present didnt think much of it . They knew all too well what kind of person Nathaniel was .

Since he was young, he had been reckless, enjoying food, drink, fun, and chasing women, Morris brought it up just to deepen Nathaniels image as a reckless playboy in front of Max and Byron.

Sure enough, after hearing this, Byrons face darkened.

Maxs expression remained indi erent, betraying no emotion. Peters face turned a deep shade of iron, and he instinctively glanced at Williams family.

Seeing their barely contained smiles, his expression grew even darker.

Although Byron hadnt fully relinquished control, Peter was already the recognized head of the family, both within the family and externally.

No one in the room was interested in Nathaniels love interest, after all, with his behavior, what kind of decent girl would he like? Birds of a feather ock together.

Only the youngest, Nathaniel, brought him embarrassment.

Only Diana seemed particularly concerned about this matter .

She looked at Morris and asked, Who is the woman Nathaniel likes? Whats her name, and what does she do? She had no other demands for Nathaniel except for him to settle down, nd a good girl, and live a peaceful life.

What kind of good girl could he possibly like? Peter scowled, unwilling to continue this topic.

It would only make him look worse and further anger Byron .

She insisted on knowing. Morris, eager to share, thought for a moment, I think he met her while riding horses

What was her name again? I cant remember right now. Byron snorted coldly, Anyone that bastard Nathaniel likes is de nitely no good girl.

What kind of decent girl would Nathaniel meet in a place like that? He glared at his wife angrily, signaling her to stop pursuing this topic.

Max, feeling like an outsider, wasnt interested in Nathaniels love life.
