

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1296

But no matter what... Lucy was Michael's ex-girlfriend after all. He couldn't bring himself to treat her harshly because of how similar she looked to Elizabeth. She seemed to be a living shadow of Elizabeth. With her around, Michael felt relieved, as if Elizabeth were still alive. Hence, he couldn't bring himself to destroy this mirage.

However, reality was cruel—she was Jordan's daughter, so she would side with him naturally. While holding the phone in his hand, he said, "What will come, will come. Don't get too caught up on this."

Sophia seemed to heave a long, unhappy sigh. "Nothing is perfect in this world indeed!" Then, she turned her back to Michael and spoke. "Dear, scrub my back for me."

While holding the phone in one of his hands, he used the other to scrub her back. The scars left behind from her rotten flesh because of Virs-18 were still there. On top of that, much of the skin on her face was transplanted from her back. Hence, she had many scars on her back. She was very careful when she wore outfits that would reveal her back, for fear that the scars would be revealed. There were also some scars on her waist that were left behind from giving birth to Carmen.

While gently stroking these scars, the skin beneath his fingers seemed like the growth ring of a tree, recording all the hardships she had been through all these years. It was simply unfortunate that he wasn't by her side when she was most helpless and desperate.

Michael leaned forward and kissed her wet back. Then, he hugged her from behind, as if he was hugging an invaluable treasure. If there's a next life, are you willing to wait for me there?

Michael knew his health condition very well—the virus in his body had been corroding his internal organs and his bones. It would be better for him to enter cryogenic sleep earlier, but he simply couldn't bear to part with her. He couldn't bear to leave Sophia, Carmen, Celine, and this entire family...

Since they hadn't fully utilized the 10-minutes talk time, Sophia continued to speak her mind. "Do you think that Sean has completely given up on Stanley this time around? Is my mom using my dad? I'm so worried for him!"

Michael shook his head. "You have nothing to worry about."

At the Edwards Residence, because of the incident that happened to Jordan, he was forced to postpone his wedding with Anna, so he rescheduled the date. On top of that, after the news of their wedding was spread, all his mistresses were furious at him and called him all day long. Hence, Jordan disappeared all the time because he had been busy pacifying these women.

Truth be told, Jordan was a pretty impressive man. Even though he was already in his fifties, he was still quite chivalrous. Countless women—ranging from their twenties to fifties—had fallen for him, many of whom were even famous and powerful figures. He also had many illegitimate children.

He thought that he was showing his love by marrying Anna officially, and that this was a blessing that she had hoped for a long time. However, he was unaware that she hated him to the core since day one.

One of Jordan's mistresses was a young lady of the branch of the Yard Family who appeared before Anna. She had her own power within the Yard Family, and she had been plotting to kill Anna's sons to obtain Jordan's love all to herself. In fact, she was the mastermind who hired people to kidnap both of Anna's sons to force her to death. Anna and Jordan managed to save Cade and Callum together. However, Jordan only punished this woman lightly; in no time, she went back to her old ways and continued to plot against them.

Men like Jordan didn't even care about such incidents. He was like an emperor who was merely watching both of his concubines fight for his favor. Instead of getting angry, he was delighted to see this. To him, they were fighting among each other because they loved him.

On top of that, it was only a small internal fight between the women. Since they were not trying to take over the 'throne' and his sons weren't injured, the 'special concubine' who attacked actually gained his love more. Hence, the entire incident was over just like that.

However, because of this, Anna couldn't even sleep well for years after that, for fear that her sons would be kidnapped again when she was asleep. Hence, she started plotting ways to get Jordan's full attention and planned to annihilate all the women who had been planning to hurt her and her sons. Not just them—she also wanted to kill all their children as well. By stepping on their corpses, she would become the head of the Yard Family. The final person to be killed was Jordan himself.

At this moment, Jordan had been busy pacifying all his mistresses. After all, for the past 30 years, he had never officially announced his wife. Since the rest of them were not presentable, they were fighting to be his official wife. However, everything was different now after he had officially announced his relationship with Anna. Furious, many of the women plotted against her. It was no problem for Jordan to appease them, but he had to visit them one by one, so he couldn't return for the time being. Hence, to Anna, this was the perfect opportunity to deal with Jordan.

Now that Anna and both her sons were at the Edwards Residence, with Jordan away and Sam being estranged, she was only slightly wary of Lucy. She had long heard of this daughter of Jordan's. Lucy was a powerful character who had been taking charge of the Edwards Group when Jordan was away.

Her first step was to use Cooper to send out their wedding invitation to all his mistresses. I just want to show off and anger them, so Jordan would be in trouble! And then... the second step is to get rid of Lucy! After she's gone, both my sons could replace her officially and take care of the affairs of the Edwards Group and slowly penetrate them. However, Lucy is still an unknown variable.

"Cooper, I'm still at Edwards Residence now, so I can't move about freely. I still have to depend on you to get rid of Lucy for me."

Anna secretly called Cooper, who nodded. "Alright. You have to be careful there." He softened his tone when he spoke to her. In fact, Cooper was very worried about Anna, who was alone at the Edwards Residence with no one to take care of her. He didn't even know how she had been doing there.

Anna also sensed the worry in his voice, so she reassured him, "Don't worry. I'm doing well here. We are on our way to success."

I've been waiting for this day for many years... After Lucy is gone, we can take advantage of Jordan's preoccupation and penetrate the Edwards Group while slowly leaving the Yards Family. I have the patience to do that. I'm about to regain my freedom and return to Cooper officially!

At the Imperial, Cooper's heart felt heavy after he hung up the phone. At this moment, he was at the breaking point where he had to fight till the death with Jordan. I have to get rid of Lucy. Sam probably knows that I'm about to attack Jordan soon, hence why he abruptly decided to leave the Edwards Family because he doesn't want to get caught up in the middle.

However, he felt pressured to get rid of Lucy as well. Sophia seems to be quite close with her...

Sure enough, in no time, Sophia opened a small slit in the door and poked her head in. "Dad... are you going to attack Lucy soon?" she asked hesitantly.

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1297

Cooper denied. "No. Who did you hear it from?"

Sophia walked into the room and sat in front of Cooper with a cat on her lap. Looking unhappy, she said, "Stop lying to me. I know everything."

Even though he didn't tell her anything and didn't involve her in the matter, Sophia had already heard the news and figured it out herself about what had been going on.

If Cooper was about to launch an attack on Jordan, he would implicate Lucy as well. After all, she was his capable assistant.

Knowing that he couldn't hide it from Sophia anymore, Cooper merely said, "You're just a kid, so don't interfere in adults' business."

Even if Sophia had many descendants, she would always be a little girl to Cooper.

Sophia knew very well that Cooper was about to deal with Lucy as well.

She suddenly stood up and told him seriously, "Dad, we can actually work with Lucy!"

However, Cooper shook his head helplessly.

After all, Sophia is still quite young. She wouldn't know the insides of this matter.

Hence, Cooper explained everything to her patiently. "That's impossible. Lucy is Jordan's daughter, so they are on the same boat. It's impossible for Lucy to betray her father and work with us. Alright. I think this is enough for today. Darling, why don't you take a rest first? I still have to work."

With that, he pushed Sophia out of his study and continued working.

After all, he still had a lot of work to tend to.

Anna gave a namelist that consisted of Jordan's mistresses all over the world to Cooper.

Like Tiffany, Jordan was quite a capable person indeed. He could make so many women serve him willingly.

What has my Anna gone through all these years?

No matter what, I have to get rid of Jordan for myself, for Sophia, and for Anna. Even if she is just using me, I have no regrets.

...

After she walked out of Cooper's study, Sophia hugged her cat morosely.

Even though Lucy and her weren't purely friends—they used to be competitors, and they had some skirmishes in the past—they had also helped each other before.

Unknowingly, they had developed a certain kind of revolutionary friendship, so Sophia simply couldn't bring herself to attack Lucy.

On top of that, her face closely resembled Elizabeth's.

However, reality was most often cruel. One often had no choice in their circumstances. Slowly and gradually, they had become adversaries.

Why is she Jordan's daughter?

However, Michael was already numb to this. If they really had to get rid of Lucy for the big picture—if his help was needed in this—he would definitely personally tear apart this woman who looked like Elizabeth.

However, Sophia would still like to try to convince Lucy before Cooper made his move.

On the sixth day of the fashion week, a subsidiary of the JNS Group, Pouri, organized a fashion show. Initially, Pouri was just manufacturing some pets' luxury items. Now, they had slowly entered the jewelry industry while remaining their original business. The show today was still to showcase their pets' luxury items.

It was held in a high-class hotel that gathered everyone in the family, including all their pets.

This time around, Anna had also arrived. However, throughout the entire show, she didn't interact with Cooper and kept a far distance from him with a corgi in her arms.

Cooper was holding Sophia's pair of huskies as usual. Meanwhile, Harry and Sarah brought their poodle.

Jordan also came there to support them, and he even brought Corrado. In fact, Corrado had become a dog that was shared by both Jordan and Cooper; it would take turns to stay in each of their houses for a few days.

As the main model of today, Judge also arrived early and sniffed its son, Corrado, and the alpaca.

Stanley brought Christine to Sophia and said, "Sophia, Christine's agency has arranged for her to attend some events at the fashion week show here. Since you didn't send her the invitation card, I brought her here myself. To repay me, she's going to let my husky grandchildren mate with her Money for free."

Christine smiled awkwardly behind Stanley. Usually, celebrities would have some tasks when they attended fashion week shows—they would have to take some pictures and post them online to brag about it so that their net worth would increase.

Usually, A-list celebrities would get the invitation. On top of that, they could sit in the first row. However, the lesser-known celebrities couldn't do anything about this since their companies didn't provide them any resources at all. Apart from that, they even asked their celebrities to get their hands on the invitation themselves.

For those who had connections, they would be able to get the invitation themselves; on the other hand, for those without connections and relations, they would have to sleep their way in. Christine didn't want to do that, but she didn't have any connections either, so she had no way in.

Previously, Maddie managed to forcefully produce an invitation card. However, she couldn't get her hands on it this time no matter how hard she tried. Since she had to perform her tasks, Christine forcefully agreed to the deal between her and Stanley's dogs so that she could follow him to this show.

After a glance at Christine's dog, Sophia noticed that it was a beautiful female husky that looked quite ordinary. In comparison with the pets with luxury items, it actually looked quite poor.

Christine felt embarrassed, but she uttered, "Sophia, my dog has its own Twitter account with hundreds of thousands of followers."

Sophia was speechless when she looked at them.

Stanley is an idiot. He doesn't even know how to take care of his girlfriend.

Since she was quite busy, she said, "Stan, bring Christine to find a spot to sit down. Apart from that, also find some suitable outfit backstage for this... uh... Money. And remember to post about it on Twitter to market it."

Stanley replied, "Sure thing!"

With that, he brought Christine backstage and picked a beautiful collar for the female husky in the fitting room.

Sure enough, after putting it on, the husky was immediately glowing.

Stanley cared about the most about his own husky grandchildren after all, so he quickly fetched Cash and Penny over before bringing them to an empty room to familiarize themselves and mate with Money. Whoever liked to mate, they would just go for it. Even if it was two-on-one, he didn't care anyway. He was just monitoring Christine to post the pictures on Twitter and Instagram to promote Purl.

After all, they had agreed on this before, so no one could back out of this deal.

After knowing that Christine was Chrissy, Stanley also found out that her house had a few gorgeous female huskies which had hundreds of thousands of fans online. At that moment, he already had his eyes on them. This was the main reason why he agreed to bring her to this show in exchange for her huskies to 'pleasure' his huskies grandchildren.

Money was at a fertile age. It had a healthy and delicate glow, looking cute and gentle.

On the other hand, Cash and Penny had also reached an energetic age. After they saw the beautiful Money, they were immediately sexually aroused. Hence, they were fighting to mate her.

It was some pretty intense threesome.

Meanwhile, Stanley already started discussing the puppies allocation with Christine. "After Money gives birth to the puppies, remember to give me half of them!"

Sophia was busy with her work backstage, but after she watched Stanley and Christine enter the room, she thought, Ah, it's so good to be young! They can be so wilful and do anything they want anytime...

However, she had never thought that for all the time they stayed in the room, both of them only watched their huskies mate with each other.

After the deed was done, Stanley came out of the room with his two huskies. Initially, he had planned to bring Judge along so that they could have foursome—he could get more value out of this—but Judge was already sterilized, so there was no point in doing so.

Once he thought of having his great-grandhuskies, Stanley was over the moon. Because of that, he overlooked the subtle gaze everyone was throwing at him.

They also thought, Ah, it's so good to be young! They can be so wilful and do anything they want anytime...

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1298

Seems like Stanley is at his sexual prime!

Even if it's only such a short period, he also made full use of it to have a quickie.

After Stanley came out and sat on his seat, Christine sat beside him. He patted Money's butt expectantly as he said, "Buck up and have a few more kids! Next year, I'll send you an entire set of Poul's items."

Michael was listening to their conversation intently, but it was too noisy there, so he only heard 'a few more kids'. With that, he quickly sent a message in the Fletcher Family's group chat.

'Stan is planning to have kids next year, and he even wants a few of them.'

After he finished typing, he raised his head and looked around, but he didn't see Sean. He already sent an invitation to him, but he was not here.

In the end, Christine was the one who sat in Sean's seat.

Sigh! That idiot...

After Sean has stayed around him for around 20 years, there have been no improvements whatsoever in their relationship at all. Even if another 20 years passed, the situation would probably remain the same. It would be better for Sean to give up on him.

On the other hand, Sarah stroked the dogs as she watched the show. She already brought out both the huge poodles that belong to her and Sophia. The two dogs looked as huge as two weightlifters as they sat on the ground, and she took turns in petting them.

Harry was also enjoying the show next to her. After a while, Betsy appeared again. She had been lingering around Harry all the time, but this time around, she was scared off by the two huge dogs.

Tiffany continued to pester Cooper by lingering by his side. To an outsider, she was a sexy and mysterious beauty, but in front of Cooper, she was just a lowly servant who was willing to do anything for him.

Cooper was very annoyed at her. The seats are limited, and her bosoms are so big! They almost need another seat on their own. This space is cramped enough!

Hence, he placed Cash between him and Tiffany to make her stop sticking herself to him for a while.

However, she continued to stay beside him, and she even threw occasional glances at Anna, as if she was trying to show off.

In the end, I'll be the one who will get Cooper's love.

Anna is already married, yet she still wants to be his mistress! That old b*tch!

The show was over in no time, but many people didn't seem to want to leave, so they stayed to chat with the founders.

Surrounded by a group of rich women who had dogs as pets, Sophia could only watch as Lucy left. After all, she herself was unable to leave.

I was planning to discuss working together with her....

Unexpectedly, she received Lucy's message the next morning. "Since the fashion week ends today, let's chill and relax. I'll meet you at the same spot tonight."

The next evening, there were not many people in front of a little bar that was located in the suburbs. It was a quiet and secluded spot.

Even though the bar looked tattered, it was well-decorated inside. No matter how daring the gangsters were, they wouldn't dare to make a scene here as the place was owned by Lucy and Dana, who lived close by.

This bar had become the spot for Lucy and Sophia to occasionally drink at. At this moment, Michael was having a staredown contest with Dana, who parked opposite to him. Parked close to each other, they had no other method of entertainment apart from that.

Dana smoked a cigarette while Michael took out his laptop to play some games. Stanley's company had rolled out another new game, so he took this time to play it and test it internally while waiting for the people in the bar to finish their meeting.

"Cheers!"

Two cocktail glasses clinked into each other, making a crisp and clear sound.

After both of them drank a little, they put down the glasses.

In the dark corner, the lights were beautiful yet dim, making Sophia unable to see Lucy's expression.

She was thinking about the ideal way to tell Lucy about teaming up to deal with Jordan.

However, after a long time, she had no idea how to breach the topic.

How should I put this?

My dad and your stepmom have a fling, and he wants to kill your dad to take over all his assets. Do you want to join us to kill him?

Cooper probably wouldn't want the money from the Edwards Family, but based on Anna's personality, after they killed Jordan, she would definitely make both her sons the legitimate inheritors of the Edwards Family and take over the Edwards Group. Meanwhile, she would also try to get rid of Lucy.

On top of that, Sophia couldn't guarantee what would happen if Lucy actually teamed up with Cooper. Perhaps Anna might kill her in the end.

After thinking about it, Sophia still didn't utter a word. However, she knew she must give it a try in case Lucy was interested.

In the end, she would definitely speak for Lucy so that they would distribute the assets of the Edwards Family equally. As the first child of the family, Sophia's words still had some weight.

Unexpectedly, before she even started speaking, Lucy suddenly said, "I might resign and leave Edwards Group this year."

Though Sophia was shocked, she was happy to hear that, yet she quickly asked, “Why?”

Lucy shrugged and said helplessly, “Well, you can see it yourself—with the addition of four ambitious brothers and the old practice of Edwards Group of passing legacies down to males... When I was the only child, they could only pass it to me. However, everything is different now.”

When she was saying this, Sophia, who was sitting close to her, could feel her grievances. It was as if she was holding all her emotions in when she said that.

When Lucy was in her teens, she had already started taking part in their family business. She started from the foundation and slowly rose through the ranks through accumulated hard work and effort before she reached her current position. The Edwards Group business grew with her and became better as time passed. She was one of the reasons for the success that the Edwards Group had achieved today.

However, she now had to leave just like that, while the decades of effort that she had put in were all for others. How would Lucy be satisfied with this?

She took a sip of the cocktail and swallowed it along with her grievances.

Sophia didn't expect that Edwards Group would still practice the patriarchal culture. In fact, it was not just them—many traditional businesses in Cethos also retained the old traditions. Forget Cethos—even the Michel Family requested for women to retain their last names if they got married, even if they were the top in the military, medicine, and technology industry.

However, Sophia still felt glad when she heard this news. Once Lucy left the Edwards Group, she wouldn't have to compete with Anna. On the other hand, Sophia also felt unfair for her to retreat from this feud just like this.

“What are your future plans?” she asked.

Lucy was slightly tipsy at this point, but she exuded a different type of attractiveness. “I don't want to leave the Edwards Group, but I understand their ambitions. Rather than fighting with them formally or secretly, it's better to resign and leave with the shares.” She suddenly smiled at Sophia. “I'm planning to be like Sam—I want to start another business from scratch myself.” She had a blissful smile as she looked forward to the future. “Dana and I plan to get married abroad; we want to invest and migrate to another country. Then, we will start our business there. Dana also mentioned that she wants to expand Winston Corporation abroad, and I'm also planning to help her out..."

She had never been so talkative like she was today as she talked about her future plans with Sophia.

Initially, she had planned to officially announce her relationship with Dana after she had stabilized the Edwards Family so that no one could object. However, Jordan suddenly announced that he was going to marry Anna. The sudden arrival of a powerful stepmother and four capable step brothers had caught her off guard. If she wanted to be with Dana, it would be her alone versus six of them, which would make it too difficult for her to fulfil her dreams.

Apart from that, Jordan's departure had also inspired her.

I can leave the Edwards Family as well!

Even though I'd have to give away my effort all these years to others, I have the money, resources, and connections—I have everything I need to start my own business and not be restricted by anyone else!

I don't want to be the successor of the Edwards Family anymore!

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1299

Lucy was already preparing to move abroad with Dana, who also voluntarily took on a business task to expand the Winston Furniture to the markets abroad. Apart from that, the security company that Dana had just invested in also needed to be expanded abroad. Dana volunteered to take charge of that, but it was actually because she wanted to marry Lucy in another country.

When they moved abroad, they would find a country that supported same sex marriage and get married there. Then, they would buy sperm or adopt a child there.

Lucy would continue her old business since she already had the connections. The Winston Family also had some connections abroad, so it wouldn't be any problem for them to restart their businesses there.

Right now, the only argument was—who would be the one giving birth?

Lucy wanted to give birth to her own child, but Dana felt that childbirth was too terrifying, so she should be responsible for that. Since she had the body parts to give birth to a child, she thought she should do it.

Lucy smiled with bliss in her eyes as she told Sophia about this.

Seeing her smile, Sophia also felt quite warm inside.

It's the best outcome for Lucy to leave Edwards Group and break off the dispute with Anna.

"Dana and I are planning to hold a wedding on a small island. We plan to only invite 30 people. I'll invite you and Michael when the time comes."

Lucy smiled as she looked forward to the amazing future ahead of her.

Sophia toasted to her. "Sure thing. I'll wait for you."

They only came out of the bar when it was quite late, but they seemed to have had a great time. With their arms around each other, both of them chatted and laughed, but they couldn't even walk in a straight line anymore.

"Tsk!" Michael went to pick his wife up and smelled her alcohol-infused breath. "How many drinks have you had?"

Sophia wrapped her arms around his neck and smiled in a daze.

"Hehe! Why do you have two heads? Which should I kiss now? I don't care anymore! Muah!"

She pursed her lips and kissed him, but Michael almost passed out from the stench of alcohol in her breath, so he quickly hugged her in his arms and put her in the car before leaving hastily.

Meanwhile, Dana drove away with Lucy, who was also drunk.

However, she didn't speak nonsense like Sophia did. Instead, she had been quite quiet all the way as she closed her eyes to sleep. When she reached home, she suddenly opened her eyes and said, "I think we should find a surrogate mother! Surrogation is better..."

After switching off the air-conditioner, Dana removed the safety belt for her while saying, "Sure."

She got out of the car and helped Lucy out. She was quite drunk—her burgundy hair covered half her face as she tried to hold onto Dana's necks while huffing lazily with a dazed look in her eyes.

They lived in an individual mansion in the countryside with a huge garden. When spring came, the plants that Dana had planted for Lucy would blossom. However, as it was still early spring, nothing bloomed yet.

When they reached the front door, Dana dug out her keys to open the door.

Suddenly, her hair raised as she held her breath. After years of experience working in the underworld, she could tell the subtle changes in the air. In just two seconds, she already took her gun out of her suit and pointed it at the dark. However, she was already too late—one of the bullets had already reached her thigh.

It's a gun with a silencer!

Both Dana and Lucy stumbled and fell at the same time. At this moment, the door opened from inside, and many people gushed out. A few cars even drove to them from the dark.

"Dana!"

Lucy was suddenly jolted to her senses from her drunken state. However, she saw Dana sink to the ground as she held her thigh. Blood had already dampened her black trousers.

Gritting her teeth, Dana picked up her phone that had dropped to the ground, thinking of getting help first. However, just as she stretched her hand, a gunshot sounded lightly. Initially, it was aiming for her hand, but the shot landed on the ground, hitting the phone away from her hand.

As footsteps rang in their ears, they were surrounded by countless people. Lucy raised her head and saw Jordan's morose face. Meanwhile, Sandra and the twins—Ryan and Henry—were standing triumphantly next to Jordan.

In that instant, Lucy seemed to have understood everything.

Jordan did not utter another word to Lucy. Instead, he walked to her and gave her two hard slaps, immediately rendering her dizzy. After that, blood flowed from her nose.

Seeing the way Lucy and Dana hugged each other, Jordan had a tinge of disgust and hatred in his eyes that had never existed before.

“Lucy, I never would have thought that you were so disgusting! I was wrong about you!”

Since everything had come to this point, Lucy stopped hiding and defending herself anymore. She stood up and barked at Jordan loudly, “What have I done wrong? I just love Dana—that’s all! Throughout the years you had left Edwards Group, I’d been the one supporting us all along! So what if I love Dana? If you think that it’s disgusting, I can leave the Edwards Family forever so that you won’t be disgraced by me!”

With that, she stretched out her hand and threw the ring that represented the position of the head of the Edwards Family back at Jordan.

“Here! I give this back to you! With this, I will leave the Edwards Family forever!”

Back then, the ring was given to her by Jordan when he asked her to replace him to take care of the Edwards Family before he left.

At this moment, he stepped on the ring harshly and pointed at Lucy as he berated, “You are an utter disappointment!”

At the same time, he also glared at Dana, who was beside her.

I know Dana—the freak from the Winston Family, the weirdo who’s neither a man nor a woman.

I really can’t imagine that my daughter has been fooling around with someone like this!

Jordan raised his gun once more and shot Dana harshly a few more times. When he pressed on the trigger, there was no hesitation or pause at all.

Dana, who already couldn't get up, grunted and lay back on the ground convulsing as blood oozed out of her body profusely.

When Jordan pulled the trigger, Lucy was so shocked that she was stunned.

She thought that even if they got exposed, she would bear most of the consequences. After all, Dana belonged to the Winston Family, so no matter what, the Edwards Family would still respect them.

When Dana lay in the puddle of blood after receiving a few shots, Lucy finally returned to her senses.

They are planning to kill Dana!

"Dana!"

After hugging her, Lucy realized that she was full of wounds, with blood flowing continuously from her body. While pressing on Dana's wounds, Lucy yelled at Jordan, "Are you mad? She's from the Winson Family! If you kill her, the Winston Family won't let you go!"

She thought this would be enough to scare Jordan off. However, he merely gave her a cold smile and pulled the trigger again, firing another shot on Dana.

She grunted again and fainted completely. Her hands fell limply on the ground, but her eyes were still open. Nevertheless, her breathing slowly became weaker...

"No! Don't!"

Lucy pressed on her wounds anxiously. Unfortunately, Dana did not respond to her anymore.

"No!"

We still have a bright future ahead; we still have many unfulfilled dreams, and we are planning to have many kids!

Amidst the frantic situation, Lucy took the gun that Dana had just taken out and pointed it at Jordan with her bloody hands, a firm look gleaming in her eyes. "Let us go!"

When Jordan saw the gun pointing at himself, he was beyond furious. “How dare you point a gun at me! I’m your father!”

With that, a gunshot sounded. Lucy had fired a shot decisively, but she was too agitated, and she had hesitated for too long. After firing the shot with trembling fingers, the bullet slipped past Jordan’s shoulders and hit the shoulders of Ryan, who was eyeing the entire situation gleefully.

Meanwhile, a few other strong men came from behind and held Lucy back as they took her gun away.

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 1300

“Ahhhh!” Ryan screamed. Ever since he arrived at Cethos, he had never had a day of peace. Last year, he was hit by a group of people led by Sophia until he had to be admitted to the hospital. During the fashion week, he fell to the ground after being kicked and stepped on by a group of people. Today, he limped over here just to enjoy seeing Lucy’s hardship, yet he was shot by her even though he was just on the sidelines.

Meanwhile, Lucy was pressed to the ground by others.

Jordan looked at his most trusted daughter incredulously. She was his only daughter in the Edwards Family, so he had spent all his resources to groom her to become his perfect successor. On top of that, he even handed Edwards Group for her to take over earlier than they had planned. In the future, she would be the head of the Edwards Group.

But he had never expected that she would actually fire a shot at him.

His eyes were full of painful regret, as if the precious treasure he had been carefully sculpting suddenly stabbed him deliberately one day.

“You evil daughter! How dare you!” Jordan was so furious that he stomped his feet on the ground.

Henry shot a glance at Ryan, who had been shot. Even though he hated the fact that his brother was shot, his eyes were filled with glee and excitement as he watched Lucy's misfortunes.

I can't believe that Lucy is actually in love with another woman! How disgusting and freakish! If Sandra hadn't told us this secret, I would never have imagined that this sister of mine, who usually looks business-like and serious, is actually so dirty in private!

Unable to hold his anger in, Jordan walked forward and slapped Lucy harshly again. However, he treasured this daughter after all, as she was his perfect successor. Hence, he still wanted to give her another chance.

"Lucy, do you admit your mistake?" Jordan tried to calm himself down.

At this moment, Lucy could only think of Dana, who was half-dying with her eyes open. Even though half of Lucy's face had turned pink because of Jordan's slap, as tears streamed down her cheeks along with her nosebleed, she gritted her teeth and raised her head to stare at Jordan stubbornly. She said with trembling pale lips, "I haven't done anything wrong! I love Dana! There's nothing wrong with that! Even if you kill me, I still love her!"

If Dana dies, I don't want to live anymore!

It was only at this moment that she realized that she had been terribly wrong—she thought everything would be solved once she left the Edwards Family.

Unexpectedly, it was difficult to escape from fate after all.

In the end, she still took Cooper's path and saw her beloved die in front of her.

I'm the reason for Dana's death!

I just want to die right now!

After receiving this reply from Lucy, Jordan was so angry that he kicked her.

He had never expected that this daughter of his was actually in love with another woman.

If this news is spread out, what would become of our reputation?

On the other hand, Henry looked at Dana, who was lying on the ground with her face facing upwards after being shot several times. Her breathing gradually weakened as blood oozed profusely from her body, leaving a puddle of blood underneath her body.

"I heard Dana is an intersex. I've never seen one before..."

With that, he actually crouched to try to take off Dana's clothes to see how an intersex looked like.

"Don't you dare!"

Lucy suddenly went berserk and ran to him like a strong beast with red eyes. She immediately held Henry back and bit his ears harshly with great determination, as if she was planning to drag him down to die with her.

"Aaaah!"

With a crack, Lucy bit off the bones in his ears, making him scream loudly.

Jordan immediately asked his men to pull them apart, as Lucy had completely gone mad because of Dana's death. She struggled violently as she tried to dash toward Dana, as if she wanted to die together with her.

The twin brothers, Ryan and Henry, were hurt. The former was shot in his shoulder, while the latter's ear was bitten off. They rolled on the ground because of the pain before they were carried away by others.

Jordan shook his head with pain in his eyes.

She was my perfect successor! Initially, she could have been the head of Edwards Group, yet because of an intersex freak...

"Mr. Edwards, perhaps Lucy has never had the sensual experience from men. If you let her have a taste of it, she might change her mind," Sandra suggested sarcastically.

Jordan heaved a sigh, but he thought this might work. Hence, he looked at a few sturdy members of the Edwards Group and picked a few good-looking ones. "The young lady is in your hands tonight. Do let her experience how amazing men could make her feel."

With that, Jordan turned around and left angrily. This time around, Sandra had done a good job by reporting this case, so she immediately gained his approval. She quickly followed behind him after turning around to glance at Lucy, who was hugging Dana's body as she sobbed her heart out.

Hmph! Look at you now!

B*tch!

After Jordan left, the few men pointed out by him exchanged embarrassed looks. Finally, they made up their minds firmly and walked to Lucy.

She seemed to have realized what was about to happen, so she roared at the few men who were closing in on her, "If you dare to touch me, you are going to die horribly!"

Unfortunately, her words had no power anymore as she was not the young lady of the Edwards Family anymore. Instead, she had become the sinner of the Edwards Family.

Heavy rain with thunder and lightning had fallen in the middle of the night. Screams from Lucy could be heard from the house that was exquisitely decorated by Dana and Lucy. However, since there weren't anyone living nearby, the thunder in the dark night had covered her tragic cries.

Dana was left at the front door with rain gushing down on her, washing away the blood underneath her and leaving her soaked in rainwater, which had also entered her mouth. At the verge of death, Dana frowned slightly; with her eyelids shut, her eyeballs seemed to be moving. Even though she couldn't open her eyes, her lips were saying something.

"Lucy... Lucy..."

She could hear Lucy's wails and the sinister laughter from the men around them. She knew that her dear Lucy was suffering, but her body acted as though it had been blocked from all functions, unable to move an inch.

She couldn't even feel her anger. Like falling into a deep abyss, she slowly sank into the endless darkness and coldness, unable to feel light and warmth again.

In that instant, even though she was barely conscious, she still used her final breath to mutter, "Lucy..."

Suddenly, a beeping sound rang from her pocket as a mechanical female voice rang. "I'm here. How may I help you?"

With that, a square block lit up in her pocket.

It was another phone of hers. During the New Year, Harry gave her a Dragon Eye mobile phone with the highest specs—it was waterproof and bulletproof. It was quite impressive that it could still be used in such a heavy rain.

A smart voice recognition system like Siri was installed in the Dragon Eye phone, and Dana had named it Lucy. Unintentionally, she had activated it.

Using her last breath, Dana tried to say loudly, "Lucy, call my brother..."

With that, she sank into the infinite darkness entirely, along with her consciousness.

The Dragon Eye phone was still lit as it automatically called a contact named 'Brother'.

In the dark night, Lucy's screams were overpowered by the roars of thunder, while Dana slept outside the door in the rainy night, her body gradually becoming colder.
