

Chapter 2430 Destroying the Hara

One move!

In just one move.

This young man, whose muscles had swollen to abnormal proportions, defeated his opponent directly.

This...

At this moment, the audience, who had just been cheering, suddenly fell silent.

For a moment, they couldn't tell whether the young man from Emsgate was too strong or their own participant was too weak.

At this moment, the Great Octavian finally showed a satisfied smile.

"Well done. After the drug's effects wear off, there will be strong side effects. You can go rest now."

He patted the participant's shoulder as he spoke.

"Thank you for defending the honor of the Land of Divinity. I will report this matter truthfully to the Emsgate Warriors Association."

Under the double sugar-coated bullets, the young man who had just finished the match, with an excited expression, was taken to the rest area by several Emsgate doctors.

When the unconscious Cathay participant was carried out on a stretcher for treatment, Matthew suddenly saw the wound on this person.

The hara? Is it intentional or unintentional?

For a while, Matthew's thoughts also fell into contemplation.

The opponent seemed to have lost too casually before and then sent out such a strong participant.

It was as if they were deliberately lulling their opponents.

After all, the wager of a match was an island.

Plus, they intentionally delayed the match yesterday.

Matthew felt that the other side had some conspiracy.

Afterward, Matthew's thoughts were confirmed after several matches.

Almost all of the Emsgate participants overwhelmed their opponents and defeated them one by one.

And the way they attacked was surprisingly consistent.

After hitting the hara in the lower abdomen, several Cathay participants fell to the ground and couldn't get up.

Such a strong momentum made the Cathay participants fearful for a while.

From this point of view, Rhett and Blake's decision was not wrong.

Many people lacked the experience of true challenges. Although their martial arts attainments were profound and their talents were outstanding, their confidence was ultimately insufficient, and their determination as strong individuals was not firm enough.

Of course, they also noticed the little tricks of the Emsgate side.

After seeing those participants in an unusually imposing manner, Blake felt something was off, but couldn't put his finger on it.

He always felt something was amiss.

"Mr. Kaur, destroying someone's hara is like taking their life. Aren't your participants going a bit too far?"

According to the rules set before the match, as long as they didn't harm someone's life, it was acceptable.

However, how was destroying the hara any different from killing?

These were all the future of Cathay. Upon seeing a few of them being carried out below the stage, Blake couldn't help but feel distressed.

When the Great Octavian heard Blake's question, he could only shake his head helplessly.

"Elder Carr, as you know, there are no rules in the arena. These young people don't hold back when they strike. I can only give them a good admonishment."

Although his words sounded nice, his satisfaction was no longer concealed.

He completely looked like a winner, who was high and mighty.

Faced with such a rascal statement, Blake was also powerless to refute it. The other party's words were indeed not wrong.

Upon thinking of this, he could only secretly instruct the young people of Cathay to pay attention to their safety.

"Why? Is there no one that dares to come up? This is the birthplace of martial arts. Is there really no one left? If that's the case, you might as well just admit defeat and save everyone's time."

Accompanied by the shouts of the Emsgate participants, Larry stood up directly.

"I can't stand you anymore. Let me teach these monkeys a lesson this time. I'll let them experience the power of my iron fist."

At this moment, Matthew's thoughts were already immersed in analyzing Emsgate's conspiracy.

When he snapped out of it and was about to stop Larry, Larry had already leaped onto the stage.

The two sides faced each other, and the match officially began.
