

Chapter 131

During the whole flight, Sophia was nervous. She was traveling by plane for the first time. She was becoming more frightened by the plane's bumps.

In terror, Sophia clenched her fingers around her seatbelt as the plane prepared to land.

She turned to look beside her, and she saw Bryan staring at her.

She noticed a smirk on his face, as if he was enjoying her fear.

"I-I.."

She was unable to utter a single word because the plane had moved down so quickly that it prevented her from breathing.

She was so terrified that she gripped Bryan's hand tightly.

Bryan looked down at her hand, which was clasping his hand firmly.

"Relax," he said, wrapping his hand around her shoulder.

He pulled her head towards his chest and it caused her to calm down.

His warmth and scent soothed her. His steady heartbeat distracted her mind. She wondered why his heart never beat fast like hers.

She closed her eyes as he patted his hand on her back.

After a while, the plane landed on the River Moon Pack.

When they came out of the airport, Sophia met a fresh environment. It was already early in the morning.

The clouds were moving to clear the sky, and the birds were making melodious chirping sounds.

The area close to the airport was filled with stunning buildings and trees of a dark green color.

"Alpha"

A young man waved his hand at Bryan.

Bryan walked to the expensive car. Sophia followed him.

"It's been a long time, Alpha."

Bryan gave him a nod. The man opened the back door for them and they got inside.

Sophia wondered who the man was.

The man climbed into the car and started it.

Sophia glanced at him but then heard Bryan's voice.

"He is Taylor, the vice president of my subsidiary company in this pack."

Sophia's eyes nearly popped out as they grew wider.

"Subsidiary company? How many businesses does this man have that I, his personal secretary, have no idea about?" she wondered.

"Hello, Miss Berge," Taylor greeted her while driving the car, letting her know that he knew about her.

"Hello, Taylor. You can call me Sophia."

"Sure. You might have assumed that I was a driver." He chuckled after saying that.

Sophia shook her head. "No. Not at all."

He looked in the rearview mirror to see her and said,

"I wanted to receive Alpha myself. That's why I am driving today."

"Oh, okay."

Sophia gave Bryan a quick glance. He was using his phone and did not care about what was going on in the car.

"Alpha, everything is ready. You just need to review it," Taylor said to Bryan.

"Hmm."

Bryan only hummed in response.

Sophia wanted to say something but then she prevented herself. When they were in this pack, she could not talk to Bryan in such a casual manner. She should prevent herself from calling him 'Mate.'

The car stopped in front of a hotel.

After getting out of the car, Sophia took a look at the magnificent hotel. It looked like the most luxurious hotel she had ever seen.

The realization that two cars had been following their car the entire time came to Sophia when she saw a few men approaching from behind them.

They were all in black suits, emphasizing that they were guards.

Their luggage was removed from the car, and the guards made their way over to them.

Taylor motioned his hand at Bryan to enter the hotel.

Sophia entered the hotel with Bryan. Her gaze wandered throughout the establishment of the hotel. She could only feel awed by the big chandelier hanging over the lobby area.

"Alpha Bryan."

The manager bowed his head slightly.

"She must be Secretary Berge." Sophia nodded her head at the manager.

"Alpha, take some rest. Allow me to go to the company right now."

Taylor asked Bryan for permission to leave the hotel. It had been four years since he had started working with Bryan.

In the last few years, Bryan has come to this pack every year whenever he needs to take care of anything.

Working with him was a great opportunity for him. Everyone knew what power Alpha Bryan held in the business world. He did not want to leave any single pack where his possessions could not reach.

"Okay," Bryan replied and turned around.

When Sophia saw Taylor leaving, she turned to Bryan.

Bryan walked ahead and she trailed behind him.

She was surprised to see Bryan did not need anyone to accompany him to the rooms.

"Alpha, have you ever been here before?" she asked him as she entered the elevator.

"I visit here every year for business."

"Oh."

She waited for a while and saw the elevator moving to the top floor. When the door opened, she got out of the elevator with Bryan.

She looked around while passing through a few doors.

When Bryan came to a halt in front of a door, Sophia stood beside him.

She wanted to ask where her room was. But before that, he pressed the card over the lock and opened the door.

Sophia peered inside and gasped. It was a luxurious presidential suite!

Bryan entered the suite and cocked his head in her direction.

"What are you waiting for?"

She gulped and entered the suite. She felt that it was not a hotel room but a dream house.

She was taken aback by the outside scenery when she looked through the glass wall of the living room. She could almost see the whole pack from there.

She ran towards the glass wall and placed her hand on it.

A grin appeared on her face as soon as she caught sight of the forest. She felt like shifting and running there in her wolf form.

She was very fond of forests.

After a while of observing outside, she turned around. She noticed Bryan sitting on the couch, smoking.

She believed that he was a chain smoker. He smoked every hour and she could not even count how many cigarettes he lit one after another.

She glanced around and found a door, realizing that it was a bedroom.

"Alpha, where is my room?"

Bryan directed his gaze at the bedroom door. "That one."

She nodded her head, then something hit her mind.

"W-Where will you sleep?"

Bryan looked at her as he blew out the smoke. With a sly smile tucked into the left corner of his mouth, he answered,

"There is only one bedroom in this suite."
