

Chapter 359

The following day, Allison was upset. Teresa came to pick her up. After getting in the car, she turned her head to gaze out the window.

"As you can see, I have read the post. The news spread like wildfire. You are free to share your thoughts on the matter in any way you see fit. You are aware that we can have a conversation, right?"

After saying that, Teresa started the car.

Allison gave a small shake of her head and said, "I have nothing to say."

"You went with him to a club? I couldn't believe it when I saw it. You were never one for going out to clubs and parties. How was it that he was able to persuade you to go with him?"

"I had assumed that you would accompany Max."

"What?"

"Hmm. He told me that you would go there with Max. I thought I would not be alone, but then Max told me that you did not come with him."

"If I had known that you were going, I would have agreed with Max. You could have called me."

"I made a mistake. I should have called you."

"No, it's okay. You had new experiences. I saw how you were having a good time with him. So he did his magic to you, huh?" Teresa asked with a singing tone.

Allison turned to her. "Don't talk nonsense. Nothing is like that. I don't know what has happened to me."

"What do you mean?"

"I turn into a different person whenever I am with him."

"In a good way or a bad way?"

"I don't know."

"Okay, relax. Don't worry much about it."

Allison gave her a nod and sighed.

When they finally arrived at their school, everyone immediately began to talk about Allison.

She rolled her eyes. People had nothing to do except gossip about her.

"Look at her. She is so confident. Last time she was close with Ethan, now she is with Ryan."

"Maybe Ethan ditched her."

"Of course, he did. Do you think Ethan can stick with this girl? What is her status? Nothing. An ordinary omega can't have the head Alpha."

"We all know how Ryan is. He will dump her soon. He only used girls for play. So she will be on his playing list soon. After that, she will be nothing."

Allison heard all the gossip. She tightened her fists and headed to the locker.

Teresa was about to scold others, but she stopped her from saying anything.

"It will be no use. Let's go."

She made her way to the first of her classes. When other students in the class glared at her, it made her feel uncomfortable and furious.

She started attending the sessions one at a time and felt like slapping herself for her decision to go to the club with Ryan that night.

She was afraid that if her father ever saw those pictures, it would be the end of her.

When it came time for the break. She got along with Teresa, and the two of them went to the cafe. There, she also overheard others gossiping.

Max came to chat with Teresa. He gave Allison a glance and said,

"Ryan was asking for you. He said you were not picking up his calls."

Allison made a frowning face and looked through her bag. She pulled her phone out. It was in silent mode.

She could see a few missed calls from an unknown number. She still had not saved his number.

She noticed a message had suddenly appeared.

"Come to the rooftop. I am waiting."

Allison could not make up her mind about whether or not she wanted to go.

But she stood up from her chair and looked at Teresa. "I am going to meet him. We will meet in the next class."

"Are you sure?"

"Yeah. Don't worry."

"Okay."

Allison headed to the rooftop.

She opened the door to the roof and entered the rooftop.

She spotted Ryan standing there while he was holding onto the railing.

She then proceeded towards him after closing the door behind her.

"You sent me a message." She stated.

Hearing her, he turned around.

She looked at him and blushed when she remembered that he carried her to her room that night.

'Oh, his jacket! Did he call me for his jacket? I left it at home. How did I forget it?"

"How are you?"

His deep voice took her out of her thoughts.

"I'm fine."

He stared at her, which made her feel nervous.

"Do you have something to talk about?" She asked.

He shook his head. "I just wanted to see you."

"W-What?"

"How is your health?"

"What happened to me? I am totally fine."

She was bewildered. "Why is he asking me about my health?"

He looked away and turned around to the railing again, focusing on the entrance area.

She stepped toward the railing and stood beside him.

"That night, why didn't you wake me up?"

"I did not want to disturb your sleep."

"What if my parents were at home?"

"There was no way for them to reach there before us."

"How were you so sure?"

A smile stretched across his lips. "I have my own way, baby." He replied in a low tone.

Allison closed her eyes and took a deep breath. She cleared her throat.

"Ryan, I have to say something."

"I'm all ears." He replied and turned to her.

"Have you seen the posts?"

He frowned as if he were not aware of anything.

"What posts are you talking about?" He asked.

"Nice. You had seen the posts with Ethan and me that day. But not mine and yours?"

He narrowed his eyes. "Your and Ethan's names don't sound good together."

"What are you talking about?" She glared at him for behaving like he did not know about those posts.

So she took out her phone and searched for those posts.

"See?"

When she showed him the phone, he grabbed it. When his hand came into contact with hers and flinched.

He was busy reading the posts and comments. He did not see her reaction.

'What's wrong with me?' She asked herself for her own reaction.

She looked at the man in front of her. His face turned grim as his eyes read those comments.

'Those posts are not only for me but also for him. Of course, he would get angry.' She thought.

He handed her phone to her. "I will do something about it. Don't worry."

He assured her as his eyes were looking down at the students.

But she could see his mind was somewhere else.

"I believe it would be best if we kept our distance from each other."

He turned his head as if he did not like her statement. With a cold tone, he replied,

"If you want to stay away, I won't force you to meet me again."
