Chapter 1461

At that moment, the car happened to pull into a commercial street lined with clothing stores.

A shop retailing provocative women's clothing stood out.

Sherry's eyes flickered. "Brandon, stop the car."

Brandon immediately pulled over.

Sherry pushed open the door and got out.

Tristan hurriedly followed her and asked curiously, "Ms. Sherry, do you want to buy some clothes?"

Sherry's lips curled up. "Yeah."

The morning passed by.

At lunchtime, John put down his work, took Caprice out for a delicious children's meal, and returned to the office.

The girl was sleepy after eating, so he carried her into the lounge inside and let her sleep on the bed.

"What are you laughing at? Have you not eaten? Or are you still hungry?" Sherry revealed a cordial and concerned expression. "Do you want me to treat you to another meal?"

John was silent for a few moments before smiling. "You posted that picture just for me to see, didn't you?"

Sherry froze for a moment and asked, "Are you talking about the photo you commented on on my social media?"

"Yes."

Sherry smiled. "You think too much. I took that photo a long time ago and happened to be a bit bored this morning, so I uploaded a selfie along with my post."

John pursed his lips and looked at her sharply.

Sherry's gaze flickered, and she asked, "Master Stockton, don't tell me you asked me to come over because you were attracted by that photo of mine."

She had a surprised expression. However, it would have been more natural if the corners of her mouth did not twitch while she held back a smile.

John's throat constricted for a moment, then he curled his lips. "What kind of partnership did you want to talk to me about?"

Sherry immediately put the prepared letter of intent on the desk in front of him and said, "We want to develop a casino in Glanchester and sincerely invite you to join and mentor us. The specific details of the project are inside, so please read it."

John's gaze was cold. "Get out."

Sherry pursed her lips. She could not continue to squat there, so she tugged the door handle to stand up.

However, as soon as she did, her abdomen suddenly experienced an uncomfortable sensation.

Brrt!

A crisp fart sound instantly rang out.

John's fair face turned green for an instant.

Sherry laughed sheepishly. "Sorry, I didn't mean to. Why don't you go out for a while? I want to let out a few more."

John curled his lips. "Do you believe me if I tell you I'll beat your *ss?"

She was a little upset. "It's not like I can control it. Don't you usually fart when you take a dump? Besides, it's not like you've never heard it before."

When she was with him in the past, she farted a lot when she could not hold it in, but she had never heard him fart before.

Just as John was about to kiss Sherry, he froze.

Sherry pushed him away and turned her head to look over.

At some point in time, Caprice had woken up. She sat with her little legs crossed, and her pigtails were mussed up. She held her chubby face as her eyes looked blankly at John and Sherry. She looked incredibly confused and cute.

Almost instantly, Sherry rushed to her and wrapped the little girl in her arms. "Caprice, what did you call me?"

She looked at Caprice excitedly, but Caprice did not seem to understand why Sherry was so excited.
While her large eyes were slightly confused, she still replied, "Mommy."

The tip of Sherry's nose stung as her eyes instantly reddened. Then, she picked up the little girl's chubby face and peppered kisses on her.

Caprice was at a loss for words.

Standing by the side, John was also speechless.

It was a while before Sherry stopped kissing Caprice, but she still held her daughter's cute face and said excitedly, " My baby Caprice is so good."

She thought she had to get Caprice to open up to her before the girl would be willing to call her Mommy.

Maybe the indoor temperature was too comfortable, or the little girl's steady breathing had a hypnotic effect, but after staring at Caprice for a long time, Sherry suddenly felt sleepy as well.

She laid down next to the girl and closed her eyes for a little while.

However, not long after that, she soon succumbed to slumber.

When she opened her eyes again, Caprice was sitting beside her, looking at her with wide eyes. She was dressed neatly. Her pigtails were secured tidily, and she was eating a milk cracker in her hand.

Sherry was stunned and turned her head to see the sky outside but saw John instead.

He stood leaning by the wall not far away with his arms crossed in front of him, looking at her with a disgusted expression.

Sherry shot up straight and took out her phone from her pocket to look at it.

Meanwhile, at a fine dining restaurant, Caprice sat on the child seat by the window, her small hand holding a spoon and slowly eating her meal.

John sat beside her, having just finished eating, and put down his cutlery.

The little girl had only eaten half of her meal. She would most likely take another half hour to finish.

He leaned back in his chair and picked up his phone. His fingers subconsciously clicked on Sherry's social media, only to see that the post from this morning was gone.

The screen was blank.

John's expression sank for a moment, then he smiled again. Her honey trap had succeeded, so she stopped showing the picture to him.

The next day, at 3 p.m., Sherry finished a meeting and her day's work. She was mulling over the reason she could use to look for Caprice when she suddenly received a message from John.

He sent a voice message. "I've read the letter of intent.

Sherry would not bend over to please John.

If he was in his right mind, he would not give up the partnership with Sager Corporation.

John was stunned. This was the first time someone who wanted to collaborate with him dared to give him attitude.

After a moment, he laughed. "Sherry, do you think the cooperation with Sager Corporation is very important to me?"

"If it's not that important, then give me back the letter of intent." Sherry held out her hand as she spoke.

John was speechless.

After choking for a moment, he lifted the corners of his lips again. "How do you plan to explain it to Sager Corporation if you fail to cinch the partnership with me?"

Although she was the president of Sager Corporation and was very influential, she was still working for the Sager family.

Sherry met his evil and calculating gaze and smiled at him. "I'll tell them you rejected me because of a personal grudge against me."

"Heh..."

She would blame it on him? That was quite resourceful.

Outside, it was dark and cold.

Sherry really missed Caprice. She did not leave. Instead, she crouched in the dark, wrapped in a thick down jacket, hoping to see Caprice when she came out with John.

However, even after a few hours and there were no people left on the road, she did not see John bring Caprice out.

There were several times when she had spent the night at Sager Corporation when something urgent cropped up. Something mostly likely really did happen to that man, so he might not leave the office tonight.

Sherry stopped squatting there. She touched her empty stomach and called a taxi back to the hotel.

Two days later, at around 4 p.m., she heard from him again.

He said that he had read her revised letter of intent for partnership and wanted to go through the details.

Sherry rushed to Stockton Tower but was escorted to the conference room again. It took another half an hour for John to come. Then, he wasted her time until the evening and did not allow her to go upstairs with him afterward.

Sherry missed Caprice, but she endured it.

Sherry kicked over the chair she had sat in all afternoon and walked out.

John frowned. "Where are you going?"

She ignored him, opened the door, and stormed off.

John glanced at Peter. "Go have a look."

Peter quickly jogged out. After a while, he pushed the door and came back.

John looked at him. "Where did she go?" Did she rush into the elevator to find Caprice?

Peter replied, "She went straight to her car and left."

John's expression darkened.

She left?

Under the light, her cheeks were red from the alcohol. Her charming eyes reflected a shimmery light, and with her crafty appearance, she looked too beautiful to be true.

Carl was stunned for a moment, then he blinked and said with a smile, "I'll shut up now. Go on, keep drinking."

Sherry tilted her head and drank another cup, then picked up a piece of meat and shoved it into her mouth. The light reflected on her scarlet face, bright and beautiful.

Carl unknowingly went into a daze as he stared at her.

Meanwhile, they were separated from the outside by a glass window.

John carried Caprice out of the car and was about to enter when he saw this scene through the window. His footsteps froze, and his eyes narrowed behind his glasses.

When he saw her and Carl talking and laughing, his face instantly went cold.

"Daddy, it's Mommy." In his arms, Caprice suddenly pointed at Sherry behind the window.
