

Chapter 2537 Mr Zahn's Advice

Now that Scuttle's meridians were destroyed, his mindset had become even more extreme. However, he didn't anticipate that Matthew would not even furrow his brow upon hearing about such a massive debt.

Instead, he immediately took a check from his pocket and said, "2.42 million! Consider the contract fulfilled."

As Scuttle stared at the long string of numbers on the check before him, he was momentarily stunned. After all, even if he sold the Rejuvenis Alternative Medicine Clinic, it wouldn't come close to this amount.

Of course, the Yarwoods were not short of money either. The main issue was their desire to acquire this alternative medicine clinic and establish a monopoly in the pharmaceutical market. Now that Matthew had intervened, it seemed he would be the one to take over the clinic.

However, the words had already been spoken, and the contract in his hand was written in black and white. It was impossible to go back on his word.

Scuttle stared at Matthew fiercely, his eyes filled with anger.

This kid ruined my plans!

Yet, even with all his frustration, he could only accept the situation and take the check with a dark face. Then, he threw the loan contract he held toward Matthew.

"Kid, you will regret this!" After a cold snort, Scuttle quickly left with his henchmen.

As their figures disappeared, Matthew turned around and returned to Mr. Zahn's side, quickly treating his wounds. "Mr. Zahn, are you feeling alright?"

Mr. Zahn was still in a daze. He had thought he would surely die but didn't expect to be saved by a young man he had never known before.

When Matthew noticed Mr. Zahn had not responded, he called out again.

At this moment, Mr. Zahn finally came back to his senses. With a guilty expression, he hurriedly greeted him, "Thank you, young man, for saving my life. I didn't expect to drag you into this mess."

Matthew didn't pay too much attention to this. Ever since he came to Hulwin, he had been destined to be at odds with the Yarwoods. To put it more seriously, the moment Matthew wanted to protect the Slob mother and daughter and suppress the Martial League's power in Hulwin, he and the Yarwoods were in a situation where they would fight to the death. The current conflict was just a minor matter.

"No need to be polite, Mr. Zahn. Lately, I have seen enough of those who bully the weak and commit evil deeds. So, I am just lending a hand."

At this moment, Mr. Zahn let out a long sigh.

"It's not that I underestimate you, young man. It's just that the Yarwoods' power in Hulwin is so overwhelming that it's despairing. Now that you have conflicts with them, they will definitely come after you sooner or later," he said.

Suddenly, his eyes lit up as he changed the topic. "Mr. Larson, judging from your accent, you are not a local, right?"

After Matthew nodded, Mr. Zahn suddenly became agitated. "Mr. Larson, let me offer you a piece of advice. The waters in Hulwin are too deep, and you, being young and inexperienced, cannot handle it. Here's the thing, young man. You should leave as soon as possible while they haven't laid their hands on you yet. I will sell the clinic and find a way to compensate for the money I owe you."

However, Matthew just smiled and shook his head. "Mr. Zahn, since I dare to act, naturally, I am not afraid of the Yarwoods. You can rest assured."

As he said that, he patted the latter's shoulder. Mr. Zahn had a kind heart and was worthy of the Rejuvenis Alternative Medicine Clinic's reputation.

Before Mr. Zahn could respond, Matthew continued, "Besides, Mr. Zahn, since you plan to sell this clinic, why not transfer it to me? As for the 2.4 million, let's just write it off. How about that?"

Upon hearing this, Mr. Zahn hurriedly waved his hand in refusal. "This won't do. It won't be enough, even if I sell the clinic at a premium. No, that won't do! Mr. Larson, in that case, I still have a few properties here in Hulwin. I can use them to offset my debt, which should be enough."
