

Chapter 75 Escape

In the office downstairs, Richard didn't notice Caroline's movements at all.

"It's almost time for the turtles to come ashore to lay their eggs this year," Richard told Caroline.

"Mr. Preston, I have sent people to do a survey. In the first few days, there was no movement, but these days, it is estimated that there will be a large number of sea turtles coming to the shore. I am sure this will happen within these days."

Richard nodded and said, "Send someone to fetch the telescope I brought from abroad."

Tom was stunned and thought, "Mr. Preston asked me to take such a good telescope just to see sea turtles laying eggs?" During Richard's last business trip to the United States, he spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to buy a telescope.

"In addition, build a house within these days in a safe area where the sea turtles laying eggs would not be affected and the color of the house should be similar to beach color."

Sea turtles are very smart. Once they find anything unusual, they will return to the ocean, so it will take some effort to observe sea turtles laying eggs.

Tom was stunned again and he thought, "Is it worth all these efforts at all?"

Seeing Tom did not say anything, Richard raised his head and asked, "Is there a problem?"

"No, no problem. I'll do it immediately," Tom responded and continued, "Mr. Preston, are there any other things that I need to do?"

"That's all for now. You can leave now," Richard said.

"Yes," Tom walked out of the office.

Richard smiled and thought in his heart, "No matter what Caroline wants, I will give it to her."

If she wanted to watch the sea turtles laying eggs, he would let her do it.

This evening, at dinner, Caroline had been a little distracted; Richard thought Caroline's stomach was still aching due to the period, so he accompanied Caroline all night.

There was no way for her to get rid of Richard, so Caroline became more anxious.

Until she went to bed at night, Caroline did not think of any good way.

Lying in bed, snuggled in Richard's arms, Caroline thought maybe she could leave here while Richard was asleep!

Sleeping with Richard for so many times, Caroline knew well about Richard's sleeping habits. His sleep was very slight, and a little movement could easily make him wake up.

So, Caroline did not dare to move while she was sleeping next to him.

She kept her eyes open and listened to Richard's breathing. As a result, she herself fell asleep!

When she opened her eyes, she found it was almost dawn and Richard was still sleeping.

Caroline's heart was pounding. If she couldn't leave here as soon as possible, it would be too late.

She tiptoed and sat up. Then she found Richard's eyes tightly closed and his breathing even. It seemed that he would not get up at this moment.

Caroline gritted her teeth, rolled out of bed, took out her clothes, and put them on. Then she walked out of the bedroom.

She went downstairs to Richard's office and took the document from his drawer.

And then she found a dagger in the drawer. Thinking about it for a while, she picked it up and put it in her pocket as well.

Then, she crept out of the office; she walked toward the door and turned the door handle.

A voice came from behind Caroline, "Where are you going?"

Caroline, who was highly nervous, heard the voice and dropped the file in her hand to the floor.

As soon as she turned around, she saw Richard standing at the stairway, staring at her!

It turned out that after she left the house, Richard woke up and found that she was not in the room, so he immediately went downstairs.

Richard's gaze fell on the document and his eyebrows immediately knitted up.

Caroline didn't have time to think much. She picked up the documents, opened the door, and ran out.

Running really fast, she went to the boat. This was the fastest pace she had ever had!

"Come back to me, Caroline!" Richard stood at the villa door and shouted.

Caroline ran even faster to the boat.

On the day when they went to the island, people on board were in a state of standby; this time, the crew was not fully awake yet.

Suddenly a girl ran onto the ship with a "thud, thud" and woke everyone up.

Caroline ran into the cockpit and a crew member, "Quickly start the ship! Back to Chicago! Right now! Hurry!"

Caroline was running up and down.

The crew was confused for a while, not knowing what was going on.

"Quickly start the boat!" Caroline was guessing that Richard would be able to catch her in a short time so she repeated again, "Hurry up!"

The people on the boat recognized Caroline; after all, she came together with Richard when they arrived; thus everyone knew about her.

Caroline took out the dagger from her pocket and put it against the neck of a crew member, "I told you to drive the boat! Right now!"

"Miss Caroline, calm down," the crew member persuaded her.

"I told you to sail the ship, right now. Sail the ship immediately and send me back, immediately!"

The captain walked out; in the end, the captain did not seem to panic at all and ordered, "Set sail!"

Everyone heard the captain's order and immediately took their positions.

Caroline saw that the ship was going to sail. She put down the dagger in her hand, clutching the paper, and sat down on the ground.

The ship began to start.

Caroline took a glance and did not find Richard chasing her. It should not be so easy to mobilize manpower in the early morning, so she was relaxed.

Richard sat on the sofa in his pajamas.

John came in and said, "Mr. Preston, the captain was ordered to sail the ship. Are you not going to chase Miss Caroline back? We can send people to stop Miss Caroline."

"Not necessary," Richard said.

John didn't understand, so he asked, "Then what should I do?"

"Go over to the pier and arrange for a cab," Richard said.

"Yes," John said.

Richard's eyes were with anger; This was because Caroline acted to lie to him, and what's more, he actually believed in her.

It should be the day when she was playing the games in his office.

Caroline must see that document that day, but she pretended that she didn't know anything!

Damn it! Richard cursed in his heart.

Since Caroline asked him to hold her, he should have been alerted. But what he thought at that time was that Caroline started to accept him!

He never thought it would be a trap for him!

Let's see what else you could do, Caroline! Richard thought.

An hour and a half later, the ship docked.

Caroline got off the boat with the documents in her arms.

There were very few cabs on the pier. After all, this was not a passenger terminal. Naturally, there were not so many people. This pier was very small, and the number of staff here was small too.

Caroline was worried when a cab stopped next to her, "Miss, do you want to take a ride?"

"Yes!" Like grabbing the straws of life, Caroline directly got into the car.

"Go to the South Group Hotel, North Ring Road store," said Caroline.

Caroline was very familiar with the location of the South Group Hotel. Generally, major events would be held in that hospital.

So there would be no exception at this time.

In the hotel, the signing ceremony would start soon.

Reward

6

Comments

0