

Chapter 2301 Baxter Damron from the Damron Family

"We're not afraid of you. Are you going to make all the guests your enemies? So what if you are a disciple of the Banes? So what if you are the newly crowned Holy Doctor? You can't do whatever you want in Bainbridge."

Following a loud shout, the crowd started getting into a commotion.

"You are too arrogant, young man. Our family may not be powerful, but why should we be intimidated by a mere little punk like you? How am I supposed to continue thriving in Bainbridge? How else can my family maintain a foothold in this city?" At this moment, the representative of the Damron Family slowly walked out of the crowd, provoking Matthew with his words.

Sure enough, when his voice sounded, some of the onlookers who had planned to watch quietly also began to show signs of agitation.

After all, they were all influential figures, and when it came to matters of self-interest, it was a big deal.

Matthew couldn't help but feel embarrassed for them.

Seems like there are foolish people everywhere in this world.

How could a few words incite their impulsive behavior?

How immature of them.

However, Matthew didn't have the leisure to pay attention to these people at the moment.

"Master Bane, did you take note of those few people just now?"

At this moment, Old Master Bane seemed to understand his disciple's intention.

After waving his hand, he replied leisurely, "Don't worry, I haven't lost my eyesight yet due to old age."

Hearing that, Matthew no longer paid attention to the guests.

Since he had tracked down most of the villains, all he needed to do next was to pry open the mouth of the gossip, and this matter would be resolved.

"Tell me your name!"

When Matthew spoke, the other party's eyes were lifeless as they replied, "Haruka Abbernaty."

After he stated his name, everyone was surprised to find out that this person was actually from Emsgate.

How did such a person manage to sneak into the banquet?

Old Master Bane hated people from Emsgate the most.

While being shocked by the person's identity, many people started gaining interest in the miraculous pill.

Such a magical pill had huge potential in the market.

On the other hand, Matthew continued to question the gossip, "Who instructed you to cause trouble here? Explain everything to us."

"Our Vice Golden Swordsman claimed that it was you who killed our Golden Swordsman. This is going to be a never-ending grudge, so he sent us—"

At this moment, everyone's attention was focused on Haruka.

They didn't notice the sudden flicker of a weapon.

"Watch out!"

Following the reminder from Old Master Bane, Matthew instinctively dodged.

However, the hidden weapon was not aimed at him.

When Matthew composed himself, he noticed that two small wounds on Haruka's forehead and heart were present with blood trickling out.

Haruka had just experienced the worst way of dying.

"What are you doing, Baxter Damron?"

At such a close distance, it was easy to spot who made the move.

Confronted with Matthew's question, Baxter acted indifferently and brushed his hands.

"Oh, Dr. Larson, an Emsgate spy is not worth pitying. You didn't have to waste a word with him. It's better to kill him to prevent any future trouble."

Matthew sneered. "What's the matter, Baxter? Are you afraid that he will expose you?"

"Don't talk nonsense. Our family abides by the law and stays patriotic to our country. Besides, we respect the Bane Family. You can't slander me without evidence!" Baxter retorted with confidence.

Since the only person who knew the truth, Haruka, was now dead, the rest were merely considered cannon fodder.

It was simply wishful thinking to expect any useful information from them.

"Have you forgotten that I have more than one Honesty Pill?"

After saying that, Matthew presented a wicked smile and raised a threatening brow at Baxter.
