

Chapter 198

“Clear the rush! Alpha is on his way here.”

All of the guards who had just gotten out of their cars gathered in front of the restaurant, pushing the customers aside.

The restaurant manager and waiters dashed over to the door, their gazes drawn to the black cars. More than five cars stood outside the restaurant.

The manager was concerned about the unexpected arrival of the head Alpha. He immediately pulled out his phone and tried to call the restaurant's owner. He was frightened if they had any serious issues in the restaurant for which the head Alpha was here.

But his hands froze when the guards rushed to the car in the middle and opened the back door.

A man in a black, expensive suit stepped out of the car.

It was like an air of darkness appeared outside the restaurant. The aura he had was something no one could take calmly.

His piercing eyes, which would have killed anyone if he had glanced at them, were hidden behind his black sunglasses.

All of his officials walked behind him as he started walking toward the main door of the restaurant.

"Sir, I believe I have seen him before," a waiter whispered to the manager.

The manager furrowed his brow, but then his eyes widened in surprise.

"He was the man who paid us a lot of money to send a crazy girl home a year ago. He is our head Alpha!" The manager mumbled under his breath, unable to believe his eyes.

He could not believe he had already met the head Alpha and was completely unaware of it.

"Alpha!"

He bowed to Bryan properly, both out of fear and respect. There was no way he could calm his trembling knees in front of him.

He possessed such power that he could make anyone submit in front of him at any time.

"Raise."

Hearing his deep voice, the manager's heart shook with terror.

Bryan walked past the manager, as he did not bother to say anything to him.

"I am the manager of this restaurant. Is there anything I can help you with? We are honored to welcome you all to this restaurant," the manager said to Bryan's official.

Beta Robert stepped forward and replied,

"We don't have time for your introduction."

The manager looked stunned. Delta Edger was about to enter the restaurant with others, but he turned his head and said this to the manager.

"You can do your business. We are here for some other reason. We have information that an impostor is here with another pack's Alpha."

Inside the restaurant,

Every guest was shocked when they heard Alpha Bryan was coming here. Some young women took out their phones to capture him on their cameras. But the guards who entered first told them to put down their phones and continue what they were doing. They warned them not to disturb their Alpha if they wanted to stay alive.

Just hearing Alpha Bryan's name was enough to shake anyone in fear, so everyone took the warning very seriously and did not dare to move their necks.

Alpha Oliver's eyes fell on the man who was coming toward the table. He shifted his gaze at Sophia and alarmed her for the third time.

"If you want, you can run. I don't want you to die in his hands. You are a member of his pack, and I can not save you from him."

Sophia stared at the red liquor as she swirled the glass slowly without replying.

“He will catch you red-handed. What are you going to do after that?”

She smirked as she turned her attention from the wine to him.

"Let him catch me."

As Alpha Oliver was about to oppose it once again, the man in the black suit stopped near the table and stood behind Sophia.

Alpha Oliver composed himself and stood up after shrugging his shoulders.

"Alpha Bryan, what a pleasant surprise!"

Bryan never once looked at him. From the moment he entered the restaurant, his eyes were fixed on the woman seated at the table.

The woman did not react, nor did she turn to see who had arrived. She seemed to be unaffected by her surroundings.

When all of his officials came to stand beside them, Gamma Abraham looked at Sophia and let out,

"Sophia?"

His tone was surprising yet fearful, which did not go unnoticed by the almighty man standing tall near the table.

After taking a sip of her drink, Sophia got to her feet. Just as she turned around to look at her brother, she found Bryan standing right in front of her.

Sophia's heart clenched inside when she looked at the handsome man. His black sunglasses concealed the way his piercing eyes looked at her.

She tightened her fists to calm herself.

'I have been trying to calm my traitor heart so that I can control it in front of you when we meet again. I will never let you see my broken state again,' she said in her mind, trying to calm her heart.

She was surprised. The man had not changed a little bit. His indifferent look never left his face.

"Sophia, why are you here?" Abraham asked with disbelief.

He had hoped Sophia was not the culprit after she stated yesterday that Bryan did not have any proof against her. He had assumed his sister was at the university, taking classes there.

Little did he know that today would be the worst day of his life.

Sophia glanced at her brother. "Why can't I be here, brother?" she asked in an innocent tone.

Raising his hand, Bryan removed his sunglasses.

Sophia nearly took a step back as his sharp eyes met hers.

He slowly shifted his gaze to Alpha Oliver, who was staring at him quietly. He noticed there was nothing on the table except two glasses of wine. It gave the impression that the two were simply having a great time together.

When Bryan's gaze returned to Sophia, he asked her in a calm tone.

“Miss Berge, may I ask what you are doing here with Alpha Oliver?”
