

Master Odell 1711

Chapter 1711

Sherry forgot to tell Carl that Julie had used John to imprison her. He must still remember it and believed that John would actually harm her.

A quick thought later, she replied, "Don't worry. He won't do anything to me now. I'll explain it to you and Lisa when I come over later."

"Take a video of yourself. I want to see how you are doing"

It seemed like Carl would not relent if she did not take a video of herself

Sherry lifted her phone and tapped on the record button, recording her and Caprice together. Then, she pointed the camera at John, who was sitting further away

John was looking at her when she pointed the camera at him. He smiled elegantly like a gentleman for the camera.

Sherry pursed her lips. She released the record button and sent the clip to Carl

Chapter 1712

Caprice lifted her plump face and hummed a reply.

Maybe because the girl was hungry, she did not even need Sherry to carry her to the table. She crawled out of the couch, waddled her way to John, and reached out to him with her arms open, asking him to carry her up.

John carried her up and placed her on the baby chair.

Sherry sat down at the table. Similar to Caprice, she picked up the cutlery and started eating.

After a silent meal, Caprice continued watching cartoons before she yawned.

Sherry carried the girl into the room.

“Caprice, take a nap if you are sleepy.”

Caprice refused to let go of her mother despite the fact that she could barely keep her eyes open. She grumbled, “Caprice wants to sleep with Mommy.”

Sherry smiled. “Okay.”

His thin lips moved and said, “I was wrong. It was my fault for blaming you.”

Sherry's rage was ignited by his words. She lost control of her emotions and shouted, "I don't want to hear any of this! Get the hell out of my face!"

Even after she shouted at him, John showed no intention of moving.

Sherry pushed him. She wanted to shove him to the side, but he grabbed her by the wrist and pulled her into his arms. He curled his arms around her and hugged her tightly.

Sherry struggled as hard as she could while she felt like she was being pierced by a thousand needles. She hated being so intimate with him.

"Let me go!" she shouted.

He hugged her as tight as he could and said in a small voice in her ear, "Sherry, I've learned the truth about what happened nine years ago. I'm sorry. I was wrong. I mistreated you for all these years."

His expression grew bitter as he apologized.

Sherry froze before she uncontrollably scoffed. She had forgotten about nine years ago if he did not bring it up.

Things went silent for a moment.

John looked at her with teary eyes. He forced his lips to curl and then asked, "What about Caprice? Are you going to abandon her?"

Sherry's eyes teared up. She averted his questioning gaze immediately and inhaled deeply to regulate her emotions. "I'll just pretend I never gave birth to her"

With her capabilities, she could never get Caprice's custody from John.

Besides, Caprice had been living with John since her birth, and she relied on him a lot more

Sherry had to cut ties with her previous marriage once and for all because it was her only option.

"Hmph..." John scoffed helplessly as he choked on his emotions. He never thought she would reject him so resolutely. He was at a loss for words.

Sherry frowned heavily. She endured the stinging pain in her chest and said, "Move"

Sherry called him, "Explain it to Caprice now!"

Not only did John lose focus, but he even turned a deaf ear to her. He simply stood there, petrified.

Bastard!

Caprice cried even louder.

Sherry had never seen the girl cry this fiercely. She was afraid that the crying would affect the girl's health. She carried the girl to the couch and patted her back, trying to console her.

"Caprice, I want you to listen to me carefully. Even if Mommy and Daddy are separated, I will still go see you whenever I can. I guarantee you that I won't leave you."

"Sniff..." The girl paused her crying and stared at her mother with bloodshot eyes. "Will you come to see me everyday?"

Sherry pursed her lips in silence.

After the divorce, she would probably stay in Coastrock and continue her career. The best she could do was fly over to Glenchester once a week to visit the girl. It was unrealistic and impossible to see the girl everyday.

Caprice took her silence as a denial and started crying again. She cried her lungs out until even her voice turned hoarse. If she continued, she would probably damage her vocal cords.

Sherry glared at John.

If her eyes could fire lasers, John would have been punctured with numerous holes by now.

She swallowed the rage in her breath and went back to coaxing Caprice, "No, that's not what this is, Mommy only wants to go to them to talk about something."

"What do you guys want to talk about?" John asked sharply.

Caprice was still sobbing.

Sherry was running out of options She took a deep breath and confessed, "I was never with Carl. Our engagement was a ruse this entire time."

John seemed intrigued by this.

Caprice suddenly stopped sobbing. She caught her breath and asked in a tone of complete naivety, "What's a ruse?"

"It means that you're putting on an act for others. We want people to think that I'm with Uncle only heard the part where they were not together and immediately lit up. Caprice was feeling much better by now except her eyes were still swollen from crying just now. She spoke out, "Mommy, I want to go with you."

It was impossible to refuse her when she pleaded so sincerely.

Sherry smiled and gave in. "Okay."

Besides, Lisa and Carl were not dangerous.

With that, she got out of the car and went to the other side to get Caprice, taking her into her arms.

Caprice made sure to turn to her father who was waiting inside the car, "Bye-bye, Daddy."

John leaned lazily against the seat of the car and smiled. "See you."

Lisa glanced at Carl who had been staring at Sherry silently the entire time. After a momentary silence, she asked Sherry, "What's the situation between you and Master Stockton right now? Since you're divorced, why did he come all the way here to Coastrock to meet you?"

Sherry turned to Caprice.

The child was getting sleepy by now and was beginning to doze off in Lisa's arms. She would be drifting off to sleep soon.

Sherry whispered, "I haven't divorced him yet."

Lisa was shocked by this.

Carl was just as taken aback, and he was visibly disturbed by this.

A stagnant silence fell upon them, until Lisa expressed somberly, "So, that's why..."

That explained John's antics during the engagement ceremony and why he had taken advantage of Aiden to further his agenda.

Sherry only needed to gaze at Caprice's peacefully asleep expression to reaffirm her decision, "As long as Caprice is happy, I'm happy."

Something darkened in Carl's eyes, and he found his fists clenching subconsciously. "But even if you divorced John, you could still be Caprice's mother, nothing is stopping you from visiting her-" Bang!

Suddenly, they heard the loud thud of a car door being slammed shut.

Carl was jolted by this and began tensing up.

Sherry turned around warily, only to meet the man who had originally promised to sit still in the car and wait for her and Caprice. The man was now walking over with a faint smile hanging on his lips.

He approached Sherry and shot a look at Carl. "Young Master Sager, you're trying to persuade a mother to get divorced from her husband right in the presence of their daughter. That doesn't seem very appropriate to me."

Carl had an adverse reaction to this and stated crossly, "Sherry is a close friend of mine. Of course, I would suggest whatever is best for her."

John wore the same stoic smile. "No need to worry about her. I'll take care of her well enough from here on."

Carl remained silent.

Chapter 1720

Although it may seem like the shareholders were concerned about her, it was clear as day that they were probing for information about John.

Ron was the most suspicious of them all, evident by his message that read, "President Sherry, Aiden and Caden have done something terrible today. If they had come to me and told me about their plan, I would have shut it down immediately. I would like to apologize for what happened.

"Also, forgive my mom for being so stubborn in her traditional ideals. She's our elder after all. What's wrong with being married before? As long as you have something to offer to the table, I won't mind you wedding into the family even if you have been divorced thrice in the past.

"It's truly a shame that things were ruined by Aiden and Cade. I have already lectured them just now. When you come in to work on Monday, I will have them apologize to you.

"By the way, say hello to Master Stockton for me, if you would."

Sherry chuckled.

The final sentence was the one that spelled his intention; the rest were nothing but filler.

Upon reading the message, she understood the reason Ron and his family were afraid of stirring up drama and spreading the news. They were afraid of her using John against them.
