

Master Odell 1751

Chapter 1751

“Ron is the only one who would believe that you love him.” Carl took a step back. He wore an amused look on his face the entire time but it was clear that there was nothing but stark disdain in his eyes as he looked at the mistress. “Don’t look at me like that. I’ve seen countless types of women and you’re the type that I hate the most.”

Willow froze and did not know how to respond.

Carl ignored her, then he turned around and went toward the parking lot.

Anne had brought the two children to her car.

Ron, on the other hand, was carried into Carl’s car.

Two of his bodyguards carried him and shoved him into the backseat.

Carl was not in any particular hurry to leave. As he slowly approached his car, he shot a casual glance at a stationary vehicle parked nearby.

He made eye contact with Sherry through the car windows.

He winked at her.

Sherry jerked backward.

With that, Carl got into his car.

Anne’s

their cars were gone, Willow got up at they noticed Willow from the

She rose with a celebratory smirk on her face and a vicious that this was the mistress’ true nature, but same thing and remarked sarcastically, mistress would surely going to be rather chaotic in the Sager household for a while after such a massive scandal.

lot of work returned to Sager Tower. She drove back to her place largely recovered by now. She had went to the stepped out of the elevator after the seemed as if nothing had changed in her life, she was feeling rather somber and depressed.

was, until she heard Caprice's in front.

slender figure of a man facing her with a child in his down and began prancing toward her was not a very fast runner but she was running as fast as she could, carrying all that body mass with

Chapter 1752

Sherry wore a quiet frown. She briskly opened the door and stepped inside the house with Caprice in her arms.

John followed her into the house with the food in hand.

He placed the container on the table and opened it, releasing the aroma of the food into the house.

He turned to Sherry and repeated the same thing. "Caprice ordered these for you, come on and eat."

Caprice urged her to eat as well. "Mommy, it's very tasty, come on and eat it!"

Sherry hesitated briefly, then she approached with Caprice still in her arms.

John noticed her apprehension and immediately stepped away from the dining table and retreated to the couch in the living room.

Sherry sat down at the dining table with Caprice on her lap.

It was a gourmet meal with a vast variety of seafood, chicken, and pork ribs. Aside from that,

Caprice even ordered drinks and dessert that she knew her mother would like.

The food was mouth-watering.

Even though Caprice already ate, she still gulped when she looked at the food.

Sherry smiled when she noticed the hungry glow in Caprice's eyes and gave her a piece of pork rib.

gnawing

utensils and dug in as saw just now at Ron's villa. Her appetite was ruined the moment she thought of pork rib when she noticed that her mother stopped eating. She seemed concerned and asked with a puzzled look, "Mommy, why aren't you eating?"

caught the attention of John who was sitting on the couch as well.

"Mommy

say as her attention was occupied by away at the pork rib finished eating.

lips were stained with her clean up and ended up having Caprice take a into a

to bed and read some short stories for her until the child fell asleep.

she stepped out of the

was standing right

the moment she much more reserved and amiable compared to when she saw John when she stepped out of the elevator just now. She informed him mechanically, "Caprice is asleep, you should did not utter a word but Sherry could tell he was

She frowned.

of the house, he spoke, "I just want you to know that I'm nothing like Ron."

by this. She looked at him, feeling slightly offended. "You had someone spy about what happened this afternoon?

and spoke sincerely, "I'm not spying on you. My men are

Chapter 1753

Sherry woke up at the crack of dawn before the alarm went off.

She woke up with an irritable feeling in her chest. The accumulated emotions from yesterday had carried over.

She got out of bed, showered, and dressed as usual.

When Caprice woke up, she helped Caprice shower and helped her dress as well.

With that, she led Caprice outside.

John was already waiting for them by the entrance as usual. When he noticed the pair stepping out of the house, he greeted them with a warm and charming smile, "Morning."

'Morning my *ss!'

Sherry shot an unnecessarily rude glare at him, then she continued trotting away without acknowledging him.

John grimaced and followed.

They went to Caprice's favorite breakfast place.

Sherry sat down and put Caprice on her lap.

John went to order food for them before joining them at the table.

a bad mood. Did you not sleep well last a look at him, sensing

icily. "Let's not indeed in zipped his lips.

waiter brought over the food John had ordered.

along with some

Caprice help herself to the waffles and began eating herself only a couple of nibbles into her waffle. John had only taken a couple of bites as well and barely and went to pay for had to wait for a while before spoke to her softly, "Caprice, Mommy has farewell to her reluctantly, "Goodbye to John, then she went to her car and left without sparing his arms. They suddenly asked in a sulky tone, "Daddy, a look and did not her angry. On the contrary, he had been doing everything he could was upset, she turned much that John could say.

tales of Ron's scandal made their rounds in Sager Corporation.

Chapter 1754

Without Ron, Aiden, and Caden around, there was a marked improvement in terms of work efficiency throughout the company. This improvement was not only seen in Sherry's department but in other departments as well.

Lisa and Carl rarely showed up over the next few days as they were busy dealing with the aftermath of the scandal.

Sherry only saw Lisa once over the next two days and never saw Carl at all.

Fortunately, the details of the two projects he signed on had been worked out. The departments were coordinating as they should and things were progressing smoothly.

Sherry returned to her usual routine. She would go to work every day and return home on time where she would spend time with Caprice before they went to bed. She hardly paid any attention to John.

This evening, Sherry left the office as usual after she finished up her work for the day.

She drove past several junctions and swerved into the apartment compound where she lived. After she got out of the car, she prepared to head into the lobby when she heard Caprice's voice crying out after her. "Mommy!"

She turned around instinctively and noticed two figures underneath a streetlight nearby.

She spotted John first. He was wearing a white shirt paired with black trousers, and he looked dashing as usual.

He held Caprice's hand.

The child had a red bow tied on the top of her head and was wearing a bright red skirt paired with pretty red leather shoes.

tiny pouch over when she was dressed up. It seemed like she was going somewhere with John. Sherry approached them with an affectionate smile and held her hand out toward Caprice. Caprice took her hand and threw herself into her arms. She looked up and asked eagerly, "Mommy, there's a festival tonight, do you want to go annually. Every year during the festival, there would be countless sightseeing opportunities and up and ready to go, Sherry knew she could not refuse. She they went into climbed into the backseat with Caprice, then he went to the hands on the steering wheel, and lay cozily in Sherry's arms and stared at the view outside quietly.

A festival?

was looking at the child instead of the quiet in the car.

a famous local street near the got to enjoy the ambiance of the street life while also enjoying the wonderful and natural view of colors were hung

colored bulbs were used to beautify the streetscape and added an artistic goods, there were also street vendors selling street and gaped at the them was a big fan of all sorts of trinkets, so she was immediately mesmerized by a particular toy and gestured at

Chapter 1755

Sherry flinched.

John smirked.

The old man commended Caprice with a pleasant smile, "What a thoughtful girl. Go ahead and choose a pair you like."

Caprice climbed off Sherry's arms.

The counter was just a little too tall for her.

She could barely look at the designs but clutched at them nonetheless, and she ended up taking nearly two dozen bracelets. She seemed very satisfied with her choice and announced, "I'll be taking this!"

Sherry remained silent the entire while.

The old stall owner was enchanted by the child's adorable and innocent demeanor.

John stepped forward and thanked the old man with a smile, "We'll have it in a bag, thank you."

The old man obliged. "Alright."

He took out a bag and tossed the brackets Caprice picked out into the bag.

were full at this point so Sherry ended up having to take the bag for him. She made sure into her arms again. The child was beaming with pride.

to her. "Goodbye, little to hear this and thanked him frown, she took Caprice and led her toward the adjacent street where strange look in John's eyes as he followed after the adjacent street, Sherry took Caprice to a well-decorated all night. After the waiter gave them the menu, she let John take Caprice while she picked up the menu to order for them.

through the pages and for the bag next to her that contained the couple's bracelets she suddenly felt something caught off guard by the sensation and she saw Caprice strapping a bracelet on her wrist.
the first one, she strapped on another one.
another until finally, there were ten smiled at Sherry and seemed very impressed with entered her line of sight as he placed his arm across bracelets strapped on his also had as many as ten bracelets put on his arm. They were packed densely remarked kindly, "Those bracelets look

Chapter 1756

Caprice was sleeping soundly in her arms.
She slung Caprice over her shoulders, leaving both of her hands free.
She turned toward the trash cans and fumbled around in the dark.
After a while, she was done. She stepped away and walked toward the lobby, making sure that Caprice was asleep the entire time.
She stepped into the lobby that was illuminated with ceiling lights.
John, who had been standing by his car the entire time, noticed that when Sherry approached the trash cans, her wrist was still filled with bracelets. However, her wrist was empty now.
He took a deep breath and furrowed his brows.
After Sherry had gone out of sight, he approached the trash cans.
He opened them and inspected what was inside.
There was scarcely any light, so he could see nothing but stinky piles of domestic waste.
He furrowed his brows and stretched his hand out. With an exasperated sigh, he dug his hands into the garbage and began shoveling around.
tossed the contents of the trash can onto knees and began rummaging around.
his bodyguards who had been patrolling the area sight

them asked cautiously, "Master Stockton, what are you bracelets. "Help me look for bracelets that look like this. There are

"Got it."

and rummaged through the trash with much as three times to no avail. They could not even find a from the smell of garbage. He probed cautiously. "Master Stockton, are you sure those bracelets are already, we would have found at least that the bracelets were never here to John grimaced.

not throw them?

when she left, he saw how the bracelets had disappeared from a while, he ordered, two bodyguards dared to oppose. They took a deep breath and began yet another effortless as they could and were so focused that they barely noticed that people were passing by. The sight of three men rummaging through a pile of trash in the middle of the night was certainly passers-by were young people living in the apartment complex. Many of the young ladies expressed the same sentiment is he digging through the trash?"

it for so long, how

Chapter 1757

Sherry was confused by these discussions. She scrolled up several pages before she saw the video at last.

She tapped into the video to play it. The first person she recognized immediately was John. He was squatting in front of a pile of garbage and rummaging through it.

She felt her fingers stiffening as she could not fathom what she was seeing.

He was with two of his bodyguards, all three of them were digging through the garbage as if searching for treasure. She watched completely aghast as the trio turned over piles of rotten garbage with their naked hands without gloves.

Despite it all, John still looked refined and handsome. His shirt was completely unstained the entire time. Still, Sherry could only wonder how much he must have stunk.

She had only stood by the trash can for a while but she could still smell the nasty stench after she headed upstairs with Caprice.

To think that John had been rummaging through the trash for an hour...

What was he up to?

Did he do it because he noticed her standing with Caprice by the trash can?

Sherry lowered her head in thought. She looked at her wrist and thought about the bundle of bracelets she had tossed inside the cabinet.

She took off the bracelets when she was standing by the trash can.

her. In the end, she decided to keep them and stuffed them into her pocket, then she placed them in the cabinet once that John thought she had thrown them away and was rummaging through the trash with was simply scowled, her mood was black.

her coat so she could head outside. That was when someone sent an update to the group chat. "They're gone, I don't think they live in accompanied with to the trash can where it belonged. The trash can was neatly pushed against I'll give them that. Still, it's strange to dig through the trash can trash that had been cleaned up turned off the lights, wrapped her arms around Caprice, and made herself could not fall asleep.

over the last

where he had hurt

was how the scumbag had treated her. No amount of vain affection was going to salvage their relationship!

again, and it

she had

The next morning.

had barely risen across the horizon when the man opened his eyes and got out of bed he changed into a set of casual clothing and stepped out of the hotel. He walked across the road, familiar with the route by this point and bodyguards posted here to keep an eye on Sherry greeted him and retreated to a quiet corner to by the front door and waited. While waiting, he scrolled on his phone

Chapter 1758

"You have really heavy bags under your eyes. Did you not sleep well last night?" John repeated the question.

Caprice grew wide-eyed and stared at her mother upon hearing the question.

Sherry avoided John's gaze and answered curtly, "I had some urgent work to deal with last night so I ended up sleeping late."

"What kind of urgent work?" he asked.

This got him a sharp look from Sherry. "Why are you so talkative today?"

John pursed his lips and changed the topic. "What do you want for breakfast?"

Sherry pretended she did not hear him and ignored him.

Caprice answered for her, "I want pancakes!"

John looked at Sherry to see if she had other opinions. She did not provide any feedback at all.

The next few days were relatively uneventful.

Sherry finally saw Carl. This was her first and

playfulness about him, his entire demeanor was far more serious compared to the way he was a last-minute

the table, with

Sherry's row were the department leaders in Sager of the table was Carl and a was coming to sit at this table ever again.

meeting. "First of all, I want to start with an important announcement. I and the major shareholders of the corporation had come to a unanimous decision that Ron will no longer act as the president of the Sager Corporation. Carl will take over announcement, she turned to Carl with a congratulatory smile.

standard speech. His message matured by years in the short period since his last meeting with Sherry.

Anne and Ron since they had no other options. However, Carl's commanding tone had left a strong impression on them. They were speech, everyone

Sherry and smiled

were no playful undertones in returned his smile and

Chapter 1759

Sherry congratulated Carl with a smile. "Congratulations."

He made a show of stretching his back, then he walked up to her and sat on her desk.

Sherry adjusted herself on the chair and tried to nudge herself a little farther from the table.

He immediately grabbed the handle of her chair and leaned closer toward her.

He smiled charmingly with an alluring glow in his eyes. "Sherry, even though I'm the president now, you're still a close friend of mine. I'm going to be sad if you start keeping your distance from me.'

Sherry rolled her eyes.

When had she ever tried to wall him off anyway? She was only trying to keep some respectable distance between the two of them since this was a workplace!

She was a fool to think that Carl had matured. Deep down, he was still a playful child.

She responded dismissively, "Alright, I got it."

Carl let go of her chair and sat up straight.

at him and asked, "Did you come here just to tell me this?"

"Of course not."

going to tell

since it's been a while since I last saw you," Carl without hesitation. "I need to finish up here, you

"You're so cruel."

dinner later. My mom invited all was not an outsider, there was no need for her to join the dinner dejected to hear this, he muttered prepared to turned to the computer display and dropped the

to leave, he arm against the door frame. Something gleamed in his eyes. "One more him.
see Master Stockton, please thank puzzled by this. "Thank him for was the one who told me about Ron's mistress and the illegitimate upon hearing this.
noticed her reaction and grinned. "Hasn't he told

Chapter 1760

Sherry sat motionlessly in her office for some time.
It was only when one of her staff knocked on her door to inform her that it was going to rain outside and wondered why she was not leaving yet that she was finally pulled out of her trance.
She looked outside. It was dark. On any other day, it would still be relatively bright outside at this hour.
She tried to shrug off her thoughts and got up.
It began raining very soon after. It was nowhere near a downpour but it was enough to affect the traffic condition.
Although her place was only several junctions away, she was held up in traffic for almost an hour before finally reaching home.
She swerved into her parking space in the parking lot.
She did not have an umbrella in her car. She braced herself for a sprint into the building.
Moments before she threw the door open, she spotted two familiar figures approaching her car. One was a tall figure and the other was a child.
It was John and Caprice. John held Caprice in one arm and an umbrella in the other.
Caprice pointed at Sherry and cried out loudly, "Mommy!"
John smiled at her.
to see Caprice.
and offered to hovered the umbrella over Sherry.

entire time. The first thing she did after she got out of the car was to snatch Caprice entered the to buy some groceries. That was when she noticed that the kitchen counter aback and informed her candidly, "It's raining outside, I saw the news talking about the terrible traffic today so I decided to get the groceries ahead of and asked,

"Not much."

at

hesitated briefly before he reluctantly the receipt and her eyes almost instantaneously grew wide when she read the number.

A thousand dollars!

a thousand dollars

through the list of bought from was a well-known premium chain in at John when she finished smiled softly and said, "You don't have to pay,

it. "Money

transferred a thousand and a hundred dollars

the transfer notification on his phone and promptly