

Chapter 74 Discovering the Secret of the Great Devil

Richard opened the office door with one hand.

He was startled by the sight in front of him.

"Come on! Come on!" Caroline was sitting in front of the computer, playing a game excitingly.

"What are you doing?" Richard asked her.

"Don't talk to me!" Caroline immediately stopped Richard, "I am playing games!"

"GAME OVER!" Finally, Caroline won.

Caroline leaned back in her chair and said, "I am so good at it."

Richard walked over and found the computer screen showing a game he had recently created.

He subconsciously glanced at the drawer and found it was tightly closed, so he was relieved.

"Do you like playing games?" Richard asked Caroline.

Caroline straightened up and replied, "Well, yeah. I met your nephew Leo through the game, and in the game, our characters even married!"

Richard frowned immediately.

"What game was it on your computer? I've been playing games since I was twelve years old, but I never play this kind of game," Caroline asked.

This was a great shame for her that there was some game she hadn't played before!

Richard smiled and replied, "It is still in the trial stage, and it's not open to the public yet."

"Not on the market?" Caroline asked.

"That's right. I always feel that this game is not perfect yet," Richard said.

"OMG! You are the creator of this game?" Caroline was rather surprised.

"Yes," Richard replied calmly.

Caroline was shocked again!

Originally Caroline thought that a man like him would be busy with documents and meetings, something about his business, but she did not expect that he could also create games!

The old sayings were always right! You can judge a book by its cover!

"If you have any suggestions, you can just tell me, and I might take your advice," Richard said.

Caroline nodded.

"I want to go back to sleep now," Richard stroked Caroline's head.

Caroline nodded once again, "Tonight you can hold me to sleep."

Richard was first stunned. Although these days he hugged her to sleep, it was because he forced her to hug him while sleeping; But this time it was the first time she took the initiative to ask him.

"Okay," The two of them went back to the bedroom together.

Back in the bedroom, Caroline suddenly asked Richard, "When should we leave here?"

"Are you tired of this place?" Richard asked her.

"Well, a little," Caroline replied.

"But, you haven't seen the turtles laying eggs," Richard tried to persuade her to stay.

"I looked up the information on the Internet and I don't want to wait," Caroline said.

Caroline's smile was not very natural.

"It's okay. You just have a cold and you are in your period, so it is not suitable for rushing. After two days, we will go back," Richard comforted Caroline with a gentle voice.

Caroline was about to say something else; Richard said at the moment, "I will go take a shower."

"Yes," Caroline said.

Richard walked into the bathroom; Caroline sat on the bed and let out a long breath.

She heard Richard's footsteps coming back; Richard went straight back into the bedroom; She was wise enough to immediately put the documents back and start pretending to play the game on the computer. Then Richard would not find out that she had already known about his plan.

These days, Richard's love for her made Caroline fall into the tender land; this man in the end turned out to be a terrible role!

The South Group's matters were all planned by him!

There was not even a network on Dream Island. She guessed it was because he was worried that she would know something about the South Group through the internet.

Now, Caroline was really worried about the South Group. Richard's Hints Group is very powerful. The South Group is unable to fight him. Then what should she do? Caroline was very worried.

She needed to go back to see them as soon as possible. She should leave here as soon as possible.

That night, Richard held Caroline in his arms. Obviously, it was a warm embrace, but Caroline felt so cold for the first time.

It was not until the early morning that she fell asleep.

Because she was in period, it was inconvenient for her to move casually; she could not participate in some activities, and she could only pick up shells on the beach or do something boring.

Caroline lost her interest in this place, so Richard started thinking about leaving this island.

Caroline was on her lunch break and only when Caroline entered her dreamland did Richard leave the bedroom and come downstairs to his office.

Tom was already waiting for him here.

"How is the South Group doing now?" Richard sat on the chair; it was the only thing he was most concerned about at this moment. Once the matter of the South Group was resolved, he would take Caroline and leave here.

"Mr. Richard, the Lee Group currently wants to reach an agreement with the South Group. The Lee Group is ready to hold forty percent shares of the South Group. The South Group is now like an ant on a hot pot, not noticing that this is a trap for them. So they now treat the Lee Group as their lifeline," Tom said.

Richard nodded lightly; he was very satisfied with this result.

"When will the contract be signed?" Richard asked.

"Tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. The South Group already announced it on its official website. It can be seen that the South family really thinks that the Lee Group is going to help them."

"Very good. When the signing ceremony is reached, immediately make the next move. I want to acquire the South Group at the lowest price," Richard said.

"Yes, Mr. Preston. The South Group's share price has now fallen to the lowest in its history, and it rebounded a little because of the Lee Group, but when the signing ceremony comes, the Lee Group will immediately withdraw its capital. Its share price will definitely fall again," Tom said.

Outside the door, Caroline listened and her heart beat really fast!

Richard was to put the South Group to death!

The South Group was the foundation of the South family for several generations, and it was about to be destroyed! Caroline was totally shocked by this thought.

No, Caroline thought she must call Wendell and tell him about this news.

Caroline tiptoed back to the bedroom, took out her cell phone, and started calling Wendell.

Her phone now could only be used to make phone calls.

"Hey, Wendell!" Caroline said when the call was connected.

"Caroline?" Wendell's voice sounded tinged with exhaustion.

"Wendell, listen to me. Don't sign the contract with the Lee Group. It's a trap!" Caroline warned.

"Caroline, what are you talking about? My company was now in an unprecedented crisis, and signing a contract with Lee Group was the only way to save it. Caroline, I have no other choices."

"No! This is a trap. You have to believe me, Wendell," Caroline said.

"Wendell, who are you talking to on the phone?" Coco's voice came out from the phone.

"Beep..."

Before Caroline could finish her words, the phone was hung up by Wendell.

"This woman is always going to ruin things for me!"

Caroline thought that now that Coco was with Wendell, Wendell would not listen to her, so Caroline called Wendell again after a while, but as a result, no one answered the phone.

She highly suspected that Coco used Wendell's cell phone to blacklist her!

I have to think of another way to save Wendell! Caroline thought.
