

Chapter 2648 The Identity of the Holy Doctor Exposed

Tyga's simple request was like a massive boulder plunging into a calm pond, instantly creating huge ripples.

As long as they could establish a connection with the Montiria Royal Family, the benefits brought weren't just immense profits but also, more importantly, an elevated status. Those who had spent their entire lives in business had desires for status that far exceeded their pursuit of profits.

Since learning about the royal spies hidden among the guests, Enzo had become much more cautious.

In response to Tyga's request, this influential figure continued to wear his fake smile. "Mr. Tyga, if you need any help from us, just tell us."

"I'm looking for someone!"

The guests leaned in, ears perked, afraid to miss any important information. When Tyga calmly stated his objective, the entire crowd erupted into a frenzy, rushing forward to surround him.

"Mr. Tyga, those of us in business may not have many skills, but we are well-connected when it comes to information!"

"Mr. Tyga, whoever you're looking for, even if we have to turn the whole city of Concordia upside down, we'll find them for you."

The guests' enthusiastic chatter and the crazed look in their eyes created a noisy atmosphere. Even Isambard and Tavish couldn't help but appear excited and impatient while waiting for Tyga's next words.

Finally, when Tyga raised his hand to signal, the deafening noise began to quickly subside.

"Relax, everyone. Let me finish speaking!" His slightly furrowed brows revealed his irritation. "Recently, I heard that Old Mr. Zedler, who had been unwell, suddenly experienced a recovery. I wanted to inquire about the identity of the miraculous physician who cured Old Mr. Zedler."

Upon hearing this, a few perceptive guests immediately thought of the Zedler brothers.

"What a coincidence, Mr. Tyga! We may not know the person you're looking for, but we have two men from the Zedler Family's senior branch among us. Mr. Erwin and Mr. Bennett would undoubtedly have the most information about Old Mr. Zedler's recovery."

As the words fell, all eyes turned to the Zedler brothers.

Isambard was suddenly struck with an epiphany. In principle, having a force as substantial as the one under Matthew's command in Seraphis was not to be underestimated. However, nobody present, including Enzo, was aware of this young man's true identity until now, as if he had appeared out of thin air.

Now, with Mortimer suddenly brought up and the Zedler brothers suddenly showing support...

Isambard hadn't lived all his years for nothing; he had recently heard some vague rumors. Matthew's true identity was about to be unveiled.

Considering all of this, Isambard's breathing quickened, and he was filled with shock. That kid can't play me like that! What person with an immense background applies to be a gym medic?! Had he done it to experience the life of a commoner?!

The Zedler brothers had become the center of attention, their faces slightly flushed from just finishing a full bottle of vodka. When Tyga approached, Erwin noticed and nudged his elbow into Bennett's side, signaling for him to watch his manners. Without waiting for Tyga to speak first, Erwin bluntly stated, "Mr. Tyga, we heard what you just said. The person you're looking for, sir, is none other than Matthew Larson!"

Erwin pointed toward Matthew but couldn't hide the disappointment and frustration in his eyes. Almost, Matthew was on the brink of being killed by Osiris! Now, not only was he alive and well, but even the trusted assistant of Prince Gadel had taken an interest in his medical skills.

After getting the answer he sought, Tyga first thanked Erwin and then turned directly toward Matthew.

Once again, the crowd was disheartened. How could it be possible that this young man, who is practically a nobody, turns out to be the holy doctor who cured Old Mr. Zedler?! Where's the justice in that?!
