

Master Odell 1481

Chapter 1481

Peter muttered dully, "...Alright."

He got out of the car.

Caprice tried to turn around for a quick look, but John immediately palmed the back of her head and prevented her from doing so.

Meanwhile, his eyes were intently fixed on what lay in front of the car.

As soon as Peter got out of the car, Sherry stared pointedly in his direction.

Peter smiled politely at her, then he walked past her, and went straight for the guard booth nearby.

Sherry observed his actions with a puzzled look on her face.

Shortly after, he showed up again, this time with two security guards marching alongside.

The two security guards looked at her with stark hostility.

Oh no! Sherry thought.

Before they could get their hands on her, she quickly shuffled to the side and charged directly at Peter and apprehended him, holding him by his wrist.

As if placed under a spell, Peter found himself held in place and unable to move.

were dumbstruck by this sudden of Assistant Peter's hand immediately, or else you'll get it from heed their warning, but was afraid to move so much man who saw the scene transpired before his very eyes were taken with shock, and wrap herself around guards took

between the two of them previously but now they were touching skin to her way of saying that they should approach at their own risk, Bang!

set Caprice aside and kicked the

she stays in the car," he commanded sternly.

agitated driver answered, "Yes, sir."

longer and quickly stepped out of the the two security guards who were preparing to approach of nowhere. He did not move at all and cast to voice and stated her terms, "I want to see Caprice. If you're not going to let me see her, don't even think about going in there!"
in John's eyes. "Sherry, you'd better let go you let me see Caprice."
let

Chapter 1482

John sniggered at Sherry's anticipation. "I lied, she's not in the car."
Sherry was furious. "You prick!"
An idea suddenly came to her as she smirked confidently and said, "You better take me to her right now, or else you're going to be stuck with me here all night. Don't even think about going anywhere else!"
She clasped her arms tighter around John's after saying this.
Her cheeks were rather pale due to the cold as she leaned in closer into John's arm.
She wore a defiant and adamant look.
John appeared to have given in slightly. He turned in the direction of the car and ordered, "Open the rear window."
The driver obliged and immediately lowered the rear window.
Sherry was confused by this, what was he planning?
"Mommy!" Suddenly, she heard a sweet and tender voice coming from within the car.
Her eye's immediately grew wide, and she turned to the car expectantly.
Just as she thought, it was Caprice! She stuck her head out of the window and revealed herself.
out the window and was smiling radiantly practically glowed up upon seeing her daughter. She immediately let go of John's arm and tried to run toward the when she felt a long arm wrapped around her neck and into John's
as she could to pry herself free but her efforts were at him and howled, "Let me go!"

but I don't remember agreeing to let you touch her," he said with a cocky smile and then took caution to lower his voice, "I'll break heeded the warning and promptly stopped at Caprice with a fervent look in her eyes.

very emotional as well. "Mommy, why did it take you so long to in her throat. "I tried to strong force tug against her choked on her words and tried to explain, "Mom tried to find you, but a lot of things happened these past few days and I just couldn't make saddened and made it show.

a look at the look in his eyes and immediately understood what was needed of him. He quickly snuck his way toward the other noticed Peter scurrying away as her attention was dazzled by how adorable Caprice looked and asked, "Caprice, do you she was going to answer 'Yes' when hands were pulled inside

Chapter 1483

He had Caprice sleep over at her place very recently. What had changed since?

John smiled. "No, you haven't crossed me recently."

This only made Sherry more upset. "Then why don't you let me see Caprice?"

She suddenly felt a sharp tingle in her nose and an urge to cry seized her out of nowhere, and she wanted to attribute it to the freezing air.

She glared at John vehemently as if looks could kill.

The look in John's eyes gradually softened, and he released Sherry.

"Sherry was not expecting this and nearly lost her balance.

After several drunken steps, she regained her footing.

She stepped away from John and cast an apprehensive look at him.

John tucked his hands in his coat pockets, stood tall and straight, not one to bow in front of anyone. He resembled an English gentleman in his getup.

He regarded Sherry with a distant look. "No specific reason, I just decided that I won't let you see her again."

Sherry protested. "I'm her mother, why can't I see her?!"

her after giving birth to her." He looked at her apprehensively, his tone sharp exactly why I had to leave her, stop screwing

"That's no excuse for you to abandon your daughter for her lips.

did feel like she was in the wrong here as she should not longer made a difference as of wind blew from every promise you that I'll never leave Caprice again from here on so... could you please in a sincere voice and turned up in her eyes reflected the luster of the streetlamp see how will I know that you'll keep your word?"

seized the chance. "I'll swear a vow with a letter so you have it in writing. I'll fulfill my day. What's stopping you from getting up and vanishing one day? Am I supposed to summon won't run off!"

to just take your word for do you expect me hungry look at her. "There's only one way I can be convinced of

Sherry asked revealed what he had on his mind all along. "A struck

Chapter 1484

Sherry frowned at this remark.

Caprice was her treasure. There was not a day in these past two years where she had not thought about her. She would give away everything just to be with her daughter.

How was it fair to question her dedication toward her daring daughter?

She knew that he would never believe her so there was no point in voicing these thoughts.

She swallowed her spite and asked in a serious voice, "Is getting a marriage certificate the only way? Are there no other options?"

John looked at her coldly and announced, "No."

Sherry peered into his eyes. "Marriage isn't a trivial matter. Don't you want to discuss it with your mother and other members of your family, and see if they have any thoughts on the matter?"

He answered swiftly as if he had a reply ready all along, "It's just a legal formality, we're doing this for Caprice. There will not be a wedding nor a need to ask for their blessing."

Sherry felt a throb in her heart.

His intention to get engaged secretly suggested that he did not want any outsiders to know about their arrangement. As far as the public was concerned, Master Stockton was still a bachelor.

They only needed the marriage certificate, nothing more than a formality so Caprice would have a proper family.

They would continue living as they always had and seek to coexist peacefully.

her imprisoned as he did in the past. Besides, this meant she, would have more degree of trust with Caprice, she could not planning to get married in the future anyway so the marriage certificate was just a useless scrap of paper as far as she was concerned.

flash past her eyes until eventually, she turned to him with a resolute look in not notice the jubilant he returned to his have time tomorrow morning. Wait for me at the company at

Sherry agreed. "Alright."

side to

at her, then he strode off, disappearing behind the gates of way and headed toward the

The next morning.

had already arrived at the lobby of the Stockton Tower. She made

John showed up in hurried toward his

the car, he only lowered the window and regarded her guardedly. "Have you patted the bags and assured him. "I have them endearing voice come from inside the car. "Mommy!"

was Caprice's

craned her neck and tried to steal car window was pulled up immediately so she could not even before the windows closed, she heard John's voice ordering

Chapter 1485

Sherry did a double take.

The staff congratulated the newlyweds warmly, "Master Stockton, Mrs. Stockton, I wish the both of you a happy marriage."

John answered politely, "Thank you."

Then he turned to Sherry.

Sherry was still staring at the marriage certificate with a dumbfounded look in her eyes. He put his hand out and gently tapped her head.

Sherry came back to her senses and turned to look at him.

She met the sinister gaze in his eyes.

Yet, he made sure to keep his usual charming smile. He looked like the happiest man on earth, nobody would ever know the sheer amount of hatred this man had harbored inside him.

Sherry frowned and felt an inexplicable uneasiness welling up in her heart.

John spoke to her, "What are you daydreaming about? Are you not going to leave?"

With that, he took his marriage certificate and walked out.

His usual hostile demeanor had returned.

heaved a sigh of relief and brushed off the heavy feeling in her chest. She must have been her bag

by the entrance

John emerged, he got into his car right here in and' wavered as she cast a longing look at the car John had was no reason she should not be allowed to see Caprice.

the windows lowered and revealed John's unmistakably dashing profile, his was rather impatient. "What are you doing standing over there? Are you going to see Caprice glowed up at the invitation as she quickly got into the car from the child seat next to arms as far as she could toward Sherry and cried out in that sweet voice of hers, like she would melt right said passionately,

was just as emotional as she was. "Caprice misses Mommy Smooch!
urge to plant a big kiss on her to register what had happened. Then, she pursed her lips and returned the on cloud affection she could muster and promised her. "Caprice, mommy will never be to hear this and bobbed her head up and down, nodding vigorously. her about what will happen today. He told her that from now on, her mother would be with her every day and tell her bedtime stories and again, her adorable puffy cheeks were frowned slightly and asked in a puzzled voice, Mommy, why do you always kiss

Chapter 1486

John swiped a look at her. "What, are you going to keep staying here forever?"

Sherry was bewildered.

What was the meaning of this?

Was he suggesting that she pack up and move to his place?

However... Their marriage was only a formality done for Caprice's sake. Was there ever a need for them to live together?

John noted her reluctance and stated dispassionately, Sherry, if you want to see Caprice every day from here on, 'you better pack up and come down here in ten minutes."

Sherry was still reeling back from the shock.

Upon noticing how she was frozen stiff, Caprice, who was in the arms of John, suddenly urged her on, "Mommy, go and pack up. We'll wait for you here, then we can go home together."

Her cheeks were radiantly red, an expectant and excited look loomed in her eyes.

How could Sherry ever refuse her? She got out of the car at last and walked into the hotel.

After reaching her room in the hotel, she proceeded to stuff all her belongings into suitcases.

It did not take long for her to finish packing up.

suitcase behind her and left the behind the silver car they arrived at the hotel in. A crew of bodyguards stepped out of the car and helped her with her suitcases.

the silver car.

John's arms

a shifting glance at the man next to forward as if "his attention was fixed on something in front. He wore an indifferent look. He would hardly bother to spare a

"Where are we going

"Home."

home is that supposed to be?"

these questions

a look at him,

yawning, she was

she was sleepy, she still looked adorable as top of her head and said softly, "Caprice, go eyes and fell

very quiet in the glanced out the car window.

getting closer to the Stockton Villa. An uncomfortable look began to surface in her eyes,, and her brows to escape from three years back. Why looming sense of

of Caprice sleeping soundly in her arms, her rhythmic breathing against her chest told herself. They only got married for

Chapter 1487

Sherry frowned instinctively.

This was the same courtyard complex where she had to spend a year as a prisoner and hostage.

Why were they stopping here?

The bodyguard stepped out of the car and opened the door on John's side.

John peered at Sherry before getting out of the car.

Sherry was just about to get out of the car with Caprice still sleeping soundly in her arms when she heard approaching footsteps.

From inside the car, she quickly identified Madam Stockton and Julie.

Madam Stockton was wearing a cashmere shawl, dressed as extravagant as ever.

Julie had changed a little from how Sherry remembered her. She wore a light pink long coat and rested her hair over her shoulders. On the whole, she seemed more fashionable and younger compared to her previous style.

Madam Stockton walked up to John and asked, "John, where's Caprice?"

John answered with a frown.

Madam Stockton did not wait for an answer and leaned inside the car to find Caprice.

met Sherry's gaze.

was as

Stockton's pupils immediately became dilated, she caught Julie's attention. She spied a look inside as well.

way out of this so she decided, to step out of the car, Caprice arms.

glared at her with sight of Sherry as she regarded Sherry warily as Sherry ignored them.

marriage did not mean anything to them, she only moved here because of Caprice. She was not interested in interacting with Madam Stockton and Julie in any shape or form, so that struck a first glared at Sherry, then at

as well and asked in a cordial with confusion, "What's going on? Why is Miss Sherry here?"

turned to the bodyguards.

took Sherry's suitcase out of the trunk and turned to Sherry.

relieved to have been offered hugged Caprice tightly and passed between John, Madam Stockton, and Julie. She followed the bodyguards into the courtyard.

was out of sight, she did you say?! A marriage sleeping like a log and was not awakened by the sharp a deep breath, cuddled' Caprice in her arms, and

Chapter 1488

By ex-wife, was he referring to Shannon?

Sherry frowned.

Jason continued, "Madam, it all happened shortly after you escaped three years ago. Right after the previous wife was also taken away by the police, Master Stockton ordered to have the entire courtyard razed to the ground."

Sherry seemed intrigued by this.

Shannon's vile actions must have left a deep impression on John. It made sense that he would want the place torn down to purge the place of its bad memories.

Certainly, it had nothing to do with Sherry.

She had nothing further to add and proceeded to bring Caprice into the house.

Meanwhile, outside the courtyard was an agitated Madam Stockton who was nearly hyperventilating.
She was trying to steady her breathing with a palm against her chest while Julie tried to calm her down as well. The two of them were staring red-faced at John, waiting for an explanation.

"You... why did you get engaged with her without telling us? Don't you think these are things that you should inform your mother about?"

was drained of any color, it seemed like she would and turned to Julie. "Julie, please hesitated briefly, then protest the very next second, "No! Don't you try to wave over this matter! I want you to take her back to the city hall and get a divorce, or else gleam flashed in his eyes. "Mom, if you continue causing a scene seemed alarmed by longer had her son under her palms as she did in the

was due to the direct proximity of her relationship

“But John, this woman doesn’t deserve you, can’t you see that? How nature of her relationship a vile woman like Sherry sickened Madam Stockton. She even began to shed tears when confronted with this John grimaced.

other lady in Glanchester like a pig in her sleep and was disgusting enough to fart right in front of him. She certainly was lacking in decency and grace that was to be was she was as bright as she was beautiful. Thanks to her capable hands, the crumbling Sager empire was restored, not many women could claim to have done something as impressive as the reasons

her

she would

Chapter 1489

“No, I can’t let this woman ruin his reputation. I have to figure something out,” Madam Stockton said defiantly and marched back to her room.

Julie was left all by herself, cold and harsh wind beat against her.

She clenched her teeth and looked venomously in the direction of the courtyard before walking away.

Meanwhile, Sherry had just walked into the house and met Aunt Wanda.

“Miss Sherry?” Aunt Wanda exclaimed and did not hide her surprise at seeing her.

Sherry was just as excited to see her, she smiled radiantly and greeted her.

Sylvia informed her that John employed Aunt Wanda and brought her to Glanchester with him after he took Caprice.

She must have contributed greatly to Caprice’s current healthy state.

Sherry greeted her kindly and followed her into Caprice’s room.

painted bright pink, it looked like something was decorated with all varieties of adorable plush toys of middle of the room. Tiny sparkling lights dangled over her bed like stars in the Caprice into her bed.

her take off the child's coat, all done in one swift and practiced motion. Then, they covered her with a Sherry expressed in a heartfelt voice, "Aunt Wanda, thank you for helping me take care handsome wage, I don't think there's any other confinement nurse in the country making as much as I do. It's only right that I take care of Caprice as caring for her the majority of the time. I only help out with Caprice when he's busy. He treats Caprice like a prized jewel and brings her with him everywhere he goes. He wouldn't trust anyone else with Caprice complete scumbag with her, but nobody could accuse him of being a poor father.

Sherry smiled.

had arranged for her to take care of Sherry who was still pregnant with Caprice. They Aunt Wanda moved on to another topic. "Miss Sherry, where have went to

was surprised to hear this. "Why did you go like going there stood out as the best option since it was a very modern city and leagues away from Glanchester, so she went

Chapter 1490

Sherry's eyes flickered and she said with determination, "I came back for Caprice so I'll go wherever she goes."

Aunt Wanda admired her love for her daughter, then she asked, "You and Master Stockton..."

"We got engaged, we just got the marriage certificate today."

Aunt Wanda seemed thrilled by this.

Sherry quickly added, "We only got engaged for Caprice's sake. The marriage is nothing more than a formality and it would have never happened if not for Caprice. Please don't think that anything is going on between us."

Aunt Wanda seemed confused by this queer arrangement.

Standing stealthily by the doorway, the man's expression darkened, and a crook smile formed on his lips.

A formality? Nothing going on between the two of them?

What nonsense!

Sherry chatted with Aunt Wanda for quite a while.

At one point, Caprice woke up. She slowly pried her sleepy eyes open and muttered sleepily, "I want to poop."

"Okay, let me take you to the toilet alright?" Aunt Wanda said and prepared to take Caprice.

Caprice one step ahead of her and said, "Aunt Wanda, let by this preposition and asked, "Miss Sherry, are you sure you want to do this? I can handle this."

"You can run away, she would have to do these things by herself so this was a good

Wanda smiled

the bathroom together.

a children -size toilet specifically built for let Caprice sit

child was very easy to take care her pants off. After that, Sherry and Aunt Wanda turned away to give her some privacy and she was done her wash her hands and tied her hair into two adorable buns before heading back into the

around the room, freshly energized where do you want to go?"

walked out

and informed Sherry, "I jealousy. She did not hold it against Caprice. After all, she breath and

Wanda said, the girl walked down the corridor

the door

his phone

be working again.