

Chapter 46 Time waits for no man

At the Starlight Entertainment Agency, Chole's office.

Coco arrived in a hurry when she entered the door.

"Miss Chole, what's wrong? I have to have a reunion dinner with my in-laws later, can't we talk on the phone?"

Chole shook her head, "Coco, when do you plan to start work?"

"Start work?" Coco sighed, "I have to wait until I've finished dealing with all the things at my in-laws' house. I've just gotten married and still have some things to do in terms of customs."

Chole patted the documents on her desk, "Coco, we have signed this agreement; the shooting crew has already delayed the start of the production because of your marriage. It is possible to shoot the male lead and supporting roles first, but you can't delay it indefinitely!"

Coco gathered her hair, "I know, but I have to deal with the stuff of the wedding, right?"

Chole knew Coco's difficulties, "Coco, because of your marriage with Wendell, your popularity has been ranked at the top of many social media platforms recently. We can take advantage of this to put out the news of starting work and establish your positive image."

Coco sat down on the sofa and looked at the clock.

"Nowadays, there are too many potential actresses. Since you've got popularity and a good role, you have to seize the opportunity," Chole put in great efforts to persuade Coco.

"Chole, I understand what you said and I will do it as soon as possible, but I have not talked about it with Wendell. Please give me time to deal with it."

"And you have to get an abortion as soon as possible;

otherwise, it'll hit the news pretty soon. You know the media now feed on gossip. As you get married, people will speculate whether you're pregnant," Chole added.

Coco nodded. Fortunately, there is a custom of the Wendell family, which is that when the child is less than three months old, the pregnancy will not be announced to the public. So this news will not be exposed in this period.

"Chole, I will hurry up and solve all the problems."

"Every time I talk to you about this matter, you always say something like this. Coco, you must know whether you can be popular depends on this. I am so anxious for you. Time does not wait for anyone."

"I know," Coco's cell phone in her bag rang. It was from Wendell.

"Hey, Wendell, okay, I get it. I bumped into my seniors and talked for a while. I'm coming back," Hanging up the phone, Coco stood up, "Chole, Wendell is still waiting for me downstairs. I gotta go."

"I hope you can take what I said to your heart."

"I will," After saying that, Coco hurriedly left.

In front of the building, Wendell was waiting for Coco in a black Ferrari.

Coco put on her sunglasses and hurriedly got into the car, "Honey, Sorry for making you wait."

Wendell smiled, "It's okay."

He started the engine and drove back to his family's scheduled restaurant.

Although they had married, there was less of a sense of intimacy between Wendell and Coco.

Before marriage, Wendell seldom talked; now that they were married, he spoke even less.

No one knew if it was because Caroline came to the wedding today.

"Dear, I just went back to get something when I ran into Chole. Chole said there is a particularly good role for me, so she asked me to take it, but I want to discuss it with you," Coco said softly while checking Wendell's expression.

Wendell knitted his brows, "You are now two months pregnant, so I suggest you stay at home. Shooting films is a hard job. You might get in an accident."

"But..." Coco pouted, "Wendell, you know I majored in acting. The roles I once took were not good, so I want to play the lead role. This role suits me."

"Coco, you are still very young. After you give birth to the child and take a break, you can get back to your work. Even if you do not do anything, I can support you."

Coco smiled awkwardly. Once she's out of the limelight, it's not that easy to make a comeback!

"Wendell, I really want this role. I will be very careful and it just take two to three months. Many actresses are pregnant while shooting."

"Coco, even if I agree on this, my parents will not approve of it, not to mention my grandparents. My grandmother has been urging us to have kids. If you go to work, they'll be so disappointed."

Coco opened her mouth, "Okay then, I understand. I will listen to you."

Wendell turned his head to look at Coco. If she was not so understanding, how good would it be?

Coco's hand was on her abdomen; this child had become the biggest obstacle to her career.

Preston Building

These two days, Richard has been working from home, taking time to visit Caroline from time to time, and he has been very tender.

Caroline was tormented by Richard's medication these two days, and every time he applied medication to her, it was endless torture.

Richard was busy in the study again; Caroline went to play in the garden alone.

Leo knocked on the door of the study.

"Come in."

Leo peeked in, "Are you available?"

Richard raised his eyes and looked at Leo, "Is there something?"

"Yes," Leo bravely walked in.

Richard raised his head once again, looked at Leo with a serious face, and closed his book, "Go ahead."

Leo took a deep breath and sat opposite Richard; a chair was specially placed opposite Richard's table for people who came for appointments these days.

"When do you plan to go through the formalities with Caroline?"

"What formalities? Aren't the marriage formalities already done? You did it for me."

"I'm talking about the divorce formalities!"

"Oh? I didn't say anything about a divorce." Richard smiled, and his evil look was oppressive.

"No divorce? Do you want to..." Leo took a few breaths, "Uncle Richard, it's not appropriate for you to have a woman like this, right?"

"Have a woman?" Richard played with the pen in his hand,

"Do I force her to do anything?"

Leo wanted to say something, but he swallowed the words back, "I mean, this is not good for Caroline, and not good for you."

"I think our marriage is quite good."

Leo was shocked again!

"Uncle Richard, are you in love with Caroline?"

Leo couldn't believe it.

Richard did not answer but continued to read the document, "If you are here to persuade me to divorce her, then you can go back. I am not going to divorce."

Leo looked at Richard incredulously.

Chapter 47 She was the first to die

Why didn't he get a divorce? Does he really like Caroline? Or does Caroline have some value for him? Leo was rather confused.

"Uncle Richard! I hope you can think about it. Caroline is a good girl, even for my sake, and please let her go, alright?"

"What do you mean by letting her go?" Richard lifted his head, "I can't wait to love her."

Leo once again choked on Richard's words.

After a moment of silence, Leo mustered up his courage and asked, "Uncle, aren't you afraid that your marriage will be known by the little grandmother?"

Richard's hand suddenly stopped moving and raised his eyes to look at his nephew with anger.

Leo was shocked by such a look.

He tried to swallow a mouthful of spittle, "Uncle Richard, if little grandmother knows that you are getting married privately, she will lose her temper. You...you'd better divorce Caroline and release her before little grandmother knows about this!"

"Leo, I don't have time to give you a lesson lately, so you have an itch, don't you?"

"I...am just reminding you not to let little grandmother know about this."

"She won't know," Richard's voice was dark and deep.

It seemed that Richard was determined not to let Caroline go.

Leo closed his eyes and fixed his mind, "Uncle Richard, Caroline is my best friend! I beg you, let her go! If you don't let her go..."

"Then what will you do?" Richard's eyebrows up.

"I'll... tell little grandma!" Leo said.

Richard's pupils slightly shrink, and his black pupils have a deep light, "You are threatening me."

"Sort of it! This matter is my fault. I accidentally took the wrong ID card, making you married, so I will take responsibility. You can beat or scold me as you like. But you should let Caroline go. She is innocent; she now has a home but can not return to; she is very poor."

"What a pity of eating and drinking well at my place. Since this is your fault, I will settle with you." Richard lightly hummed.

Leo stood up, "Uncle Richard, I have never disobeyed you since I was little, but this time you hurt my best friend! If you don't stop, I'll go tell Little Grandma!"

After saying that, Leo walked straight towards the door.

"If you go tell that,...!" Richard's gloomy voice came from behind, and Leo felt like his feet were nailed to the ground, unable to move a muscle.

He slowly turned around, and his eyes filled with trepidation, "You...you said..."

Richard lightly hummed, "You're the one who told Caroline that I'm gay, right?"

Leo was stunned and did not speak.

"So you must know about Mascen."

Leo hung his head; he knew about Mascen.

It was said that Mascen was the man who had a relationship with Richard.

He inadvertently learned it from the maid who served Richard before. It was rumored that Richard was GAY and liked men, starting from Mascen.

"Aren't you curious at all? Where did Mascen go?"

"Where did he go?"

"You can ask your grandmother when you ask her where Mascen went."

Leo froze in place, feeling the blood in his whole body flowing backward.

"Go out; don't get in my way," Richard gave an order of expulsion.

Leo froze for a long time before he slowly walked out of the study like a walking corpse.

When Leo walked out of the study and leaned against the door, he felt his body was emptied.

It was said that his grandmother Katherine was a vicious character, but he did not believe it because in his eyes, Catherine, although a little fierce, was also very concerned about him.

But today, hearing his uncle's words, he believed it.

Marrying a man twenty years older than her, and being invincible in this huge family, Katherine must have her means!

This matter absolutely must not let her know; otherwise, Caroline would be the second Mascen!

Leo found Caroline feeding the fish in the garden.

"Leo! You're here! Look, the goldfish here is so fat. I wonder if it's good to stew a pot," Caroline said while spreading the fish bait.

"You really can't forget to eat at any time!" Leo sat on the big stone next to Caroline.

"What's wrong? Why are you frowning?"

"I went to negotiate with my uncle to get him to let you go," Leo said.

"Ha? Really? How about it? Did he agree to let me go?!"

Leo shook his head.

Caroline raised her hand and slapped Leo on the back of his head, "I knew you were useless!"

"Hey, what happened to you and my uncle during the time I was away?"

Caroline's eyes slithered around, "Nothing."

Of course, she wouldn't tell Leo that Richard wanted to sleep with her, except for her!

If something is happening, then it must be in bed!

"Impossible!" Leo didn't believe what Caroline said.

"How is it impossible? I can still lie to you!" Caroline turned her head to the side and continued to feed the fish with the bait.

"My uncle has a crush on you!"

Caroline instantly choked on her saliva, coughed and her face turned red, "Don't make jokes!"

"I also find it quite strange. My uncle is gay, so he likes men. How can he like you?"

In Leo's opinion, it is not scientific that Richard liked Caroline!

Not to mention that Richard likes men, even if he liked women, he would not like Caroline!

Caroline ran about all day like a monkey, and she was a cute girl, so Richard should not like this type.

The fact was that Richard and Caroline had only known each other for a few days.

Love at first sight? In the eyes of Leo, love at first sight is impossible to happen to Richard!

Besides, when they first met, Caroline was very drunk, so who would fall in love at first sight with a drunken woman?

Not true! Could it be that this is not their first encounter?

Caroline pushed Leo, "What are you thinking about, Leo?"

"Nothing! I'm thinking about why my uncle doesn't agree to divorce."

"Don't worry. I will make him get a divorce."

"You?"

"That's right! It's not easy to make someone like me, but to make someone hate me is something that I am good at!"

Leo was skeptical about this.

Though he doubted, there was nothing he could do. That afternoon, Leo received a notice from the crew, asking him to return to the set immediately to shoot.

Of course, Leo knew that this must be Richard's arrangement.

Once again, only Richard and Caroline were left in the Preston Building.

The good thing was that in these few days, Richard had not returned to his bedroom to rest, and they were at peace with each other.

In the living room, Richard was reading the latest international economic newspaper.

John walked over, "Madam said she arranged a blind date for you tomorrow night."
