

Chapter 290

"So you knew everything from the beginning and always protected me behind my back all the time!"

Sophia said that and felt rage inside. She was angry with herself for not loving him as much as he loved her.

She believed she could not compare his love to hers. Because she dared to stab his chest, but he never wished to hurt her for once.

She clenched her jaw and took steps backward. "You were right. I don't deserve to be your Luna. How can I stand beside a man who always thinks about others before thinking about himself? How can you stand beside me, who only thinks about herself? I am a selfish person who almost killed you in revenge for a heartbreak."

She turned and stormed out of the training hall. She was upset with herself. She wanted to go into the forest and run for a while.

Now she understood why her wolf was always trying to take over. It was because she knew their mate loved them. She was always trying to make her aware of this, but she ignored it.

After some time of walking, she noticed Bryan's car coming in her direction.

She let out a shaky breath, thinking about how much he cared about her. He still sent his driver for her.

"Luna, get in the car. Everyone in our pack now knows that you are our Luna. Beta Robert made the announcement to the entire pack today. You need protection to go anywhere," Bryan's driver said, opening the door for her.

She got in the car and decided to calm herself and not go to the forest today.

"Then take me to the pack hospital," she said to the driver.

On the way to the hospital, her eyes were fixed outside the window. She did not want to cry anymore.

She was angry because she thought she had stopped loving him; she was angry because she considered exacting revenge on him in the past.

She closed her eyes and leaned back against the seat.

'Loving someone doesn't mean hurting them when they break your heart. Loving someone means letting them go and watching them happy from a distance,' she told herself.

Bryan taught her the meaning of love.

Suddenly, her brows furrowed. She came to the realization that everything was happening because of Victor Laurant. If he had not plotted against Bryan five years ago, Bryan might have approached her normally, and they would be together.

She remembered how Mila cried today. Victor did not only ruin Mila's life but also destroyed Bruce's life. She did not know how many more crimes that man had committed that she had yet to learn about.

When she arrived at the hospital, she went to see her mother. She sat beside her and looked into her closed eyes.

She held her hand and mumbled,

Mom, please wake up."

She felt her mother's hand move beneath her grip. She was stunned, and she hurriedly stood up. She looked at the nurses who were present in the room to observe her mother.

"She just moved her hand. Call the doctor immediately."

They rushed to call the doctor and came back with him.

The doctor checked on her mother, and after a while, her mother opened her eyes.

Sophia cried in happiness.

"MOM!"

At that time, Abraham also entered the cabin and saw the situation.

Sophia smiled at Abraham and said, "Look at mom, brother."

Their mother looked at them and tried to raise her hands, which both of them grabbed immediately.

The doctor took the oxygen mask from Hanna's mouth and said,

"Congratulations. She is awake. Please try to talk to her calmly. Remember, no more tension."

He and the nurses helped Hanna sit up. He then injected her with a dosage and told the nurses about the medicine.

"Thank you, doctor," Abraham said to him.

The doctor shook his head at him. He glanced at Sophia for a moment, then said,

"Thank Alpha. He saved your mother."

The doctor was about to leave the cabin after he was done. But then he paused and bowed to Sophia, which caught her off guard.

"It's nice meeting you, Luna. Please call me anytime. I am always ready for your and Alpha's service."

Sophia could not help but nod at him. When the doctor left, she turned to face her mother.

She was looking at her and asked, "Did I hear right? He called you Luna."

Her mother's low voice could make her feel weak, but she knew she would get her health back very soon.

Abraham told Hanna everything, trying to avoid anything that could hurt Hanna or her health.

Hanna's face brightened as she hugged her daughter.

"I never liked that Alpha Victor. Moon Goddess listened to me and saved my daughter by making you Alpha Bryan's mate."

Abraham inquired if Victor had done anything to her before she began to feel weaker. Hanna stated that Victory had arrived at their house, carrying Sophia. They had a talk about his and Sophia's wedding.

Abraham tried to get her to remember if he had given her any medicine or something. But then Hanna remembered that she had made two cups of coffee while talking about Sophia. He asked for sugar, so she went into the kitchen. Then they had a normal conversation.

Sophia and Abraham both came to the realization that Victor had mixed something in their mother's coffee and managed to make her sick.

After spending time with her mother, Sophia left the cabin in the afternoon. She thought about going back to the pack house.

While passing a few cabins downstairs on her way to the entrance, her gaze was drawn to a cabin with the door slightly open.

Her legs froze when she saw who was lying on the bed.

She immediately went inside.

"Rose!"

The girl was staring at the ceiling like a lifeless body. Sophia could see the bite marks on her neck and her thighs. Because they were visible due to medication applied to the wounds, the nurse rolled up her hospital gown.

Sophia dashed over to Rose and held her hand.

"What happened to you, Rose?"

Rose slowly turned her head and looked at Sophia.

"Sister?"

Rose questioned it, as she could not believe it was really Sophia. Her eyes were empty and blank.

However, when she heard Sophia's voice again, her eyes welled up with tears, and she immediately sat up.

She hugged Sophia tightly and started to cry.

Sophia could not stop her own tears. She rubbed Rose's head and asked,

"What happened to you, Rose? Who did this to you? Why are you here? Does Mr. Davidson know you are here? Why are you alone?" Sophia asked so many questions as her mind was not working after watching Rose's condition.

"N-No. Sir doesn't know about me. I did not contact anyone at the orphanage. I am embarrassed to call and tell them anything. I don't want to live anymore, Sister. Please kill me."

Sophia's hand froze on Rose's head, and she asked,

"Tell me who did this to you. I will not let them go."

Rose sobbed and raised her head to look at her. It was as if she was afraid that Sophia would not believe her.

"A-Alpha V-Victor."
