Chapter 1491

Queenie immediately glared at Sherry. However, she did not scold Sherry and rushed over to hug her instead.

Fortunately, there was a wall behind Sherry. Otherwise, she would have been tackled to the ground.

After hugging Sherry for a while, Queenie released her and looked at her, saying, "Sherry Fowler, you're the president of Sager Corporation. Why do you still run your mouth so annoyingly?"

Sherry grinned at her. "You're already three years older. Why do you still dress so childishly?"

Her curly blonde hair and her puffy skirt were quite beautiful, but it was a style that only younger girls would pull off.

Queenie's expression shifted. She planted her hands on her hips in anger. "Will it kill you to stop snubbing me for one second?"

"Hehe..." Suddenly, a peal of childish laughter sounded.

Sherry quickly turned around.

The man, who had been sitting inside, had arrived at some point. His slender figure stood by the door frame as he looked at them with a smile in his eyes.

Meanwhile, Caprice was sitting in his arms, grinning happily. She was obviously amused by Sherry and Queenie's banter. Unexpectedly, the little girl liked to watch people bicker.

Sherry laughed.

Queenie said there were other fun things to do at her place.

The little girl was also tired of playing with the excavator, so Sherry carried her and followed Queenie to her courtyard.

There were indeed many 'fun' things here. There were all kinds of limited edition plush toys, dolls, beautiful action figures, and so on.

Sherry just placed Caprice down, and the girl beelined toward the pile of toys. She lifted the hem of her shirt and reached out to the group of dolls. When she saw something she liked, she simply took it without saying a word and placed it on her shirt.

Sherry was stunned.

It was clear that Caprice's actions were well practiced.

She looked at Queenie who had her arms crossed. Her expression was like a rich person declaring, "Take whatever you want."

After a while, Caprice only stopped moving when she could not fit any more toys on her shirt. She walked back to Sherry and looked at her with wide eyes.

Sherry asked, "Do you want Mommy to help you carry these back?"

Queenie’s gaze lit up, and she said, “I don’t have anything to do at the moment. Since you want me to go so much, I’ll go with you guys.”

It was very cold outside.

Sherry hugged Caprice tightly after they walked out of Queenie’s place.

Queenie followed them.

When they reached a corner, they met Julie head-on.

Julie smiled at Sherry, but the smile that hung on Sherry’s lips instantly disappeared. She glanced coldly at Julie then simply walked past her with Caprice in her arms, not paying attention to Julie.

The smile on Julie’s face stiffened.

Queenie sensed something was off and said with a smile, “ Julie, I’m going to John’s place tonight, so I won’t be having dinner with you and Mom.”

The little girl was just so cute!

Sherry could not resist her and kissed her face twice again.

Standing not far away, Queenie was dumbfounded. After all, Caprice did not like to be too close to people and rarely let people hold her, let alone kiss her.

'The girl will definitely be unhappy with how frantically Sherry is kissing her.'

However, just as she had that thought, Caprice pouted her lips and softly pressed a kiss to Sherry's cheek as well.

Queenie was speechless.

"Mommy, I'm hungry," Caprice said to Sherry.

Sherry immediately picked her up. "Mommy will get you something delicious to eat."

She walked over after saying that. When she passed Queenie and saw the latter's shocked expression, she could not help but ask, "What's wrong with you?"

There was a balcony outside Caprice's room.

Sherry quickly took her phone to the balcony and answered the call.

Carl's unhappy voice instantly rang out from the phone. Sherry, did you check out of the room? Where did you go?

"I didn't go anywhere. I'm still in Glanchester. I left in a hurry during the day and didn't have time to tell you." Then, she asked him, "What are you calling me for?"

"Can't I call you when you run away without saying anything?"

The corners of Sherry's lips twitched. "If you have nothing to say, I'm hanging up."

"Wait!" Carl quickly asked, "Where are you now?"

"I'm safe. Don't worry about me."

Carl was silent for two seconds and asked in a cold voice, "Did you move in with Master Stockton?"

Sherry's throat choked for a moment, but she said honestly, "Yes. I'm at the Stocktons' residence now."

John looked at her full red lips and pursed his own. His throat bobbed.
Sherry sensed something wrong and frowned at him.
He curled his lips. “Don’t look at me like that. I have no interest in you at all now.”
After saying that, he let go of her chin and walked back into Caprice’s room.
Sherry stared at him and then walked in as well.
John sat on the sofa, reading a book.
Sherry said to him, “Go back to your room and rest. I’ll stay with Caprice tonight.”
He read the book and ignored her.

After chatting with Sylvia a while more, Sherry put her phone down.

John was still on the sofa reading.

From Sherry's angle, she could only see the upper half of his face. His gold-rimmed glasses contrasted with his fair skin, and his eyes exuded an air of elegance and nobility. He was quite good-looking. Unfortunately, he was a bit annoying.

Sherry stared at him secretly, then wrapped her arms around Caprice and closed her eyes. The little girl's body was soft and smelled of milk.

Sherry fell asleep in no time.

Unbeknownst to her, after she fell asleep, the man on the sofa put down his book and stood up. His straight figure went around the end of the bed and walked to her side.

When he saw her sleeping appearance, he curled his lips up in a manner that was different from how he had faced her before. At that moment, there was a wicked and smug smile in his eyes.

A short while later, he took off his glasses and bent down. His handsome face approached her eyes, and his lips kissed hers. He repeatedly kissed her several times before lifting his head.

At that moment, he felt someone looking at him. His expression changed as he turned his head.

Aunt Wanda handed John Caprice and left.

There were only Caprice and John left in the room, along with Sherry who was snoring away. He narrowed his eyes and went to the bed while carrying Caprice.

Caprice’s eyes lit up when she saw that her father was going to sleep with her, and she quickly climbed into the middle of the bed. She obviously wanted to sleep sandwiched in between her parents.

John smiled and let her lay on Sherry’s other side as she wished, then turned off the lights.

Caprice’s chubby hands spread out at her sides, and she closed her eyes happily.

When she fell asleep, a large hand picked her up. Then, she was moved half a meter across the bed before she was placed back down again.

The man who originally lay there was now lying beside Sherry.

His deep eyes that reflected the dim light of the night were sly and cunning. A long arm quickly looped around her waist and held her in his embrace.

Early morning, Sherry opened her eyes as the rays of sunshine shone into the room.

Then, she saw Caprice's cute and chubby face, as well as John's...

Sherry immediately went to Caprice's shoe cabinet.

The little girl was wearing a cream dress and a pair of white stockings today. Sherry picked out a pair of small yellow boots for her.

Taking the shoes, she went to the bed and squatted down to help put on the shoes.

John glanced at her and carried Caprice to the bed.

The little girl was very smart and raised her chubby feet to Sherry's eyes.

Sherry unzipped the boots and put them on Caprice's feet.

However, she did not know if it was because the boots were too thin, or if the way she was helping the girl wear them was wrong, but the little girl's chubby foot got stuck and could not slip into the boots.

Sherry frowned. Just as she tried to shove the foot into the boot, her hand was smacked.
