Chapter 501: Six Nations Contending for Power, Beacon

Smoke Rising!_1

At Wang Ziwei's invitation.

Li Yueming returned to the inn and started chatting.

According to Wang Ziwei.

After he earned enough fame and wealth through teaching, he joined the Western Garrison Army a few years ago.

Because of his relationship with Li Yueming, plus Wang Ziwei's strong strength and sharp judgment of the situation, it didn't take long for him to gain Li Nanfeng's appreciation.

He was now acting as Li Nanfeng's military adviser. He had already gained quite a reputation among the Western Garrison Army.

Li Yueming was only slightly surprised.

Wang Ziwei was the chosen one of this world, and the hidden mission related to him was even more shocking. In this situation, he could not always be a teacher.

Although Li Yueming was a little surprised to join the West Garrison Army, he was still a little surprised.

However, that was all. It was not a rare thing.

As a military advisor.

Wang Ziwei was in charge of the logistics of the town.

Wang Ziwei was the one who approved Li Yueming's entry into the West Garrison Pass a few days ago.

Now, Wang Ziwei had specially waited for Li Yueming in this inn. Naturally, it was not just for catching up and chatting.

In fact, Wang Ziwei had brought a rather taboo message with him.

The two of them exchanged drinks and chatted for a while.

Wang Ziwei waved his hand and used his spiritual energy to isolate a barrier in the inn. After ensuring that no one around could hear their conversation, he said solemnly, "If I'm not mistaken, you came to the West Garrison Fortress at this juncture to take Marquis Southpeak away, right?"

Li Yueming put down his wine glass and didn't hide anything. He nodded frankly and said, "Yes, but my father is unwilling to leave..."

Wang Ziwei smiled." Lord Marquis has already made up his mind to die. Life and death coexist with the Western Garrison Fortress. How could he flee at the last moment?"

Li Yueming sighed.” Of course, I understand the righteousness of the country. However, this kind of sacrifice is too meaningless to me.”

Hearing this, Wang Ziwei looked at Li Yueming deeply. He held his wine glass and pondered for a moment before finally saying, ”” Actually, I think so too. Right now, the northwest is clearly the territory of the Zhou Dynasty, but the emperor is unwilling to mobilize a single soldier for this. The Western Garrison Army will defend this place to the death. I’m afraid that even if they fight the Qin army to the end and bleed to the last drop of blood, other than the people in the northwest, the people of the Great Zhou and the Central Plains will not feel any regret or pain...

“Not only that, they might even be happy to do so. After all, the more miserable the battle between the Western Garrison Army and the Qin Army is, the easier it will be for the defense line at the Dragon and Tiger Subdue Pass...Unfortunately, my power is limited and I can’t reverse all of this!”

Wang Ziwei’s face was slightly flushed. This was a sign of blood spurting out when a person was extremely excited.

He had been raised in the western frontier since he was young and only ventured out when he was 15 or 16 years old.

During the days when he traveled around, the more he saw, the more powerless Wang Ziwei felt.

There were many things that he knew were wrong.

However, he was powerless to change it.

They could only watch as tragedy after tragedy occurred.

Now, the Great Zhou wanted to use the entire northwest as a strategic defense against the Qin army.

This was something that Wang Ziwei would never allow.

It was also because of this that a few years ago, when he discovered this sign.

Wang Ziwei decided to leave the mountain ahead of time and enter the West Garrison Army to start laying out his plans.

However, it was still too late.

In a few years, even though he had tried his best to raise his status in the Western Garrison Army, he was still a young man.

However, whether it was fame or strength, he was still far from breaking through.

It was only a few days ago when Wang Ziwei found out that Li Yueming, this extremely heaven-defying disciple, had appeared in the Western Garrison Army that he finally found a way out of the impossible.

This was also the biggest reason why he was so excited and even took the initiative to test Li Yueming.

Li Yue Ming didn’t utter a word, but he showed the appearance of a deputy, willing to hear the detailed appearance of the class.

As the saying goes, heroes come from troubled times.

Now, it was already the time when the chaotic world was about to descend.

If an ambitious person like Wang Ziwei, who had hidden himself deeply, wanted to achieve something, he naturally had to wait for an opportunity to make a move.

Therefore, the moment he saw Wang Ziwei, Li Yueming didn't even need to guess to know that Wang Ziwei's purpose for looking for him was definitely related to the Western Garrison Fortress and the Star Moon Army.

Both master and disciple were shrewd.

Wang Ziwei had predicted that Li Yueming would not just sit back and do nothing about Marquis Southpeak. Li Yueming had also predicted that Wang Ziwei would not miss this opportunity to soar to the top.

Seeing that Li Yueming did not take the initiative to respond, Wang Ziwei restrained his excitement and coughed twice before he spoke first, "I can't turn the situation around by myself, but if you trust Master and are willing to advance and retreat with him, we might be able to change the fate of the Western Garrison Army and the entire northwest!"

Li Yueming revealed a puzzled expression. "Oh? Does Master have a good plan?"

Actually, Li Yueming could guess Wang Ziwei's thoughts, but his guess might not be accurate. Wang Ziwei had to say it himself to make it count.

Wang Ziwei stroked his mustache and did not hide anything from Li Yueming. He told him all his thoughts and plans.

After listening, Li Yueming nodded, "In that case, let's do it this way!"

Chapter 502: Six Nations Contending for Power, Beacon Smoke Rising!_2

Seeing Li Yueming agree without hesitation, Wang Ziwei almost suspected that something was wrong with him.

One had to know that any of the ideas and plans he had just mentioned would be a disaster if word got out!

Under normal circumstances, most people would probably pee their pants after hearing a few words.

However, Li Yueming acted as if nothing had happened.

He agreed without hesitation, as if he was not talking about the rebellion of the extermination of the nine clans, but about adding a plate of pig's head meat to the dishes.

Wang Ziwei couldn't help but glance at Li Yueming.

After confirming that Li Yueming was not joking with him and that there was nothing wrong with his statement, he took a deep breath and said, "To be honest, for a long time in the past, I always thought that I was free and easy enough. After all, I was full and the whole family was not hungry. If my head fell off, it would only be a bowl-sized scar... However, in front of your disciple, I still feel the difference!"

“That’s why it’s true that the new waves push on the previous ones, and the previous waves die on the beach!”

In response, Li Yueming only smiled.””Master, why don’t you think about it carefully? Because of the marriage alliance last time, the Li family has already completely offended the emperor. At this moment, our Li family is still in the middle of the day, but who knows if our entire family will be executed in the future?”

“Under such circumstances, do you think that I, my father, and the entire Li family have any other choice?”

In fact, when Li Nanfeng refused to return to Northern Ice River Town with him last night, he had already considered it. It was just that he did not know that Wang Ziwei was in the army at that time, so he could not find a partner.

Now, the two of them had the same idea.

After discussing some details, Li Yueming did not stay any longer.

After all, he came out in a hurry and didn’t make too many arrangements. If he was discovered to have left Northern Ice River Town, he was afraid that there would be a lot of trouble.

Immediately, Li Yueming mounted his spiritual horse and set off on the journey back to Northern Glacier Town.

Three months later, Year 7294 of the Great Zhou Royal Calendar.

A new year had begun, but the various countries were not lively at all.

The dark clouds of war had already covered the entire continent.

Five thousand years ago, Tang, Ming, Qin, Han, Song, Zhou, Qian, and Xia were at war.

In the end, the Tang, Ming, Qin, Han, Song, and Six Kingdoms won.

Back then, Da Qian and Great Xia were divided up by the other countries, and each country more or less got some benefits.

Since then, the six dynasties had a short period of peace.

However, more than 5,000 years had passed quietly. The cake that was left after the annexation of Great Qian and Great Xia had basically been completely divided by the various countries. In addition, the arrival of the reincarnators had added a basin of hot oil to the hot water that was already about to boil.

The contest for supremacy had reached its most intense stage.

It did not matter whether the rulers of the various countries believed the rumors of the astrologers.

At this moment, they would either be actively or passively involved in the upcoming war.

After all, everyone was actively preparing for battle.

Who dared to stop?

The first to stop would probably be divided up by the other countries that were eyeing them covetously.

Once the gears of war were set in motion, it would not be easy to stop unless thousands of lives were crushed and a few countries were slaughtered.

Under such circumstances, even the Great Song, which valued literature over martial arts, was forging weapons and armor throughout the country.

No matter how strong the army was, at least they showed their attitude.

Under such circumstances, the era of many reincarnators had finally arrived.

The reincarnators of various countries were active on the stage of the war. For a time, the stars were shining brightly, and the stars gathered.

The identity of the reincarnators could not be exposed in the reincarnation world, but since it was a rule, there would be loopholes. The reincarnators had developed their own code in the main material world.

Therefore, many reincarnators connected together through various means and formed a temporary alliance of interests.

Currently, the strongest reincarnator forces.

The most famous and powerful were Great Qin's Black Armored Guards.

Nearly a hundred of the entire Qin Country's Samsara users had joined the Black Armored Guards. Before they joined, the Black Armored Guards were at the bottom of the twelve Qin army units that had military souls.

After they joined, in just five to six years, the reincarnators armed the Black Armored Guards to the teeth and became one of the most elite trump cards of the Qin army.

The second ranked was Da Ming's reincarnator faction.

The number of reincarnators in this group was more than that of the State of

Qin. There were more than a hundred of them. They entered the Great Ming's Divine Martial Army together. The Divine Martial Army was the strongest army in the Great Ming Dynasty. With them joining, it was like adding wings to a tiger.

When they were fighting against the Great Song and the Great Tang, the reincarnators of the Divine Martial Army showed an unstoppable stance.

He had slaughtered the Great Song army until it was utterly routed, and the Great Tang had no choice but to retreat.

As for the rankings after that, they were less credible.

The reincarnators were all proud and arrogant. Before they failed, they would not think that their skills were inferior to others.

It was worth mentioning that the reincarnators of the Great Zhou were ranked the lowest among the six countries.

It was not because the reincarnators of Great Zhou were weak, but because the reincarnators of Great Zhou did not sign up for a group. Instead, they were divided into two groups.

One of them was a batch of graduates from the Great Zhou Cultivation College. Most of them were arranged by the emperor to join the Dragon Tiger Army. It wasn't that the emperor didn't want them to shine elsewhere

Chapter 503: Six Nations Contending for Power, Beacon

Smoke Rising!_3

Back then, when the reincarnators from the Cultivator Academy were sent to the Northern Lands to establish their own army, Wang Biao and the others were defeated by the Qin army with hundreds of thousands of carefully selected troops.

This directly caused the emperor to lose confidence in the other reincarnators.

As for the other group, they were of course the reincarnators under Li Yueming. Including Qi Fan, there were a total of 25 people.

From the battle results alone, the reincarnators gathered in the Star Moon Army should be quite strong.

However, the number of people was much lower than the other reincarnators.

Naturally, the other reincarnators did not take him seriously.

In the past few months, the Qin army in the north had taken down two more towns.

Even the Star Moon Troop had sacrificed many men.

You Aotian and the Northern Battlefront Army all felt a heavy pressure.

The imperial court was more lenient towards the north than the west.

Over the years, other than sending troops under Prince Yu, he had also mobilized troops from other places to assist the Northern Lands.

Therefore, the military forces in the North could barely hold on.

However, the years of war had harmed the people of the Northlands.

Many years ago, the Qin army had sent a small troop to trample and drive away the Northlanders. They did not allow the Northlanders to sow, causing the Northlanders to have no harvest for several years.

In the end, if the Imperial Court had not grunted its teeth and distributed a few months of relief food, the Northern Lands would have been empty by now.

Finally catching his breath, he ordered some food.

The grain that had been saved hadn't even had time to be replanted. In the end, years of war had once again descended on this disaster-ridden land.

The imperial court was currently unable to take care of itself, so it was naturally impossible to send out relief food like it did a few years ago.

Desperate disaster victims wanted to escape to the Central Plains, which was relatively more prosperous, but they found that the imperial court had long blocked the throat of the Dragon and Tiger Pass that led to the Central Plains.

He wanted to go east, but he found that King Yu in the east was even more ruthless. He directly sent a large number of troops to guard the few cities that entered the pass. If the disaster victims approached, they did not need to say anything and would shoot arrows at them like hedgehogs.

As for the western frontier, there were also imperial court troops guarding the various passes there.

The western border was not rich to begin with, and the main forces of the Qin army were still outside the West Garrison Pass, ready to move out at any time. The people were rushing to escape, and did not want to continue suffering from the war in another place.

Therefore, the people who realized that there was no way out looked around.

Only now did they realize that there was no place for them in such a big world.

A large number of people began to gather and cause trouble. After all, people's eyes would turn green when they were hungry. As long as they could find a bite to eat, they would do anything.

Under such circumstances, Li Yueming's Northern Glacier Town welcomed a second surge in population.

The vast majority of the tens of millions of refugees in the North were unaware of the situation in Northern Glacier Town.

However, a small portion of them found Northern Glacier Town.

In just a few months, the refugees lining up outside Northern Glacier Town did not stop for 24 hours a day.

He looked at the dense crowd outside Northern Ice River Town.

Tian Liang and the others who were in charge didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

Having a large population was naturally a good thing. After all, whether it was to improve the town's economy or to strengthen the military, it could not be separated from the population.

However, having too many people was also a happy and painful thing. This was especially so when the people they were facing were a group of refugees.

How to settle them, how to distribute food..

Every single one of them could not be mistaken.

Fortunately, Qi Fan, who had gone to poach them some time ago, replied. The secret letter stated that he had poached seven or eight reincarnators who were proficient in agriculture and animal husbandry. At this moment, they were on their way back to Northern Ice River Town.

Otherwise, Tian Liang and the others would not dare to let so many refugees continue to flood into the city.

Then, the problem came.

The reincarnators in the Star Moon Army scratched their heads and could not figure out one thing. What kind of bewitching potion did Li Yueming pour into Qi Fan to make him, a Beast Tamer who originally belonged to the State of Qin, so loyal to the Star Moon Army?

Chapter 504: Smoke rose everywhere, asking who was the hero in the world? 1

The flames of war between the six countries grew even more intense.

Many reincarnators who wanted the world to be in chaos were mixed in. They took this opportunity to crazily fish for the progress of the main mission they had chosen.

Under such circumstances, the many reincarnators in Northern Ice River Town did not idle.

Half of the Starmoon Troops were in the northern cities, while the other half was engaged in another large-scale project.

That was to build a city wall and a ditch to protect Northern Ice River Town.

According to Li Yueming's judgment, the Ninth Prince still needed the Star Moon Army, so the Qin army in the north would not touch the sensitive place of Northern Ice River Town for the time being.

However, if an all-out war broke out between Great Zhou and Great Qin, it was uncertain whether the Ninth Prince would show mercy to Northern Ice River Town.

Li Yueming had to be prepared in advance.

Northern Glacier Town's current productivity was not bad. After all, it was not only a cold place, but also a fertile place.

It was close to the mountains and rivers, and the products were very rich.

In addition, Li Yueming's control of Northern Glacier Town was quite humane. The people of Northern Glacier Town saw the hope of a good life and were naturally full of enthusiasm.

Northern Glacier Town had two advantages.

Right now, the Star-Moon Army only needed to take advantage of the fact that the war had yet to reach the fertile land of Northern Glacier Town.

They should seize the time and do their best to develop in peace.

More than ten days later, Qi Fan, who had gone out to poach, returned to the north with seven or eight beast tamers.

To be honest, even Li Yueming was shocked by his efficiency.

That night, Li Yueming, who was extremely excited, met a few Beast Tamer.

Looking at the extremely excited Beast Tamer in the tent, Li Yueming pulled Qi Fan and sent out a soul interrogation, "What benefits did you promise them? He had brought so many people back in just a few days!"

Qi Fan felt a little smug in his heart.

What did this mean?

Other than controlling beasts and raising horses, he had other skills.

At the very least, he was a good pimp.

Although he was secretly happy, he pretended to be unconcerned and waved his hand. "No, this is just a small matter. If it wasn't for the Qin army keeping a close eye on them, I could have called all my fellow disciples over!"

"As for the benefits, my junior brothers and I described the great prospects of Northern Ice River Town and the Star-Moon Army. We also promised them that after they joined the Star-Moon Army, they could communicate with the spiritual beasts on the outskirts of the extremely cold snow mountain every year. This is just a matter of a word for you, General Li..."

Li Yueming heaved a sigh of relief.

These promises were not excessive at all. It could even be said to be zero cost. Under normal circumstances, it was simply unimaginable to be able to rope in a few beast tamers to join Northern Ice River Town.

This wave was definitely worth it.

If there was anything attractive about Northern Glacier Town, other than the fact that the Star-Moon Army had just been established and the potential for development of the army and town was relatively high, the snitch mentality should be the most attractive thing for reincarnators.

After all, there was an ultimate hidden option in the main mission of the reincarnators.

That was to establish his own country and use his own country to destroy the other six countries and establish his own country.

This main mission should be considered the most difficult existence in this public reincarnation dungeon.

Under normal circumstances, as long as the brain was not burned.

Ninety-nine percent of reincarnators would not choose to walk this path of no return!

After all, the Six Nations' existence could be traced back to tens of thousands of years ago.

Each of them was a vassal state that had existed since the era of the Human Emperor Tiandu Clan.

His foundation was quite deep.

Although the reincarnators were also very powerful.

However, it was still too difficult for them to create a new country with just their strength.

Now, the Star Moon Army had provided a stage for these ambitious people to show off.

After all, in the eyes of the other reincarnators, Li Yueming was the chosen one of this world. He was a native who had received the favor of the world's will. If the army he established had the heart of a traitor, it might really be possible to create something impossible with the support of the world's will.

Under this premise, the reincarnators who joined the Star Moon Army only needed to follow behind to burn firewood and carry water, contributing to the expansion of the Star Moon Army and Northern Ice River Town.

According to the reward mechanism of the Reincarnation Mark.

The more difficult the mission, the higher the corresponding rewards.

According to the final final mission, Nandu, the reincarnators probably did not need to unify the six countries. They only needed to establish a country that belonged to them. The various points rewards might already be higher than the other reincarnators who completed the entire main mission.

Qi Fan explained this advantage to a few beast tamers. The temptation to the beast tamers was actually quite huge.

Later on, many reincarnators were allowed to go to the snow mountain to communicate with the spirit beasts face to face. It was only a side effect and not the main reason.

Qi Fan had only thought about this later.

After all, there were so many reincarnators in the Star Moon Army, and many of them were very powerful. They should be experienced reincarnators.

Under normal circumstances, if the benefits of following Li Yueming were not enough, these veteran reincarnators would have long replaced him or simply left..

Chapter 505: Smoke rose everywhere, asking who was the hero in the world? 2

However, looking at the entire Star Moon Army, all the reincarnators listened to Li Yueming.

Not only that, but he was also working hard to help Li Yueming expand his territory.

Even if there was nothing to do for a few months, no one would consider running away.

Qi Fan, who was a capitulator, actually couldn't understand the trick for a long time.

After all, even if one of the reincarnators' heads was broken, there should be one of them who was not broken, right?

Why were they willing to follow a local who had nothing to conquer the world and listen to him?

Later on, he stayed in the Starmoon Troop for a long time.

Qi Fan slowly discovered the real reason behind this matter.

Firstly, it was Li Yueming's personal charm.

There was nothing to say.

In terms of character and ability, Li Yueming was the best in all the worlds he had reincarnated into.

Not only was he powerful, but he was also proficient in town management and government operations. Not only was he proficient in military politics, but he was also able to predict things like a god. Moreover, he was not a dabbler in these aspects, but a top-notch existence.

Even with Qi Fan's picky eyes, Li Yueming could be considered an omnipotent hexagonal warrior.

Of course, just the strength of an individual was not enough to convince many reincarnators.

After all, to the reincarnators, the local natives were purely passersby.

No matter how powerful and awesome he was in the reincarnation world, it would only be a fleeting cloud after he left the reincarnation world.

Therefore, after a more in-depth investigation.

Qi Fan then came up with the second reason.

That was Li Yueming's identity as the Destiny's Child.

Reincarnators liked to follow behind Destiny's Child. There was no need to explain this reason.

After all, in a sense, the Son of Destiny was equivalent to an extension of the world's will. With the support of the world's will, the Son of Destiny would be able to do half the work with half the effort.

Therefore, many reincarnators could completely achieve a certain degree of victory by following behind a Child of Destiny with sufficient power of providence.

It was estimated that this identity should be the most fundamental reason why Li Yueming could gather a group of reincarnators to follow him.

As for the final reason, it was naturally the deepest one.

Even after investigating for so many years, he did not notice this reason. It was only a few days ago when Huang Li 'er looked for him and wanted him to go to the State of Qin to poach her.

That was, the Star Moon Army was ready to rebel against the Great Zhou at any time.

Judging from the traces of Li Yueming, he seemed to want to establish his own country.

After discovering this, Qi Fan finally understood why the two batches of reincarnators in the Star Moon Army did not spare any effort.

It turned out that this group of people was after the final ultimate mission!!!

Looking at the current strength of Northern Glacier Town, it was ridiculous to think of building an independent country.

However, Qi Fan was really watching how Northern Ice River Town developed day by day.

In just over ten years, under the leadership of Li Yueming and the joint efforts of many reincarnators, Northern Ice River Town had developed from a small town with a population of less than 10,000 to a super metropolis with a population of more than 600,000.

What if Li Yueming was given another ten or twenty years?

Who dared to say that this place could not become independent and become the seventh country besides the six countries?

And the reason why Qi Fan was so hardworking to call for people, even taking a huge risk to go deep into the Qin country, naturally also had selfish motives.

At present, the reincarnators of the Star Moon Army were generally divided into three factions.

One was the veterans of the Star Moon Army led by Ding Yi, Huang Li 'er, and Tian Liang.

It was said that this batch of reincarnators had a deep relationship with Li Yueming.

Tian Liang and Huang Li 'er were already fellow disciples of Li Yueming when they were very young.

Later on, when he entered the Great Zhou Reincarnator Academy, he even prostrated himself under You Aotian.

Since they were from the same hometown and classmates, their relationship could not be any closer.

This group of elders was deeply rooted in the Starmoon Army, and each of them had a huge influence.

The second faction was the middle faction that had joined the Starmoon Army halfway through.

This group of people was led by Wang Biao, and their status and influence in the Starmoon Army were clearly much lower than the veteran faction, but they were still not to be underestimated.

Their influence was mainly spread in Northern Ice River Town. After all, they spent most of their time in Northern Ice River Town.

As for the last faction, it was the Kin Natives faction.

With Li Yueming's two sisters as the leader, there was nothing much to say about this group of people. Under normal circumstances, they were not considered by the reincarnators.

In other words, there were only two factions in the Star-Moon Army and Northern Ice River Town.

And if he could pull the other beast tamers to Northern Ice River Town.

Perhaps he could use this to form his own sect.

It became the third largest reincarnator force in the Star Moon Army.

At that time, if he could subdue the Extreme Frost Spiritual Fox of the snow mountain and obtain the power of the ice-type divine beast, he might have a chance in the final battle that might come.

Speaking of the so-called final struggle, he had to explain a little.

What if under the leadership of Li Yueming, the chosen one, the reincarnators really completed the ultimate mission of unifying the six countries with their own independent country?

Then, the problem came.

Who was the reincarnator who had contributed the most behind Li Yueming? Who could pick the final fruit of victory?

Under normal circumstances, this fruit should belong to the Elder Faction..

Chapter 506: Smoke rose everywhere, asking who was the hero in the world?_3

After all, whether it was Tian Liang, Huang Li 'er, or Ding Yi, they were all veterans who had followed Li Yueming before the Star Moon Army was established. No one else could compare to them.

However, what if the other reincarnators killed the Elder Faction in advance and stole the fruits of their labor?

That was hard to say.

After all, only those who were alive could continue the mission. Those who were dead would naturally lose all other qualifications.

If there were others who could contribute more merits than the members of the Elder Faction, it was normal for them to take the fruits of the Elder Faction.

Under such circumstances.

Whether it was for self-preservation or to snatch this huge credit.

The strength of the reincarnators was especially important.

And now, other than gaining credit, Qi Fan was preparing for possible situations in the future.

This was the cognitive view of a senior reincarnator.

As long as there were enough benefits, they would think further than anyone

Of course, it was a little ridiculous to talk about the long-term at a time like this.

This group of special people might end up even more miserable than those reincarnators who did ordinary missions!

No matter what, the person had finally been summoned.

These reincarnators were all beast tamers. They were proficient in livestock breeding and were also involved in farming.

After all, beast tamers were mostly dealing with wild beasts and nature. Raising spirit beasts and planting spiritual herbs were compulsory courses.

Their arrival had greatly alleviated the labor shortage in Northern Glacier Town's agriculture and animal husbandry.

Li Yueming arranged for them to grow potatoes on the fertile land downstream of the Northern Ice River, while the other half arranged for them to manage and raise warhorses.

Although these two places did not sound good, they were very important departments for a country and an army.

There was no need to talk much about agriculture. The entire population of nearly a million people in Northern Ice River Town depended on the output of farming, especially now that the imperial court had implemented grain control over Northern Ice River Town. If Northern Ice River Town wanted to continue developing, it could not do without this topic.

Raising warhorses was also a fundamental matter for the army.

Everyone knew that the spiritual horses of the Qin army were one of the best in the world.

With the mobility of the spirit horses, they could easily plunder the Great Zhou and the surrounding countries without leaving a trace. Ordinary armies could not even see their shadows.

If the beast tamer could breed the spiritual horses in Northern Ice River Town, they would be able to produce even better spiritual horse genes.

It would definitely increase the combat strength of the army by a large margin.

Time passed quickly, and another year flew by in an instant.

Northern Glacier Town was developing at a rapid pace. It could be said that the entire city was changing every day. Trenches crisscrossed to block the horses, and simple city walls rose from the ground. At the beginning, no one responded, but towards the end, many people in Northern Glacier Town smelled the smell of gunpowder.

The Starmoon Army had never built a wall here in the past years.

Now, they were rushing to work. Could it be that the war that they hated like a flood was going to engulf this ideal town again?

There was no answer to this question, and no answer was needed.

While the people were still confused, the Qin army, who had been unable to wait any longer, had already made their move.

In the third month of the 7295th year of the Great Zhou calendar, the 500,000 Qin soldiers outside the Western Garrison Pass began to attack the Western Garrison Pass without caring about anything else.

At the same time, the 300,000 Qin soldiers of the Northern Lands took over four of the twelve cities in the Northern Lands with lightning speed.

As soon as the news spread, the entire world was shaken.

This war between the six countries that had lasted for nearly ten thousand years would become the final millstone of flesh and blood, crushing all existences that were involved.

This included but was not limited to life, wealth, food, and countries that occupied the clouds.

Smoke rose everywhere. Who was the hero in the world?

Chapter 507: If the Ruler Disregards the Subordinate as a Soil Mustard, the Subordinate Disregards the Ruler as an Enemy

In the fifth month of the 7295th year of the Great Zhou calendar, after a two-month-long tug-of-war, hundreds of thousands of West Garrison troops at the border suffered heavy casualties. Even the supposedly unconquerable West Garrison Pass was on the verge of collapse due to the fierce offensive of the Qin army.

Under such circumstances, many upright and kind scholars in the Great Zhou Dynasty wrote to the emperor to advise him to send troops to help the border troops in the western border.

After all, once the West Garrison Pass was breached, nearly a million Qin soldiers would enter.

The entire northwest of the Great Zhou would instantly turn into the most tragic purgatory in the human world.

This result was unacceptable to many scholars.

However, the vast majority of the documents they submitted were like a stone sinking into the sea. Even if a very small number of them received a reply, most of them were just perfunctory words from the Imperial Court.

Seeing that no one in the imperial court was paying attention to them, many scholars were instantly agitated.

Immediately, he posted a message pointing at the noses of many nobles and officials.

After all, many scholars had their own strength of character. Since no one paid attention to their advice, they would scold all the officials in the imperial court.

He cursed them for being a group of crafty officials who disregarded the country.

Many officials in the court remained silent and did not reply.

After all, this group of scholars who had lived a good life since they were young had the ability to guide the country, but they could not even get a single official rank. How could they expect them to understand the current situation of the Great Zhou?

This war was different from any other time in the past; Great Qin was truly going all out. Apart from a small number of soldiers that could intimidate the Great Tang at the border, almost all of Great Qin's soldiers had come out.

In the face of such an offensive, even the supposedly indestructible West Garrison Fortress was on the verge of collapse.

Moreover, the most important thing was that not only had the western border been opened up, but hundreds of thousands of Qin soldiers were also attacking the northern borders. In other words, the Qin army had opened up two huge battle lines on the Great Zhou side at the same time, and each of them had an absolute advantage.

Under such circumstances.

The Great Zhou could still hold on if they gathered all their forces at the Dragon Subdue Pass, Tiger Subdue Pass, and Futian Pass. They only needed to grit their teeth and stall for time. When the Qin army's momentum was not so strong, everything would be solved.

After all, the Qin army had come out in full force to attack the Great Zhou. The Qin army's rear was definitely extremely empty. The reason why the King of

Qin dared to be so decisive and ruthless was probably because he was prepared to end the battle quickly and not give the other countries that were eyeing him covetously a chance to get a share of the loot.

On the other hand, after understanding the Qin army's military plan, as long as the Great Zhou did not suffer a large-scale defeat, relying on the advantages of fighting on their own land and the shorter supply routes, it would not be a problem for them to delay the Qin army for a year and a half.

It didn't even take a year and a half.

After mobilizing millions of troops to kill the Great Zhou, the Qin Kingdom's military strength was already very empty. The Great Tang in the south, which was also restless, would definitely not let go of such a good opportunity to attack.

Moreover, once the Qin army on the Eastern Expedition was thwarted, there was no need for anyone to make things difficult for them.

In summary, in the eyes of the many officials of the Great Zhou Imperial Court and the emperor himself, it was very wise not to send troops to reinforce the Western Garrison Army at the western border.

If they rushed to the western border, not only would it extend the supply line of the Great Zhou army, but it might also be cut off by the Qin army in the north.

Years of war that could not make ends meet had already consumed a lot of money, food, and armor from the Great Zhou's national treasury. It was clearly very irrational to extend the battle line now.

Moreover, the people of the northwest were not from the Great Zhou Dynasty. They were citizens of the Great Qian Kingdom five thousand years ago. What did it have to do with them whether they died or not?

On the contrary, it was a good thing from another perspective.

After all, if the number of Western Garrison Army soldiers who died was high enough.

It could also wear down more of the Qin army's strength and cause both sides to suffer heavy losses.

As for the people who died in the war in the northwest, they could make some space for the Central Plains, which was becoming more and more crowded. After the war was over, without the obstruction of the Western Garrison Army, the imperial court could enfeoff some nobles from the Central Plains and further strengthen the Great Zhou's rule over the northwest.

All in all.

No matter how one looked at it, leading the army to rescue the northwest was a losing business.

Thus, all the politicians in the Great Zhou Imperial Court chose to go blind. They completely ignored the huge difference in military strength between the northwest and the Qin army. They were determined to use the armies of the northwest to wear down the strength of the Qin army.

Only children would naively talk about right and wrong.

Mature politicians had a heart of stone, and they only knew how to weigh the pros and cons.

As for the human tragedy under the pros and cons, as long as it did not burn them, what did it have to do with them?

After everything was settled, he would just push the blame to the Qin army. After all, the dead could not talk.

Under such circumstances, anyone with a discerning eye could see that the Imperial Court had already given up on the northwest and was determined to fight to the death with the Qin army at the three checkpoints.

It was not realistic to use the northwest to resist the power of the Qin army.

As expected, when the war advanced to the third month, the western border began to shake.

However, just as everyone in the Great Zhou Dynasty thought that the Western Garrison Army would not be able to withstand the Qin army's attack, a mysterious army appeared on the battlefield of the Western Garrison Pass..

Chapter 508: If the Ruler Disregards the Subordinate as a Soil Mustard, Then the Subordinate Disregards the Ruler
as an Enemy

This army was small in number, but they were well-equipped and well-trained.

It was also their arrival that had forcefully given the West Garrison Fortress, which was on the verge of collapse, a breath of life, and allowed it to persevere again.

After receiving the news, the entire Great Zhou turned their heads. Everyone was very interested in the origins of this mysterious army that had suddenly appeared.

However, the situation in front of them was very tense, and all the places were in a state of preparation for war. It was difficult for spies to move at the moment, so they could not investigate the origin of this mysterious army in the first place.

However, before the Great Zhou could completely recover.

For some reason, the Qin army, which had been attacking cities and seizing territory in the north, suddenly stopped attacking.

This had caught countless people off guard. Taking advantage of this short window of time, the Star Moon Troop, which had gathered in various towns in the North, suddenly withdrew from the North on a large scale.

Many soldiers of the Northern Battlefront Army followed them out of the city.

At the same time, the Star Moon Army and a part of the Northern Battlefront Army sent a shocking announcement to the entire northwest.

"I have heard that the mission of the army is to be loyal to the country, and I have heard that the fate of soldiers is to die on the battlefield. However, I have never heard that the officials and the monarch are indifferent when they see millions of people about to fall into the abyss of suffering!"

"As the old saying goes, if the ruler sees his subjects as his hands and feet, then the subjects will see the ruler as their confidant. If the monarch treats his courtiers like dogs and horses, then the courtiers treat the monarch like their countrymen. If the monarch treats his subjects like dirt, the subjects will treat the monarch like enemies."

Right now, the imperial court wants to use the Star Moon Army, the Northern Army, and the Western Army to fight against the entire thirty-two states of the Qin country. We are willing but unable to do so. We have repeatedly requested for reinforcements from the imperial court, but the imperial court and the Emperor of Zhou have witnessed the tens of millions of people and millions of troops in the northwest fight to the death with the Qin army without sending a single soldier..."

"Such a country that is hated by both men and gods, and punished by the heavens and the earth, such a heartless monarch who has no eyes for his people...They were not worthy of the loyalty of millions of troops at the border, nor were they worthy of the tax offerings of tens of millions of people in the northwest!"

"The north is about to become the battlefield of a large-scale attack by the Qin army. We pity our fellow brothers and sisters and will open a path for everyone to escape to the western border. As long as the Western Garrison Army and the Star and Moon Army are here, the Human Emperor Pass in the desert of the western border will never be broken!"

After this news spread.

The Star Moon Army and a small portion of the Northern Battlefront Army began to retreat from the northern battlefield in an orderly manner.

Five of the twelve cities in the north had been occupied by the Qin army, and 50% of the remaining seven cities had been evacuated.

You Aotian had already mentally prepared himself for this day.

He was a pure soldier and a traditional soldier.

The honor in his heart made it impossible for You Aotian to accept surrendering without a fight.

Therefore, when Li Yueming came to find him, You Aotian was very free and easy. He said that the soldiers of the Northern Battlefront Army who were willing to leave could leave with the Star Moon Army, but he would not leave the Northern Region that he had guarded for his entire life.

He had lived for most of his life, and he had also lived for most of his life.

He didn't want to walk to the end and lose his backbone as a warrior.

Northern Lands, North City.

Looking at this familiar yet unfamiliar disciple in front of him, You Aotian's expression was rather complicated. He sighed and said with relief, "My staying here doesn't mean that what you did was wrong. In fact, there are many times when there is no right or wrong in many things. It is the Northlanders' luck, and also my luck, that you can find a way for the Northlanders to survive..."

"In my life, other than brandishing knives and spears, the most fortunate thing is that I was able to nurture outstanding disciples like you in my later years! Go. I hope you can treat the Northern Battlefront Army and the millions of people in the north well!"

"I will stay here and stand guard for the Northlands!"

Li Yueming was silent for a long time. He opened his mouth to say something, but in the end, he didn't say anything.

He turned around and left silently.

The news spread very quickly.

After receiving the declaration, the Northlanders hesitated for a moment.

Between the Imperial Court and the Starmoon Army, they ultimately chose the Starmoon Army.

After so many years, the Starmoon Army had already built a good political reputation in the North. Compared to the imperial court, which did not treat them as humans, the Starmoon Army, which had protected them for decades, was clearly more trustworthy.

Thus, many people packed up their belongings and moved to the western frontier under the guidance of the Star Moon Army.

This news spread to Haojing.

In his rage, the emperor smashed half of the palace with a slap and roared, "Li Yueming, this vile beast, I have treated you well. I didn't expect you to be an ungrateful wolf!"

Although the Star Moon Army's actions were not explicitly stated, they had already completely chosen to betray the Great Zhou.

He had predicted that the Western Garrison Army would not surrender.

However, he did not expect the Star Moon Army to stand up and stab the Great Zhou at such a critical moment.

What puzzled the emperor the most was that the main battlefield between the Qin army and the Great Zhou army was in the western border. There were only 300,000 Qin troops in the north. Although the Star Moon Army and the Northern Army were under great pressure to deal with the 300,000 Qin troops, it was not to the point where they had to raise their hands and surrender, right?

However, the emperor soon knew why Li Yueming wanted to leave the north.

Originally, he was still thinking about how to punish Li Yueming for his betrayal.

If he didn't catch him and pull out his skin and pull out his tendons, lighting the sky lantern, it wouldn't be enough to satisfy his hatred..

Chapter 509: If the Ruler Disregards the Subordinate as a Soil Mustard, Then the Subordinate Disregards the Ruler as an Enemy

However, at this moment, the Qin army that had been fighting a bloody battle in the western border suddenly appeared outside the Hundred Thousand Mountains in the northern part of the Great Zhou Dynasty.

The Qin army, numbering in the millions, moved as fast as lightning, passing through the 12 Northern Cities that were no longer guarded, leading the army to attack Dragon Crouching Pass.

In just three days, nearly 100,000 soldiers of Dragon Crouching Pass had died!

The entire Dragon Crouching Pass was almost flattened by the Qin army's cavalry. Fortunately, at the last moment, the large number of Dragon Tiger Army soldiers managed to block the first wave of attacks.

After hearing this news, the emperor was no longer angry.

He felt his entire body turn cold.

If he still didn't know what had happened, then he could only say that he was too stupid as the emperor.

No wonder Li Yueming was so bold to challenge him in public.

It turned out that he had already calculated it well.

So more than ten years ago, Li Yueming, who was only a teenager, had already established a connection with the Qin army and the spirit beasts in the extremely cold snow mountain?

Even now, the emperor still found it unbelievable.

In the distant Northern Glacier Town, Li Yueming's expression was not relaxed at all.

Back then, after a brief discussion with Wang Ziwei, he came up with such a plan to protect himself.

The Western Garrison Army would obviously not surrender to the Qin Army. They would rather die on the battlefield and shed their last drop of blood than leave the Western Border and the Western Garrison Pass.

This was the foundation of the Western Garrison Army. If they lost it, the soul of the Western Garrison Army would no longer exist.

However, just because the Western Garrison Army could not surrender did not mean that the Star Moon Army could not surrender!

The reason why the Hundred Thousand Mountains could not pass through the million Qin soldiers was because Li Yueming had intentionally controlled the agreement.

As long as Li Yueming wanted to, he could ask the little fox to carve out a path for the Qin army to bypass the West Garrison Pass and enter the Great Zhou from the north.

He was Li Yueming's strongest supporter.

The little fox in the extremely cold snow mountain was the reason why the Star Moon Army could survive in the gap between the Qin army and the Great Zhou army for a long time.

Now, this big and thick leg had reached the most critical moment to play its role.

Li Yueming first contacted the Ninth Prince and told him part of the plan.

After so many years of consolidation, the Ninth Prince had already gained a rather high position in the Qin army.

The previous Qin army had already been in a semi-retired state for a few years.

Currently, the Ninth Prince was in charge of most of the Qin army's military and political affairs.

From another point of view, the Ninth Prince had already obtained the absolute advantage in the battle for the crown prince. If nothing unexpected happened, it would not be long before he could successfully succeed the throne.

After hearing the news of Li Yueming, the Ninth Prince was naturally ecstatic.

If there was a choice, the Qin army would definitely not be willing to go head-on against the West Garrison Army, which was a tough and meatless bone.

Therefore, both sides hit it off.

The Ninth Prince asked the Qin army to leave behind a troop to feign an attack on the West Garrison Pass. On the other hand, he asked Wang Ziwei and the West Garrison Army to act as if they were attacked by the main force of the Qin army to cover up the fact that the main force of the Qin army was advancing towards the Hundred Thousand Mountains.

He and the Qin army had agreed on a time to attack. Before that time arrived, they would evacuate as many innocent people as possible.

Furthermore, through the existence of the little fox, he had made a non-aggression agreement with the Qin army.

Once the Qin army pointed their finger at North Ice River Town and the Star

Moon Army, Li Yueming would ask the little fox to cut off the supply line of the Qin army. At that time, the one million Qin army might be able to force their way back to Hangu Pass with their powerful military strength.

However, the plan to attack the Great Zhou would probably be completely ruined.

After a few operations, under the tireless efforts of Li Yueming and Wang Ziwei, they finally temporarily averted the impending disaster for the Star Moon Army and the Western Garrison Army.

But now, what gave Li Yueming the biggest headache was not the Qin State and the Great Zhou, but the large number of people in the north. With so many refugees with their families, how to settle them was definitely a matter that required Li Yueming to use eighteen martial arts.

Li Yueming had already mobilized all the food that the Northern Ice River Town and the Star Moon Army could mobilize. The Northern Army and the Western Army had also more or less taken out food.

However, they were still short of about half of the food needed for the refugees' migration.

No matter how good Li Yueming was at politics and scheming.

There was no way to conjure food that could feed millions of people out of thin air.

Therefore, this long journey of migration was destined to be extremely difficult from the beginning. Before the turmoil began, Li Yueming still needed to settle this hot potato.

Only by doing so could the Star-Moon Army, who had completely grasped the right time, place, and people, be invincible in the following vast stage.

In the year 7296 of the Great Zhou Dynasty, the people of the Northern Lands migrated.

The migration was estimated to have a population of several million. Along the way, the people of the western border provided some food, and with the help of Northern Ice River Town, the Star-Moon Army, and the Western Garrison Army, by the time they reached the end of the migration, 30% of the population had died.

In other words, hundreds of thousands of people had died along the way. This number might seem unremarkable, but it represented the loss of hundreds of thousands of lives.

Everyone was silent as millions of Qin soldiers attacked the Great Zhou.

If the Star Moon Army did not stop them from moving westward, the casualties of the civilians would probably be even higher.

Moving the people to the target location was only the first step of this refugee wave. After all, the people had to engage in production to support their families. Before there was a source of food, the refugees were far from having the ability to survive.

During this period of time, Li Yueming's energy was almost all on this matter.

It couldn't be helped. If the refugees weren't settled, the reputation of the Starmoon Army, which had been painstakingly built for more than ten years, would be ruined.

Only by properly handling this batch of refugees and letting everyone see the Starmoon Army's attitude towards the citizens could the Starmoon Army gain a firm foothold in the hearts of the citizens.

The people were the most ignorant, but they were also the smartest.

According to Li Yueming's ruling experience in the previous worlds and his knowledge from earlier times, whoever could control the hearts of the people would have an invincible sharp sword.

In order to distribute more food to the refugees in the western frontier.

Li Yueming implemented a food distribution system in North Glacier Town and the Star Moon Army.

Through the infinite deduction talent, he coordinated the food supply of the Star Moon Army and Northern Ice River Town, only giving them the food needed to support their families.

The rest of the excess food was transferred to the western border to appease the refugees.

After fleeing for thousands of miles, the people who had already reached their destination had already taken the first step of the Long March. Now, as long as they reclaimed land, there was not much pressure.

It took a whole year.

Li Yueming finally settled the refugees in the western border.

At the same time, the citizens of the Northwest witnessed the Starmoon Troop accomplishing this incredible feat. The reputation of Li Yueming and the Starmoon Troop had reached its peak in the eyes of the Northlanders.

In the eyes of the people at the western border, they were second only to the Western Garrison Army.

At this time, Li Yueming announced another shocking news.

The remnants of the Northern Army, the entire Western Army, and the Star Moon Army had reached an initial agreement. The three armies would form a common army, with the Star Moon Army General Li Yueming and the Western Army General Su Longfu as the left and right generals.

As for the Northern Battlefront Army, You Aotian had not left the North, and it was affiliated to the Star Moon Army, which had fled from the North, so it lost the qualification to be the supreme power. However, in order to appease the soldiers of the Northern Battlefront Army, Li Yueming and Su Longfu still found a position for a prestigious general in the Northern Battlefront Army.

Of course, it did not matter who was leading these three armies. What was important was that the unification of the three armies had revealed a clear message to the northwest, Great Zhou, and Great Qin: the armies in the northwest would most likely become independent.

The West Garrison Army had 300,000 soldiers, the North Garrison Army had 100,000 soldiers, and the Star Moon Army had 200,000 soldiers.

There were nearly 600,000 soldiers.

It represented all the military and political forces in the northwest.

Although this military strength was not enough to compare to a country, to be able to organize 600,000 soldiers with the strength of two poor places was already a force that could not be underestimated.

Over the years, because of You Aotian's tacit approval, the Star Moon Army, which was guarding the Twelve Northern Cities, had actually subtly assimilated the soldiers of the Northern Battlefront Army. This was also the main reason why so many soldiers of the Northern Battlefront Army were willing to leave with the Star Moon Army after they announced their withdrawal from the Northern Battlefront.

Although they were still part of the Northern Battlefront Army in name, they were trained by the Star Moon Army.

In fact, it was already equivalent to a part of the Star Moon Army.

Now that they were merged together, it was a matter of course.

The Northern Battlefront Army's only requirement was that the name of the Northern Battlefront Army could not be changed, and the flag of the Northern Battlefront Army had to be used.

This is a kind of inheritance, also is the northern army soldiers to the proud days and the last salutation of the army guarding the north.

Li Yueming was naturally satisfied.

At this point, the Star-Moon Army's Northguard Corps was established. The Star-Moon Army, which had shrunk to only about 200,000 soldiers, suddenly expanded to more than 300,000 soldiers.

The Qin army had occupied the twelve cities in the north, but there were still other small towns in the north that had not been occupied.

To the Qin army, these small towns in the north were poor and run-down. Other than wasting energy and rations, they could not get any benefits.

Therefore, he couldn't be bothered with these small towns.

This gave the Starmoon Troop a chance to expand.

The current Great Zhou's control over the Northern Lands was undoubtedly at its lowest in the past 5,000 years.

The officials and soldiers of the small towns in the north were basically at a loss.

They did not dare to attack the Qin army, nor did they dare to surrender..
