

Chapter 14 Small World

Caroline first went to her favorite stores and bought a few pairs of jeans as well as T-shirts. Changing into jeans and T-shirts, Caroline finally found herself again.

Then she bought a cup of her favorite coffee and drank it while shopping.

The models in the window were all wearing fancy dresses, and many girls stood outside, let out their admiration, and then took a selfie. Caroline was never interested in these and was about to walk away when she heard a familiar voice come through.

"Honey, do you like this one?" a woman asked a man.

Caroline looked into the store, only to see Coco wearing a strapless dress, standing in front of Wendell.

He was thin, tall, and in a light blue casual suit jacket, looking young and sunny.

"It all looks pretty much the same to me. You can choose it if you like this," Wendell said.

Caroline stood outside, feeling as if her feet were nailed to the ground, unable to move.

What are they doing here? Are they going to get married? Caroline asked in mind.

It had been a week since she left home but her family didn't call her once, as if she never existed.

The memory pulled her back to her birthday a month and a half ago.

She and Wendell had known each other since little, and their families were considered close friends. When they graduated, both families was going to talk about their marriage.

The two families decided to hold a party on Caroline's birthday, and by the way, announced their engagement.

But that day, Wendell drank too much, and so did Caroline.

After the birthday party, the two families were ready to announce the wedding date, but Caroline could not find Wendell.

Caroline staggered off to find him, and right in her bedroom, she suddenly heard the ragged panting of a man and a woman. When she saw through the door, Wendell and Coco intertwined together naked!

Caroline no longer remembered what she did that day because of the alcohol.

The next day, Wendell desperately apologized to Caroline, saying that he was drunk and mistook Coco for her, which was why he slept with Coco. He pleaded for Caroline's forgiveness.

On the other hand, Coco cried in a victim's posture, saying that she had never kissed a boy yet!

Wendell was Caroline's childhood sweetheart, her fiancé, while Coco was her sister.

Caroline was lost, so she went to her mother's house to calm down, but when she returned, her father told her that Wendell's parents and he thought that Wendell should be responsible for Coco, which meant that Wendell would marry Coco.

Caroline of course was not pleased. Even if their marriage was going to be canceled, it should be Caroline who made the decision. She was a victim. Not only she couldn't get the slightest comfort, but also was completely kicked out of the game!

Caroline had a fight with her father and left home, followed by drinking with Leo in a bar. Then they decided that the two of them should get married and make them pay!

Caroline came back to her senses and sighed.

It surprised her that they're getting married so soon...

She really wanted to go up and tear up Coco's hypocritical face!

But she knew if she really did that, she would find herself in a dilemma!

Caroline was ready to leave this place. Revenge is a dish best served cold.

"Carol!" Coco's voice suddenly came from behind, "Is it really you? Don't go!"

"Caroline?!" Wendell's voice also came.
