

Chapter 2554 The Three Masters' Reputation Falls

Facing Christian's refusal, Matthew stared at him in disbelief.

"Mr. Riley, are you all talk and no action? Do you still remember the two women from the Slob Family?" Matthew asked. At the same time, Vivian supported her mother-in-law and approached them.

"Mr. Riley, it's been a while. Do you remember us?" Vivian asked.

Seeing the two of them, Christian was shocked and looked as though he had seen a ghost.

He couldn't help but step back.

Isn't Alberta supposed to be dead a long time ago? The prescription I gave her has been tampered with. Why is she still alive?

With the various complicated thoughts swirling in his mind, Christian felt dizzy and disoriented.

If it weren't for his disciple behind him quickly stepping forward to support him, he would have already fallen to the ground.

A life for a life.

At that moment, Matthew showed no mercy.

With a cold look in his eyes and a hint of killing intent, he spoke slowly.

"Alberta clearly has tuberculosis, yet you dared to prescribe wampi, pokeberry, and aconitum, which are harmful to the lungs. What were your intentions?"

Accompanied by Matthew's loud reprimand, Christian, who was in a daze, shook his head in panic and denial.

"It wasn't me. You're accusing me falsely. This is slander!"

"Heh, slander? Mr. Riley, how dare you have the audacity to say that? If you only sold them to Alberta at several times the price, I can only assume that you're obsessed with money. But what you absolutely shouldn't have done was to add Snakefruit to it. You deserve to die!"

Upon hearing this, the onlookers, including the disciples behind the three masters, turned pale.

Even ordinary people who didn't understand herbal medicine knew Snakefruit was a poison specifically used to kill pests.

At that point, Christian still refused to admit it and desperately argued, "Matthew Larson, stop with the nonsense. I didn't do that."

Seeing this, Matthew couldn't be bothered to argue further.

"There's concrete evidence. Your name is clearly signed on the prescription. Are you still trying to deny it?"

After saying that, he threw the thick stack of prescriptions at Christian's face.

If Matthew hadn't seen Vivian's prescription, he wouldn't have expected a physician to be so evil.

It would have been forgivable if he was obsessed with money, but what was most despicable was that he even wanted to kill someone to cover up his tracks.

He deserved to be punished!

At this moment, a gentle breeze blew, causing the yellowed papers to flutter and scatter everywhere.

Looking at the signature on the prescription, everyone on the scene had angry expressions on their faces.

Who would have thought Christian Riley, whom others usually respected and specialized in treating wealthy families, turned out to be such a heartless physician?

On the other hand, his companions and disciples also did not expect that their revered Master Riley, whom they usually admired, would have such a treacherous heart.

In an instant, everyone's gaze toward Christian changed.

Then, in a fit of anger, Christian suddenly felt blood surge in his throat.

Splat!

After spitting out a mouthful of blood, he instantly became pale and looked withered.

His once energetic appearance suddenly became haggard.

However, his current state did not garner any sympathy from the crowd.

"Evil always begets evil," they said.

Christian opened his mouth, wanting to say something, but he then swallowed his words.

At this moment, all he felt was endless regret.

If he had known earlier, he wouldn't have listened to that woman's persuasion.

He shouldn't have been blinded by greed or went and provoked Matthew.

At this point, he deeply regretted his past actions.

Negative emotions slowly overwhelmed him.

His consciousness faded, and he fell into a coma.

"Hahaha! This is karma."

"Serves him right. Such a heartless physician deserves to suffer. Ptui! He's not even worthy of being called a physician. He's just a scum!"

"It's a rat pack. The Three Masters of Hulwin are nothing but a joke. They only know how to harm people!"

Accompanied by the continuous condemnation from the crowd, the disciple behind Christian quickly lowered his head and fled with his master on his back.

Meanwhile, the other two masters also felt that their reputation was at stake.

With their disciples, they followed behind Christian and escaped from this place amidst the angry voices of the onlookers.
