

Chapter 2542 Western Suburb Mining Company

"Hello, Mr. Larson. I am Yohan, Mr. Warrington's main assistant. Mr. Warrington informed me that the issue with the mining company has been resolved. Let me take you there."

After Yohan finished speaking, Matthew let out a surprised smile.

He hadn't expected Stellan to be so efficient. It had only been a day and the matter had already been taken care of.

"Mr. Zahn, I will leave the matter of the clinic to you."

Upon hearing Matthew's words, Grayson waved his hand repeatedly.

"Call me Grayson. You can drop the honorifics. Don't worry, I will handle things here."

"Alright, then I'll leave it to you, Grayson. Here are two types of medicine I developed for internal and external injuries. Remember to take them."

After bidding farewell, Matthew followed Yohan and left the clinic in a car.

As the vehicle gradually moved away, Matthew and the others arrived at the western district.

As soon as they got out of the car, Evander couldn't help but complain, "What kind of mining subsidiary company is this? We saw countless pieces of equipment along the way, but there wasn't a single worker in sight. Mr. Larson, did we get deceived?"

Upon hearing this, Matthew secretly shook his head at him, indicating for him to calm down.

Yohan noticed their interaction, but he just smiled faintly.

"Mr. Larson, it's alright. Captain Calloway is right. This Western Suburb Mining Company is a company that is on the verge of bankruptcy."

Upon hearing this, Evander became visibly displeased.

Just as he was about to explode, Matthew stopped him again. "Let's hear what he has to say first."

Since Yohan was sent by Stellan, it was impossible for him to embarrass himself.

Yohan nodded at Matthew and continued to explain. "Mr. Warrington asked me to pass a message to Mr. Larson. As someone is watching him, this is the extent of what he can do.

"On top of that, Mr. Warrington specifically instructed that if there are any difficulties during the handover process, you can contact the owner of the mining company, who is also Mr. Warrington's nephew, Tanner.

"Of course, the relationship between the two is unknown to outsiders, so please keep it confidential, Mr. Larson."

Upon hearing this, Matthew instantly understood.

What a clever strategy of playing both sides against the middle.

No wonder he had been able to survive in the position of Hulwin Martial League President for so long.

When there were no outsiders around, Matthew couldn't help but want to applaud Stellan.

What Matthew needed most was not a powerful mining factory or company but a company that he could completely trust.

This Western Suburb Mining Company happened to meet his requirements.

"Mr. Yohan, please convey my gratitude to Mr. Warrington. I am very satisfied with the mining company. I'm grateful for his strong support."

Moreover, from Yohan's few short words, Matthew could tell that this person had a close relationship with Stellan.

Otherwise, it would be impossible for him to know this core secret.

"Mr. Larson, you're welcome. I shall take my leave now. If you need anything, you can contact Tanner at any time."

After saying this politely, Yohan took his leave.

With that, Matthew entered Western Suburb Mining Company with Evander.

When they stepped inside the gate, the entire lobby couldn't be described as empty.

To be precise, it was deserted.

The only living person that could be seen was the security guard inside the guard booth, who was sleeping soundly with his head leaning on the table.

When Matthew knocked on the window, the security guard inside just waved his hand impatiently.

"Stop messing around!"

And then he continued his nap.

At this moment, Matthew suddenly felt that he had been rather hasty.

Since no one was paying attention, he simply walked straight into the company.

He then went all the way to the second floor.

Then, he saw a few workers in uniform who were napping.

Upon hearing the commotion from this side, some of them groggily sat up.

"Hey, guys, someone's here!"
