

Chapter 417

Allison returned to the garden. She sat down beside others. She noticed that her father was ignoring her. She felt upset about it. She felt like crying.

Luna Ella accompanied her mother into the kitchen where she was preparing meals. They came to call everyone as soon as they had finished setting the table for dinner in the dining room since it was already late.

"Let's go, birthday boy." Alpha Neil said and teased his best friend.

Beta Glen laughed at the teasing. Allison felt relieved that something had improved her father's mood.

They sat at the dining table. Allison avoided everyone and kept eating. She had no interest in listening to anything at all.

She had a plan in her head. So she was fervently hoping that the party would end as quickly as possible.

"Allison, why don't you come to the pack house now?" Alpha Neil asked.

Allison was busy thinking about something that she could not hear Alpha Neil.

"Allison"

Her father called her name loudly.

"Huh?" She hurriedly looked at her father.

"Alpha is asking you something."

"Oh. Yes, Alpha?" She said and turned to Alpha Neil.

"You look lost." Alpha Neil said to her.

"Accept my apology, Alpha."

"No, it's okay. I was wondering why you stopped coming to the pack house."

"I am currently busy with my studies. But I will come to visit soon."

"Good girl."

She gave him a small smile before turning her focus back to the food on her plate

After dinner, everyone sat on the couch.

Allison couldn't stop gazing at the time on the wall clock. Most of the time she unlocked her phone to see if Ryan sent any messages to her.

"What exactly is wrong with you? Why do you keep looking at the time on your phone from time to time?" Ethan asked her.

She paid no attention to him or his query and entirely ignored him.

After waiting for half an hour, Alpha Neil and Luna Ella got to their feet. Ethan and Allison's parents also followed them.

"We are leaving. Happy Birthday once again." Alpha Neil said to Beta Glen.

Beta Glen hugged Alpha Neil. Joey hugged Luna Ella and all of them headed outside.

Allison stood outside the house as she waited for others to leave.

When the guests left, she walked inside the house first.

"Allison"

Her mother called her from behind. She stopped and turned to her. She saw her father passing them and went directly to his bedroom.

"Yes, Mom?"

"Have a talk with your dad."

She reached for her mother's hand and said,

"Mom, Dad is angry now. Even if I wanted to talk to him, he would be angrier. Let him sleep tonight. I will talk to him tomorrow. I know after he wakes up, he will be in a fresh mood."

After pondering it for a while, her mother responded by nodding her head. "Okay, but don't go outside tomorrow. Stay at home to stay beside your dad."

"Okay, Mom." She said and hugged her mother. She patted her back.

When she broke the hug, she said,

"Mom, don't wake me up early tomorrow."

"Okay."

Her mother went to the bedroom. Allison stared at the door when her mother closed it after entering the room.

She hurried to her room on the second floor and immediately dialed Ryan's number

This time, his number was unreachable. She had no other option but to take some risks.

She waited for an hour to let her patients fall asleep.

She changed into normal clothes and rushed out of the house.

"You can be there. I just hope you are there, Ryan." She mumbled to herself.

She ran to the woods and entered the forest. As she shifted into her wolf form, her eyes changed color to a deep ocean blue.

Her snow-white wolf pounced to the ground and began to run forward.

She turned her head to the left and the right to see whether there was anyone else besides her. Due to the fact that she was an Omega, she had to be very careful.

She ran until she reached the location where Ryan had brought her and where she met him in her wolf form.

All the time, she was praying to find him there.

Her paws halted when she came close to the place.

Indeed, it was his safe place.

There he was, standing under the moonlight, in front of the lake.

Her eyes were the color of the deepest ocean, and they followed his every motion from a distance.

She did not let her wolf take over this time. She looked at Ryan carefully.

He was buttoning off his shirt one by one.

When she observed him staring intently at the lake, her eyes widened.

She assumed that he would jump into the water. She did not know if he knew how to swim, they never talked about it.

As she hurried towards him, her heartbeat pounded.

By the time the incident took place tonight, she knew his mood was off. He could be very upset since he cut off her calls and switched off his phone. So anything could come to his mind too.

She had already reached him by the time he finished undoing the last button on his shirt. She jumped on his body, and he was taken aback by it.

His body fell to the ground as he wrapped his arms securely around her white fur.

She looked at him angrily and growled at him. She was furious about why he was doing that. It almost gave her a heart attack when she thought about him going in the water. Because she herself did not know how to swim. If he drowned in the water, how would she save him?

Ryan's dark eyes met her ocean-blue eyes. He regarded her with a frown. She shot him an angry look to convey her displeasure.

"Why are you here?" He asked.

She was in wolf form, so she could not reply to him. But she knew that he did not know it was her. So she came here to calm him as an unknown friend.

When he sat up, he moved her from his lap and placed her on the ground. Then he stood up.

She thought he would say that he was leaving or something. Or he would say that he was not in the mood to talk to her today.

However, she was shocked when he said,

"From the beginning, I knew it was you, Allison. So stop pretending and shift right now."
