

Master Odell 1211

Chapter 1211 Mason extracted an envelope from his pocket, "Here are ten cheques, they total up to eight hundred million. Give it to John, it's your ticket out of this place."

Sherry was visibly affected upon seeing this.

To think that Shannon would go to Mason to ask for the money after failing to get it from Janine.

She sure was resourceful!

It seemed like Mason had foreseen Sherry refusing to take the money. He smiled softly and explained, "Sherry, I know that the reason you ended up in this situation is because of our two families. If not for you trying to persuade John to pour money into our foundations, we would become history in Glanchester long ago. Look, we've made a significant amount of returns over the last year and it is only right that we repay our debt to you."

Sherry grimaced and stayed silent.

Mason made a good point, the Fowlers and the Browns did owe a debt to her. However, it also had to be stated that eight hundred million was not a trivial amount of money. Even if the debt had to be repaid, it should not only come from Mason's pocket, the Fowlers should play a part in settling the debt as well.

"Sherry, if you don't take this money, I'll feel guilty for the rest of my life." Mason sighed and expressed, "Besides, are you going to stay here and work for him for the rest of your life?"

Of course Sherry did not want that.

After a few seconds of silence, she decided, "Alright, I'll consider this a loan from you, I'll pay it back in the future." 2

Chapter 1212 Mason wore a look of pain and betrayal, his voice became hoarse as he expressed his sorrow, "Sherry, didn't you tell me that you were traveling at the time?"

Sherry could feel her body stiffening, she clenched her hands into fists.

She took a deep breath to stifle her contempt for the man.

She could not look at Mason and only glared at John.

John smiled cunningly, even now he was oozing charisma.

Sherry rushed in front of John in an instant and grabbed him by his collar. She stood on her tiptoes so she could face and challenge him, "John, you bastard! I'll kill you if you keep running your mouth and talking about things like that!"

John smirked, "I don't believe you, why don't you prove it to me?"

Sherry raised a fist immediately.

That was when Peter along with several bodyguards charged in from the other rooms connected to the living rooms.

They were rushing into the living room from all angles.

It was quite the scene that immediately alerted Shannon

Sherry’s eyes widened.

Mason and Shannon both suddenly grew restless as well. 1

Before they could protest, John announced, “Since they’re fake, throw them away then.” “Very well.”

Peter stuffed the stack of cheques back into the envelope and threw it at Mason’s feet.

At the very same

Peter immediately made for the courtyard. The bodyguards perched in front of Shannon and Mason swiftly followed after Peter and evacuated the living room. Shannon shuddered, then she took a deep breath and proceeded out into the courtyard as well, her face wrenched with nerves.

Mason frowned and soon went outside as well. Before he could draw himself into the courtyard, two bodyguards came out of nowhere and cut off his oath.

They pointed at the door behind him and said, "Master Brown, please leave."

Mason clenched his fists.

John and Sherry's figure was nowhere to be seen, they had long departed.

He was consumed with darkness and depression, he felt completely powerless in the face of John and knew that there was nothing he could do.

He swallowed his contempt, then turned around and left, his head downcast and defeated. 1

No matter how hard she struggled, he refused to budge.

Before long, her clothes were thrown all over the floor.

After a long time had passed, the man finally stopped. She was just getting up when she was mightily forced into the bed again.

She glared at John, her eyes teeming red with tears, "You bastard, I'll never forgive you! Even if I die, I would never let you touch me again--"

John flung his bothersome glasses out of the way and continued to suffocate her with his kiss.

After yet another prolonged kiss, he smiled and declared, "I'll have my way with you no matter what."

Several hours later.

The sun was about to set. Deep red and amber gleams of sunlight slipped through the cracks in between the curtains and penetrated the room.

The bedroom that had been quaking with movement finally came to a rest.

The man got out of bed and picked his clothes off the floor, proceeding to put them on one after the other.

Shortly after that, he was fully dressed and went to put his glasses back on. He darted a glance at the bed.

The bed was a mess by this point and underneath the blankets lay Sherry who was curled up into a ball and had her back turned to face him.

She did not move nor did she utter a word.

He frowned and called her name, "Sherry." The silence rang in his ears, this was all the answer he got. "Sherry." He called her name again.

She must have put her strength into the bite.

He merely shrugged off the pain, then he turned to the two bodyguards posted by the entrance and ordered them sternly, "Keep an eye on her, don't let her out."

The bodyguards answered dutifully, "Yes, sir." John slung his coat over his shoulder and walked to the adjacent courtyard.

Celine

was standing in the courtyard at the time and upon seeing John's return, she immediately sprang into the living room.

When John entered the living room, he saw Shannon standing in front of the couch. It seemed like she had been crying for some time, she wore a hurt expression.

"John..." she called after him in a sorrowful voice.

John smiled at him as gently as he always did.

He walked to the couch next to her and sat down himself, then he turned to her, "Don't just stand there, come on and sit."

Chapter 1218 John flashed a smile that hardly reached his eyes and stated, "Sure."

With that, he rose and walked out.

“John, it’s already late, where are you going?”

Shannon did not receive an answer, the last thing she saw was John’s distant figure departing.

He barely spared a look at her, he hardly had any intention of ever stopping.

Shannon froze.

After John walked into the courtyard, she swept her arms across the table and sent everything clattering against the floor.

She beheld the mess she made and cursed out loud,” Sherry, you bitch!” 1

Celine was frightened by such a spectacle. She waited until it seemed like Shannon had calmed herself a little before carefully advising , “Miss, the master must have been seduced by that witch already. You’re still young and so pretty, there’s no reason you should subject yourself to this fate. I think you should take his offer and leave, the money you get from the master should be enough to last you a lifetime of comfort.”

Celine believed that this was the best thing Shannon could do for herself. As long as one had money, one had nothing to fear, there was no reason Shannon should be bound to a man who did not love her.

it wasn't for Hailey who was trailing closely behind Queenie, Sherry would have presumed that she was here to give her a hard time.

Upon entering, Queenie eyed her up and down with a judgmental look in her eyes.

Sherry leaned back against the chair and greeted her lazily, "Hey."

Queenie shot her a look, "Sherry, what's your deal? Why did you meet up privately with Mason out of nowhere?"

Sherry answered, "It wasn't me who arranged the meeting with him."

Queenie was doubtful, "Then how do you explain my brother getting so angry? He... he's going to keep you imprisoned here again."

"He came to give me money."

"Huh?" Queenie proceeded to sit next to Sherry. "Just tell me what exactly is going on." |

Chapter 1220 She rose immediately and jabbed an accusatory finger at Sherry, "All those years ago, you were the reason my brother got kicked out of the family by my father. He gave up his rights as heir to the family assets and cut off all relations with us, he suffered so much for your sake and you complained that he was too poor for you? You... as if that wasn't enough, you even went and dumped him!" Sherry pursed her lips and held on to her silence.

The more Queenie thought about it, the more vexed she became, "Sherry, I can't believe I thought of you as a friend, I can't believe you were such a heartless and materialistic person all this time!"

She flung the platter of food she had snatched from Sherry moments ago to the ground, and immediately stomped out, completely furious.

Hailey who came in with her cast a conflicted look at Sherry before running out after Queenie.

The living room fell silent again.

The platter was smashed into pieces when Queenie flung it against the floor, but Sherry could still use the spoon and fork to pick off whatever remnants of food scattered over the floor.

Despite that, she felt like she had lost her appetite and could hardly stomach another bite of food. She got up and went to lie down on the couch, she stared at the ceiling above, her head in a daze.

Distant memories from another lifetime suddenly resurfaced from the depths of her mind.

Her first meeting with John was when she caught Mason and Shannon in bed.
