Chapter 1731

John stood outside the door, looking at her side profile, and asked softly, "Feeling better?"

"Yeah," Sherry replied and limped inside.

"You're hurt. I'll wash Caprice up instead."

The man then strode into her room before her and picked Caprice, who had woken up, off the bed to go to the bathroom.

Sherry pursed her lips in silence.

A while later, Caprice came out in fresh new clothes.

John was behind the girl and was looking at the woman with a soft gaze. "Let's go have breakfast. Caprice wants to go to her favorite sandwich joint."

Sherry simply hummed a reply.

They arrived at the sandwich joint and had a simple breakfast.

Just when she wanted to argue, hurried footsteps came from the crowd.

In the blink of an eye, Carl's towering figure appeared before her

"Sis, what happened to your face? And your leg?" Carl looked at her worriedly.

Sherry looked slightly relieved. She said, I'm fine."

Aiden immediately said, "Carl, thank God you are here. I was asking Ms. Fowler about her condition, and she said there were some thugs who beat her up. I was wondering why would someone beat her up without a reason. I think it's because she messed with the wrong person at the nightclubs that she always goes to."

Carl's expression shifted. His charming eyes were overflowing with viciousness when he glared at Aiden. "What did you say? Say that in my face again.

Sherry knew Carl's temper well. If Aiden repeated what he said in front of Carl, Carl would definitely beat him up.

Carl wanted to punch Aiden's face and break his legs. He strode towards the door.

Sherry bolted up and called to him, "Stop!"

He continued striding forward.

She limped forward to chase after him

Carl noticed her limping figure from his side. He stopped, furrowed his brows, and said, "Stop moving around. I'll be back after I beat his ass up!"

Sherry limped forward and held him back. "I am already thinking of a way to deal with him. Do not mess with him now."

"What idea do you have?" Carl looked at her suspiciously.

Besides, Carl did not say anything either, so no one else had any objections.

Ron smiled at Carl and sat opposite Carl; Aiden and Caden sat on Carl's left.

The meeting room was filled with people once it was time.

Carl scanned over everyone and said with a smile, "Okay. Now that everyone is here, let's start "

He then turned his spinning chair a little to grab the remote and turned on the display screen. behind him. The screen displayed the Powerpoint slides that he had prepared for the two projects.

He somehow managed to get himself some cool and eye-catching templates for the slides, which differed from what the others usually used. The words were bold and eye-catching, yet stylish enough to not look like a disaster. It looked casual, but at the same time, brief and precise. Minimalistic and understandable!

Sherry was captivated after a few glances; the others were similarly surprised and astonished. Caden reacted scornfully, but Aiden and Ron had heavy looks on their faces.

Sherry ignored him.

Aiden was obviously unhappy but managed to stomach his anger.

Ron then stepped in with a scoff and said, "Sherry, you are not entirely correct. Our company has a good reputation, and our clients and partners in these two projects are similarly well-known although they are not exactly powerful If Carl wanted to coerce them into working with us, it'd actually be possible"

Sherry frowned.

Carl curled his lips. He wanted to stand up and throw his chair over to Ron, but Sherry stopped him before his thoughts became action.

She held him back and then said to Ron, “Mr Wright, Carl secured the two projects himself. If you don’t believe him, you can contact the clients and ask for more details.”

Ron said scornfully. They have already signed a contract. There’s no point in asking anymore Sherry gulped exasperatedly while continuing to hold Carl back.

Ron scanned over their expressions. He scoffed and sighed. “Whatever. If you say so, so be it. Let’s just hope no problems will follow after this.”

The spacious meeting room went quiet.

“Who is Aiden Sager?” the leading officer asked.

Other than Sherry, everyone else in the meeting room was shocked.

Aiden was still caught in his excitement from agitating Carl and had not recovered from it, hence he was stunned when the officers came in.

Ron was the first to react to the situation. He asked, “Officer, why are you looking for Aiden. Sager?”

The officer ignored him. He demanded once more, "Who is Aiden Sager?"

"It's him! That's Aiden Sager!" Sherry pointed at Aiden who was sitting beside Ron.

The officers turned in that direction and spotted him right away.

The leading officer nodded at Sherry before he headed over to Aiden's spot. One of the officers dragged Aiden up from the seat and the other one handcuffed him on the spot.

The loud thud shocked Ron, causing him to clench his cup tightly. He glared at Carl. "Carl, what is the meaning of this? I'm your uncle, I'm your senior! What is this disrespect?"

Carl narrowed his charming eyes. "That's not what you said when you slandered me and before the police came in. Uncle. Senior

"I heard Aiden was taken away by the police. Is it true?" Lisa asked excitedly.

Sherry and Carl nodded tacitly.

"What was his reaction when he's taken away? Is that bastard Ron here as well? What was the look on his face?"

"They all looked like they ate shit," Sherry said.

"Yeah. Disgusting," Carl echoed.

Lisa was over the moon, but when she learned that Aiden was arrested because he hired thugs to beat Sherry up, her mood plunged.

She only felt relief after making sure Sherry was fine and only suffered some minor injuries.

She grunted angrily and bellowed, "I'll call a shareholder meeting right away to kick Aiden out of the company!"

The news of Aiden being arrested during a meeting because he hired thugs to beat Sherry up spread like wildfire within the company.

Later in the afternoon, while Sherry and Carl were busy with the next meeting for the second project, Lisa called an emergency shareholder meeting to deal with the aftermath of the rest.

When the door closed, the living room once again plunged into silence.

After a dreamless night, Sherry woke up with Caprice and helped the girl clean up. They walked out of the room and saw John outside.

Just when she thought she would hit the ground, a pair of strong arms held her from the back.
