

Chapter 2387 Sorry, I'll Make It Up Next Time

Milo's smile froze when he heard Jules' words.

"Old Mr. Cunningham, congratulations! I wish you a prosperous business."

At this moment, Terrance stepped forward. "It's such an honor to have you here to witness this grand occasion."

He saw several ten servants behind Milo, carrying various gifts. He counted them. "Jules, why are you still standing there? Hurry up and accept the gifts. It's the basic etiquette."

Jules snapped out of his surprise. "My apologies, I'm just thrilled to see Milo after such a long time."

After a big laugh, he reached out and walked forward only to be stopped by Milo.

"Sorry, Old Mr. Cunningham. I didn't know that the Cunningham family was also hosting a grand opening ceremony today. So, I only prepared one gift for you. Next time, I will personally apologize for this. Goodbye!"

He turned around and hurried toward S&L's Breakfast without looking back. Leaving the Cunningham family members standing there, their faces pale and awkwardly looking at each other.

As soon as he entered the shop, he hurriedly came to Matthew to complain about something. "Matthew, you promised to come to my house as a guest the last time we met. How long has it been? This is not fair."

When Matthew saved Wilfred from the brink of death, the Cosbys always remembered this kindness.

Matthew elucidated, "Milo, I've been busy making a living all this time. Next time, I will bring my wife along to your house for a visit."

Milo burst into laughter. "Alright, you said it. If you break your promise again, the Cosby Family will send someone to drag you over."

Their friendly relationship was evident over the laughter of merriment and jokes. However, the closer their relationship became, the more frustrated the other members of the Cosby Family and the Cunningham Family became.

It was just the grand opening ceremony of Matthew's small breakfast shop, but the Cosby family actually sent their designated heir to attend the occasion.

Representing the entire family, Milo's appearance was a big deal. Matthew's parents-in-law were overjoyed.

They didn't expect their son-in-law to have such a great connection. He was able to invite the core figure of the Cosby Family.

Yann inhaled a deep breath and asked angrily, "Milo, what are you doing? Why are you humiliating our family like this?"

"Humiliating?" Milo was stunned for a moment before turning serious. "Yann, I never thought of humiliating you guys. The Cosby Family also doesn't like getting involved in any profit disputes."

Yann became more aggressive. "You first pretended to greet my brother and father. Then, you came to give gifts to Matthew. Isn't that humiliation?"

The smile on Milo's face completely disappeared. With a disdainful look in his eyes, he coldly smiled. "Yann, I hope you understand one thing. I, Milo Cosby, have neither received an invitation from your family nor sent a greeting card. So, where does this talk of humiliation come from? If your family wants to cause trouble, please keep in mind that the Cosby Family has never been afraid of anyone."

His aura suddenly condensed, showing the demeanor of a superior. The atmosphere suddenly became serious.

Aurelius, who had been watching the show, suddenly stood up to meditate on the atmosphere. "Calm down, everyone. It's a happy occasion. We are all friends from big families. There's no need to upset each other."

Aurelius' intervention managed to ease the atmosphere between the two sides.
