

Chapter 57

Sophia looked at Robert and shook her hands. "No, no. It's okay."

Bryan frowned at her. "Okay, what? Do you think this dress is okay for a pack meeting? When will you take your work seriously?"

Hearing Bryan, Sophia felt upset. He had returned to his cold attitude once again. He behaved like nothing had happened between them, and he was not going to kiss her a few minutes ago.

"By the way, what happened to your shirt? When did you start to drink coffee like this?" Robert asked Bryan, smirking at him.

Bryan glared at him. "Shut your mouth, and let's go. I don't have time for your nonsense."

Sophia gulped as she realized that this man had always talked rudely with everyone.

Bryan walked to the door. Robert chuckled and motioned his hand toward the door as he looked at Sophia.

She followed Bryan and got out of his cabin. While Bryan was heading forward toward the elevator, Robert began to talk with Sophia.

"I never get a chance to talk to you. But Edger talks about you sometimes. He says you are a hard-working girl."

"He is a very kind man. That's why he thinks like that."

Robert glanced at Bryan, who paid no attention to them, and entered the elevator. Sophia and Robert trailed after him and went inside the elevator.

"Abraham is scheduled to be released from the warrior camp in four months." Robert reminded her about her brother.

The realization that so many months had gone by and that the date of her brother's arrival was getting closer caused her to break out in a broad smile.

"Yeah," Sophia responded with a grin.

From the mirror of the elevator, Bryan could see her smiling face. But he had no reaction after looking at it.

In the moment that they were leaving the company, everyone looked at them. She was able to observe everyone bowing their heads in respect to Bryan.

From the way in which they treated him with reverence, she felt shivers. Bryan appeared to be a king as he walked past the people who lived in his domain.

'How can I forget? Alphas are the kings of their packs.' Sophia said to herself and almost gave her a facepalm.

In this modern time, people did not have a palace or a courthouse where the king would have to sit in order to administer additional punishments or manage the kingdom from that location. Even though they lived in pack houses, Alphas in this digital world also had their own homes of their own. They had companies to run a pack business. Not only did they have girlfriends or mistresses, but they also had the ability to reject their mates.

Sophia admitted that Bryan was a really strong man. She had never seen him with women. In fact, he never failed to keep himself occupied at work, despite the fact that other pack Alphas were forever embroiled in controversies for having sexual encounters with a variety of women on every night. Because of the presence of illegitimate offspring, several of them were forced to step down.

When Sophia saw Bryan getting in the backseat of his car, she thought to let Beta Robert sit beside him. So she went to grab the door of the passenger seat. However, Robert stopped her and told her to sit next to Bryan.

After sitting with Bryan, Sophia felt nervous. She did not look at him and stared outside the window during the whole ride.

She heard Bryan and Robert talking about the other pack. They discussed the things the other pack's Alpha could raise in the meeting.

The car stopped in front of a shopping mall. Sophia went out of the car and gasped under her breath.

It was the most expensive shopping mall in their pack, which only had branded showrooms.

"Let's go," Robert said, entering the mall.

When Bryan made his way to the mall, he glanced at Sophia, who was still looking at the building.

"Are you wasting my time?"

His question made her come out of her thoughts and shake her head.

"No, Alpha. I was just looking at it," she mumbled, stepping inside the mall.

Sophia looked around the showrooms. So many costly clothes were displayed there, which she could see through the glass wall.

'I will pay for my own dress. I can't let him pay for me. It's my dress. I can't take expensive clothes from him.'

Sophia set her mind when three of them entered a showroom.

All the employees bowed to Bryan.

"Alpha, please have a seat and tell me how I can help you." the manager said to him.

When Bryan went to sit on the couch, he crossed one of his legs over the other.

"She needs some clothes. Give your best designs to her." Bryan replied to him.

Sophia was stunned by his words. 'Best design? No way. It will be more expensive.' she thought.

The manager returned with his team, who had a bunch of clothes.

"You can choose the best one, Miss," the manager asked Sophia politely.

She went to the clothes and began to look at their price tags. She could not believe that each dress cost one-third of her last month's salary.

She glanced at Bryan and Beta Robert, who were looking at her, waiting for her to choose one.

She turned away from them and picked the one that was the least costly of the other clothes.

"This one."

"Go and change fast." Robert said to her.

One saleswoman showed her the changing room. She thanked her and was about to enter when she heard Bryan's voice behind her.

"Pack all the clothes for her."

She immediately turned around with a shocked face.

"No, I don't need all these clothes."

Bryan gave her a stern look, which made her slap herself in the head to come here with him.

She hurriedly went inside the changing room to change the dress. When she put on the new dress, she was nervous to go out of the room.

She took a deep breath and opened the door. The moment she stepped out of the room, her eyes fell on Bryan, who had changed his white shirt into a black one.

"Wow!" Robert spoke out after looking at her.

It made Bryan turn his head to look at Sophia, and then his eyes landed on her.
