

Chapter 160

As soon as Sophia entered her house, she found her mother standing at the window, looking outside.

"Mom."

Her mother turned around and looked at her. "Who is he?"

Sophia walked to her and stood next to her near the window. From there, she could see Adon looking at her house from inside the car. She was able to get a good look at his face because the window of the car was lowered.

"He is someone I know, Mom."

"Someone you know? You just got out of his car. Don't lie to me. Is he your boyfriend?"

Sophia's eyes widened upon hearing her question. She immediately shook her head, indicating her disagreement.

"What are you saying? He is more like a friend. He helped me when I was in the River Moon Pack."

Sophia bit her tongue when she realized that she had mistakenly almost told her mother about her being lost in that pack.

"What help?"

She tried to make an excuse. If she told her about that, she would never agree to let her go outside the pack again.

"Mom, he helped me with business."

"Oh."

Sophia felt relieved when her mother did not say anything more. She told her to freshen up so that they could have dinner together.

That night, Sophia slept peacefully. There was no burden in her heart. Everything had returned to normal between her and Bryan.

Sophia made sure to get up early in the morning so that she would not be late for the company.

Since she had no classes now, she could work the whole day.

When she got ready, she went downstairs. She saw her mother setting the table for breakfast.

"Good morning, Mom."

"Good Morning."

While Sophia was assisting her mother, the two of them sat down together at the table.

"I am going to meet one of my friends today," her mother said to her.

Sophia smiled at her. "That's great."

"Her daughter is going abroad to continue her studies."

Sophia was surprised to hear that. "Wow."

Girls who traveled abroad and lived their own lives were considered independent.

"But what about her mother?" Sophia asked curiously.

Her mother put more food on her plate and said,

"Eat more."

Sophia smiled at her and nodded. While chewing her food, she heard her mother saying,

"What about her mother? There is nothing to worry about. She has two sons. They would take care of her. She should not stop her daughter from fulfilling her dream."

Sophia paused eating. She was amazed by her mother's mentality. She could not help but feel blessed to have a mother like her.

Her mother used to inspire her and her brother to do what they wanted in their lives. Abraham wanted to be the gamma and she was not afraid of anyone about it. She supported him until he became one. The same went with Sophia. She encouraged her to focus on her business studies.

After some time had passed, just as Sophia was getting ready to leave, she heard someone knock on the door.

"Let me see who has come," Sophia said to her mother as she walked to the door.

As soon as she opened the door, her eyes widened.

She let out a loud gasp while looking at the person at the door.

"BROTHER!"

Abraham was standing at the door with a broad smile on his face.

Sophia hurriedly hugged him, as she still could not believe that she was seeing her brother. As Abraham gave his sister a hug, the backpack that was perched on his shoulder dropped to the floor.

"How are you, silly?"

"Brother, I missed you so much," she mumbled while hugging his neck. Tears rolled down her eyes.

Their mother rushed to the door and paused. Her eyes lit up with happiness.

"Abraham, my son! You are back!"

Sophia broke the hug and let Abraham meet their mother.

Abraham hugged his mother, who was crying on his chest.

Sophia smiled as she wiped away her tears. She recalled that Bryan had informed her about Abraham beforehand.

'Thanks, Mate,' she said in her head.

Sophia grabbed Abraham's backpack and closed the door. She decided not to leave now. Since her brother was back, she would give him some time. She still had one hour in her hand.

While he was looking around the house, Abraham sat down on the couch.

"I can't believe it. It's been a long time since I was at home."

Sophia sat next to him. "You have gained more muscle. I am curious about how long you train every day."

Her mother brought a plate full of food for Abraham.

"No, mom. I had breakfast with Alpha today."

Sophia's heart skipped a beat just hearing about Bryan. She slowly glanced at her brother.

Her mother looked surprised to hear Abraham. "People call him ruthless for no reason. It's just a rumor. He is a very kind man. In fact, he often came to drop Sophia off." Saying that, she sat down on a couch.

Abraham turned his head at Sophia. She immediately lowered her head.

"Drop her home?" he muttered.

Sophia almost forgot that Abraham knew that Bryan was her mate. She thought to tell Abraham about her and Bryan's closeness. He would be relieved that Bryan had accepted her into his heart.

But she would have to wait. Tomorrow was her birthday. She would express her feelings to Bryan that day. She believed he would not refuse her.

"Sophia is right. Your body is built like a powerful man. You do look like a gamma now."

Sophia looked at her mother and nodded in agreement. Abraham returned his attention to her and said,

"Mom, I used to train for ten hours daily."

"T-Ten hours?"

Sophia was shocked. She gripped his bulging arm and pointed her finger with the other hand. "How is it even possible? You worked really hard, brother. You deserve this position."

Abraham shook his head and replied,

"Eight hours of training was fine with me. But when Alpha himself began training me, things became difficult for me."

"Why?"

Sophia observed her brother's expression when he mentioned Bryan. Instead of fear, his eyes showed a glint of respect.

As if Abraham had remembered a moment, he grinned and responded,

"He is the toughest fighter when he is in his wolf form. I have seen other head Alphas shaken in front of him whenever they came to meet him for pack alliances. He is a moonchild. No one can beat him in any form."
