

Chapter 2545 Settling the Youths

Matthew had not expected this turn of events. Just yesterday, Grayson was perfectly fine. But one night later, he turned out like this. Furthermore, at his age, he could very well qualify as his uncle.

No matter what, Matthew could never accept him as his disciple.

Faced with Grayson's reluctance, Matthew could only helplessly say, "Grayson, it's absolutely impossible for me to take you as my disciple. However, in the future, I will frequently visit the clinic for consultations. If you are interested, you can observe. If you have any questions, I can also teach you."

Upon receiving this outcome, although Grayson couldn't become Matthew's disciple, he was still delighted.

With excitement, he turned around and went to the construction workers.

"Guys, work faster. Let's try to finish the renovation as soon as possible. After it's done, there will be a tip from me to all of you."

After motivating them like this, he still felt unsatisfied and started helping with the renovation personally.

Seeing this, Matthew could only shake his head helplessly. Of course, for the sake of his very first alternative medicine clinic under his name, representing the first step to realizing his dream, he naturally didn't mind. He also participated in deciding the layout and decoration of the clinic with great enthusiasm.

While they were busying themselves, a large, disorderly group of people was rushing over from a distance.

The pedestrians around covered their noses in disgust and then dodged to the side upon seeing these ragged and dirty youths.

If it were in the past, Danny would have felt a bit embarrassed, but now things were different.

He already had a job and wouldn't be treated like a pesky street rat anymore.

As they approached, Matthew put down whatever he was working on.

Yes, he was personally directing the renovation team.

"Coming!"

Wiping the sweat from his forehead, Matthew walked out.

With a glance, he saw that the dense crowd numbered no less than eight hundred.

Most of them had unsteady footsteps and pale complexions. Obviously, they had been starving for a long time and suffered from nutritional deficiency.

"Is everyone here?"

Facing Matthew's question, Danny nodded seriously.

And Matthew naturally didn't mind the large number of people. On the contrary, he felt that it was still not enough.

According to his plan, the ideal number of people would be around one thousand, but Matthew also knew that he was being greedy.

We can always recruit more people to make up for the remaining sum in the future, he thought.

With a smile on his face, he walked forward.

"Regarding the situation on my side, I'm sure Danny has already informed all of you about it. Just yesterday, I offended the most powerful force in Hulwin. If you are worried about retaliation, now's your chance to pull out."

He gave them a last reminder.

However, even after a few minutes, this group of youths stared at Matthew in a daze, not saying a word.

"Very well. Since that's the case, come with me."

Matthew was quite satisfied with the performance of these youths.

Apart from their qualifications, their character was the most important thing to Matthew.

Just like that, amidst the astonished gazes of passersby, Matthew led the group and walked on for nearly an hour before finally arriving at an abandoned factory in the suburbs.

"There are many of you, and I didn't have much time, so I only managed to arrange such accommodation for you. And unfortunately, this abandoned factory was bought by Captain Calloway just this morning. If you want to transform it into a habitable residence, you will have to do everything yourselves."

As he spoke, Matthew waved his hand toward Evander standing on the factory's rooftop across the street.

At this moment, although these youths were already sweating from exhaustion, their eyes revealed a longing expression.

Compared to the days of sleeping under the open sky, having a roof over their heads to shelter them from the wind and rain made them extremely satisfied.

Moreover, at this point, these young people had let go of any remaining worries they had in their hearts.

Witnessing Matthew's gestures, they confirmed that Matthew genuinely wanted to keep them.
