Chapter 2081

She glared at him. "Cut the crap. Are you coming down or not? I'm leaving if you don't want to come down."

She wanted to walk away but Decker immediately came down from the car.

He walked up to her and asked, "Where are we going?"

Isabel said, "There's a coffee shop in the hotel's lobby. Let's go there."

Decker curled his lips. "Alright."

Isabel was wearing the costume from the set and was walking toward the hotel. Decker followed her with a smile on his face.

Many other crew members spotted her and Decker and they all looked at them curiously.

Some who were closer to Isabel went up to her and asked, "Isabel, why are you with Mr. Rockwell?"

Isabel answered honestly, "He's here to talk to me about something."

"I see..."

The person went off after getting a satisfying answer.

Isabel's cold reaction to Decker's eagerness, their curiosity faded.

Isabel frowned.

She knew what the man wanted to say. Decker was not only trying to ruin Roland's reputation, but he even believed she rose to fame because of Roland's resources.

She had seen shameless people before but none were as shameless as Decker.

Isabel asked, "Decker, you're a b*stard but you snatched the family assets of the true heir. How could you have the face and audacity to show off in front of me?"

He probably thought snatching people's things was a proud achievement.

Decker was probably offended by the word 'b*stard', his gaze turned cold. "I'm the same as Roland's father, we're both our father's children. My father loved me more because I'm more capable, that's why he left the assets for me."

He added, "Isabel, I got the Rockwells fair and square."

"If I'm correct, most of the Rockwells' businesses are under Roland's grandmother's name." A quick pause later, Isabel looked at him and smiled. "Decker, you know better than anyone if you got the Rockwells fair and square."

Decker's expression turned grim. "Even if they are still under his grandmother's name, they belonged to the Rockwells. Isabel, did Roland tell you anything?"

"No," Isabel added, "He's not like you who likes to badmouth people."

She closed her eyes and clenched her fists.

She wanted to punch Decker in the face but before she could, Roland held her hand.

She could feel his warmth on her through his touch.

At the same time, he replied coldly to Decker, "I'm already here when you guys sat down. I didn't misunderstand anything."

In other words, he heard everything, including the disgraceful words Decker spoke of him.

Decker's expression froze.

Isabel could not hold back her chuckle.

Meanwhile, at Isabella’s place, after she received the video and text from Angela, she went through it frame by frame.

Angela took the video from a low angle outside the coffee shop, hence it did not record the conversation.

She went through the attached text and pondered. Then, she edited Roland out of the video, leaving only the scene with Isabel and Decker.

Next, she sent the video to Clarice and added the text, “Ms. Houston, my friend took this video at Glanchester. Mr. Rockwell went there to see Isabel again.”

Since her previous meeting with Clarice, she took her number just in case, and she was afraid that Clarice would not believe her having nothing to do with Decker. She also promised once she got anything on Decker and Isabel, she would text Clarice immediately.

With the video sent, it would be able to prove that Decker liked Isabel.

A while later, Clarice replied, “Where are they in Glanchester?”

Isabella answered, “Near the set of Legend of the Goddess. I heard it’s a studio near the suburbs of the city.”

Clarice then did not reply to her text but had seen her answer.

Someone as rich as Clarice was bound to have a temper, so it was normal for her to be cold. Isabella did not mind.

Confused, Isabel looked at him. "Why aren't you eating?" Roland looked at her and said in a hoarse voice, "I don't want to eat this." "Then what do you want to eat?" she asked. Roland pursed his lips. "You." Isabel's eyes widened. Before she could react, his handsome face moved closer to her face and kissed her on the lips. The kiss was so strong that it felt like he was chewing on her lips. He lifted her and carried her to the bed. Even though he was walking into the room, his eyes never left her.

Isabel's expression turned bitter. "Clarice, if you're here to cause a scene, then please excuse me."

Isabel wanted to leave, but Clarice stopped her by bellowing, "Just you wait!"

Isabel froze and looked at her as if she was looking at an idiot. She then continued to walk toward the door.

"Isabel Ross, I'm talking to you! Are you deaf?!"

Isabel was irritated. She turned around to Clarice and asked, "Clarice Houston, you've got a problem! Not me!"

Clarice's gaze shifted and instantly looked disheartened.

She had never met someone as rude and disrespectful as Isabel in her life.

She stared at Isabel coldly and said, "Isabel, with one word, I can make you disappear from the entertainment industry."

Isabel said, "I don't believe you. Say one word."

Clarice frowned.

Isabel showed a surprised look and said, "So, you're still a virgin after being with Decker for so many years?"

"Isabel, you..." Clarice gritted her teeth and bellowed, "Stop trying to provoke me. Decker and I have been dating for a long time and your little tricks won't affect our relationship."

Isabel found her reaction strange. "I'm just asking. What's with the reaction?"

"You show your neck to me and it is an act of provocation!" Clarice looked at her in disdain. "You're a mistress, a cheap woman who's trying to ruin our relationship. You might have won now but Decker will never leave me for you!"

Isabel was more confused than ever. She asked, "Clarice, what nonsense are you talking about? Who are you calling a mistress, a cheap woman? You think I'm together with that b*stard Decker?"

Clarice's expression shifted. "What do you mean? You're not with Decker?"

Isabel shuddered the moment she thought of Decker. She said honestly, "I broke up with him when you were engaged with him. Period. I'd never be with him anymore."

Clarice was skeptical. She looked at Isabel's neck and asked, "Then what's with your neck?"

"I said, it's my boyfriend. He did this."

"Who's your boyfriend?"

Isabel crossed her arms, looking at her calmly.

"Isabel, if you have a boyfriend already, stay with your boyfriend and stop eyeing over my man," Clarice said as she stood up, "Or else, I'll make you suffer."

She then grabbed her expensive purse and wanted to leave.

Isabel chuckled. "Decker is a piece of sh*t to me, feel free if you like to eat sh*t."

Clarice stopped, turned around, and glared at her.

If her gaze could kill, she would have killed Isabel multiple times already.

Isabel met her gaze nonchalantly.

Clarice grunted and left in a hurry.

Isabella's expression changed. "Y-Yes, boss. I'm on my way."

...

Back at Glanchester, the hotel where the crew of the Legend of the Goddess checked in, Isabel returned to her room.

She saw Roland dressed in a man's pajamas, typing on his laptop on the table next to the bed.

The warm lamp on the table, his straightened posture, and his handsome but serious look - every aspect of him was charming.

Isabel snuck up to him but he turned around just in time, looking at her with his clear and calm eyes.

If she continued to toy with him, he would kiss her again and again.

Isabel was annoyed. "Roland, are you threatening—Mhmm!"

He kissed her again, stronger than before.

Isabel felt like her lips were swollen from all the kisses.

In addition, his hand was pinching her waist.

It felt electrifying and it made her body numb.
