

Master Odell 1341

Chapter 1341 It was Cliff.

Odeil brought the phone to his ear.

On the phone, Cliff said in a soft voice, "Master Carter, I just contacted a teacher from the Art Academy who has just returned from Meadow Hills. He said that he went separate ways with Mrs. Carter and three female teachers in the hotel. He mentioned that they wanted to go to several other places, such as the prairie, an ancient city, and another place he forgot the name of. He's not sure where they went today."

Three female teachers?

Odell's expression relaxed slightly. "Got it." He hung up the phone, took another cigarette, and placed it between his lips.

A few days later, the temperature in Westchester took a sharp dive. It snowed overnight, so the outside was blanketed in white in the morning.

It happened to be the weekend. The little ones were probably attracted by the snowy scenery and got up earlier than usual.

Isabel dragged Flint outside to step in the snow and throw snowballs. In a rare turn of events, Liam, who had never been a fan of this kind of game, also rolled a snowball.

The atmosphere was very lively.

Odell stood by the door, the ice and snow reflected in his eyes. He looked very cold and slightly lonely.

Chapter 1342 Just when Odell thought Sylvia would say something to care about him, the air went silent.
Several moments passed, but her voice was not heard from Liam’s phone.

The three little ones stared at her.

Although Odell could not see the screen, he saw the image on it moving, so the connection was definitely not stuck. He frowned tightly and coldly pursed his thin lips.

Just then, Flint said pitifully to Sylvia, “Mommy, I miss you. Can you come back soon? Daddy is really fierce. He keeps putting me in time-out.”

Isabel glanced at him. “That’s because you’re always naughty.”

Liam said, “We’re fine at home, Mommy. You can come back after you’ve had fun.”

Hearing this, Flint immediately changed his tune. “Uh huh. Although I miss Mommy, I want Mommy to be happier.”

Sylvia was instantly amused and laughed aloud. “I know. You guys have fun at home too.”

“Okay.”

who was walking around the first floor saw Odell come back, he quickly greeted the latter obsequiously.
“Master Carter, did you leave something behind?”

Odell looked at him. “Let me use your phone.”

After saying that, he stretched out his hand.

The manager was dumbfounded , then silently took out his phone.

On a prairie in the north, Sylvia was sitting around watching the stars and chatting with her colleagues,
Ms. Kang and Ms. O’Neil, when her phone suddenly rang. She took her phone out.

It was from an unknown number from Westchester.

Was it a call from someone in the Art Academy or Art Association?

Sylvia brought the phone to her ear. “Hello?”

“It’s me.” The man’s low and cold voice rang out.

Chapter 1346 There was a few seconds of silence on the phone. Then, Odell called out to her in a low voice. "Sylvia."

His tone was full of helplessness as if she was being unreasonable again.

Sylvia sneered. "Don't call me in that tone. Just say so if you don't want to fire her."

"She hasn't made any mistakes at work." After a pause, he added, "But I can transfer her back to the administration department."

It seemed like transferring

Shermaine back to the administration department was the biggest compromise he would grant.

Sylvia's chest still felt stuffy.

If the incident with Charles did not happen, if she did not see Shermaine bump into him, and if Shermaine did not look like her at all, she would not have made such a request to Odell no matter how pretty Shermaine was.

However, he not only defended Shermaine time and time again, but he also called her unreasonable and yelled at her directly in front of that minx.

Thinking of those scenes, Sylvia could not suppress her pain. She took a deep breath and asked, "Odell, do you just not want her to leave your side?"

Fortunately, Odell did not hear their conversation. At that moment, his mind was completely sober without a trace of intoxication.

He got back in the car and drove.

When the black sports car disappeared from the road, Shermaine, who had been hiding in the shadows for a long time, came out. Looking at the direction in which his car left, she curled her mouth in a smile, her expression happy and smug.

'His stupid wife left home for so many days, but not only did he not compromise, he still believed in me unwaveringly. How would he be so adamant in defending me if he wasn't interested in me?'

...

The weekend passed in the blink of an eye.

It was a new week.

In the early morning, Odell opened his eyes and looked at the quietness of the room. His eyes were cold and lonely. He got up and washed up.

John?

Odell frowned and asked, "Why is he here?"

Shermaine replied, "He said he came to talk to you about a project in Glanchester."

Odell closed the file and said to her, "Tell him to come in, and go make another pot of tea."

"Understood."

A few minutes later, the door was pushed open, and a young man in a suit walked in holding a two-year-old toddler.

The little girl was chubby and pink. As soon as she entered, she called out to him softly, "Hello, Uncle!"

Odell smiled at her. "Hello."

John placed her on the ground.

Caprice immediately walked toward him with her little legs. She was not trying to hug Odell's legs. She curiously walked behind him, made a big round, and then continued to explore the rest of the office.

John's gaze followed her for a while. "Caprice, tell Daddy

"I'm just stating the truth."

He was clearly speaking the truth from an objective perspective. How was that defending her? Sylvia had also said the same thing.

John laughed. "Don't tell me you defended her like this in front of Sylvia as well?"

Odell's frown deepened. After a short silence, he said, "I'm not defending her."

"Sure." John put down the teacup, turned his head to look for Caprice, and saw her in a corner. She was squatting on the floor, playing with a cute ornament in her hand.

John got up, walked up to her, and picked her up.

As usual, Odell finished his work and left the office in the evening.

Shermaine tidied up and was ready to get off work too.

Just then, Cliff called her. She answered the phone and asked with a smile, "How may I help you, Assistant Bogard?"

"Are you free later? Let's have dinner together."

Shermaine was not a fool. Cliff was very busy. He would not invite her for dinner for no reason. She asked, "Is there something you have to say to me?"

"Yes. Let's talk face to face."

Since Odell had left, there was no reason for Shermaine to stay, so she agreed.
