie did. However, he had to believe that was what Leticia wanted for real.

He added, "Don't you think Mrs. Calsis is so weird today? After meeting Ms. Cameron, she seemed to be bribed."

"Theresa is always good at deceiving others." Pinching the ring tightly, Charlie continued, "She's a liar. I was also deceived by her earlier. When she took the kids away, she also lied to Morn."

"Shall we sue her?" Jonathan reminded him, "If Ms. Cameron was convicted of kidnapping, she would have a criminal record, and it would impact her future."

The criminal record would never be erased from Theresa's life, impacting her life and children.

Charlie answered, "Of course, we will sue her. Isn't it what she expects? Since she requested so, I'd make her wish come true."

A sneer touched his lips while he spoke.

Recalling how Dick was protective of her, he seethed with anger and jealousy.

'Theresa! Theresa! Bravo!'

Charlie had to admit she was competent, feeling be wrapped around her finger.

He was determined to let her know the consequences of offending him.

Jonathan worriedly asked, "What should we explain to Mrs. Calsis?"

Leticia disagreed with them, so she would object to their action.

Charlie said, "Ask the lawyer not to come over tonight."

Nodding, Jonathan suggested. "Mr. Charlie, shall we wait for a few days? It's the holiday season. Everyone is on vacation."

Charlie frowned, recalling Theresa insisted on asking him to sue her. "Theresa must want to buy some time because she knows it."

He doubted if she had some other plans.

Jonathan was shocked, wondering if that was truly what Theresa had planned.

Regarding how much he knew about her, she didn't seem like such a scheming woman.

The following morning, Charlie got up for breakfast.

Staring at him, Leticia said, "I heard you decided to sue Theresa."

Charlie darted at her. "You disagreed, didn't you?"

"Yes, I did," Leticia said, "I object to it. Both boys like Theresa. If you sue her, you'll break their hearts. They know everything, although they are still young. In the future, they'll hate you. It's not good for you, no for them."

Charlie replied, "I won't since you don't support me."

He deliberately said so to relieve his mother.

Secretly, he would do what he had decided to.

He did so to avoid hearing his mother nagging.

Leticia continued, "Good for you. I was afraid you would disagree. Theresa is a good girl. She had experienced many difficulties. You don't have to drive her into a corner."

Charlie stared at her while listening and failed to repress his curiosity. "When did you become so soft-hearted to Theresa?" he asked.

"Soft-hearted?" Leticia was displeased by his remark. She had never wanted to kick Theresa as he had done.

She answered coldly, "Do you wish me to kick her out ruthlessly like you?"

"I didn't kick her out. I divorced her, and she had insisted."

Charlie had tried to change her mind several times, but she cruelly refused him and stomped his feelings. "She has self-esteem. You looked down on her. Of course, she wanted to divorce you." "Did I look down on her?" Charlie couldn't understand what his mother meant.

He never did so. Instead, Theresa disdained him always.

Leticia replied, "Anyway, I don't care. If you want the boys back, don't use such a way. You should coax her and change her mind. Your sons will also come back when she's willing to return." "You are too naive, Mom," Charlie had to break her dream.

If Theresa was willing to return home, they wouldn't have been in such a stalemate now.

Leticia picked up a lunchbox and passed it to him. "Send the food to Theresa."

"I won't go to her house today." Charlie didn't want to be angered by her again.

Leticia aggressively insisted, "You must go."

In the morning, Dick went to Theresa's house. He was there the previous night to defend her, but today, he went to see her as her patient.

He sat in the armchair. Theresa asked, "Did you sleep well last night?"

Dick answered, "Not bad. It won't last long, though. I can only sleep well after your acupuncture."

Theresa reminded him, "The acupuncture is just a supplementary. You must adjust your mood. Sleeping is the most critical for one's life. If you can't sleep well, it'll impact your health." Dick remarked, "You are talking nonsense."

Theresa was rendered tongue-tied for a moment. "Mr. White, don't you want to listen to your doctor?" she asked.

Dick darted at her and buttoned his lip.

Staring at him, Theresa thought he wasn't as horrible as the rumors said.

It was weird. She had thought Charlie and Dick were arrogant and too challenging to get along. However, after knowing them better, she didn't think so.

Although both were business tycoons, they were like ordinary men, having emotions.

Of course, they were reasonable sometimes.

Closing his eyes, Dick prompted. "Hurry! I don't have plenty of time."

Theresa started the acupuncture therapy immediately.

Dick was sitting next to the window. It was snowy. Therefore, the snowflakes could be seen from his angle.

The whole world seemed to be blanketed in silence.

After the therapy, Dick lay on the couch and took a nap.

Theresa checked the time. When it was almost time for cooking, she went to the kitchen.

When Dick woke up, he saw a glass of water next to the couch. Seemingly it was prepared for him.

He picked up and took a sip. Hearing the sounds from the kitchen, he could faintly see her white figure.

Shortly after, a boy walked out of the elevator. Dick's gaze fell on him immediately.

The boy watched him with a curious look.

Seeing his face, Dick had an indescribable feeling, wondering if he was Charlie's son.

His face looked preciously like Charlie's.

Dick flicked his hand at the boy. The latter walked to him obediently.

Leonard stared at him. He had seen the man the previous day and witnessed him help Theresa. Therefore, he and Ben were not stolen away by the evil man. Sitting on the couch, Leonard pulled out a candy bar and passed it to Dick.

"What is it?" Dick looked at the mini-version of Charlie.

He could confirm the boy was Charlie's son as he was like a copy of Charlie.

Dick didn't pay attention to the boys the previous day. Therefore, he was shocked while gazing at Leonard.

Leonard explained, "Thank you for yesterday."

Dick couldn't help gazing at him. Although Leonard had Charlie's face and gaze, he was kind to Dick.

In amusement, Dick took over the candy bar from Leonard.

It was bought by Theresa a few days ago.

Dick held it but didn't eat it.

Gazing at him with inquisitive eyes, Leonard asked, "What's your name?"

Dick lifted his eyebrows. The boy was young, but he sounded superior to others when he spoke.

Dick answered, "Dick White."

"Are you my mother's patient?" Leonard asked curiously.

Dick nodded.

Leonard remarked, "You look kind."

Dick was tongue-tied, feeling shocked by his words.

He didn't expect to hear such a comment from a boy who looked exactly the same as Charlie.

A weird feeling surged in his heart.

"Are you Charlie Calsis' son?" Dick asked, "Do you know I'm your father's sworn foe? We never got along."

Chapter 657

Chapter 657

"He's not my father," Leonard replied, "I don't admit it. He's evil. He's also my sworn foe."

Dick laughed.

When Theresa left the kitchen, she saw Leonard chatting with Dick and heard Dick's laughter.

Thinking that Dick and Charlie never got along, Theresa had mixed feelings. She wondered if she should stop them.

Then she told Leonard, "Leonard, tell them lunch is ready."

Leonard answered, "OK."

He trotted upstairs immediately.

Theresa darted at Dick and called, "Mr. White, you are awake."

"Charlie's son?" Dick glanced at the boy on the stairs.

So did Theresa. "If I said no, you wouldn't believe me," she answered.

"Why did you keep his sons in your house?" asked Dick. "It was chaos last night. Did you fight for the boys?" Curling her lips, Theresa replied, "You should return to work. You don't need to return here for the therapy from tomorrow. If you need it, I can go to see you."

She knew Dick was Charlie's foe, so she was worried.

Theresa decided not to let him show up to the boys.

Dick stared at her. "I like your place very much. It's weird. I always feel peaceful and can have a sound sleep here. I had a good nap just now."

Theresa stared at him and said, "Mr. White, don't be kidding. Everything in your house is much better than things here."

Dick's luxurious house had cost him several hundred million dollars. Her villa was less than a million dollars, which couldn't be compared to it at all.

Wearing a wry smile, Dick looked at Theresa with mixed feelings as if he was planning something.

Theresa had to make it clear. "Mr. White, the boys are my sons. I hope you can let go of them. They are innocent."

Dick asked, "So, you mean you are the birth mother of Charlie's boys?"

Theresa pressed her lips together as she felt the mockery in his question, which upset her.

Dick giggled, "How interesting!"

Leonard came downstairs.

When he walked towards Dick, Theresa pulled him back and said, "Mr. White is leaving. Say bye to him."

Dick hadn't mentioned it yet, wondering if Theresa meant to send him away.

Feeling upset, he heard Leonard's voice. "See you, Mr. White. Welcome back next time."

Theresa was dumbfounded

Dick's mood got better. He beamed at the boy and replied, "See you. I'll come back often."

Then he left the house.

Theresa asked Leonard, "Do you like him a lot?"

Leonard looked into her eyes. "He helped us last night," he answered.

Theresa bent over and tried hard to lift him. "He's your father's enemy. Don't be too close to him. I'll be worried."

"Will he hurt me?" Leonard asked.

Theresa wasn't sure.

No one knew what Dick would do.

She reminded her son, "You must be alert to others."

Leonard said, "He told me he was Charlie Calsis' sworn foe."

Theresa didn't expect him to call Charlie by his full name, wondering if Leonard had disliked his father THAT much.

She asked, "Don't you want to call him Dad anymore?"

"He bullied you, Mom. He's not my father anymore. Mom, let's find a new Dad. What do you think?"

Soon, Johnson, Cristina, and Ben came downstairs for lunch.

Chapter 658

Chapter 658

Johnson looked much better today. He had lain on the bed for a long time and wanted to walk downstairs.

Theresa had prepared food for him exceptionally.

She glanced at Ben, who still looked spiritless because of the incident the previous day.

Holding him up. Theresa said, "Let me help you shell the shrimp, Ben."

Cristina asked, "Is he OK? Was he frightened by Charlie?"

Theresa answered, "He's fine. Ben is a strong boy. He'll be well soon."

She believed the incident the previous day was just an episode and Ben could overcome it.

Ben looked at Theresa and said, "Mom, I want some broccoli."

His words brought a smile to Theresa's face. She put some broccoli on his plate.

Ben munched them seriously.

Since he was willing to eat, Theresa felt less worried.

After lunch, Theresa contacted Robert Tylor and asked him about the legal consultants, preparing for the lawsuit against Charlie.

However, the consultant immediately asked her to give up.

"Theresa, you won't win against him in the lawsuit. You don't need to waste time and energy on it. It's better to settle behind closed doors."

"Really? I even don't have a single chance to win?" Theresa asked the lawyer.

He answered, "No, you don't."

Theresa had been full of confidence earlier, but now, she had become disappointed.

Before everything started, she got the heavy blow.

Suddenly, her phone rang. Rawlins was calling.

"Hello, Dr. Cameron."

"Yes, Rawlins?"

"I heard you'd file a lawsuit against Charlie. Do you need any help? I can introduce a lawyer to you."

Theresa was surprised. "That's really kind of you, Rawlins. Thank you so much."

He didn't only bring her holiday gifts or help her the previous day but also actively wanted to introduce a lawyer to her.

Rawlins answered, "You are welcome. Since you helped Mr. White, he has been sleeping well. If you have time, let's meet tomorrow. I'll introduce the legal team of White's Group to you. All of them are honored to be at your service."

Theresa asked, "Aren't they on vacation?"

"Yes, they are, but they are eager to meet you."

Theresa agreed, "OK. I'll go to your office tomorrow morning."

She had no other way out, thinking Dick's employees must be more reliable than those she found.

After returning to her house, Theresa saw a car nearby.

She stopped next to the car. The window was pressed down, exposing a familiar face full of ice. Charlie gazed at her coldly.

Theresa asked, "Why are you here, Mr. Calsis?"

"Get in?" He darted at her.

It was freezing outside. Theresa pulled the door open and sat in.

"Where have you been?" he asked.

"I don't need to tell you." Theresa asked, "Why are you here?"

As soon as the last syllable fell from her tongue, Charlie suddenly approached and trapped her with his chest.

Holding her breath. Theresa gazed at him alertly.

The driver sensibly pressed down the baffle plate.

After returning to her senses. Theresa pretended to be calm and said, "What are you doing, Mr. Calsis? Do you still miss that night and want to do the same thing." He insulted her the same way the previous day.

Finally, she had a chance to return it to him.

Gazing at her without blinking, Charlie almost clung his face to hers. Her breath stuttered across his skin. Pinching her chin tightly, he didn't speak for a long time. Theresa added in a provocation, "Mr. Calsis, I didn't expect you to be so pure-minded. Was it your first time that night? Oops! It was my bad. I should apologize."

Chapter 659

Charlie was annoyed by her. "You must pay the price for your provocation."

Arching an eyebrow, Theresa asked, "What are you doing now?"

They almost clung to each other, and the short distance upset Theresa.

Charlie asked, "You are with Dick White now. Can he satisfy you?"

His words made Theresa scowl at him.

She used to love Charlie, but he slandered her to be with another man. She felt frustrated.

Charlie knew she was the boys' birth mother and had no affair with another man. However, he deliberately humiliated her this way.

The sorrow spreading in her chest made her laugh. Theresa told herself not to be upset as Charlie didn't deserve it.

She shouldn't have had hope for him.

Theresa answered, "Well, his skills are much better than yours, Mr. Calsis. Think you are good at it? Or does it mean you are as weirdly confident as other ordinary men?" "You!" Charlie gazed at her but couldn't win against her verbally.

She could always render him wordless and anger him.

Theresa pressed her index finger on his lips. "Don't be mad. Or it only means I've hit your raw nerves. I didn't mean to do it."

When she finished speaking, Charlie lowered his head to bite her finger.

Frowning at him, Theresa snapped, "It hurts!"

"Of course." Charlie stared at her. "I've contacted a lawyer. You have no chance to win against me in the lawsuit. If you are sensible, let me take the boys back."

"If I were sensible, I wouldn't have led such a life." She looked into his eyes. "Mr. Calsis, you were wrong about me."

"I was, indeed." Looking at her, he said, "We could have been a happy couple, but you insisted on disappointing

You are a liar! You always lied to me."

"Exactly!" Theresa retorted, "I am a liar. You all are victims. OK? Jimmy Watson and you are both victims. I'm the only evil one."

She knew that was his prejudice against her, so she didn't have the mood to explain it.

Theresa added, "I need to go home. Mr. Calsis, if there's nothing else, please excuse me." Scowling at her, Charlie passed the lunchbox from his mother to her. "Take it."

"What's this?" Theresa asked.

"My mother asked me to bring it here," Charlie answered, "For my sons."

Theresa accepted it as it was prepared by Leticia.

Charlie, however, didn't loosen his hand.

Taking the chance, he gazed at Theresa and warned her, "Since the boys are in your house and you don't want to send them home, I don't have the mood to fight with you. Remember. If something happens to them, I won't let go of you."

Theresa darted at him, pulled the lunchbox over, and exited the car.

After entering her house, she opened the lunch box and found the food had gone cold. Leticia coincidentally called her. "Hello, Theresa?"

"Hello."

"Has Charlie sent you a lunchbox?"

"Yes, he did."

Leticia explained, "It's a soup I cooked for the boys. Don't forget to let them have some."

"OK. I won't forget," Theresa answered while nodding.

Leticia asked, "By the way, Theresa, do you plan to take the boys back for a gathering? Let's celebrate the holiday together, shall we? Or you'll be alone outside. We also want Leonard and Ben to be here." "No, thanks," Theresa refused. "Have a good time. I won't go there."

She wouldn't let her sons return to that house, either.

"Did Charlie anger you again?" Leticia asked worriedly.

Theresa answered, "Mrs. Calsis, I'll never remarry Charlie. Please stop sending him over. Or you'll make him misunderstand I still haven't given up on him. Honestly, I feel bothered."

"Did Charlie say so?" Leticia burst into anger. "Theresa, don't worry. I'll teach him a lesson after he returns home."

Chapter 660

Theresa was surprised.

She just didn't want Leticia to scold Charlie!

Theresa said, "I mean you don't have to bother about Charlie and me. It will only make things more complicated if others interfere."

Hearing this, Leticia said, "But I do want you to come back."

"I won't come back!" Theresa said. "I don't want to talk about it anymore. I don't have any feelings for Charlie. I don't love him either. Being with him is just a kind of torture. I wouldn't like to live with him for one more minute."

Theresa was afraid that if she did not make herself clear enough, Leticia would want her to be with Charlie. It would make her despised by Charlie, so she might as well make it clear.

Leticia fell silent when she heard Theresa's words.

She had never expected Theresa to hate Charlie so much!

Theresa said, "I have to go. Bye."

After that, she put down the phone and went to take care of the two kids.

Charlie came home and got out of the car. Abel saw him. "Welcome back, Mr. Calsis." Charlie responded.

Abel smiled. "Your brother is back."

"Chandler?" With that, Charlie went upstairs.

He came to the door of Chandler's room and found Chandler.

Chandler had just gotten home. In a white shirt, he was sitting on the couch by the window and talking to someone on the phone.

Charlie knocked on the door. Chandler looked at Charlie and beckoned him in.

Charlie walked up to Chandler and sat down, looking at the man. It had been almost a year since they saw each other last time.

Chandler took quite a long look at Charlie before he said, "You're all right now?"

He remembered that when he left, Charlie was still sitting in a wheelchair, looking depressed. He tried to comfort Charlie for a long time as an older brother.

Charlie nodded his head.

Chandler looked relieved. "That's good."

"Why didn't you tell me before you came back, Chandler?"

Chandler said, "I just came back when I wanted to. Why? Aren't you glad to see me?"

Charlie nodded his head and smiled. "Yes. Welcome back."

He reached out his hand and the two brothers held each other's hand tightly.

The next morning, Theresa went to Dick's place. Dick's company was closed for the holiday, so she went straight to his home.

When Theresa entered, she saw Rawlins who looked like he had been waiting for a long time. Rawlins said,

"Good morning, Dr. Cameron."

"Good morning, Mr. Garson."

Rawlins smiled. "The lawyers aren't here yet, but they're on their way. Let's go in first!"

Theresa nodded and followed Rawlins in the door to see Dick sitting on the couch, talking to a man.

Seeing that man, Theresa was slightly stunned. She almost mistook him for Charlie...

However, when she looked closer, she found that he was somewhat different from Charlie, except that they looked extremely similar. Rawlins said, "Dr. Cameron is here."

Dick turned to Theresa and said, "Please go upstairs."

Theresa nodded. She felt that the man who looked similar to Charlie had his eyes fixed on her and seemed to be examining her.

When Rawlins guided her upstairs, Theresa took the opportunity to ask, "Who's that man?"

Rawlins said, "That's Chandler Calsis from the Calsis family. You haven't met him before?"

Chapter 661

"Charlie's brother?" Theresa wondered.

Rawlins nodded. "Yes."

"I can see that he's very close to Mr. White."

Rawlins smiled. "Yes. He is nicer than Mr. Calsis and helps Mr. White a lot."

So, Dick only had a grudge against Charlie, but not against Chandler.

Theresa found it interesting.

Theresa gave Dick the acupuncture and then went downstairs. With Rawlins' introduction, she met the lawyers from the White's Group and consulted them about the kids.

Hearing what Theresa said, the lawyers discussed it and gave Theresa the answer. "We think the chances of winning the lawsuit are very good. The other party does not have any right to take the children away from you."

After all, the kids had been raised by Theresa and they had always been with her.

Charlie had no right to take them away.

Theresa was glad to hear that. "Really?"

She had been unsure after hearing what the company's lawyer said yesterday.

Now, she saw hope when she heard the explanation of these people in front of her.

The lawyers nodded and said, "Of course. You can rest assured!"

Theresa said, "Thank you very much."

She felt that she could finally put her mind at ease and have a nice holiday.

Theresa was about to leave when Rawlins came over. "Dr. Cameron."

"Mr. Garson."

"This is from Mr. White. Please take it." With that, Rawlins handed over a large box.

Theresa asked, "What is that?"

Seeing the packaging, she guessed that it was Lego.

Rawlins said, "A gift from Mr. White to your kids."

Theresa was surprised.

She said, "It's too expensive."

She had taken Leonard to the store for Lego before and didn't buy one because it was too expensive.

Rawlins said, "Please take it or Mr. White will not be happy. He wouldn't take back what he wants to give."

Theresa didn't know what to say.

Dick must have fallen asleep by now.

Theresa knew that Dick wouldn't listen to her.

She looked at Rawlins, who had already handed the gift to the maid before she could say anything. "Put it in Dr. Cameron's car."

The maid took it over.

Theresa could only say thank you.

When they came out of Dick's home, Chandler was still at the entrance. Rawlins saw him and said, "Mr. Calsis."

Chandler had a special profession that made him look upright and strong. He stood there in a heroic manner. Seeing Rawlins come out with Theresa, he said, "Why don't you introduce her and me?"

Rawlins quickly said, "This is Dr. Cameron. She helped your brother with his legs and got him back on his feet." "That was her!" Chandler turned to Theresa and said, "Thank you, Dr. Cameron, for helping my brother." Theresa looked at the man, who had no expression on his face. She could not tell if he meant well.

She said politely, "You're welcome, Mr. Calsis. It's my job. I just did what I had to do."

Chandler looked at her and curved his lips indifferently.

Seeing the way he looked at her, Theresa felt uncomfortable and said, "I'll leave now!"

After that, she got into the car and drove away.

Chandler saw her leave, looked at Rawlins, and said, "Dick has been getting close to her lately?"

Chapter 662

Chapter 662

Rawlins said, "Mr. White couldn't sleep well before, but since Dr. Cameron started to help him, he's been sleeping much better. Is there anything wrong?"

"No, I'm just asking." He had talked to Charlie yesterday and knew that Charlie seemed to be having a bad relationship with Dick lately because of this woman. Theresa had just arrived home when the two kids came running. "Mom, what's this?"

Theresa looked at the big box and said, "It's a gift from Uncle Dick."

"It's Lego!" Ben said.

Leonard said, "I told you Uncle Dick is a good guy."

Theresa was surprised to hear Leonard's words.

This boy was so wary, but just because Dick helped them once, he was saying that Dick was a good guy? Just then, a familiar voice came from the side. "So, Uncle Roderick is not a good guy?" Theresa looked up and saw Roderick standing right at the entrance.

She hadn't expected him to be here. "What are you doing here, Dr. Hill?"

"I came here with Eugene. He has something to talk to you about and I stopped by to visit the two kids."

Theresa said, "No wonder they look so happy today."

She could clearly feel that Ben was in a better mood.

Roderick said, "I just talked to them. What did Charlie do to make them dislike him so much?"

Even Ben, who had liked Charlie before, started to dislike him.

Theresa calmly said, "Nothing else. It's just that he wants to take them away."

Roderick sighed when he heard that. "I talked to him before he came over that day, but it seemed that he didn't listen to me. I'm wondering what he was thinking! Are you guys okay?" "Yes." Theresa smiled. "But I think I'm going to have a lawsuit against him after the holiday if he tries to take the kids away. Why are those powerful people so annoying? I really don't understand."

She tried to take the Lego out and failed because it was too heavy. Roderick came over and took it out of the car.

Leonard looked at Roderick adoringly, thinking that he would be a strong man like Uncle Roderick.

Theresa said, "Thanks."

Roderick said, "My pleasure."

He took the Lego inside.

Theresa closed the trunk door of the car before following them in.

Eugene was there sitting on the couch. He asked curiously, "What's that?"

Roderick said, "A gift for the kids. Why don't we take it straight to your room?"

Roderick suggested and Leonard nodded vigorously.

The two kids followed Roderick into their room.

Theresa saw Eugene and said, "What are you doing here?"

Theresa looked cold as she spoke.

Eugene said, "I'm here to see Cristina."

"You've broken up, haven't you?" Theresa looked at him and said, "I really don't know what you're thinking."

Theresa went into the kitchen to wash her hands.

Eugene said, "Is Cristina okay?"

"I guess so," Theresa said. "She eats and sleeps every day. She's fine. You're really a piece of work. Why did you come to her if you can't make her happy? I've been wrong about you, Eugene! The thing I regret most in that I introduced you to her and set you up with her."

Eugene said, "Sorry, it's my fault."

Theresa took a towel to wipe her hands. "Sorry? It doesn't help at all. Anyway, just get out of my place! You're an eyesore here."

"Actually, I came over today to ask you for a favor." Eugene looked at her sincerely.

Theresa said, "I can do nothing for you!"

"My mother is sick. Could you please take a look at her? Roderick told me to ask you. He said that you could do something about it."

Theresa paused and looked at Eugene. "Isn't your mother abroad?"

She heard from Jack earlier that Eugene's mother had been abroad.

Eugene said, "She has recently come back. Please let me know when you're available, okay?"

Chapter 663

Chapter 663

"I'm not available these days," Theresa said. "Ask someone else! I can put you in touch with Keith. He's quite famous."

"I can trust none other than you," Eugene said "I don't know Keith well and my mother is in a special condition." Hearing this. Theresa glanced at Eugene and noticed that he was looking at her sincerely. She was angry at the thought of how he had hurt Cristina.

However, she found her heart softened a bit when she saw the look in his eyes at the moment.

They had a lot of talk over lunch at home today because Roderick and Eugene were here.

Cristina sat at the table. She was displeased to see Eugene. "What are you doing here? Who told you to come?" Eugene lowered his eyes, looking like he didn't really want to talk to Cristina, and explained, "I'm here to see Theresa about something."

"What do you have to do with Theresa?" Cristina got angry when she saw him like this. "Don't show up in front of me if you can. It's annoying to see you!"

She thought of how he had treated her with disdain that day and found the man really annoying.

He had been courting her and then showed her that she was nothing in his eyes.

Thinking about it. Cristina felt ridiculous.

She had nearly thought that he was here for her today!

It turned out that she was wrong again!

Eugene did not say anything when he saw how much she resented him.

Roderick found it a bit awkward and took the initiative to change the subject by saying to Theresa, "Have you hired a lawyer for your lawsuit against Charlie? He has a great team of lawyers. You might lose if you don't find a better one. Do you want me to help you?"

"No, thanks" Theresa looked at Roderick and said, "You and Charlie are friends. I don't want you to get involved in the matter between him and me and have a hard time. I've already found a lawyer!" "Who did you find?" Roderick asked curiously.

Theresa said, "Joshua Browne."

Joshua was one of the top lawyers in Serameton and even in the country!

Roderick said, "Dick put you in touch with him?"

Theresa said, "Yeah."

Roderick said, "I knew it Joshua doesn't work for anyone but Dick. If you can hire him, you'll have a great chance to win the lawsuit against Charlie."

Theresa lowered her head and said. "He said I have a good chance and I trust him. Otherwise, I really don't know what to do!"

Cristina said, "It's that Joshua, huh? I often see him on the Law Channel. They say he's pretty good."

Theresa said, "Yes. It's the first time I've seen him in person"

"That's great!"

Roderick sat there and looked at Theresa with mixed feelings

Theresa asked, "What do you want to say, Dr. Hill?"

Roderick said, "Are you so close to Dick? He even helped you with the lawyer."

Theresa said, "I think so."

Roderick said with some concern, "I don't think you know much about the relationship between Charlie and Dick. Dick is a man who likes to work against Charlie. He'll do anything that will make Charlie unhappy. I think you should keep your distance from him."

Theresa frowned at Roderick's words and said, "My relationship with Dick is not what you think it is."

"What I think it is?" Roderick looked at her curiously.

Theresa put on a faint smile. "You think I'm using his dislike for Charlie to get close to him, don't you? You're afraid that he's going to take advantage of me. I'm telling you, he and I are not like that."

Chapter 664

Chapter 664

Dick was just one of her patients. No matter what kind of man he was, he would always be concerned about his health.

Except for that, he had nothing to do with Dick.

Roderick said, "I'm just warning you. I'm sorry if you don't like it."

Theresa looked at Roderick. "Thank you, Dr. Hill. I know you are doing it for my own good, but you don't have to worry too much about me. I am not a child."

Hearing them talk about Dick, Leonard said, "Mom, the gift from Uncle Dick is great."

They had taken the Lego out of the box just now when they were upstairs.

It was the first time Leonard had seen such a great gift, an out-of-print one at that. It made him very happy. Roderick glanced at Leonard. The boy didn't like Charlie while he liked Roderick and Dick. If Charlie found out about it, he would be pissed off.

Roderick turned to Leonard and said with a sad look, "So, you think Uncle Dick is better than Uncle Roderick now? I'm so sad. What do you want for your birthday, Leonard? I'll buy it for you."

Leonard looked at Roderick and said, "I love you too, Uncle Roderick. Mom, it would be great if Uncle Dick or Uncle Roderick could be my dad."

Hearing what Leonard said, everyone burst into laughter. Leonard looked at them seriously, not knowing why they were laughing.

Cristina watched the scene and said, "Dr. Hill, Leonard is so close to you. Why don't you and Theresa be together?"

Theresa reached out her hand and pinched Cristina, who screamed. "Stop talking nonsense!"

"Nonsense?" Cristina said. "I think Dr. Hill is much more reliable than Charlie! Look at Charlie, what kind of man is he? He's so annoying." Cristina wasn't there when Charlie tried to take the kids away. If she had been there, she would have taught him a good lesson. Theresa sighed. "Leonard is a little kid who doesn't know any better. How come you're so childish too?"

Cristina looked at Roderick despite what Theresa said. "Do you agree, Dr. Hill?"

Roderick cleared his throat. "Well, I'm afraid that Theresa won't like it."

"Theresa will like it if you agree! Right?" Cristina turned to Theresa.

Theresa said angrily, "I'd like to sew up your mouth!"

Roderick laughed. "Let's go for a walk this afternoon if you're free! We can go shopping with the kids. The festival is coming up. I'd like to buy them some gifts as their uncle and Charlie's friend." Roderick turned to Leonard and Ben. "Is that okay?"

Leonard and Ben nodded. "Sure."

They had been spending every day at home since the holiday began. They hadn't gone out for a long time. Cristina said, "I'm going with you. Theresa, let's go together!"

Theresa naturally had no problem with it. She looked at Eugene who didn't say anything. "What about you, Eugene?"

"I have something to do, so I'm going back after lunch," Eugene said to Theresa.

Theresa nodded. "Well then, that's okay!"

After lunch, Theresa helped her father with his acupuncture and went back to her room to find some clothes for Leonard and Ben.

Cristina got ready. She walked into the room and asked Theresa, "Is it true that Eugene came to see you?"

Theresa nodded. "Yes. His mother is sick, so he asked me to go and take a look at her."

"Why did he have to ask you? It's not like there's no hospital." Cristina said disgustedly.

Theresa looked over at her. "You don't want me to go?"

Cristina shook her head. "I'm not that narrow-minded, am I? It's fine as long as he pays. I think he'll pay you a lot!"

Chapter 665

Chapter 665

"Why don't you come with me then?" Theresa said. "It happens that I need an assistant."

Hearing that, Cristina said, "I'm not going. It's not like I want to see him."

"You don't want to see him?" Theresa asked.

Cristina paused.

She looked sad. "Do you think I'm really that bad? Otherwise, why did he dump me over and over again?"

She was quite upset inside.

Eugene had given her such a heavy blow that she started to have doubts about herself.

Cristina was not a confident person in the first place!

Although she always acted like she was tough, it was just because she didn't want people to see her vulnerability.

Thinking about it, Theresa found that Eugene was really a scumbag!

She said, "No, I don't think so. You are the best person in the world. I just hate that I am not a man. Otherwise, I would have married you."

"I don't mind that you are a woman."

Theresa couldn't help but pat Cristina after hearing her words. "Cut it out!"

Theresa helped the kids change. When they came downstairs, Eugene had already left.

Roderick was waiting for them downstairs.

The group went out shopping.

Theresa lived in a neighborhood that was not very busy. It was a bit far away from downtown, so they had to drive there.

It felt like they were taking Leonard and Ben into town from the countryside.

Since it was almost the holiday season, the mall was crowded with people. Roderick took the two kids with him while Theresa and Cristina followed them. The two kids looked extra excited because they hadn't been out for a while.

Soon, Roderick took them into a toy store.

Inside the store, Jake, Gentry's son, was standing there. "Auntie Rose, I want this one and that one too!"

He pointed at something on the shelf and said to Rose, who was standing next to him.

Jimmy was on holiday. He came out with Rose and brought Jake along.

The festival was coming up, so they planned to buy some gifts for the kid.

However, they hadn't expected Jake to be like this.

The kid was trying to get every toy he saw.

Rose said, "You have no place at home for so many toys!"

"Yes, I have." Jake grabbed Rose's hand. "Can you buy them for me? Auntie Rose, I know you're the nicest!"

At his age now, he was just a spoiled child who was keen on toys.

Rose was about to say something when she suddenly saw Roderick coming in with Leonard and Ben.

She was stunned to see them. Rose let go of Jake's hand and walked toward the door. "Uncle Roderick." Roderick looked over at Rose and smiled. "What a coincidence."

This was the largest shopping mall in Serameton. was no surprise to run into her here.

Rose's eyes fell on Leonard and Ben. "Leonard, and Ben, do you remember me? What are you doing here?"

Chapter 666

Chapter 666

With that, Rose turned to Roderick and said, "Aren't the kids at Theresa's? I heard that she refused to give them back."

Jimmy saw this and came over as well. He stood next to Rose and glanced at the two children.

Roderick said, "I came with Theresa."

"Theresa? Where is she?" It was Jimmy who asked.

Roderick glanced at Jimmy with a strange expression.

Why was Jimmy so concerned about Theresa?

Who did he think he was?

Roderick said with a polite smile on his face and a cold look in his eyes, "Mr. Watson, your wife is right next to you. Do you think it's a good idea to care so much about another woman?"

Upon hearing Roderick's words, Jimmy froze and shut up immediately.

He was just surprised that Roderick could take out these two children.

Rose glanced at Jimmy and explained for him, "Jim is just concerned about Leonard and Ben. We're all concerned about them. You know, Uncle Roderick, we're so worried these days. What's wrong with Theresa? What is she thinking? They are not her kids. Why did she take them away? Uncle Charlie is so nice to her! Otherwise, she would have been arrested and put in jail"

Roderick heard Rose's words and realized how stupid she was when she was in love. She was still trying to defend Jimmy at this point. "I don't like it when you talk bad about Theresa in front of me." Rose stiffened. She looked at Roderick and said, "You're so close to Theresa, Uncle Roderick?"

She had felt that Roderick had a good relationship with Theresa before.

However, she had assumed that it was just because of Charlie back then.

She hadn't expected that Roderick would still be so protective of Theresa after Theresa had divorced Charlie.

Seeing that Roderick was displeased, she dropped the subject, walked over, and hugged Ben. "Ben, it's been a long time. Give me a kiss."

Ben glanced at Rose, reached out his hands, and pushed her away.

He didn't like Rose!

This woman was not nice to his mom at all!

Rose looked at Ben, who was cold to her. She knew he had always disliked her, but she didn't care.

Rose said, "Do you want to go home and see Grandpa and Grandma, Ben? Let me take you home! Look, you haven't been home for a long time."

Now that she met them here today, she wanted to seize the opportunity.

Roderick said, "We're here to buy something and then we'll go back to Theresa's place. I don't think you can take them to the Calsis family."

Rose looked pleadingly at Roderick. "Stop it, Uncle Roderick. I believe you know how Theresa took the kids away. They should have gone back to the Calsis family. Why are you still speaking up for Theresa now? You can't do that even if you are close to her! Aren't you and Uncle Charlie friends?"

"Yes, Charlie and I are friends," Roderick said. "But I wouldn't agree even if Charlie were here trying to take the kids back. No one can take them away without Theresa's permission!"

Theresa was the guardian of these two children.

Even if the police were called, they would uphold her rights as a mother.

Rose looked at Roderick. "Are you serious?"

Roderick did not answer her. He just said, "Leonard, and Ben, let's see what they have here."

It was a big toy store, with all kinds of high-end toys!

Jake was looking around in the store. He was not happy to see that Rose went to Leonard and Ben as soon as they came in.

Ben took a box down from the shelf, which was supposed to contain colorful pens. He had just taken it over when Jake snatched it away. Ben looked at the chubby Jake. "It's you!"

Jake was out with his mother when Ben met him last time. Ben still remembered what had happened then. Jake proudly said, "This is mine!"

"You didn't pay for it. Why is it yours?" Ben said. "It was sitting on the shelf."

"I want all the things here." Jake looked around and said with immense pride. "Do you know who my auntie is? Grandpa said she was amazing! She is so rich that she can buy anything." Hearing Jake's words, Ben had to go with Leonard to the other side.

However, no matter what they looked at, Jake would come over and grab it, saying that he would buy it.

Chapter 667

Chapter 667

There were so many things here in the store!

Why did Jake have to do that? Ben didn't know what to say.

Leonard glanced at Ben, took what Ben had just looked at back from Jake, and gave it to Ben. "Take it."

Ben looked at Leonard. "Mom told us not to snatch others' things."

"It's not his."

Leonard glared at Jake and clenched his little fists. Seeing that, Jake thought of how Leonard had beaten him last time and he burst into tears.

Jake ran crying to Jimmy and said, "Uncle Jimmy, I was bullied He was crying so loudly as if he wanted everyone to hear him.

Jimmy looked at him. "Who bullied you?"

"They grabbed my stuff!" Jake pointed at Leonard and Ben who were selecting what they wanted.

Jimmy followed Jake over and took a look at Leonard and Ben. "What's going on?"

He didn't like these two kids either.

In his memory, they were not cute at all, and nor were they as polite as Jake.

Every time they saw Jimmy, these two kids always had a cold look as if he owed them money.

Now when Jake complained, Jimmy finally had a chance to lecture them.

He felt like he was lecturing Charlie!

Ben said, "My brother and I were just looking for what we wanted, but he kept messing with us."

"Really?" Jimmy said. "Do you think you could bully him just because he was messing with you? I wonder how Theresa teaches her kids. Why have you ended up like this?"

Jimmy was sure that these kids would never be cute as long as they had something to do with Theresa!

He hadn't dared to scold them when they were at Charlie's before. Now that Theresa had divorced Charlie, he wasn't afraid to teach them a lesson.

Hearing that, Roderick could not help but speak up for Leonard and Ben. "I have been watching them. It's no big deal. Leonard and Ben did not do anything wrong."

Jimmy looked at Roderick and said sardonically, "You're a friend of Charlie's. Dr. Hill. Of course, you'll defend his kids. However, Jake is my sister's son and the apple of her eye. He is the only child in the family. Don't you think it's too much to bully him like that?"

Roderick retorted when he heard what Jimmy said. "If you could say such things, it is not surprising that the boy would be like this. You shouldn't have spoiled him so much if you love him."

"So, you're spoiling the two kids?"

Jimmy retorted straight away.

Roderick said, "I remember that you were a gentleman, Mr. Watson. Why are you so unreasonable now? What does Rose see in you?"

Jimmy's face darkened at Roderick's words. He sneered, "So the reasonable one deserves to be bullied?"

"Do you know what you're talking about? I'm not so bored to bully a kid."

"What's wrong?" Rose came over to see Jimmy and Roderick both talking with some anger. She turned to Jake, who took the opportunity to complain, "Auntie Rose, they bullied me!" With that, he pointed at Leonard and Ben.

Rose said, "Did you bully Jake, Leonard, and Ben? You mustn't do that. Speaking of which, he has to call you uncles."

Rose was Leonard and Ben's cousin while she was Jake's aunt.

In theory, Leonard and Ben were Jake's uncles, even though they were a year younger than him.

Rose didn't want to offend Leonard and Ben right now. She looked at Jake and said, "Jake, they are my cousins, so you can call them uncles from now on."

Jake was not happy to hear that. "Why? They are so young, even younger than me!"

Rose laughed. "Come on. Call them uncles and I'll buy you anything you want, okay?" Hearing this, Jake looked at Rose and then at Leonard and Ben.

Chapter 668

Chapter 668

Jake was reluctant, but he was tempted by the thought that he could get all those gifts if he did.

Jake said, "Uncles."

Jimmy suddenly came over and picked up the boy, saying, "You don't have to do that. I'll buy you those things!"

With that, Jimmy glanced at Rose and said angrily, "Whom are you trying to humiliate by talking like that?"

Rose actually told Jake to call those kids uncles when Jimmy was already pissed off at Roderick.

How could Jimmy stand it?

Rose was stunned. She hadn't expected that Jimmy would suddenly get so mad.

She had upset him?

Rose said, "I'm not trying to humiliate anyone."

Jimmy gave her a disgusted look and carried Jake straight out of the store.

Jake said, "I want those things! Please put me down, Uncle Jimmy."

"No!" Jimmy scolded him. "Keep your dignity. I can buy those things for you if you want them."

Jimmy didn't think it was a big deal.

"Really? Let's go and buy them now."

"We'll come back later."

Theresa and Cristina took a look at the children's clothes next door and decided to buy some. When they left the Calais family, neither of the kids had much winter clothing. Cristina said she would buy one set for each of them.

Cristina and Theresa had just come out when they bumped into Jimmy.

Jimmy was carrying Jake in his arms. Jake was chubby and heavy, but Jimmy was tall and strong, so he didn't have much trouble carrying Jake.

Seeing Theresa, Jimmy stopped in his tracks and let go of Jake, who struggled in his arms, trying to get back into the toy store.

Theresa hadn't expected to meet Jimmy here. She decided to ignore him. She and Cristina were going to look for the kids when Jimmy suddenly grabbed her arm. Theresa looked at the man. "What are you doing?"

"You still dare to come out shopping like this after stealing Charlie's children?"

Jimmy hadn't seen Theresa since she and Charlie divorced.

Now that he met her, he had to talk to her about it.

Theresa said, "Even if I stole his children, you have no right to say anything about it! Don't you think so, my first ex-husband?"

Jimmy's face darkened.

Cristina stood next to Theresa and snickered at the scene. "Are you trying to harass her in public, Mr. Watson? I'll call the police right away."

This pervert still dared to do that to Theresa now. Cristina got angry when she saw it!

Jimmy took a look at Cristina and said sarcastically, "You're the woman who gave birth to Charlie's children and failed to marry into his family?" Jimmy knew that Cristina was the kids' mother.

He and Rose had expected Cristina to take Theresa's place, but later, they found that they had been wrong!

Cristina didn't drive Theresa away. Instead, she became Theresa's friend!

Now, she even came here shopping with Theresa, who had taken the two children!

Jimmy thought that Theresa was so emboldened because she had won Cristina's support.

Cristina laughed disdainfully at Jimmy's words. "I failed to marry into his family? Why do I have to marry into his family? All people are not like you, who tried to live a better life by marrying into the Calsis family. Am I right, Mr. Watson?"

"You..." Jimmy looked at Cristina angrily.

Chapter 669

Chapter 669

Theresa was afraid that he would use violence and said, "What? You want to beat us up? I dare you!"

Jimmy looked at Theresa and said, "Why wouldn't I dare? Do you think you are still Mrs. Calsis now and Charlie will come to help you?"

Theresa said, "I don't know if Charlie will help me, but I know I could get you out of Dick's company."

Jimmy was angrier when Theresa mentioned Dick. He had been doing well at the White's Group, but now he had to settle for a small place like the Cameron's Group because of Theresa.

It was not even as big as Gentry's company!

Jimmy said, "If you hate me so much, why do you let me go to the company of your family? Do you still have feelings for me, Theresa?"

"I didn't know you are not only ugly but also good at daydreaming."

"I'm ugly?" Jimmy said. "Even if I am ugly, you fell in deep love with me, didn't you? The wedding photos that were taken when we got married are still kept at my place. Do you want to have a look at them?" Theresa looked at Jimmy. She knew that he had been afraid to get involved with her before. He didn't want Rose to know that he had been married to her.

Now...

He was trying to humiliate her with the fact that she had been married to him.

How shameless he was!

Cristina said, "You are so shameless, Jimmy! You are a married man. How can you talk like that? Does your wife know?"

Jimmy wouldn't have dared to talk like that in front of Rose before.

Jimmy had a look of disgust in his eyes when Cristina mentioned his wife. He was still angry with Rose now!

The thought of Rose made Jimmy speechless.

Anyway, she was not much use to him now, so he didn't care what she would think anymore.

Just then, Rose came out of the toy store and saw Jimmy standing there and talking to Theresa.

Rose was stunned to see that. Theresa ignored Rose and tried to leave when Jimmy reached out his hand and stopped her. "I have something to talk to you about."

"I don't have anything to talk to you about!" Theresa pushed him away.

Jimmy said, "It's about the company of your family. Are you sure you don't want to talk about it?"

"You can go and talk to my father."

"Your father is sick now and you still have the heart to bother him? What an ungrateful daughter you are!"

Theresa looked at Jimmy. "Stop it. It's disgusting! By the way, your wife is here"

Theresa glanced at Rose who had just come out of the toy store and walked in with Cristina.

As they passed by Rose, Theresa didn't say hello to her.

Seeing that Theresa and Cristina had gone into the toy store, Rose walked over to Jimmy and looked at him.

"What were you talking to Theresa about?"

Jimmy said very coldly, "I don't need to tell you, do I?"

"Why did you get angry all of a sudden? I just told Jake to call Leonard and Ben uncles. They are my cousins, so Jake should call them uncles."

Rose and Jimmy had been talking about Theresa recently. She didn't understand why Jimmy refused to tell her what he talked to Theresa about.

"I had to call Charlie uncle before. How many years older is he than me? Why did I have to do that? It's because of you. If so, what should I call Johnson? I've had enough of it. I don't think Jake has to put up with Rose looked at Jimmy. "It's about the ranking in my family. What can I do? What's wrong with that?"

She ranked as a junior in the family and never felt anything wrong about it.

"Of course, you don't find it wrong!" Jimmy said. "I really feel too tired sometimes. We might as well get divorced."

"What?" Rose looked at him in disbelief. She hadn't expected that Jimmy would want to divorce her.

Chapter 670

Rose froze for a moment and instantly told herself to calm down. She said, "Well, I know you're angry. You don't like what Roderick said, right? It's okay if you don't want Jake to call them uncles! I shouldn't have done that today."

Jimmy didn't say anything.

Rose said, "However, I was heartbroken when you wanted to divorce me because of such trivial matters. How could you say something like that so easily if you really love me? Do you know how sad I am?" Back then, all her family members told her to leave him.

For him, she gave up her nice and comfortable life and came to the Watson family.

In the Watson family, her life was naturally not as good as it used to be. Sometimes, she had to do housework at home.

She believed that it was the right thing to do as long as the two of them loved each other.

However, she hadn't expected Jimmy to say something like that!

Seeing how aggrieved Rose looked, Jimmy said, "How sad can you be? They all think I don't deserve you. and I'm trying to live off you in the marriage. Tell me honestly, do you think I've taken advantage of you by marrying you? No. In fact, I even lost my job for which I had worked hard for years because I got married. to you. No wonder they call you a jinx."

Jimmy thought he had given much more than what he had gained. The more he thought about it now, the angrier he felt.

He suspected that Rose had brought him bad luck.

"What did you say?" Rose looked at Jimmy. She couldn't believe that he was calling her a jinx.

She said to Jimmy, "You know I hate it when people say that about me. They all think my mother died. because of me and that she wouldn't have had the accident if she hadn't rushed back for my birthday. You would never say that about me before, and now you're saying that?"

Jimmy said, "That's because I didn't know better before, but I do now!"

He was so angry that he had no qualms about talking to her like that.

Just as Jimmy finished his sentence, Rose raised her hand and slapped him across the face.

Looking at the man, she was so angry that her hand was trembling. "Jimmy, you are such a jerk!"

With that, she cried and ran away.

Jimmy coldly watched her leave instead of going after her.

He would surely try to coax her if she was still part of the Nandlall family. Now that her family had disowned her, he wasn't afraid of her anymore.

He went back to the toy store and saw Jake looking at the toys there. Roderick had bought Leonard and Ben what they wanted. The two kids weren't greedy and the toys they wanted weren't expensive. They each chose just one and came out.

In contrast, Jake took more toys than he could hold. He wanted to take the whole store away!

When Jimmy walked up to Jake, Jake said, "Uncle Jimmy, I want all of them."

Jimmy said, "Well, let's go home!"

Seeing Jimmy come back alone, Roderick asked, "Where's Rose?"

Rose had just gone out!

Theresa looked at the door when she heard Jimmy's words, but Rose wasn't there.

Jimmy said, "It's none of your business."

With that, he left with Jake straight away.

Out of the toy store, Theresa and Cristina went to buy clothes for the two kids. Roderick looked around and found Rose.

She was crouching in a corner alone, with no one to comfort her at all.

Roderick wasn't stupid. He could tell from what happened today that Jimmy's attitude toward Rose was much worse than before. He walked over and said, "Rose."

Hearing his voice, Rose hurriedly wiped away her tears.

Roderick squatted down. "You had a fight with Jimmy?"

"No." Rose denied.

After leaving her family for Jimmy and marrying into his family, she didn't want anyone to know about it when she was aggrieved in the Watson family.

After all, it was her choice in the first place. They would only laugh at her if she had a bad time now! Roderick said, "I'm going to the Calsis family later. Do you want to come with me?" Rose said, "No."

Roderick looked at her and said, "Actually, you should talk to your family if you have been aggrieved at Jimmy's place. You don't have to hide it. Jimmy is not a good man and they want you to find out about him. I believe you know that everyone in your family loves you very much. They'll help you if you ask them."

Rose said, "No, they'll just laugh at me."

Roderick said, "Don't be silly."

Out of the mall, Theresa and Cristina were about to go home with the kids when they saw Roderick coming with Rose. Theresa glanced at Rose, who didn't say a word behind Roderick.

Roderick said, "I'm not coming back to your place, Theresa. I'm going to go to the Calsis family and I'll see you guys later!" Theresa asked in a low voice, "Is she okay?"

Rose, who had sharp ears, heard Theresa's words. She looked at Theresa with displeasure and said, "Of course."

Rose was annoyed when she heard Theresa speaking, thinking that Theresa was probably laughing at her secretly right now! Roderick took a look at Rose's back and found that she was really hostile to Theresa.

He said to Theresa, "I'll leave now. Be careful on your way back."

Theresa nodded. "Okay."

Roderick saw Chandler sitting on the couch when he took Rose back to the Calsis family.

Roderick was surprised. "You're back, Chandler?"

He hadn't heard the news before.

Chandler looked at Roderick and nodded. "Yeah."

He turned to Rose, his niece who had followed Roderick in, and said, "Hello, Rose."

Rose hadn't wanted to come to the Calsis family. She had been wondering as she came in what she should say when she saw them.

She hadn't expected to see Chandler first. "Hello, Uncle Chandler."

Unlike the rest of the family, Rose always felt that she had been forced to leave the Calsis family. She thought they were mean to Jimmy and that was why she had to leave. Now, in this family, probably only Chandler had not forced her.

Rose felt better when she thought of this. She walked over and said to Chandler, "When did you get back?"

"Yesterday. What's wrong?" Chandler said. "You're looking upset."

Just then, Leticia came out. Rose stopped talking to Chandler and said, "Hello, Grandma."

Roderick said hello to Leticia and asked, "Is Charlie here?"

Chapter 672

Chapter 672

"He's upstairs." Leticia was a little upset when she said this.

"I'll go check on him."

After saying that, Roderick went upstairs.

Leticia looked at Rose, "Why did you suddenly come over?"

Rose didn't say anything about Jimmy but just said, "I saw Theresa at the mall today, who was with Cristina and the two kids. Grandma, why haven't you brought the kids back yet?"

Leticia said, "The two kids were fine at Theresa's and they liked living there, so, we didn't bring them back. What's wrong?"

Rose said, "But Theresa has divorced my Uncle Charlie, and it's not good to still let the kids live with her, right?"

Looking at Rose, Leticia said, "Don't worry about that, as we know what to do. Your Uncle Chandler is back and you can talk to him for a while!"

Rose knew Leticia didn't want her involved in this, but she couldn't help but insist on her thoughts.

"I've heard that Theresa is getting close to Dick, which could probably hurt the kids."

"It won't happen." Leticia turned to Rose and said, "Don't say anything bad about your Aunt Theresa in the future and don't believe what Jimmy says. I know that you and Jimmy don't like her, but she's a nice person."

Leticia didn't like Theresa before, but after knowing the truth between her and Jimmy, she was less annoyed with Theresa.

On the contrary, when she saw Rose standing on Jimmy's side and saying bad things about Theresa, she couldn't help but speak for Theresa.

Rose looked at Leticia in disbelief and said, "You trust her this much? You weren't like this before! Grandma, how can you take her side? Those two kids are my Uncle Charlie's!"

"Why is grandma treating Theresa better now? Didn't she used to only care about those two kids?"

"They were already divorced!"

"You don't know what's going on at home, so don't get involved." Leticia got a little angry. Today, Theresa said that she would not be with Charlie, which meant that the two little ones could only choose one. Between their parents in the future, so, she didn't feel very good.

She said sadly to Rose, "In the final analysis, you guys can't escape responsibility for Theresa's divorce from your Uncle Charlie. If it wasn't for you targeting her all the time, would she want to leave here so badly? Look at what you've become with Jimmy. Are you brainless? Will you believe whatever Jimmy says? Even if you were being used by him, you wouldn't know it."

"..." Rose had good intentions in caring for Leonard and Ben.

And she made Jimmy unhappy today because of the two kids.

But she didn't expect her grandma would scold her when she spoke of Leonard and Ben after coming back.

Her tears fell at once, "I just care about Leonard and Ben. Do you think I'm bad-mouthing Theresa? You don't like me at all, so, you think everything I do is wrong." Looking at her who was crying, Leticia felt more annoyed, "Why are you crying? It's New Year's Eve. If your don't want to come back, then don't! Whenever I see you now, I will think of that scum, Jimmy. If you hadn't married him, how could there be so much trouble?" "Mom." Seeing his mother getting angrier and angrier, Chandler opened his mouth to persuade.

He didn't understand why his mother was so angry today!

Leticia said, "Forget it. I don't even want to mention it."

She stood up and left the living room.

Chandler looked over at Rose and said, "Are you okay? Your grandmother is not in a good mood today, so don't say anything she doesn't want to hear." Rose said aggrievedly, "I'm just worried about my Uncle Charlie's kids. Am I wrong?"

"Don't worry." Chandler said, "I'm back now, and everything will be fine."

He had already communicated with Dick, who wouldn't do anything.

Dick still showed him some respect.

Otherwise, it was impossible for nothing to happen when the two have been in competition for so long.

Rose glanced at Chandler, who also seemed to support Theresa to take the two children away.

She didn't know what was wrong with the world, and she couldn't understand it, so she angrily said, "Uncle Chandler, I'm out of here" "You're not staying for dinner?"

#Chapter 673

Chapter 673

Chapter 673

Looking around the house, Rose said sadly, "Forget it. I've been an outcast since the day Theresa married in."

She should not have returned to this place after she left it in the first place.

She was already in a bad mood, and now she felt even worse after hearing Leticia's words.

She stood up and left the Calsis Villa directly.

She wanted to go back to Watson's Residence but didn't feel good about it, so she simply found a hotel and got room to stay.

Roderick arrived upstairs and sat down with Charlie.

He glanced at Charlie, "I went to see Leonard and Ben today."

"How are they?"

"Charlie, you're a father, and you can't just think about your own feelings when you do something." When he thought that Leonard and Ben were unhappy when Charlie was mentioned, Roderick couldn't help but come over to communicate with Charlie about the issue today.

Hearing this, Charlie looked at Roderick and asked, "What did I do? Don't say that to me, and I hate your make it sound like I'm abusing my kids."

Roderick said, "If I didn't do it for your two kids, do you think I would come to you? Can't you just talk to Theresa properly? Why did you take the child away by force?"

"I just want to bring them back. Is that wrong?" Charlie sat down on the couch and adjusted his sitting position, "What? Theresa thought she was aggrieved, so, she came to you with a complaint?"

Roderick said, "Of course, she wouldn't tell me that. Do you have to do like that? Why do you get so angry when she's mentioned? Ben was so fond of you before. Do you know how much you have hurt him by this matter?"

Charlie was stunned for a moment when he heard that. Thinking of the little one, he lowered his voice,

"How is he?"

"When I went there today, he was very upset. I've never seen him like this before! To him, you were the hero in his heart, but when you came with someone to take him and Leonard away by force, your image in his heart changed, you know?"

Hearing this, Charlie felt a little remorseful, with his voice lowered, "I didn't want to do this either. It's just that now that I'm divorced from Theresa, I can't keep indulging him and Leonard to live with Theresa. If Theresa had given me the kids, there wouldn't have been any of those things."

Roderick said, "If you want to take the children back, I cannot interfere with your decision. After all, it's human nature. It's just that you have to consider more for the two kids and not let them grow up in a shadow. If that's the case, even if you forcefully take them back, they won't like you."

Charlie sat aside in silence.

Seeing Charlie's regret, Roderick said, "I added Ben on WhatsApp for you, and you can talk to him later."

Ben had a WhatsApp account that he didn't often use.

They didn't live together now, but if Charlie could have a chat with Ben, which might change Charlie's image, in the minds of his two children.

Charlie picked up his phone that was on the table and saw that there was a message from a new friend who had added him.

He said to Roderick, "Thanks!"

Although the two were always against each other, Roderick was Charlie's good friend anyway.

Roderick looked at Charlie, "That's not necessary, and it will be okay if you don't make me angry. I'm doing this for your own good. I don't care what happens with you and Theresa, and I just want the two kids to be less hurt because they're so pathetic."

"I feel so sad for the two kids who didn't have a father and were called feral by others since they were born."

Theresa and Cristina were in the kitchen preparing tomorrow's dishes while Leonard and Ben sat on the couch. Ben was watching TV.

Charlie, who was at home, sent a message to Ben after thinking about it, [Ben.]

Seeing the message pop up, Ben froze and then suddenly got up from the couch and ran upstairs.

Leonard sat on the couch and took a look at Ben's back as he sneaked away.

Back in his room, Ben opened WhatsApp and saw that Charlie had passed his friend request and sent a message over. Seeing this, Ben froze.

'It was a message from dad!'

But, when he thought of Charlie's fierce look that day, he was a little hesitant.

Ben liked Charlie a lot, but he liked Theresa even more.

Chapter 674

Chapter 674

Like Leonard, he also wanted to protect his mom and was afraid that she would be bullied.

When Ben didn't reply, Charlie said, [It's Dad's fault for what happened before. Please forgive me. I heard your Uncle Roderick say that when he went to see you, you are still angry with me, right?] As he looked at the words, Ben's tears suddenly fell.

He wiped his tears, aggrieved.

Charlie said, [If you want to talk to me, make a video call to me, okay? Can you?]

Ben was so young that Charlie didn't know if he could make video calls on WhatsApp.

Ben replied, [Yes, I can.]

"Of course, I can!"

"I'm a smart baby, and I've been familiar with these things online."

Seeing this, Charlie took the initiative to make the video call.

Ben quickly answered it!

In the video, Charlie looked at Ben and said, "You're crying?"

Ben said, "Dad, are you a bad person?"

.." Hearing him say this as soon as he saw him, Charlie froze and said helplessly, "Of course not. I you the most."

"So, you'll take me away from my mom?"

Hearing this, Charlie frowned and said, "I just want you and Leonard to come back to me."

Watching the little one become like this, Charlie couldn't help but wonder if he was really wrong in agreeing to divorce Theresa before! The two little ones had been brainwashed by Theresa.

So, it became so hard for him to get them back.

Ben said, "I'm fine here. I like being with my mom and I don't want to be separated from her."

"Got it." Charlie said, "I won't do things like that in the future, okay?"

"Really?" Ben asked, somewhat skeptically.

Charlie said, "Of course."

"You can't lie to me," Ben said in his baby voice.

Charlie instantly became soft at heart.

He smiled crookedly, "I will not lie to you. So, do you miss me?"

"Yes." He missed Charlie, but he was also afraid that Charlie would take him away and prevent him from being with Theresa.

So, he was torn and sullen.

Charlie said, "What do you want for a New Year's gift? I'll send it to you tomorrow and check on you."

"I like whatever you give me."

"Where's Leonard?" Charlie asked.

"He's downstairs."

Charlie said, "Are you in the room by yourself?"

Ben nodded, "Hmm. Dad, Leonard hates you in particular right now."

When he heard Ben say this, Charlie's face darkened.

Looking at his serious look, Ben said in some fear, "Dad, are you angry?"

Charlie felt ashamed, "No, I'm not that boring, not angry."

'Forget it. Why did I blame a child? I was the one who should be blamed for not teaching them well!"

Chapter 675

Chapter 675

Charlie said, "It's okay. Don't tell your mom about me messaging you."

Ben said, "Oh."

He didn't want to tell his mom either, because his mom was still angry with his dad right now.

If she knew, she should be upset!

"Dad, do you love Mom?" Ben said, "Do you hate her a lot?"

." Thinking about Theresa, Charlie had very mixed feelings about her.

He loved her and was only attracted to her.

But what she did recently really touched his bottom line.

Ben turned to Charlie and said, "Actually, my mom misses you."

"Yeah?" Hearing this, Charlie raised an eyebrow, "She told you that?"

There was some expectation in Charlie's tone when he asked this.

Theresa would miss him, which sounded so unreal.

Thinking of her badmouthing him, saying he was impotent, Charlie got a little angry.

But he still hoped in his heart... that she still kept him in mind.

And she still had feelings for him.

Ben said, "She often secretly looks at your pictures."

"..." Charlie froze and unconsciously smiled faintly, "Oh."

Ben looked at Charlie and said, "Dad, is the aunt out there prettier than my mom?"

What Ben asked made Charlie confused...

Charlie said, "Which outside aunt?"

"Sarah..."

Charlie said, "I don't have anything to do with her."

"Then whom do you think is better looking, her or my mom?"

Charlie was a little ashamed to find out that the little guy wasn't really very good to deal with.

Charlie said, "Which one of your moms are you referring to?"

Couldn't be Cristina he was referring to?

He didn't want to fall into his trap.

Ben looked at Charlie and rolled his eyes at Charlie, "Dad, you're so stupid. I'm referring to Theresa, of course."

"Oh." Thinking of Theresa's look, Charlie said, "Of course, Theresa is better looking. I'm not blind!"

Even though he was being fooled by her like this now, he still thought she looked good!

"But you don't love Theresa."

"Who told you I don't love her?" Charlie said defensively, "She always made me angry, and it was her love for another man that made me divorce her. I also wanted you to stay with her forever, but she didn't want to"

"She did." Ben said, "Just be nice to her! The men on the Internet are all very nice to their girlfriends. You're so mean that my mom doesn't dare to love you."

"..." Charlie found that Ben had actually come up with ideas with him.

Good lord. His four-year-old son had become a relationship expert to teach him how to pursue women.

After Theresa and Cristina got breakfast ready, Theresa went to call her father, Johnson before coming to Ben.

She knocked on the door before pushing it open.

Even though the kids were young, she would knock on the door first.

Upon opening the door, she saw Ben sitting on the couch, tablet in hand.

Theresa asked, "Why did you come to your bedroom?"

Just now he was downstairs, and in the blink of an eye, he wasn't there.

Ben was surprised, "Mom."

"You were just on the air?" She seemed to have heard him talking before she came in.

Ben wisely changed the subject, "Can we eat?"

He ran over and hugged Theresa.

Theresa took his hand, "Mmm."

"What's for dinner today?"

"All your favorite foods."

Chapter 676

Chapter 676

On New Year's Eve, they got up early in the morning.

Even Johnson, who was usually in poor health, got up and wanted to help Theresa with something.

The family went about preparing the New Year's Eve dinner.

Leonard and Ben were also busy with their own things.

In the afternoon, Theresa was busy in the kitchen when someone suddenly came. Ben and Leonard went to answer the door, and Ben walked ahead, very happy because he thought it was Charlie, but it turned out that it was Dick who came.

Leonard saw Dick and said, "Uncle Dick."

Dick looked at Leonard and then his gaze fell on Ben, who was on the sidelines.

Leonard said, "This is Ben, my younger brother."

"You look the same." Before when Dick saw Leonard, he was shocked already, and now when he saw these two identical kids, he could hardly describe how he felt inside, but just looked at them with shock. "We are twins, so we look the same." Seeing him looking at them, Leonard explained.

"Did you get the gift?" Dick asked.

Leonard nodded, "Thank you for your gift, and I like it very much."

Mr. Garson followed and looked at Dick, whom he had never seen so interested in other people's children.

Cristina came out with a plate and put it on the table, seeing Dick come in with Leonard and Ben, followed by Mr. Garson.

She hadn't seen Dick before, so, she asked, "You are..."

Mr. Garson said, "Hello, is Dr. Cameron home?"

Seeing Cristina's confused look, Ben introduced, "This is Uncle Dick."

Hearing this, Cristina froze. He was Dick!

'This man in front of me is Dick?'

'He looks pretty handsome!'

She quickly ran into the kitchen and said to Theresa, who was busy, "Dick is coming over."

Theresa froze, "It's New Year's Day. What's he doing here?"

She had told Mr. Garson that she would not go over to his place as she was taking a day off from acupuncture today.

But she didn't expect them to come over after all!

She told Dick that day that he should not come over in the future!

Cristina said, "This is the first time I've seen Dick, and he's quite handsome! He's not quite what they say he is! It would be great if you could be with him." Theresa, "..."

Theresa couldn't help but admire Cristina for her dedication to matchmaking, and Theresa said,

"Yesterday when Dr. Hill came over, you said you wanted me to be with him. Why have you changed your mind today?"

Cristina said, "Of course, I want you to find a nice guy. Dick is so good, and he's still the deadly foe of Charlie."

"You don't like Charlie that much?"

Cristina said, "What, you feel sorry for him? Don't feel sorry for him. Or you are the one who suffers in the end. He didn't consider your feelings as a mother when he wanted to take the child away." "I just don't want to mention him. It's New Year's Eve, so let's say something nice."

Thinking about Charlie, Theresa had mixed feelings.

When she was sleeping last night, she thought about the days she spent with him again....

Charlie really helped her a lot at that time.

Other than the fact that he wanted to take Leonard and Ben away didn't make her comfortable, she could think of nothing but good things about him.

But now she's about to face him in court.

What an irony!

When Theresa came out of the kitchen, she saw Dick sitting on the couch while Johnson was talking to him about business matters.

When Theresa saw this, she waved to Mr. Garson who was off to the side.

Seeing her, Mr. Garson came over, "Dr. Cameron."

Theresa said seriously, "Didn't I say not to let Mr. White come over to my place? I'll go to see him after these two days, and it bothers me so much with what you did."

Chapter 677

Chapter 677

Mr. Garson said, "Mr. White said he wanted to come over to see the kids. And... it's New Year's Day. Can you let him spend New Year's Eve with you?"

"Huh?" Theresa asked in disbelief, "Why? Aren't New Year's Eve supposed to be spent with the family?" "Mr. White's family are not here, and he has spent New Year's Eve by himself all these years. I see that your place is quite lively. If possible, I hope you can let him join you."

Speaking of that, Mr. Garson glanced at Dick from a distance.

He looked cold.

Mr. Garson looked to Theresa with pleading, "Is it okay? Dr. Cameron, we promise not to cause any trouble."

Theresa said, "I... actually don't want him to come here."

"Why?"

"I'm afraid he'll hurt my children." Theresa looked to Mr. Garson and said, "He and Charlie have a bad relationship, so it's not good for me to get so close to him."

Dick had a bad temper, and she still remembered the situation in his house when she first met him.

Plus, Dick was unkind to Charlie.

So, Theresa very regretted letting these two kids show up in front of Dick.

She should have hidden them.

Hearing Theresa's words, Mr. Garson said, "Don't worry, Mr. White won't hurt the kids. Even for the sake of Mr. Calsis, he wouldn't do it."

"Is that so?" Theresa was full of doubt.

Mr. Garson said, "We've known each other for a while. You still can't trust me?"

Hearing Mr. Garson say that, Theresa reluctantly nodded, "All right. But this is the last time. In the future, you don't let him come over again."

Theresa understood the feeling of not being able to spend New Year's Eve with the family. In fact, she also felt that it was extra lively this New Year's Eve because her father was here. Mr. Garson said, "Thank you, Dr. Cameron."

The New Year's Eve dinner was almost ready.

Just then, Leah came over.

She hadn't come over since Theresa kicked her out that day, but Johnson was here, and she still wanted their property, so she couldn't really not come to Johnson.

Because Dick was here last time, she couldn't do anything with Theresa.

She thought Dick couldn't still be here today because it was New Year's Eve!

But when she walked in with Sarah, she found Dick sitting on the couch in the living room.

He was here all the time!

Seeing Dick chatting with Johnson, Leah walked over and said, "Mr. White is here, too!"

She had wanted to take advantage of today to teach Theresa a lesson and then pick Johnson up from her before Johnson confusedly left his company to Theresa behind her back.

As a result,...

When she saw Dick, she was immediately scared.

Johnson said, "Why are you guys here?"

"It's New Year's Eve, so, of course, I have to come over to see you," Leah said awkwardly.

With Dick here, she looked very reserved.

Johnson gave her a look and didn't kick her out.

He didn't want to upset everyone on New Year's Eve.

After chatting with Johnson for a few minutes, Leah felt it was too stressful to sit with Dick, so she stood up and went to help in the kitchen.

Seeing Theresa, she said, "Are you done yet? Let me help you!"

Leah was not a good person, but she was a good cook. It was said that when she was with Johnson in the first place, it was her cooking skills that attracted Johnson. Theresa looked at her, "Auntie, why are you coming over?"

Leah said, "Why can't I come? Your dad is here for New Year's Eve, and I certainly can't leave him alone. What? You still expect me to divorce your dad?"

Chapter 678

Chapter 678

She was going to pick Johnson up, but now, she had to stay here because she didn't dare to say anything!

Theresa said, "Of course, I know you won't get a divorce because you still can't part with my family's property."

Leah rolled her eyes at Theresa, "Theresa, you don't have to be so sarcastic, and I've been with your father for years. Whether you admit it or not, I'm his wife."

Theresa said, "Yes."

Theresa was not stupid and she knew this.

On this particular day, she didn't bother to say much.

Leah didn't dare to upset her either, especially when Dick was still here.

After being busy in the kitchen for a while, when Leah saw Dick still sitting on the couch, she asked Theresa in a whisper, "Isn't today New Year's Eve? What's Dick doing here? When is he leaving?" Looking at her so scared of Dick, Theresa said, "He's not leaving, and he's eating here today."

After hearing that, Leah was embarrassed.

"Huh?" Leah said emotionally, "Why?"

'New Year's Eve dinner is always eaten with family.'

Leah looked at Theresa, and when she didn't reply, Leah continued to inquire, "When did you and he get so close?"

'I originally thought that Theresa and Dick were just acquaintances, but I never thought that they would even be together now for New Year's Eve. It looked like they're very close.'

Theresa said, "What? You want to kick him out?"

Theresa had thought it was not good for Dick to be here before.

Now seeing Leah and Sarah, she was suddenly a little glad that Dick was here.

When Dick was here, Leah even spoke carefully, not daring to cause trouble at all.

Otherwise, with Leah and Sarah's personalities, they would probably not have a good year again today.

Leah shook her head, "No, no!"

"I am not going to fall for Theresa's trick."

Soon, the New Year's Eve dinner was ready. It was very lively with a table full of people sitting at the big round table in the dining room. Because a lot of dishes were made for the New Year's Eve dinner, so, there was enough for them to eat.

Theresa was looking after Leonard and Ben, while Leah sitting next to Johnson, suddenly opened her mouth and asked, "By the way, Theresa, I have a question I've been wanting to ask you." "What question?" Theresa gave her a look.

Leah said, "Where are the two children you were carrying when you were with Jimmy? Why haven't I seen them?"

'Shouldn't her own children be with her on New Year's Eve?'

'But Theresa only had Charlie's children with her all this time.'

"Where're the two children?'

Hearing this, everyone looked at Leah.

At this table, only Leah and Sarah did not know that Theresa's two children were Leonard and Ben.

Theresa froze and she was so busy that she had forgotten about this.

She said casually, "They are both in poor health and are in the hospital."

"You can take your father back and take care of him when he's in such poor health. Why do you put your own children in the hospital?"

Leah thought Theresa was just lying.

Theresa bowed her head and she had to admit that Leah was wise this time.

She finally realized the problem by now.

Theresa had thought that she would not hide it from Leah since Leah already knew about it.

But the next second, Theresa heard Leah say, "You're so careless and you don't even care about your own children. Didn't you abandon both of them?"

"Of course, I didn't." Theresa denied.

'I'm not that kind of person.'

Chapter 679

Chapter 679

From Leah's words, Theresa could probably imagine what kind of image she was in Leah's heart.

Leah said, "You didn't? The children were so pathetic that they couldn't be with their own mother for New Year's Eve! Although those two children were born when you cheated on Jimmy, they are innocent and you can't be so heartless!"

"..." Hearing Leah's words, Theresa looked at her with cold eyes, "Whom are you saying cheated?" Leah knew exactly what was going on in this case, but she still said Theresa like that on purpose. Some people in this world were just like that, only willing to believe the bad. Even if you explained to them, they were not willing to believe what you say.

Leah was stunned by the look in Theresa's eyes and seeing Dick and Johnson both looking at her, she hurriedly apologized, "I'm sorry!"

Sitting aside, Sarah looked at Theresa's reaction and said, "My mom is just worried about the kids. If you didn't abandon them, could it be that you take them to Eugene's?" 'After all, Eugene was the father of the children.'

It could make sense for her to take the kids to Eugene and keep Charlie's kids.

Hearing Eugene's name, Cristina, who was drinking Coke, almost spit it out.

Good God!

She didn't want to laugh, but she couldn't help it.

'Luckily, Eugene didn't know this.'

Theresa said, "... Yes."

Since Sarah was willing to think like that, she just admitted it, "Since the kids aren't with me, they naturally stay with their biological father."

Dick sat on the sidelines and watched Theresa, who was incredibly calm even as she lied.

He looked at her and smiled faintly.

After dinner, Theresa helped Dick with acupuncture at the recliner by the window.

She had said she had the day off, but since he was here, she took advantage of her free time to help him with his acupuncture. Dick asked, "Why are you lying?"

"What?"

"Your children." Dick said, "These two children are obviously Charlie's, but you're saying they're someone else's."

"I don't want to explain so much in front of the people I hate." Theresa said, "I just like to see them make fools of themselves."

'How ridiculous they are to speculate wildly and think me in such a bad light.'

Hearing Theresa's words, Dick asked, "So, I shouldn't be someone you hate?"

"..." Theresa was stunned and looked over at Dick.

He opened his eyes and looked at her with unknown emotions. With their eyes meeting, he watched her reaction.

Theresa thought to herself, "I don't hate you, and I'm just afraid of you!"

It was just that she didn't dare to say these words!

She laughed, "You're my backer now. How would I hate you?"

Hearing her words, Dick closed his eyes again, "Dr. Cameron, if you didn't have this skill, you'd be dead."

"..." Theresa sensed the pressure from him.

She said calmly, "Why?"

"Because you're lying, and I hate people who lie." Dick said, "You obviously hate me!"

His voice sounded hoarse.

"Could it be that he doesn't like to be hated?"

But Theresa thought, "Everyone shouldn't like to be hated, right?"

Before she could say anything, Dick muttered to himself, "Everyone hates me and loves Charlie. I'm actually used to it! In your eyes, Charlie is the good guy and I'm the devil that everyone hates." "... He said this with a tone that sounded like he was mocking himself.

Chapter 680

Listening to his words. Theresa admitted that she did fear him a little.

But after thinking about it carefully, she thought it was quite unreasonable to hate him.

Because Dick had not done anything bad to her since they met, and he had even been helping her.

Not only did he help her keep Cameron's Group, but he also helped her when Charlie came to take the kids away.

After all, she was just an ordinary person.

Theresa said, "I'm sorry, Mr. White."

Hearing her apologize, Dick let out a laugh, "What are you apologizing for?"

Theresa said, "For being a regular person myself."

Dick said, "Go ahead."

"Since we met, you haven't done anything to hurt me, but I still think you're not a good person because of those outside comments. In fact, I have also been deeply hurt by gossip, but I am doing this to you now."

Hearing her words, Dick said, "I'm glad to hear that."

Theresa pursed her lips.

"Is this a compliment from him?"

Dick said, "In fact, in this world, even though many people know they are wrong, they will not apologize. Even if it turns out that they are wrong, they will only find reasons to excuse themselves and put all the blame on the victim."

Theresa could understand what Dick was saying.

She was surrounded by many such people, including Sarah, Leah, Jimmy...

Dick said, "But you don't have to apologize to me, because I'm not a nice person by nature. I'm good to you because you are useful."

After the acupuncture was over, Dick didn't leave. Theresa sat down beside Dick and looked at him who was asleep on the recliner.

Although Dick said he was a bad guy and acted like he didn't mind that, he actually did mind.

Just then, someone walked in from outside, and when Theresa looked up, she saw Charlie appear.

He was wearing a long, slim black trench coat with Ben in his arms. She wondered when Ben had gone to let him in.

Seeing Theresa sitting next to Dick, Charlie suddenly became angry.

'She let Dick spend New Year's Eve here!'

'Heh...

Charlie went upstairs in stride, furious!

Leah and Johnson were in Johnson's bedroom. Because Leah wanted to stay to take care of Johnson, so, she didn't leave.

After Sarah went upstairs and talked to Johnson for a while, she was planning to go home.

At this time, she saw Charlie.

Charlie carried Ben in his arms and went to the children's room.

Seeing this, Sarah followed him.

With the door open, she stood in the doorway, "Charlie."

It seemed that Charlie was trying desperately to hold back something and didn't open his mouth for fear that he would scare Ben.

Ben was already down from Charlie's arms

Sarah said, "Charlie, did you come over to see the kids?"

Charlie looked at her only then, "Why are you here?"

"My parents are here today for New Year's Eve, so, of course, we're here together. Did you see Dick before you went upstairs? I don't know what Theresa was thinking. She acted as if she and Dick were a couple. If she gets married to Dick later, how ridiculous would that be?"

Sarah's words made Charlie angrier.

He had been angry....

"No." Ben turned to Sarah and said, "Don't you say anything bad about my mom."

Chapter 681

Chapter 681

With Ben's soft voice pulling Charlie back from out of control, he instantly regained his senses.

He told himself he was here to see the kids, not Theresa.

What did it matter to him who she was with?

They were divorced!

Sarah didn't expect Ben to defend Theresa so much.

'Theresa is so lucky to have these two kids to defend her.

Looking at Ben, she realized that if she wanted to make up with Charlie, she had to get on good terms with the two kids first.

Sarah smiled and said to Ben, "Ben, Theresa is not your mother. Don't let her fool you! If you want a mother, I can be your mother!" Just as she finished her words, Charlie, who was still angry, spoke up, not showing her any respect at all, "You're not worthy of that." Sarah froze and looked to Charlie. To save her dignity, she said, "Charlie, I'm just coaxing ben."

"Don't scare my son."

After saying that, Charlie walked over and drove her out, closing the door behind him.

Looking at the closed door, Sarah was so angry that she clenched her fist.

'Charlie was going too far!'

She came downstairs in a rage. Seeing Theresa there, she just wanted to scold Theresa to relieve her anger,

"Theresa!"

"Keep your voice down." Theresa looked over at Sarah.

Sarah glanced at Theresa. Seeing Dick lying asleep on the side, she didn't dare to say anything.

All right!

She really couldn't afford to mess with Dick!

So, she had to leave in anger.

Theresa sat aside and didn't go upstairs, simply reading a book downstairs because she knew that Charlie was upstairs and she did not want to see him..

It was almost ten o'clock when Dick woke up. He sat up, yawned, and glanced at Theresa, who was sitting on the sidelines, reading a book while sipping tea. He lay back in the recliner and looked at her.

Lifting his head, Theresa noticed he was awake and said, "You're awake?"

Dick sat up and said, "I'm heading home!"

Hearing his words, Theresa agreed. Not long after, Mr. Garson came over.

After seeing them out, Theresa said, "I'll..."

"I'll come back tomorrow!" Dick looked over at Theresa, "I like your place."

.." She had wanted to say that she would go over to his place, but looking at his domineering look, she simply did not know what to say.

Standing aside, Mr. Garson glanced at Dick and didn't make a sound to stop him. Theresa sighed and had to see them out the door.

After Dick got in the car, Mr. Garson got in the car behind and went with him.

Theresa went upstairs and saw Leonard in the toy room putting together his Lego, a gift from Dick, and enough for him to play with for a long time. Cristina was still working on something.

As for Ben...

He seemed to be still with Charlie.

Theresa had been ready to go in to see them but didn't after thinking about it.

She didn't want to see Charlie.

She went straight back to her bedroom.

But when she opened the door, she saw Charlie sitting in her room.

"..." Seeing him, she froze and said, "What are you doing here?"

She knew Charlie hadn't left, but she thought he was at Ben's, not expecting...

Charlie sat on the couch and looked at her as if he was the male owner of the place, "Of course, I'm waiting for you."

"Get out of my room!" Theresa looked at him, "It's rude of you to go into my bedroom without my permission."

"I was coming to see you but you haven't been up here?" Charlie looked over at her and said, "What? Your boyfriend is gone?" The word 'boyfriend' made Theresa feel uncomfortable.

She and Dick were not in that kind of relationship.

But what Charlie said made it seem like they were having some kind of adulterous affair.

Chapter 682

Chapter 682

The more he was like this, the more Theresa didn't want to make him comfortable.

She raised her eyebrows and said, "Get out of my room quickly, or else my boyfriend will be angry if he knows." After hearing her words, harlie let out a laugh. He sat on the couch, changed his position, and said, "In that case, I'm not leaving tonight and I'm going to stay here."

"What do you mean?" Theresa looked over at Charlie, not expecting him to be so shameless!

He wasn't like this before.

Charlie said, "Since you don't let my sons go with me, I'll just have to stay here with them. From now on, if Leonard and Ben don't go back to the Calsis family, I'll stay here. Your boyfriend will be looking forward to seeing another man living in your house, right?"

He was very happy to see Dick unhappy!

Looking at his shameless look, Theresa was speechless!

He was so thick-skinned!

Just then, Ben suddenly came in from outside and walked up to Theresa, "Mom."

"..." Theresa looked over at him, "What's wrong with you, baby?"

"I want my dad to stay." Ben looked at Theresa for her opinion, "Is that okay?"

"Did you ask your dad to come over?" Ben hadn't told her before that.

He was the one who went to let Charlie in, so this had to do with him.

Ben was a little wary, "Would you be upset?"

His wary look made Theresa frozen.

She certainly wouldn't get angry with Ben over such a thing.

After all, there's nothing wrong with him wanting to see his dad.

She wasn't like Charlie...

She could sense that Charlie's arrival had put Ben at ease.

He was clearly not as sullen as he had been the previous two days.

She rubbed Ben's head gently, "No. But... we don't have a room for him at home!"

"He said he can sleep with me."

After thinking about it, Theresa said, "Okay!"

It would be okay to let Leonard sleep in her bedroom then.

Theresa looked to Charlie, "Get out hurriedly, and I'm going to take a shower."

"What part of your body have I not seen?"

"Charlie!" His words made Theresa blush with anger.

She glared at him, "Be a cultured person in front of the kid!"

"Dad, why don't we go to set off firecrackers?" Afraid that he would make Theresa angry, Ben went to Charlie to take him away in a hurry after finishing his words. Charlie stood up and followed Ben out of the room.

As they went downstairs, Ben said, "Dad, don't make Mom mad or I won't be able to help you."

Looking at Ben who was with a serious look, Charlie picked him up, "Got it!"

Ben gave him a kiss on the cheek, "Dad, I love you."

Charlie looked at the little guy and smiled crookedly.

When they got to the backyard, Jonathan already had the fireworks ready.

There were also some fairy sticks that Charlie and Ben were playing with over there.

Leonard had been in the toy room putting together Legos. Hearing the sound, he climbed at the window and saw that it was Ben and Charlie playing with fireworks.

He stood aside and watched the scene with some curiosity, never taking his eyes off.

Charlie was very nice to Ben and seeing this, Leonard couldn't help but feel a little sad.

Yes...

He would always be the unloved baby,

After taking a shower, Theresa came out of the bathroom and saw Leonard sitting alone on the couch, looking lonely, in contrast to the bustle downstairs. Theresa walked over and said to Leonard, "Leonard."

Chapter 683

Chapter 683

With his head down, Leonard wiped his eyes and asked, "Mom, am I a very annoying child?"

"Of course not." Theresa said, "Why would you say that?"

"..." Without saying anything, he came over and hugged Theresa.

Theresa looked at Leonard and said, "Do you want to go downstairs and play with them?"

She knew he wanted to!

Though he didn't say it.

"No," Leonard said, "I'll be happy with you."

He usually hated Charlie so much, so, he was embarrassed to play with him at this time.

Theresa went to change before she took Leonard downstairs.

Johnson and Cristina were in the living room, and the noise downstairs made it impossible for Cristina to concentrate on the game.

However, there was a more festive atmosphere.

Theresa led Leonard to the backyard and when Jonathan saw her, he said, "Ms. Cameron, Leonard."

Seeing Theresa approaching, Ben handed her the fairy stick, "Here you are, Mom."

Theresa reached over and took it for Leonard.

Seeing that Theresa gave it to him, Leonard naturally took it.

With Theresa accompanying him, Leonard quickly played happily with Ben.

Theresa stood aside and watched Charlie, who was dressed very thickly, and so was Ben...

It was a little cold outside, but they seemed not to feel cold as they played.

She stood aside and watched the two children running around there.

She had to admit that she liked the current scene...

Charlie suddenly looked back at her, as if sensing her gaze, and his gaze fell on her face, causing her to look away.

He walked over and stopped in front of her, looking at her.

Seeing that he was blocking his view of the two children, Theresa said, "What are you doing?"

"Don't you like to look at me? Let me come closer to you to let you see me better."

"..." Theresa said, "No, I have a boyfriend."

Just as she finished her words, Charlie suddenly took a step forward, forcing her to step back.

In this way, he kept moving forward, and she kept stepping backward until she reached the wall.

In the dim light, Charlie had his hand propped up on the wall behind her, circling her between the wall and him.

He looked at her and said, "I'm enjoying having an affair with you behind your boyfriend's back."

Theresa couldn't help but want to slap herself.

She shouldn't have irritated him with this, which would only be counterproductive because he would certainly be happy to see Dick angry.

Seeing her dazed and thinking something, Charlie reached out and lifted her chin to make it easier for him to kiss her.

Jonathan was looking after the two children. Outside was children's laughter, but she felt so quiet as if he was the only one in the whole world.

Theresa remembered that he had also ever set off fireworks for her...

It had only been a few months, yet it seemed like it happened so long ago.

The memory made her indulge in the kiss.

When she came back to her senses, Charlie had already released her lips.

He looked at her, close to her, his voice low and ambiguous, "Did Dick kiss you like that too?"

Stunned, Theresa was furious with her face red.

"Charlie, you're disgusting!".

Charlie looked at her, "But you enjoyed it too! It seems like you enjoyed having this kind of affair too."

Glaring at him speechlessly, she pushed him away in anger and ran away from him.

When she returned to the living room, Cristina and Johnson were talking.

Theresa calmed down and said, "Dad, do you want to take a nap?"

Johnson said, "I'm fine."

He looked out through the window and said, "It's been a long time for not so lively in our house. Won't Charlie leave..."

Chapter 684

Chapter 684

"He came over to see the kids." Theresa said, "Ben wants to see him, so just let him be here!"

After that, Theresa went to bring over some sunflower seeds to pass the time for them.

Charlie set off fireworks with the two kids until midnight before taking them back to the house. Ben and Leonard walked ahead. Seeing Theresa, Leonard ran to Theresa at once.

Charlie noticed that while Cristina and Theresa were both there, Leonard was closer to Theresa! Theresa turned to Charlie and said, "You sleep with Ben at night, and I'll sleep with Leonard."

Charlie raised an eyebrow, gave Leonard a look, and said, "It's a shame that he still sleeps with his mother as such a big boy?"

Hearing Charlie's words, Leonard glared at him. Being said by him like that, Leonard was naturally unhappy.

Theresa felt speechless and turned to Charlie saying, "Charlie, can you speak properly?"

"Mom, Dad can sleep with me on my bed."

Because of Charlie's words, Leonard went to his own bed to prove himself.

Leonard and Ben slept in one room.

Because they were twins, they grew up sleeping in the same room. Even though they moved home now, Theresa didn't want them to be separated. Since it was late, everyone went to bed.

At night, when Theresa was drifting off to sleep, she suddenly felt that there was an extra person beside her.

She was in a trance and subconsciously felt as if she was still in the Calsis family, not in her new home....

He and she always slept together.

In a daze, this man kissed her...

In her dream, she was a little heartbroken because she and Charlie were now like enemies and could never go back to the old days.

She took the initiative to hug him, with her tears falling.

Her initiative made Charlie stunned for a moment. In the next second, he lowered his head and kissed away her tears, with a somewhat dissatisfied voice, "What are you crying for?" "I miss you."

How nice it would be if people could stay in the good days!

... But she knew that she and he could never go back, and she could only say she missed him in her dreams.

Since divorcing him, she always dreamed of him talking to her coldly, of him doting on her before, and of them. getting drunk that night...

She always kept seeing him in her dreams.

But tonight, she seemed to feel something different.

The pain in her body woke her up a bit.

She finally woke up from her dream to find the man still in front of her, and it seemed she wasn't dreaming....

Theresa moved to reach for the light, but he held her down so she couldn't move.

Knowing what she wanted to do, he raised his hand and turned the light on, when his handsome face was magnified in her sight. Theresa said, "It's really you!"

Looking at her who looked stupid, he said, "What? Did you think it was Dick?"

His voice was cold. If she dared to treat him like someone else, he would strangle her immediately!

Theresa was in shock, "Who let you in?"

"Weren't you the one who let me in?" Charlie looked at her, "Didn't you just say you missed me?"

This damn...

He was so cunning!

In the morning. Theresa was in the kitchen preparing breakfast. Since they didn't have to go to work, everyone. was up late.

She and Charlie were the first ones to get up.

Charlie sat on the couch by the window, his hand on his chin, looking at her.

His eyes followed her moving.

Jonathan walked in and looked at Charlie, "Charlie."

Chapter 685

Chapter 685

He always felt that Charlie was a little strange today!

Wouldn't he be taken for a pervert for staring at Theresa like that?

Charlie waved his hand, gesturing for Jonathan to stay out of his sight, and only then did he move to the side.

Although Charlie didn't say anything, Jonathan could feel that Charlie seemed to be in a good mood at the moment.

Ben came down from upstairs and ran to Charlie, "Dad."

Seeing Ben, Charlie picked Ben up in his arms.

Leonard stood aside. Watching the scene, he walked away.

Looking at his indifferent eldest son, he frowned.

Breakfast started quickly. Theresa put the food on the table, and in a few moments, everyone arrived except Cristina, who was sleeping.

Theresa looked over at Charlie, who was sitting on the sidelines eating the breakfast she had made as a matter of course.

She frowned and turned to Charlie asking, "When are you going back?"

Charlie said, "When did I say I was going back?"

Theresa looked at him, "There are so many things to do for the New Year. Don't you go back hurriedly?"

During the New Year, the Calsis family usually got together to pay respect to their ancestors.

Theresa had heard them talk about it before.

Moreover, Johnson was going back today after having breakfast.

Theresa was also planning to take the two children back with Johnson.

Charlie looked to Theresa, then to Leonard beside her and Ben beside himself, "I want to take the two kids back."

"You wish."

He could come here to see the kids...

But Theresa certainly wouldn't let him take the two kids back.

Charlie looked over at her, "Don't you think you're being unreasonable right now? I still have to ask your opinion when I want to take my kids home?" Theresa said, "I insist on what I said."

Unless the court awarded him the two children, otherwise, she would never compromise.

It's not that she's unreasonable but that....

She was afraid that if she let her two children go back to the Calsis Villa, she would not see them later.

Looking at Theresa, Charlie felt very angry.

He said, "I'll see how many more days you can be arrogant!"

When the New Year was over, he would formally charge her!

He would like to see if Theresa could still be as arrogant as now.

Having spent so much time with her, he knew she wouldn't give up easily.

After what happened last night, he had a soft spot for her.

But now it seemed totally unnecessary!

After breakfast, Theresa followed her father back to Cameron's Residence.

With Theresa taking care of Johnson every day, Johnson was already in better health.

Since Theresa was a child, she had followed her father to pay respect to their ancestors each New Year.

Johnson had no son, only her, daughter, so she had to take on the responsibilities of a son.

Her father would also teach her all the things.

However, this year was not quite the same as previous years.

Theresa now had two children.

This was the first time that the two children returned to pay respect to the ancestors of the Cameron family.

After a busy morning, they returned from the shrine with Theresa by her father's side.

Johnson said, "By the way."

"What's wrong?" Theresa looked curiously at her father.

Johnson asked, "How is Charlie's grandfather doing now?"

Theresa froze at her father's words and she said, "I'm not sure."

"..." Johnson sighed, "He was your grandfather's best friend. Our family hasn't had a good time over the years, but he never looked down on us."

Chapter 686

Chapter 686

Previously Theresa was able to take care of him as Charlie's wife when she was at Calsis Villa.

But since her divorce from Charlie, she hadn't heard from Old Mr. Calsis at all.

Thinking about Old Mr. Calsis, Theresa frowned, a little worried about him.

Before the divorce, she had heard them talking about taking Old Mr. Calsis to the hospital.

Wasn't Old Mr. Calsis still in the hospital now?

Theresa had mixed feelings when she thought that the Old Mr. Calsis, an old man with not many years to live, had to be confined in the hospital for New Year.

Her father still had some things to take care of and Cristina was still alone at home, so Theresa went back with her two children after she was done.

When she arrived home, she saw Charlie sitting on the couch in her house... looking very comfortable.

Jonathan saw them come in, "Ms. Cameron."

"Dad!" When he saw Charlie, Ben was so happy that he ran into Charlie's arms like a little rabbit.

Charlie picked him up.

Theresa didn't expect Charlie to still be here, "Didn't you leave?"

He went back after breakfast!

Charlie looked over at her, "I'm back when I'm done."

Jonathan explained, "Charlie said he was going to stay over here for a while."

"..." Theresa looked at Charlie in disbelief, and she noticed with a sharp eye that he had brought his change of clothes in a bag and put them aside.

Charlie saw Theresa looking at him, "You got a problem with that?"

"Don't push your luck." Theresa looked at Charlie with displeasure.

Charlie sneered, "I came to see my son. Who are you to have a problem with that?"

On the side, Ben sat in Charlie's arms, very happy.

Theresa, "..."

He said he was coming to see his son!

If something hadn't happened last night, she might have believed what he said.

But now...

Theresa couldn't believe him!

He knew exactly what he had done!

He sneaked into her room in the middle of the night. How shameless could someone be to do such a thing?

Charlie didn't care what she thought. After giving Ben a look, Charlie stood up, and went upstairs with Ben in his arms, followed by Jonathan.

Cristina came down from upstairs and said to Theresa, "I see Charlie is here again! He's not planning to live right here, is he?"

"He said he was coming to see the kids."

"So that's it." Cristina looked over at Theresa, "Tess, hungry, food..."

"Talk properly!" Theresa looked over at her, speechless.

But she stood up anyway and went to make dinner for her.

She was going to hire a maid, but it was not very easy to find someone during the New Year, so, she left it for now.

After making dinner for Cristina, Theresa went upstairs and saw Charlie in Ben and Leonard's toy room.

The Lego that Dick gave Leonard was just off to the side, which Leonard hadn't finished putting together.

Charlie asked, "Who bought this for you?"

"Uncle Dick," Ben replied.

Charlie went mad at once. He had intended to do something happy with Leonard to redeem his fatherly image in Leonard's mind. But he never expected....

As soon as he arrived, he heard such a piece of bad news.

He spoke, "Throw it away!"

Leonard stopped, "Don't you dare!"

Looking over at Leonard, Charlie said, "You don't think Dick is a good guy, do you? Is that what your mother taught you?"

He accepted the thing from Dick!

Leonard said, "He's better than you!"

"What did you say?" Charlie almost thought he had heard wrong.

'Before Leonard said Roderick was better than me, and now, Leonard even thought Dick was better!"

'Leonard is trying to recognize my rival as his father?"

'I, as Leonard's father, am the first to say no!"

Chapter 687

Chapter 687

"Don't throw my stuff!" Leonard looked to Charlie, "If you don't listen to me, get out of my house."

66

." Charlie raised an eyebrow, and he really considered Theresa's place to be his home!

He was too speechless!

If it was before in Calsis Villa, when Leonard said such things, Charlie could still teach him a lesson.

But here, he did not know what to say!

In the end, he was just an outsider in Leonard's eyes.

Theresa stood in the doorway, "What are you guys up to?"

"Theresa, what have you taught my son?" Seeing her come in, Charlie looked at her angrily.

Theresa asked rhetorically, "What do you think I've taught him?"

"Why did you let him take Dick's stuff?" Charlie stood up and walked towards her, "You know that I don't have a good relationship with Dick." "Yes, but I do."

"You..." Charlie looked at her and didn't know what to say for a moment.

Theresa looked at the two kids and said, "Go on playing!"

Leonard said, "He's trying to throw my stuff."

"Don't worry. No one can throw your stuff without my permission."

Charlie stood aside. Looking at Theresa who looked smug, he directly dragged her out the door by her arm.

He closed the door to the room behind him and stood in the hallway, looking at Theresa, "Are you really going to antagonize me at every turn?"

He thought they were at least somewhat affectionate, especially last night... when he heard that she missed him, he believed her!

But he didn't expect Theresa to become like this once it was daylight.

"Or what?" Theresa looked at Charlie, indifferent, "We are divorced. Do I have to coax you like before."

"Is that so?" Charlie looked at her and laughed in exasperation, "That's not what you said last night."

The words 'last night' managed to make Theresa angry, "Shameless!"

"What?" Charlie said, "That's what you call shameless?"

Theresa was afraid that what happened last night would happen again, "From now on, if you come into my room again, I'll let you get out of my house."

If she didn't make it clear to him, he would probably think she was welcome to him, given his narcissistic nature.

"As long as you let Leonard and Ben go with me, I'll leave anytime."

"You are so shameless!" Theresa was so angry that she was about to walk away, when Charlie held her hand and pulled her back again, saying, "I'm warning you to keep Dick and the two kids away from each other."

Theresa knew what Charlie was worried about!

But it was out of her control at the moment!

And, she did try to avoid any contact between the two children and Dick.

Theresa's words were just finished when her phone rang. She turned on it and saw that it was Cristina calling. She answered the phone and said, "Put the bowl away when you're done eating and I'll come over later to do the dishes."

"No, Dick's coming over."

Hearing this, Theresa frowned.

He did come after all!

She told him not to come yesterday, but he didn't listen to her at all.

Theresa was helpless.

She glanced at Charlie, who was just standing in front of her, and naturally heard what Cristina said on the phone.

Charlie sneered, "What? Your kids' dad come over?"

"Uh-huh." Theresa said, "My kids' dad is like a pig! And I had to deal with him."

Charlie, "..."

She was cursing Dick?

It was a little weird!

Theresa went downstairs to greet Dick directly.

Dick was sitting on the couch, completely making himself at home.

Mr. Garson was standing next to him.

Chapter 688

Chapter 688

When he saw Theresa coming down, Dick's eyes fell on Theresa and he asked, "Why don't you have a maid at home?"

Theresa said, "I was going to hire one, but now it's New Year and I don't want to have outsiders in the house." "If you need it, I can have someone come over to take care of you and the kids."

It sounded like... he was the father of the kids.

Theresa said, "No, thanks."

Dick said, "I just think your hands are not for cooking because they have a great use!"

Without Theresa, he probably wouldn't even be able to get a good night's sleep.

So now, he was glad she had such hands.

Hearing Dick's words, Theresa said, "Thank you, Mr. White."

She was pleased to have her acupuncture skills recognized by Dick. What people feared most was that they could not find their value in life, but she had found it.

After she learned this skill under Leo, she had been working on it ever since. She felt her life was more meaningful as she watched her patients get rid of their pain with her help.

Instead of rushing to give Dick acupuncture, Theresa poured him a glass of water, sat down, and talked with him, "Mr. White, did you sleep well last night?"

"Not bad." Dick said, "Better than previous days. It seems to be useful to come to see you every day."

"..." Theresa said, "It would be my pleasure to help you."

Dick looked over at her and smiled.

When he smiled, there was light in his eyes, and he was not at all as intimidating as he usually was.

Just then, Charlie came down from the stairway.

Seeing him, Dick froze for a moment.

Dick kept his eyes on Charlie, and as soon as the two men met, the atmosphere in the room became oppressive.

Charlie swaggered over and sat down directly on the couch.

Looking at the scene in front of her, Theresa was helpless.

"Can the two of them not compete with each other in my home?"

'Are they treating my place as a battlefield?'

Mr. Garson asked for his boss, "Charlie, why are you here?"

Charlie said, "My sons are here, so naturally I am here."

Dick said in a cold voice, "You are divorced but you are still living in your ex-wife's house, which is not appropriate."

'Before the divorce, he didn't cherish Theresa, but now he comes to pester her, shameless!'

He really sucked!

Looking at Dick, Charlie said, "I don't want to be here either. If you are displeased, just persuade your girlfriend to return my sons to me in a hurry!" Hearing the word 'girlfriend', Theresa was annoyed.

Damn it!

He could say that in private!

But how could he say that in front of Dick?

Dick had nothing to do with her, but what he said sounded as if they were really in love with each other! Theresa looked at Charlie with slight anger, "Get out of here!" Charlie said, "What? You're angry? As long as you let me take Leonard and Ben away, I'll go right away."

Just after Charlie's words, Dick next to Theresa suddenly reached over and pulled Theresa into his arms. After a moment of bewilderment, Theresa looked to Dick, who put one arm around her and said to Charlie, "Since you like this place, just stay! It's okay as long as you like to see us showing affection in public."

." Theresa could feel Dick's breath as he spoke.

With that. Theresa's face flushed.

She didn't understand how things had come to this!

But she really wanted to clear the relationship with Charlie.

So, she looked at Charlie and didn't explain.

Chapter 689

Charlie sat there watching them, eyes heavy with sarcasm.

He had long known that Theresa and Dick White are on good, or even close terms. But he still couldn't bear the sight of them being intimate with each other.

After a moment of indecision, he made a stand from his seat and left the room. Nobody would notice the unreadable look in his eyes.

Hearing that Charlie drove off huffing and puffing. Theresa stood up in some hurry as well.

"Thank you, Mr. White."

"Nothing to speak of." Dick looked at her with steady eyes.

It really is. Dick was in good mood now. Packing Charlie off was indeed something he was glad to see.

"Mr. White, I have to apologize to you for what Charlie has said. That's just hilarious nonsense about him. So, just forget it."

"What did he say?" Dick White was curious about what Charlie had said. "Did he say that you are going out with me?"

Theresa gave a helpless sigh and continued. "Yeah, he thought that we are dating since he has seen you many times here with me."

To be honest, Theresa was unable to comprehend Charlie's thoughts.

Because she was of the opinion that Dick White would never like a woman like her.

"You must really want to get rid of him then, right? And you may feel sick of his pestering. I mean no offense, just judging by your attitude. If so, I've got a solid plan to help you out with that. How about being my girl?" Rawlins Garson stared at Dick in disbelief, unable to believe his ears.

Does he know what he is talking about?

His words also left Theresa dumbfounded for a second, but she came to her sense quickly. "Mr. White, it's not a good joke, no kidding please."

"I'm not joking at all. I think it will be good for both of us since you think he is annoying and I would like to do anything irritating him. Don't you see that? I have to admit that seeing him stomping off really pleased me!"

Charlie's sour face floated into Theresa's head instantly and she felt an impulse to laugh. Didn't he claim that he was here to gross Dick White out?

Then it turned out that he left simmering with anger.

Theresa couldn't help taking pity on him when she held back roars of laughter.

He was just asking for more ropes to hang himself!

Theresa continued to give acupuncture on Dick White's back. All of a sudden, Leonard burst in on the acupuncture.

"Get out of here." Theresa was a bit snippy about him.

Her cross voice gave Leonard a start and pinned him down.

"It's ok for him to be here with us," Dick said to Theresa to lighten the atmosphere and soothe Leonard.

But Theresa said nothing to his words. She just gestured at Leonard, with her flat, and even unpleasant eyes.

She didn't mean to scold him. She just felt something ominous every time when Leonard had contact with Dick White somehow.

There was a short silence before Leonard got out of the room. He finally yielded to his mother's demand.

No one spoke till the acupuncture was finished. "It seems that you don't want Leonard to have contact with me, isn't it, Doc? Cameron?"

"He is Charlie's son," Theresa replied without batting an eyelid.

"You are reading too much into it, Doc. Cameron, he is very adorable, I just want you to know that."

Theresa cast a glance at him wondering what did he mean by those words.

She had little knowledge of him, so she must be alert to the possibility of danger since her children meant the world to her.

Dick White had a vague idea that Theresa wouldn't take his words on trust, hence he didn't continue the conversation with her and went out alone. Leonard was waiting for his mother outside.

Dick waved his hands at him as he saw him.

"Mr. White, there you are." Leonard came close to him gaily.

Theresa, who followed Dick out had spotted the scene.

Leonard seemed to hit it off with Dick. Well, maybe I just got an inaccurate nervous tension about them.

After a rough consideration, Theresa decided to let Leonard leave his own business.

Then she left. "Mr. White, what do you think of my mom?" The moment Theresa's figure disappeared Leonard asked expectantly in a hurry.

"She's pretty good," Dick said automatically without thinking. Yeah, in some ways she is good.

"Then, would you like to be my father?"

As poised as Dick was usually, he almost choked with shock. "Well, my pleasure."

Chapter 690

Chapter 690

Dick White didn't leave immediately. He even spent part of the afternoon playing with two kids in their rooms. Theresa was having a chitchat with Cristina downstairs on the sofa when something that she was supposed to ask Charlie crossed her mind. Then she took out her phone texting Roderick. It was about Old Mr. Calsis actually.

Holding tightly the phone in her hand Theresa was waiting for Roderick's message distractedly, and at this time, Leonard and Ben went downstairs with the help of Dick.

"Good night and see you next time, Miss Cameron" Dick White took his leave of Theresa with a nod and a smile. "See you next time, Mr. White." Theresa stood up and was going to walk them out as she said. With only a few strides, Dick and his assistant were in the doorway. But he looked back suddenly just when Theresa was about to close the door behind them. "Well, I better let you know that I'm not coming tomorrow." His advance notice was thoughtful enough, but it sounded weird when it happened between Theresa and him.

"Thank you for telling me, but you don't have to tell me that actually."

"I think it's necessary." Said Dick White with his corner of mouth curving.

The embarrassment was growing violently between them due to the weird conversation.

Theresa had no idea of what his intention was for behaving abnormally on this day.

God Damn it! Asking her out? Is he serious?

Whatever! Theresa decided to not dwell on that. She turned her attention to Leonard then, who was still looking in Dick's direction even though he was out of his range of eyes. The look in his eyes was wistful somehow like he really hated to see him leaving.

"Come on, Leonard, let's get inside."

"Mom, is Mr. White really a bad guy?" The little boy didn't move, instead, he held Theresa's hand and asked solemnly with his head tilting.

"Why would you ask that?" Theresa looked astounded at his words.

"I just think he is good and he is nice to me."

Theresa was always glad to see her children being innocent but at this moment, she was alert that too much innocence was often a reflection of children's unsuspecting personalities.

"Dad isn't nice to you, is he?" Theresa asked him with a grim face.

Leonard fell silent, and Theresa just contemplated him in silence.

It was Ben who broke the silence in the end. "I think dad is great!

"No, he isn't!" Leonard didn't agree.

"No, he is!" Ben defended his father, his voice wobbled with emotion. "I just know that he loves us!"

"I don't think so, he has been bad to me and mom."

The implication of his word was that dad was only kind to Ben.

"Whatever, I can't agree with you. I don't like Mr. White to be our father." Saying this, he moved his neck at Theresa and uttered with an imploring tone, "Mom, please don't abandon dad and marry Mr. White, he is so pitiful."

"No, he is not!" Leonard exclaimed without thinking. "He is too bad to be our father."

There was no opportunity for Theresa to cut in and it was the first time Leonard and Ben's opinions were divided. to such an extent. Theresa had never expected that.

The quarrel finally ended up storming into their own rooms in bad mood.

Theresa shrugged in helplessness.

Alright, just let them deal with it by themselves.

She then returned to sit on the sofa. Roderick had already texted back her. He is still in the hospital now.

Will he be in the hospital even on New Year's Eve?

Yeah, they have thought about taking him home for the New Year but you know what Old Mr. Calsis is like now, he is difficult to deal with given his Alzheimer's disease. Roderick's message was delivered quickly.

Theresa wasn't feeling good at his message since she couldn't bear to imagine how Old Mr. Calsis, her ex-grandpa-in-law was now.

When she was still feeling sorry for Old Mr. Calsis, another blue bubble popped up on the top of the screen of her phone. Why asking? Are you planning a visit to him at the hospital? I think it will be good for him because Old Mr. Calsis has spent most of his time alone at the hospital since you divorced Charlie.

Well, I'll come over now. Theresa made up her mind and got up again.

"What's wrong? Are you going out now?" Asked Cristina.

"Yeah, I think I should pay a visit to Charlie's grandpa, he is in the hospital now." Theresa told Cristina directly,

"Would you like to go with me? I'll take Leonard and Ben together."

"Maybe I'll just go next time," Cristina stretched and yawn lazily. "I'm tired now after a long day of work, you just go."

"Well, have a good rest then."

Theresa went upstairs for Leonard and Ben after the talk with Cristina.

They two were still mad at each other, but the two boys bounded downstairs gaily together when they heard that they were going to visit their great-grandpa.

Ben liked Old Mr. Calsis very much all the time.

So did Leonard though he had a grudge about Charlie.

And the only way to tell if he would like someone was up to their attitudes toward Theresa. In a word, he would like everyone who was nice to Theresa.

It was getting dark outside. Theresa went to the hospital with the children without delay.

Roderick had been there waiting for them.

As soon as they met, he took them to the ward where Old Mr. Clasis was.

But they didn't anticipate that Sarah Cameron would be here.

She was feeding Old Mr. Calsis, but she only got herself messed up for Old Mr. Calsis didn't like her. Nobody would believe that haughty as Sarah was would endure this embarrassing treatment if they saw what she looked like now. Even Theresa was impressed with her remarkable endurance to ingratiate the Calsis. family.

Sarah still managed a sweet smile in the direction of the door when she heard the sound of the door but the smile turned into a scowl when she found that the comers were Theresa and her children. She thought it would be Charlie..

Why are they here?

There was a wariness in her tone. "Why are you here?"

She came to take care of Old Mr. Calsis because he was the last chance to marry into the Calsis family since she had no way to capture Charlie's heart and bribe Charlie's children. But why Theresa was here? She was no more a Clasis after she divorced Charlie.

Sarah couldn't help wondering if Theresa came for the same purpose as her. Does she come for Charlie as well?

But how does she know that Charlie would come to look after his grandpa every day?

Before Theresa said anything, Sarah launched a verbal strike at her. "Theresa Cameron, how do you have the -nerve to be here after divorcing Charlie and snatching his children? Are you going to stalk Charlie by playing up to his grandpa?"

Theresa ignored her question directly and asked mockingly. "Then why are you here?"

Sarah was caught off guard by Theresa, in a fluster, she affected a calmness she didn't feel. "As his fiancée, I'm eligible to here naturally."

What she said was the truth, but no one expected that just as she finished her word Old Mr. Calsis threw something behind her.

Sarah could only clear up the mess hurriedly.

Theresa stood silently in the ward looking over with mixed feelings.

"Theresa!" Old Mr. Clasis let out a call at the very sight of Theresa and his grandsons.

Theresa almost burst into tears at the moment.

Everyone was keeping saying that grandpa was no more lucid, but he could still recognize her immediately. The ward was messy. Then Theresa asked the nurse to clear the room for them and led the grandpa to a rather tidier place.

Leonard and Ben happily crowded around him and smiled a sweet smile at him.

In a rare lucid moment, Old Mr. Calsis studied their countenances carefully and beamed.

"Theresa, you finally come to see me! They told me that you will never see me again but I know it's not true! You are here!"

Theresa comforted Old Mr. Calsis and had a nice talk with him. "Is there any hope for grandpa to make a complete recovery? Her eyes grew misty as she asked.

"We have consulted many renowned doctors in this field about his disease, but their conclusions of them are almost the same. He is too old for most of the effective treatments, so, we decide to ensure him a relatively pain-free life in his remaining days."

Theresa knew that grandpa's life was drawing to a close and he must want to live without pain compared with living longer.

"And," Roderick continued after a short pause, "what he needs most is family's company, instead of medical treatment."

It was not that the Calsis didn't know that.

They were just unable to cope with Old Mr. Calsis, who was like a wicked child now, giving no heed to anyone. else but Theresa's words.

Theresa wore a serious face when she heard Roderick's words, seeming to ponder over his words.

Theresa stopped to feed Old Mr. Calsis.

Sarah, who came out from the restroom at this time, got angry at the scene. "Can you go now that you've been here for a while?" Theresa and her children were real eyesores! Cursed she nastily under her breath.

"Does Charlie know that you are here taking care of grandpa? Theresa gave a brief glance at her and continued what she was doing.

"I don't care whether he knows or not because I come here simply out of sympathy for grandpa. I miss Old Mr. Calsis so I'm here, that's it."

"As for you, what do you come for here with the children? Don't say that you are using the children to make up with Charlie. If so, I won't let you except in your dreams! Why can't you just let go of Charlie now that you are dating Dick White? You can't be that greedy and covet my fiance!"

Chapter 692

Just when Sarah finished her words Roderick laughed out loud, loud enough to be heard by Sarah.

Actually, he had no intention to hide his laughter.

"What the hell are you laughing at?" Sarah flew into a rage at his flagrant laughter. "Don't be silly!" She gave a shout of anger.

"I just think that you are laughable stupid. Why do you act like that earlier before if now you have troubled a lot making up for that?"

You are the one who dumped on Charlie and disdain to marry him because of his physical disability."

Seriously, she didn't need to suffer so much if she could show any mercy or even sympathy to Charlie in the past.

"Get out of my way! It's none of your business!" Sarah was irked by Roderick's words, and maybe she was irked by the fact that what Roderick was the truth. "I don't know what you are talking about and I do not even care since I'm here, just to look after Charlie's grandpa. And you, and Theresa, coming here for nothing but playacting. Just so you know, I'm the one who keeps Old Mr. Calsis accompanied!" Saying that Sarah deliberately cast an aggressive look on Theresa.

Theresa just kept helping Old Mr. Calsis with food and showed no emotions in her words or looks.

While Old Mr. Calsis was sitting straight and having his meal obediently, looking like the most docile child in the world.

Sarah felt a prick in her heart seeing Old Mr. Calsis was no more tricky.

And grievance multiplied inside her. It's unfair!

Sarah fixed her eyes on Theresa's back and in her eyes there was intense hatred. Theresa was really a calculating bitch! How could she take advantage of his delirium to cultivate good relations with him. purposely?

For a while, there was only the sound of Theresa and Old Mr. Calsis. Just then, the sound of footsteps sounded, and approached the ward where they were. Everyone in the ward could guess whose footsteps were those. But they didn't raise an eyebrow at it except Sarah, who snatched the food in Theresa's hands and pushed her over to take the seat in front of Old Mr. Calsis. People at present even Leonard and Ben could tell what she was going to do-She was trying to build her image in front of Charlie with those studied and false moves. Are you kidding me? Theresa couldn't believe how brazen Sarah was because she saw the show for real for the first time.

However, she had no interest to strip away her lies before Charlie and she just shrugged casually at Roderick. Sarah's abrupt movement startled Old Mr. Calsis, who then knocked the food flying grumpily. Then again, Sarah's clothes were stained with grease....

And Charlie happened to witness the farce.

"Charlie..." Sarah nearly lost her temper but at that very moment, she let out an aggrieved sound in a genteel accent when caught sight of Charlie. Nevertheless, Charlie didn't notice Sarah at all since Theresa was the first one to be seen by him even though there were so many people there.

He did not have a clue why there were so many people this day.

Then he looked at Roderick for an answer. "What's going on with you?"

"Theresa wants to see Mr. Calsis then I bring her here."

Charlie glanced at Theresa subconsciously hearing Roderick's reply and only a glance at her brought him back to the memory of her home with Dick.

He had not cooled down totally.

"Ridiculous! What are you pretending to do? I hope you can understand what's the meaning of divorce and be conscious that we are divorced. What are you gonna do with my family, my ex-wife?" Something was distinct in his voice, the accusing tone. Theresa could sense it directly.

So did Sarah. Moreover, she curved the corner of her lips unconsciously. You asked for it, Theresa!

It was a great kick for Sarah seeing Charlie's negative attitude toward Theresa.

But she didn't know what riled Charlie was actually Charlie himself's misunderstanding about Dick and Theresa.

"I just drop by to see grandpa, it's been a long time since the last time Leonard and Ben met him. Grandpa is not in good condition now and getting more and more vulnerable, you should pay more attention to him." Theresa tried to be impersonal.

She couldn't bear to see grandpa suffering any pain and the tightly knitted eyebrows conveyed her worries. Charlie, however, sniffed at her words coldly. "Sounds like you are concerned about him very much, um-hum? Then what did you do for him? Don't you know that what rendered him even more vulnerable?" Theresa's patience is wearing thin at Charlie's constant mocking words. She refused to grin and bear anymore. "Yeah, he is your grandpa and I'm under an obligation to pay a visit to him. However, as his dear grandson, what did you do to help him? Leaving him alone in Sarah's care in the hospital, that's what you did for your grandpa? How could you have the gall to say that? Just open your eyes and look what grandpa is like now! Will you be happy if you are him?"

Chapter 693

Sarah was annoyed by Theresa, who seemed to be blaming her. "Hey, Theresa, what do you mean by that crap?"

It was grandpa who refused to let her take care of him! She did nothing wrong.

Why did it sound as if she was the wrongdoer in Theresa's words?

Charlie cast a glance at Sarah. Apparently, he didn't like Sarah, and neither did he understand why this woman was here.

Generally speaking, he would drive Sarah away at the sight of her.

However, Theresa was present, and he knew how badly Theresa disliked Sarah.

So he deliberately spoke contrary to Theresa. "I think she did relatively well. At least she is here with grandpa wholeheartedly. Unlike some people, being so close to Dick, trying to abduct my son all day long!" "What did you say?" Theresa looked at Charlie in disbelief. He should be... defending Sarah?

Theresa said angrily, "Charlie, you blind? Do you think she really cares about grandpa? If she does, would grandpa become like this? Oh, you're really out of your mind!"

Theresa drew a bottom line for Charlie, which was that he should never be on Sarah's side.

Charlie and Theresa both knew what kind of person Sarah was

However, this man actually defended Sarah!

"Out of mind? I?" retorted Charlie, "Better than you, at least. Yeah, I see. You just don't want to see me with her, huh? You know what? I have this very problem, that I love to do whatever would make you feel bad! Weird, right?"

Theresa quietly heard their bickering and was surprised by Charlie's words.

She somehow felt surprised.

She knew it! Charlie kind of liked her!

It was this woman, Theresa, who was a total stirrer, that made Charlie turn a cold face at her.

Now, Charlie was defending her, which made Sarah more than happy.

She stood up, and approached Charlie. "Charlie, did you mean it?" asked Sarah as she stared into his eyes,

"Of course!" Charlie tried so hard to endure his disgust at this woman, "You want to be with me, don't you? I'll give you the chance now!"

Sarah was so moved. "Thank you, Charlie! I know I was wrong in the past. I was heartless in the past, but I will make it up for you with the rest of my life."

Sarah then looked at Charlie gratefully.

The scene broke Theresa's heart.

Did Charlie forget how Sarah laughed at him when he had to sit in a wheelchair?

Tears welled up in Theresa's eyes.

"Good! Charlie! You're good!" Theresa spat, glaring at Charlie, "If you don't marry her, I'll take you a ballless fucking eunuch!"

She then turned to her boys. "Let's go."

Leonard glared at Charlie, and silently and angrily followed Theresa.

However, Ben, as he saw dad standing together with Sarah, felt like crying.

Dad said so clearly that he had nothing to do with this woman. But he should...

Ben trusted dad so much!

His belief in dad was shaken.

As Theresa was to leave with the boys, Sarah suddenly said, "Wait."

Theresa stopped and Sarah walked over. Facing Theresa, Sarah didn't hide her arrogance. "You may go, but Charlie's children need to stay. Who gave you the right to take Charlie's children away as you want? He may have lingering feeling for you, but I don't."

This woman really considered herself Charlie's wife now. She was good at role change.

Theresa returned fire with full disdain. "You're telling me and my boys what to do?"

Chapter 694

Chapter 694

She was the boys' mother! Who did Sarah think she was that she could give instructions?

Sarah said proudly, "Of course, I can tell you what to do. If I didn't leave, an ignoble woman like you wouldn't have married Charlie in the first place. You're disgracing him! Naturally, I need to take responsibility to stop you from keeping pestering him!"

Charlie just watched the women indifferently without showing the slightest intention to intervene. He was disappointed by Theresa today.

He was so mad at Theresa that he just wished Theresa to learn a hard lesson.

Only Theresa, only this very woman in the world, could disappoint him so hard!

Does she have any idea who she disappointed?

Theresa cast Charlie a glance. "So this is Charlie Calsis's woman?"

He just let Sarah snatch her boys away?

The expression in Theresa's eyes gave Charlie a flash of distress. But, soon, how the intimate acts between Theresa and Dick soon occupied his mind, killing the last reason in it.

Charlie said coldly, "You don't like to be pampered. Someone will. Am I right?"

Sarah never expected that Charlie would help her and stay on her side. She felt awesome!

With a triumphant smile, Sarah taunted Theresa. "See? You still think of yourself as the decent woman you've always thought of yourself as? Without Charlie, you're nobody!" After spitting trash talk, Sarah turned to Jonathan. "Jonathan, let her leave the boys. Do not allow her to bring them away."

Jonathan was dumbfounded.

Err...

Should I obey Sarah Cameron?

He also disliked Sarah, but he had no idea what was in Mr. Calsis's mind.

Then, Jonathan chose to remain silent.

"Huh?" Jonathan's silence irritated Sarah, "You're not listening to me?"

Then, she walked up to Charlie. "Charlie, look at your man." she complained, "He isn't even listening."

Jonathan was rendered speechless. Why do things turn out to be like this?

Jonathan never expected this ridiculous farce.

Theresa swept her gaze through Jonathan and bullied Sarah. Finally, her gaze landed on Jonathan. "Are you going to stop me?"

"I... I will obey Mr. Calsis." Jonathan didn't dare to face Theresa's stare,

He was at a loss for what to do.

Charlie had been standing silently aside. Upon hearing Jonathan, he opened his mouth. "I think Sarah is right. Since you've brought them back to the Calsis, you have no reason to bring them back." "How dare you!" Theresa glared at Charlie.

She, out of kindness, brought her kids to pay Old Mr. Calsis a visit. How dare this bastard take the chance to rob her of her children!

They had agreed to finish this on the court!

Charlie produced a cruel smile. "Why do you think I dare not?"

"You..." Theresa now felt Charlie a strange man to her.

Suddenly, she remembered that this man was Charlie Calsis, whom everyone feared.

Perhaps, she had forgotten who he really was because she had been too close to him. They lived together, and he doted on her... she shouldn't have forgotten all this.

Right, he could do whatever he wanted to do.

Roderick came to Theresa's rescue. "Go back home," he said to Theresa.

He asked Theresa to come, and he would naturally need to help Theresa.

Sarah stared at Roderick and began sowing discord. "Ah, Dr. Hill, you're quite funny. If I didn't misremember, you're Charlie's friend, aren't you? Charlie's children are being taken away by this woman! Why are you defending her? I see. You never take Charlie your friend!"

Chapter 695

Chapter 695

Sarah had been displeased with Roderick for a long time.

Roderick was helping Theresa in every way!

Sarah thought it would be better for Charlie not to associate with him!

Roderick looked at Sarah and said, "Who are you to discuss my relationship with Charlie?"

When he said this, Roderick, who was usually gentle, had a cold look in his eyes.

Sarah was startled by his attitude. Even though she was standing there with Charlie by her side, she didn't dare to say anything more and had to keep quiet for the time being! With Roderick helping her, Theresa decided to leave with the kids straight away.

Jonathan stepped in to stop her.

Theresa looked at Jonathan. "You're helping that woman too?"

Jonathan was embarrassed. He had been grateful and had a good view of Theresa after she helped Charlie with his legs.

Jonathan said, "Ms. Cameron, Mr. Calsis is just pissed off. You just have to coax him."

Theresa said, "I have to coax him? Why?"

She knew Jonathan was trying to make peace!

However, she wouldn't buy it.

Theresa glanced at Charlie and said to Jonathan, "As I said, I'll look down on him if he doesn't marry Sarah.

Since he loves this woman so much, I certainly want them to grow old together!"

"If that's what he wants, why should I stop him?"

Jonathan said, "Why did you have to say that?"

He had been working for Charlie, so he could tell.

Charlie loved Theresa best. If Theresa got back to him, he would be as nice to Theresa as before.

However...

Charlie happened to be angry about Dick today. That was why he didn't stop Sarah.

Theresa said, "I'm leaving!"

Jonathan stood in her way, refusing to let her go.

Theresa knew it was useless talking to him because he listened to Charlie, so she turned to Charlie and said,

"Charlie, we've agreed on a lawsuit. Why? Are you regretting it now?"

Charlie said, "Agreed? No, we didn't. You can call Dick over here now. I'd like to see what reason he has to take. my kids away!"

Last time when they were at Theresa's place, he had to leave to avoid a conflict with Dick!

Now they were at the hospital, not at her place. It wouldn't help much even if she called the police.

Ben and Leonard stood there, watching Charlie.

Ben, in particular, had tears in his eyes, which would fall at any moment.

Charlie was stunned to see Ben like that.

He remembered what he had promised Ben.

Just then, Old Mr. Calsis suddenly walked over and started hitting Charlie directly with the stick in his hand.

"How dare you bully your wife! How dare you bully her!"

Because of what had just happened, they almost forgot about Old Mr. Calsis.

Now they finally noticed that the old man was still there!

Old Mr. Calsis didn't show any mercy to Charlie. He just kept beating his grandson up. Seeing that, Sarah tried to stop the old man. "Please stop it, Grandpa! Don't hit Charlie."

She now wanted to redeem herself in front of Charlie, so she was pretending to be kind.

Old Mr. Calsis took this opportunity and simply hit her as well!

It was so noisy in the ward.

Theresa ignored them and took the opportunity to leave with the kids.

Roderick came out after Theresa and said to her, "Charlie was just pissed off. Don't take it to heart."

Chapter 696

Chapter 696

"It doesn't matter," Theresa said. "I just find it quite ridiculous. When I divorced him, I was hoping that he would find someone wonderful, but he accepted Sarah... I was stupid enough to worry that he would have a bad time. In fact, it's none of my business no matter who he's with, right?"

Since their divorce, Theresa had been worrying about Charlie every day.

Now, Charlie decided to be with Sarah himself!

That was what Sarah wanted.

Theresa told herself to leave them alone!

She thought they might belong to the same world!

Roderick knew how angry she was. He turned to the two kids and saw that Leonard was silent while Ben kept his head down and looked disappointed.

Charlie had promised Ben before and said it had nothing to do with Sarah, but just now...

Ben found that Charlie had broken his promise!

Roderick reached out his hand and ruffled Ben's hair. "Ben."

He felt sorry for the two kids, who had to face such drama.

Ben didn't say a word.

Roderick turned to Theresa and said, "I'll drive you home!"

"I drove here."

"Where's your car?" Roderick followed Theresa to the car. He was going to drive her and the kids home.

It was quiet in the car. None of them were talking. Roderick put on some music to lighten the mood. However, no one paid any attention to him!

Roderick said to Theresa, "Charlie won't be with Sarah, so you don't need to take it seriously."

He knew Charlie well enough to realize that Charlie was just pissed off with Theresa.

"Who knows?" Theresa said. "I used to think so too, but after what happened today, I realized that I shouldn't have trusted him!"

Theresa was getting more confused, wondering what kind of man Charlie was.

Roderick said, "I think he was just angry. You know how much he hates Sarah, don't you?"

Theresa scoffed at it. "When I was with him, I thought I knew him well and believed he was a nice man. But now, I don't know what he is thinking!"

It was a red light. Roderick stopped the car at the intersection and glanced at Theresa.

Theresa looked calm, but from her eyes, Roderick could tell how disappointed she was with Charlie.

Theresa said, "You know what? I used to think that he was the most trustworthy person in the Calsis family. I always thought that if he knew the kids were his and mine, maybe he would be soft-hearted and let me keep them together. It turns out... that he is the most cold-blooded one in his family."

Even Leticia stopped trying to take the kids back when she found out the truth.

By contrast, Charlie was still trying to take the kids away from Theresa over and over again!

Theresa thought she had misjudged him!

Roderick sighed when he heard what Theresa said.

He agreed, thinking that it was not easy for Theresa and that Charlie should have taken into account how Theresa felt as a mother.

Even if the kids stayed with Theresa, it wouldn't affect how Charlie got along with them.

However, Charlie just couldn't wait to get the kids back!

Because of Old Mr. Calsis, Theresa left with the two kids.

Old Mr. Calsis didn't like Charlie and Sarah, so he kicked them out.

Sarah followed Charlie out of the hospital.

The driver pulled up at the entrance. Charlie was about to get in the car when Sarah followed him, trying to get He glared at Sarah before she could. "Get lost!" Sarah looked at him. "Charlie, you just said..."

Charlie had been nice to Sarah just now inside the hospital, saying nice things about her in front of Theresa.

Sarah didn't understand why he was acting like this now.

"What did I just say? Did you think I was serious?" Charlie looked at Sarah meaningfully. "Don't you know who you are?"

Chapter 697

Chapter 697

Charlie might be polite to anyone but this woman in front of him. He found it disgusting to take one more glance at her!

"So, you were lying to me just now?"

Sarah was a bit depressed.

She couldn't believe that Charlie had actually used her.

Nor had she expected that Charlie would deliberately do that to make Theresa angry.

Charlie said, "So what?"

Seeing how cold he looked, Sarah laughed to herself!

She was glad that Charlie was willing to lie to her now!

Sarah said, "It's okay. I know you were just angry with Theresa and trying to piss her off. I don't mind it anyway. It's fine as long as I'm around you."

Charlie gave her a glance. He didn't bother to listen to her nonsense anymore and reached out his hand to close the car door.

Sarah watched him from behind and curved her lips in a smile.

Without getting angry, she got in her car and slowly made her way back home.

Anyway, this was an opportunity for her.

She saw a chance for the two of them to get back together, no matter why Charlie was with her.

Sarah thought it would be better if Theresa went overboard. Then, she would be able to get married to Charlie!

Nothing else mattered as long as she could become Mrs. Calsis.

Back at her place, Theresa had dinner with Roderick and others together.

Cristina heard about what had happened at the hospital and looked at Theresa in disbelief. "Charlie is crazy, isn't he?" "Who knows," Theresa said. "Stay out of his business from now on. By the way, I'm going to go to Eugene's tomorrow!" She had promised to go and help Eugene with his mother.

It was scheduled for tomorrow.

Dick would not be coming over tomorrow, so she would be able to go.

When she heard Eugene's name, Cristina stopped talking and looked sad all of a sudden.

Roderick turned to Theresa and said, "I'll go with you!"

Cristina asked, "What about the kids? Should I stay home with them?"

Theresa said, "No, they'll come with me. I don't think it's a good idea to leave them at home."

She was a bit paranoid now!

She was afraid that Charlie would come and try to take the kids away!

Theresa looked over at Leonard and Ben as she helped Ben with his food. Ben wasn't eating much over dinner tonight. He seemed to be very upset. Theresa looked at him and said, "Have more food, Ben."

"Mom, I don't really want it."

Theresa knew what he was upset about.

Ben had a fight with Leonard over Charlie during the day, but now he was disappointed by Charlie. Theresa said, "Kids just need to eat well to grow taller. Didn't you say you would grow taller to protect Mom?" "Mom, Ben said. "Is dad really a bad guy?"

Charlie was helping Sarah so much at the hospital and now Ben had to be suspicious.

Theresa admitted that she disliked Charlie so much that she even felt hatred for him now.

She didn't want to have anything to do with him.

However, she didn't want to instill hatred in the boy when she saw the look in his eyes.

Theresa said, "No. It's just that I'm not on good terms with him these days. Just like you and Leonard have your fights, but do they affect the fact that you're good brothers?"
"But he was helping the bad woman."

They all knew how annoying Sarah was.

Ben was quite upset that Charlie was helping Sarah like that.

Theresa looked at her son, reached out her hand, and gently ruffled his hair.

Chapter 698

Chapter 698

After dinner, Roderick left. Theresa slept with the two kids.

She hadn't slept with them for a long time as she wanted them to be independent. Tonight, they might need her to stay with them or she might need them to stay with her. She sat there, reading them a bedtime story.

The two kids lay side by side, with their identical little heads next to each other on the pillow. Listening to her story, they were getting sleepy. Leonard, in particular, was almost asleep. Kids were just like that. Their emotions came and went quickly

Theresa looked at the two little ones and smiled gently, "Sweet dreams!"

She lay down as well and gazed at them.

She had been watching them grow up since they were babies. It was heartwarming to think about it.

Just looking at them, she put all those unhappy moments with Charlie behind her.

The next morning, Theresa and Cristina went to Eugene's with the two kids.

It was not the apartment where Eugene had stayed before, but a villa, which was not too far away from where Theresa lived now. It was also a tranquil place.

Theresa rang the doorbell. Soon, the gate was opened from the inside.

They walked in. Cristina followed Theresa, quietly looking at the building. She didn't even know that

Eugene had a home like this.

Eugene opened the door for them. Seeing Theresa, he said, "Good morning"

As he spoke, he glanced at Cristina and seemed a little surprised. "What are you doing here?"

Cristina looked at the man and noticed how displeased he was to see her.

She was not even as welcome as Theresa?

Cristina said in exasperation, "I'm here to help Theresa! I'm her assistant today. Do you have a problem with that?"

She glared at Eugene justifiably.

Theresa looked at Eugene and said, "You don't want Cristina here? I can tell her to leave now."

Eugene certainly wasn't at the point of kicking Cristina out.

He glanced at Cristina and said, "Come on in!"

They were having breakfast and there was an old lady sitting in the dining room.

Eugene asked, "Have you had breakfast yet?"

Theresa said, "Yes. Is that your mother?"

She glanced into the dining room.

Eugene nodded. "Yeah."

The old lady looked elegant.

Only she was sitting there with a melancholy look on her face and no light at all in her eyes.

Eugene said, "Please wait for a moment. My mother is still finishing her breakfast"

"I need to use the bathroom," Ben said

Eugene told him where the bathroom was. Theresa stood up and went to the bathroom with Leonard and Ben.

Cristina sat alone in the living room, looking around the place and then at Eugene's mother from time to time

She had known Eugene for some time without hearing him talk about his mother. She had never expected to meet his mother like this. Eugene walked into the dining room and sat down at the table.

The man who was usually dashing and cool outside looked a bit nervous in front of his mother.

Ella asked, "Who are they?"

It was rare to have visitors in the house!

She had to ask about them when they came today.

Eugene said, "You have been unwell, haven't you? So I found an acupuncturist for you."

Hearing Eugene's words, Ella instantly said coldly, "Tell them to leave!"

"Mom." Eugene looked at her and tried to persuade her.

However, Ella picked up the cup by her hand in the next second and threw it directly at Eugene's head. "Are you doing this on purpose? You just want to leave me to the doctor and put me in the hospital, don't you? I'm telling you, that's not going to happen! You'll have to take care of me every day for the rest of your life unless I die."

Cristina was sitting on the couch in a distance, but she could still feel how suffocating it was around Ella, the old lady.

Chapter 699

Chapter 699

That was his mother?

She was like a devil!

Eugene explained, "You are thinking too much. I just asked her to come over and check on you."

"I'm fine!" Ella said. "Tell them to leave."

"Now that she is here, why don't we have her check on you?" His mother had headaches. Every time she was sick, not only did she suffer, but so did Eugene.

Ella would blame Eugene when she was not feeling well.

Eugene hoped that she would get better.

He would have an easier time if she was well.

However, Ella was resistant to the idea of seeing a doctor.

When she found out why Eugene had called Theresa and others over, she just kept asking him to drive them away.

Eugene tried to persuade her, but Ella responded by throwing things at his head, first the cup, then the plates on the table...

She kept doing that despite the food on the plates. The juice and broth fell over Eugene's head and mixed with the blood from the wounds that had been left on him.

Cristina was stunned to see that scene. She had gotten up from the couch before she knew it.

Cristina clenched her fists...

She just realized that she still loved this man so much! Seeing how he was treated by his mother, she really wanted to rush over and stop it, only to find that she had no right to do so. She... She didn't know what the hell she was in Eugene's life.

Theresa came back from the bathroom with the two kids. She saw Cristina standing right there in the hallway with a pale face and red eyes, on the verge of tears.

Theresa was a little surprised to see that. "What's wrong?"

Cristina looked up at Theresa. "I..."

She didn't know how to tell Theresa what she had seen.

Cristina tried to say something, but she couldn't. Seeing that, Theresa went back into the living room with the two kids.

In the dining room, the maid was collecting the debris from the floor and Eugene looked like a mess. Theresa saw this and walked straight over.

It seemed that Ella didn't find it enough. She took a bowl on the table and hit Eugene's head hard several times.

Theresa watched the scene in front of her and remembered that she had heard about Eugene's mother from Jack, who said Eugene did not love to talk about his family.

She had not understood it before, but now she kind of did.

Theresa looked at the crazy Ella, walked over, and grabbed her hand straight away when Ella was trying to beat Eugene again.

Ella froze and looked at Theresa. "Who are you?"

Theresa did not respond or let go of Ella's hand. She looked at Eugene and said, "You're wounded!"

Eugene said, "I'm fine."

Ella was angry at him and said to Theresa, "Let go of me. I'm teaching my son a lesson. Who are you to stop me?"

She hated the way Eugene looked like he was okay even though she was abusing him.

The more she looked at him, the angrier she got!

Theresa looked down at this crazy old lady. "Can't you see he's wounded?"

"It's no big deal. He might as well go to hell!"

Theresa was a little surprised to hear the old lady's words.

What kind of mother would say that she wanted her son to die?

Eugene looked at Theresa and said, "I'm fine. Let go of my mother."

"Just go and take care of your wounds."

Eugene was so badly wounded!

If she hadn't seen it with her own eyes, Theresa wouldn't have imagined that Eugene was living such a life!

Maybe Cristina hadn't imagined it either.

Eugene was pretty cool outside. Cristina had never seen him so humble.

She thought he was just so foolish to keep protecting his mother when he was treated like that.

Chapter 700

Chapter 700

Eugene looked at Theresa. He tried to say something, took a look at his mother, and walked away.

Ella calmed down when she saw Eugene leave.

Theresa had thought that Ella might throw a tantrum at her, but it didn't happen!

Ella just said to Theresa, "Please have a seat!"

Her politeness took Theresa by surprise.

Theresa let go of her hand and realized that she was not as irrational as Old Mr. Calsis.

Ella knew what she was doing well.

The maid was still cleaning up the mess in the dining room. Theresa looked at Ella and suggested, "Why don't we go and talk in the living room?"

With such a mess, it wasn't a good idea to talk in the dining room.

Hearing Theresa's words, Ella stood up and walked into the living room. She sat down, sized Theresa up, and asked, "You're a doctor?" Theresa said, "No, I'm an acupuncturist. Eugene told me that you have headaches..."

Ella said, "Can you help me with it?"

She looked sensible as she spoke.

It seemed that she wanted to get better as well.

Theresa looked at Ella and found that she hadn't misjudged the old lady. Ella was an elegant woman.

Theresa said, "I'll try my best."

Everything happened so quickly today that Theresa found herself unable to keep up.

Leonard and Ben sat there. They were both scared by what the old lady had just done.

Just then, the doorbell rang. Theresa said, "Leonard, go get the door."

Leonard quickly ran to the door and opened it.

In no time, Roderick came in from outside. He had said yesterday that he would come along.

In the door, Roderick saw Theresa and then Eugene's mother. He said to Theresa, "When did you get here?"

Theresa said, "Not long ago."

Roderick finished talking to Theresa, walked over, and looked at Ella. "Hello, Auntie Ella."

Ella nodded to Roderick as she sat there quietly.

Roderick sat down, looked at Ella, and asked how she was doing.

Ella said, "I won't die. Don't worry."

Roderick said, "Your health is the most important thing. This is Theresa. She is my friend! I asked her to come and help you."

Ella turned to Theresa when she heard Roderick's words. She didn't hold much hope. "I have an old problem that can't be cured."

Roderick said, "That's not necessarily true. This friend of mine is quite skillful. They said Charlie wouldn't be able to walk for the rest of his life, but she helped him on his feet!" Hearing this, Ella turned to Theresa again.

It was probably that she had heard about Charlie, so she looked a little surprised when she gazed at Theresa.

"You're younger than I thought."

Upon hearing her words, Theresa said, "I have a good master."

Leo was one of the best acupuncturists.

He wouldn't teach others all his skills before.

However, probably because of his age, he had taught Theresa everything he could in the hope that all his skills would be passed down.

Upstairs, Eugene was cleaning his wounds calmly in front of the mirror. Cristina stood nearby, looking at him. She had always thought he was a glamorous man, but now she just felt terrible when she saw him like this.

She said to Eugene, "Has your mother always done this to you?"

Hearing her voice, Eugene stiffened.

He had been used to everything about his mother.

However, he found it extremely embarrassing when Cristina asked about it.

Only in front of the woman he loved, he didn't want to show the most humiliating side of him.

Eugene said, "You can go out now!"
