

Chapter 2314 Vacancy

Sasha and Helen were occupied until 2.00PM when they finally sent the large group off.

They were supposed to leave at 1.00PM, but they found out about the other nutritious menus.

The nutritious oat porridge; quinoa porridge; barley porridge; and the list went on. All of them contained the nutrients that one needed.

They serve various types of tea that could regulate one's health, such as mint tea; rose tea; and chrysanthemum tea.

Although the prices ranged from a hundred dollars to thousands, as the head manager, Brennon didn't hold back at all as he ordered a portion of every menu for his employees.

That was why it took so long.

Helen lightly hammered her sore arms in exhaustion upon clearing up the tables. Sasha shook her head helplessly. "Mom, let's hire some extra hands. Otherwise, it'll only be just the two of us. Dad will make it three, but we simply can't handle everything."

Helen was all ears at the mention of the suggestion. Operating the whole shop with only the three of them would be overwhelming.

On top of that, Sasha's family had never done this kind of work before. Considering that Sasha was the head of the Cunningham Group, serving the table always wouldn't make things right. As an afterthought, Helen nodded in agreement.

She complained, "What about Matthew? He's nowhere to be seen ever since he took over this place. Sasha, you have to keep an eye on him. There are lots of capable women in Bainbridge. Who knows if he will change his mind one day."

Unlike Helen, Sasha wasn't bothered by such things. Sasha and Matthew had been together for so long, and the couple's conflicts with their parents never stopped since day one.

It took a while for the elderly couple to change their view and attitude toward Matthew. Hence, Sasha believed that Matthew would have fallen for someone else long ago if he wasn't going to stay loyal to their relationship. There was no need to wait until they moved to Bainbridge.

"Mom, you're being paranoid. Matthew is not that kind of person. He's no longer the same and he has matters to attend to. Let's save him from unnecessary trouble."

Helen was displeased at that response. "As your mother, I'm worried. This is for your sake."

As soon as her mother was about to start nagging, Sasha quickly changed the subject. "Alright, Mom. I will make sure to keep an eye on Matthew. I'll talk to Dad and paste the vacancy notice outside. We should hire some deliverymen too."

Helen smiled helplessly. How could she not notice that Sasha was avoiding the topic on purpose? "Sasha, oh, Sasha."

Be it kinship or relationships, life gradually moved for the better. Just like that S&L's Breakfast was off to a good start.

Of course, Matthew knew nothing about what happened in the shop because he had been staying at Dragon In Slumber.

He supplied his blood for research purposes and crammed modern medical knowledge at CAUMP. Those days were productive for him.

One afternoon, Rhett came up to Matthew. "We can temporarily put the research on hold. We have our first serum. Although there are some side effects, the damage is relatively small."

Matthew was overjoyed at the news. As long as they successfully developed a serum, the Zombie Virus would not pose a big threat to ordinary people.

"Mr. Wyatt, then I shall take my leave first." Putting down the book 'Introduction to Cytology', Matthew got up and bid goodbye.

"Alright. The re-election of the Martial League is around the corner. You should seize the opportunity and become the leader. That way, you will be the first to achieve a legendary feat in both medicine and martial arts." A glimmer of light flickered Rhett's eyes.
